> > "(I)n view of the nature of the felony convictions involved in this proceeding, it is not appropriate to consider other facts and circumstances as to respondents' reputation in the community or as to present conditions at their plant." Ibid, page 11.

"(I)t is not appropriate to consider whether it is likely that respondent will again commit a similar felony." Ibid, page 12.

"(T)he Act indicates that a single felony may be the basis for a finding of unfitness to receive inspection, and the felonies involved in this proceeding are of such a nature as to compel the determination that respondent is unfit to receive inspection." Ibid, page 14.

The first proceeding under the Act to result in the withdrawal of inspection services from a recipient because of a prior felony conviction was Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380 (1979), affirmed, H79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981). In affirming this decision, Chief Judge Clarie found it to be in keeping with a long and established line of federal cases which have upheld the exclusion of convicted felons from employment where the public interest requires insurance against corrupt practices (Appendix "B", page 5), and held, at page 7:

"The Court can find no fault with that logic, which equates lack of integrity and dependability with unfitness to engage in a business requiring inspection. The plaintiffs argue, in reply, 'Hypothetically, a person may lack integrity and dependability and still sell an excellent and outstanding food product which poses no threat to the consuming public.' While this proposition may well be true, the Secretary is not required to run the risk that it may, instead, be false. Nor is it an abuse of discretion for him to conclude that, at least in this case, it is false; and that the consuming public will be safer if the plaintiff . . . is not permitted to operate a meat processing business. The Court is cognizant of the public's great interest in the purity of food. Smith v. California, 361 U.S. 147, 152 (1959)."

In Wyszynski, the Secretary of Agriculture has decided, I believe most properly, to not subject the health of consum> ers to the consequences of an imperfect act of contrition by a meat processor convicted of a felony involving wilful and knowing adulteration of meat food products.

best copy available

On appeal, Senior Judge Whipple upheld the Department's per se approach, holding that since the felony convictions "clearly contravene the purposes of the Federal Meat Inspection Program, it is neither appropriate nor necessary to consider other facts and circumstances, such as the plaintiff's reputation in the community or conditions at the plant." Toscony Provision Co. v. Block, 538 F. Supp. 318, 321 (D.N.J. 1982).

The court's decision in Toscony, which was issued after the Judicial Officer's decision in Wyszynski, discussed immediately above, but before the district court upheld Wyszynski on other grounds, completely agrees with the Judicial Officer's per se ruling in Wyszynski. In affirming the Judicial Officer's per se approach in cases where the offenses "clearly contravene the purposes of the Federal Meat Inspection Program," the court held (538 F. Supp. at 320–21):

> The record is clear and simple and requires no further factual analysis to determine the basis of the Administrative Law Judge's and the Judicial Officer's decisions. The decisions were based upon the single fact of the convictions of Toscony and Henry Dei for distributing adulterated meat in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 602. Therefore, the only review that is required is whether that single factor is sufficient to support the finding that the respondent is unfit to engage in any business requiring federal meat inspection services.
> . . . . . .
> Finally, the Secretary relies most heavily upon Wyszenski Provision Co., Inc. v. Bergland, 39 Agric. Dec. (Feb. 13, 1981) appeal pending, No. 81-816 (E.D. Pa. 1982) which was cited as being "on all fours" with the case at hand.
> In Wyszinski, the company's vice-president, Walter Wyszinski, pled guilty to adding a prohibited "meat freshener" to sausage. The Secretary withdrew inspection services indefinitely, to be suspended upon Mr. Wyszinski's disassociation with the firm. The Wyszinski opinion clearly stands for the proposition that although it was never Congress' intent to disenfranchise someone soley because of any felony conviction, if the felony is one that "strikes at the heart of the meat inspection program" it requires a determination of unfitness.

> Therefore, as in Wyszinski, because the nature of Mr. Dei's and Toscony's offenses is such that they clearly contravene the purposes of the Federal Meat Inspection Program, it is neither appropriate nor necessary to consider other facts and circumstances, such as the plaintiff's reputation in the community or conditions at the plant. Wyszinski at 11.
> Accordingly, the Administrative Law Judge's and Judicial Officer's reliance upon the fact of these convictions in order to find unfitness cannot be said to be arbitrary, or capricious or an abuse of discretion or in any way contrary to law. Furthermore, it cannot be said to be unsupported by substantial evidence in the record.

On appeal of Toscony to the United States Court of Appeals, the court granted a motion filed by the government (in which it was stated that counsel for Toscony joins in the motion) to remand the matter to USDA for consideration of mitigating circumstances. Toscony Provision Co. v. Block, No. 82-5354 (3d Cir. Nov. 19, 1982). The motion was filed by the Assistant United States Attorney handling the case for the Secretary of Agriculture and the United States because of an unpublished decision by the Sixth Circuit holding that mitigating circumstances must be considered. Utica Packing Co. v. Bergland, No. 81-1383 (6th Cir. Sept. 2, 1982), discussed in subsection 5(c), infra. The Assistant United States Attorney did not advise USDA that such a motion was to be filed. The court granted the motion filed by the government without ruling on whether a remand was necessary or appropriate. That is, the court expressed no opinion as to whether it agreed with the lower court opinion being reviewed or whether it agreed with the contrary view of the Sixth Circuit.

Based upon the voluntary decision of the Assistant United States Attorney to have the mitigating circumstances considered, and the court's remand order granting the government's request to have the proceeding remanded, the ALJ who issued the initial ruling in the case held that respondent was unfit to receive inspection because of the felonies, and that the mitigating circumstances were not sufficient to change the result in the case. In re Toscony Provision Co., 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 18, 1984).

Toscony appealed to the Judicial Officer, but inasmuch as the appeal was filed late, after the ALJ's decision had become final and effective, the Judicial Officer held (in accordance with many prior decisions) that he had no jurisdiction under the Department's rules of practice to hear the appeal. Nonetheless, in order to obviate the need for a further remand in case a reviewing court should disagree with the Judicial Officer's jurisdictional ruling as to the late appeal, the Judicial Officer indicated that if the appeal had not been filed late, he would have adopted the ALJ's initial decision. The Judicial Officer stated (In re Toscony Provision Co., 43 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 6-7 (July 12, 1984):

> Respondent has indicated that an appeal will be taken from an order denying permission to file a late appeal. Accordingly, in an effort to avoid undue delay in this proceeding (which involves the public health), in the event that a court should disagree with my order denying a late appeal, I have re-read the original record in this proceeding, and have read the supplementary record made after my original decision in this proceeding. If an appeal had been timely filed, I would have adopted Judge Palmer's initial Decision and Order as the final Decision and Order in this proceeding, adding additional conclusions emphasizing that I give little or no weight to any of the circumstances regarded by respondent as mitigating. Respondent has a great volume of evidence alleged to be mitigating, but the great volume is of no consequence since each item has little or no weight. Even a thousand times zero is still zero!
> This is not a close case. In fact, the circumstances regarded by respondent as mitigating are of such little weight that I would have regarded an appeal almost as frivolous, or solely for delay. Additional briefs on appeal would not have been helpful in view of the thorough briefing of the mitigation issue by counsel in the briefs filed below. Oral argument before the Judicial Officer, if requested, would have been denied. It is the practice of the Judicial Officer to hear oral argument on appeal only on very rare occasions where it is regarded as helpful.
> Accordingly, if a court should disagree with my procedural ruling, perhaps the case could be decided on the basis of the Administrative Law Judge's initial Decision without the delay incident to a further remand to the Department.

On appeal to the district court for the second time, but to a different United States District Judge (Judge Ackerman), the court (erroneously, I believe) reviewed the merits despite respondent's late appeal to the Judicial Officer. The court affirmed the order withdrawing inspection services indefinitely, unless Henry Dei was disassociated from the plant, stating (Toscony Provision Co. v. Block, No. 81-1729, slip op. at 13-17 (D.N.J. Mar. 11, 1985)):

> On remand, after a full hearing on the question of mitigating circumstances, Judge Palmer reiterating his prior conclusion in this regard stated: The entire record, the briefs and arguments by Counsel have been fully considered to determine the appropriate sanction that should be imposed in this proceeding. I have concluded that respondent and Mr. Dei's felony convictions for knowingly distributing adulterated meat strike at the very heart of the Federal meat inspection program, and the mitigating circumstances of Mr. Dei's otherwise excellent reputation among business, professional, and social acquaintances and virtually blemish-free record both before and since the felonies is not sufficient to allow inspection service to continue at respondent's plant unless Mr. Dei disassociates himself from the corporation and divests himself of all its stock that he owns. See the transcript T-27 at Page 4.
> After making findings of fact and conclusions of law, Judge Palmer concluded as follows: I have followed the Department's policy and have determined that despite the fact that Henry Dei otherwise has an excellent reputation among his professional, social, and business associates, he has nonetheless committed one of the most egregious violations imaginable under the Meat Inspection Act. He endangered the physical health and well-being of respondent's customers by his surreptitious addition of a deleterious chemical substance to the sausage prepared and distributed by his company. The criminality of this conduct far outweighs his otherwise excellent reputation and respondent's otherwise good record both before and since. Therefore, Federal meat inspection should be withdrawn unless Henry Dei becomes disassociated with the plant. See the transcript T-27 at Page 10.

In dismissing plaintiffs' appeal and denying their Motion for leave to appeal out of time, the Judicial Officer, as noted supra, considered the merits so as to avoid the necessity for a remand should a Federal Court reach the merits as I have. . . .

While I do not agree that Mr. Dei's reputation in the business community and among his family and friends as well as his "blemish-free record" both before and after the crimes for which he was convicted should be weighed as a "zero" against his conviction in determining fitness under the Act, I find that the Secretary's decision that plaintiff's job-related conviction outweighed the evidence of mitigating circumstances is neither arbitrary nor capricious on the record before me.

While the record is replete with evidence of Plaintiff Dei's good character, there can be no argument that the felony conviction in question is job-related and thus at the heart of any determination of fitness under the Act. Although the Act permits withdrawal of inspection services by the USDA upon conviction of any felony where there is a finding of unfitness, this is not just any felony. I agree that it would be improper for the Secretary to equate another sort of felony conviction with unfitness automatically. Here, however, the Secretary was presented with a felony conviction for willfully distributing adulterated meat products. More than impressive character testimony is necessary to outweigh the implications of unfitness which inhere in a job-related conviction such as the instant one.

I recognize that Plaintiff Dei is in the "twilight" of his business career at age 75. I recognize as well that Plaintiff Toscony Company needs Mr. Dei as much as he needs it. I recognize, too, that in light of these facts and the mitigating evidence introduced at the hearing the sanctions imposed are severe insofar as he is concerned. I am not unsympathetic to Mr. Dei, but I am compelled to conclude that the sanctions imposed are neither arbitrary or capricious in light of the record herein and the public's interest in health and maintaining high standards of food preparation and distribution which are reflected in the Act.

As shown above, the first district court decision in Toscony is a square holding affirming the Judicial Officer's per se approach where the felony conviction strikes at the heart of the meat inspection program. The second district court decision in Toscony, which resulted from a voluntary decision by the Assistant United States Attorney to have the case remanded for consideration of the mitigating circumstances, is a significant holding that it is not arbitrary or capricious for USDA to determine that more than impressive character testimony and blemish-free record before and after the felony involved is required to outweigh the implications of unfitness which inhere in a "job related" conviction that strikes at the heart of the meat inspection program.

5. Utica Packing Company.

The Utica case evoked seven separate decisions, which must be reviewed in sequence in order to understand fully and interpret properly the views set forth in later decisions.

(a) Judicial Officer's Original Utica Decision.

In In re Utica Packing Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 590 (1980), aff'd, 511 F. Supp. 655 (E.D. Mich. 1981), remanded, 705 F.2d 460 (6th Cir. 1982) (unpublished), decision on remand, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Nov. 18, 1982), final decision on reconsideration, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 20, 1984), aff'd, No. 80-72742 (E.D. Mich. Mar. 12, 1985), reversed and remanded, No. 85-1324 (6th Cir. Jan 13, 1986), the Judicial Officer withdrew meat inspection service indefinitely from respondent, but suspended the withdrawal on the condition that David Fenster became disassociated from respondent within 90 days and sold his stock within one year.

The withdrawal of inspection was based on the fact that David Fenster, respondent's president and half owner, was convicted of four felonies under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) [9] for corruptly giving $200 on

(1) to influence any official act; or

(2) to influence such public official or person who has been selected to be a public official to commit or aid in committing, or collude in, or allow, any fraud, or make opportunity for the commission of any fraud, on the United States; or four separate occasions to Dr. Reed, the supervisor of five or six lay meat inspectors, who, together with Dr. Reed, inspected meat at respondent's plant. United States v. Fenster, 449 F. Supp. 435 (E.D. Mich. 1978). The felony convictions involved proof that the payments were made to influence inspection at the plant, i.e., to reduce the number of line-stoppages by the inspectors, and to give respondent the benefit of the doubt with regard to hogs of questionable soundness. (As in the present case, Dr. Reed contacted other authorities and was equipped with a concealed tape recorder which recorded David Fenster's payment conversations.)

Even though the felonies occurred before the Department issued its per se Policy Statement relating to bribery and related offenses (see subsection 1, supra), the Judicial Officer applied a per se approach since the felonies struck at the heart of the meat inspection program, and refused to consider respondent's mitigating circumstances. Moreover, he did not indicate even by way of dicta his views as to the mitigating circumstances, so a remand would be necessary in the event a reviewing court disagreed with his per se approach.[10]

The Judicial Officer adopted, in part, the ALJ's findings and conclusions, which referred to respondent's mitigating evidence as follows (39 Agric. Dec. at 598):

> On the basis of a first reading of Norwich, respondent was permitted to introduce considerable evidence establishing that:
> 1. Mr. Fenster's reputation in his community, despite his conviction by the United States District Court, is excellent;
> 2. His bribing of the Veterinarian-Inspector was apparently aberrant behavior for him resulting from: a) serious health problems, b) exacerbation of old psychic injuries while a victim of the Nazi

Shall be fined not more than $20,000 or three times the monetary equivalent of the thing of value, whichever is greater, or imprisoned for not more than fifteen years, or both, and may be disqualified from holding any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States.

[10] The omission of such dicta here and in the first Toscony decision was purposeful, so that the Department could seek certiorari if the per se approach was reversed on appeal. However, since the Department did not avail itself of that opportunity, to obviate the need for a remand if the per se approach is again disapproved, in this case and all future cases (until the legality of the per se approach has been definitively decided), I will indicate my views as to the mitigating circumstances (as was done in Wyszynski).

Holocaust, and c) misapprehensions concerning the motivation of various inspectors who had undertaken stricter enforcement of Federal Meat Inspection Act requirements; and,

3. The problems which led to his aberrant behavior have largely disappeared leading the U.S. Veterinarian who serves as Area Supervisor to file an official report, on October 15, 1979, advising the Director of Meat and Poultry Inspection that the respondent plant had, since December of 1978, established "a clean meat program" and "now is producing very clean hogs and plant management can be proud of their product."

On subsequent readings of Norwich, however, I have become convinced that its essential holding renders immaterial the consequent finding that recurrence is unlikely because of the general excellence of Mr. Fenster's character and reputation and the elimination of the conditions and motivations which led to the commission of the felony.

In holding that the felony convictions involved in Utica prove that respondent is unfit to receive meat inspection, so long as David Fenster is associated with respondent, the Judicial Officer stated (39 Agric. Dec. at 602):

In the present case, respondent's president and half-owner was convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of bribing the supervisor of the meat inspectors at respondent's plant on four separate occasions. The Court explained that 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) requires that the bribe be given "corruptly" to "influence a public official to depart from conduct deemed essential to the public interest." The Court stated that "[i]n light of these standards, the Court is satisfied that the facts established at trial bespeak beyond a reasonable doubt a violation of § 201(b)." [Footnote omitted.]

If a felony conviction by a person responsibly connected with the recipient of meat inspection service is ever to form the basis for a determination that the recipient is unfit to receive meat inspection service, the felony conviction in this case requires that determination. That is, unless the statutory language is meaningless and is never to be applied, it must be applied in this case. There can be no other type of felony conviction which would more clearly establish that the recipient is unfit to receive inspection service than the conviction involved in the present proceeding. Since I believe that Congress meant what it said and intended for the discretionary authority to be applied in the case of some types of felonies, I have no alternative but to determine that the respondent is unfit to receive inspection service because of Mr. Fenster's felony conviction.

The Judicial Officer explained that mitigating circumstances would be relevant and would be considered in some cases, such as Norwich (hijacked beef), discussed in subsection 2, supra, but not in the case of bribery convictions which strike at the "heart of the meat inspection program." He stated (39 Agric. Dec. at 602–04):

> In addition, in view of the nature of the felony conviction involved in this proceeding, it is not appropriate to consider other facts and circumstances as to Mr. Fenster's reputation in the community or as to present conditions at respondent's plant. Since Congress clearly indicated that some recipient of inspection service will be found unfit to receive inspection because a responsibly connected person was convicted of a particular felony, if that language is ever to be applied and given meaning it must be applied in this case. In this case the felony conviction by itself requires a determination that respondent is unfit to receive inspection service.
> This is not inconsistent with the holding in In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380, 396 (1979) (attached as an appendix to this decision), . . . [aff'd, No. H79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981), appeal dismissed, No. 81-6080 (2d Cir. Jan. 22, 1982)], in which it was said:
> > Although only the felony conviction affords a jurisdictional basis for withdrawing inspection services from respondent, once the jurisdictional basis is met consideration can be given to any other relevant circumstances, favorable and unfavorable. Accordingly, it is appropriate to consider the evidence offered by respondent that aside from the two convictions, Alan Roessler's reputation in the community is good, and he has conducted himself and his business affairs in a responsible and exemplary manner. On the other hand, it is appropriate to consider that Alan Roessler was willing to commit a second crime to obtain inspection services for his plant.

In the Norwich Beef case, the felony which afforded the jurisdictional basis for withdrawing inspection service involved the receipt of a truckload of stolen beef. Since that felony is not directly involved with meat inspection, all of the facts and circumstances had to be considered to determine whether the recipient of meat inspection was unfit to receive inspection because of that type of felony conviction.

But in the present case, the felony conviction relates to the heart of the meat inspection program. Respondent's president and half-owner was convicted of "corruptly" giving money to the supervisor of the meat inspectors at respondent's plant under a statute which "is to discourage one from seeking an advantage of attempting to influence a public official to depart from conduct deemed essential to the public interest" (Finding 4, supra). In view of the type of felony involved in the present case, there is no need to consider any other circumstances in order to determine whether the conviction of this felony renders respondent unfit to receive inspection services.

It would similarly be inappropriate to consider whether it is likely that Mr. Fenster will again attempt to bribe a meat inspector. The statute indicates that at least in the case of some felonies, meat inspection is to be withdrawn because a responsibly connected person was convicted on one occasion of the felony. As stated above, if that statutory language is ever to be applied, it must be applied here.

In effect, respondent wants a second chance before the remedial provisions of the Act are applied. But even where the public health is not involved, i.e., where licenses are suspended or revoked for violations of other regulatory statutes, the second chance doctrine does not apply where a violation was wilfully committed. 5 U.S.C. § 558(c).

Where a serious and wilful violation of a regulatory statute administered by this Department is found to have been committed, it is the consistent policy of this Department to impose a remedial sanction without regard to the respondent's present compliance with the Act and without making any determination that it is likely that respondent will again violate the Act in the future.[5] No second chance is given. There is even less reason for giving respondent a second chance where the public health is at stake as in this case.

If a second chance were to be given to violators of the Department's regulatory programs even where the first violation was willful and serious, the remedial statutes would be rendered ineffective. It is a rare case where the violator has not ceased violating by the time the final order is issued. It is a rare case where the violator cannot produce some witnesses who regard his reputation as good irrespective of the violation. It is a rare case where the violator would not appear to be truly sorry for his misconduct and indicate that the violation will never again be committed. Accordingly, unless we were to adopt a second chance policy as to all of the Department's regulatory programs (which is not contemplated), there is no basis whatever for adopting it in this proceeding where the public health is at stake.

(b) District Court's First Utica Decision.

On appeal to the United States District Court, Judge Taylor upheld the Department's per se approach, finding "no abuse of discretion in the ensuing determinations that plaintiffs' evidence in impeachment or mitigation of the convictions was irrelevant or immaterial;" and agreeing with the Judicial Officer that "the evidence which plaintiffs presented on Fenster's present reputation and Utica's present plant conditions, is equally irrelevant to the application of the conviction-suspension provision of section 671" (511 F. Supp. at 665). The following excerpt sets forth Judge Taylor's views upholding the Department's per se approach (511 F. Supp. at 661–65):

> In Arguments I and II of their brief, plaintiffs argue that the Secretary is authorized to withdraw inspection services under 21 U.S.C. § 671 only when the evidence "establishes," and a finding is made, that such withdrawal is necessary to effectuate the purposes of the Chapter; and further that the specific requisite finding would be that unwholesome meat would otherwise be sold by plaintiffs in this case. This argument devolves from plaintiffs strained reading of the opening language of § 671 that: "The Secretary may (for such period, or indefinitely, as he deems necessary to effectuate the purposes of the Act) refuse to provide, or withdraw, inspection services. . . ." This argument also constituted one facet of plaintiffs claim against the adequacy of the administrative complaint. It must fail because it is a twisted and improper construction of plain statutory language; because Congress clearly enacted § 671 on the basis of a congressional finding that participation of persons convicted of certain crimes in the program created an unwanted risk of the introduction of unwholesome meats into commerce, in violation of the above-quoted congressional purpose; and because the Judicial Officer did in fact make the finding required by section § 671 that "In view of the serious nature of the felony conviction in this case, which strikes at the heart of the integrity of the federal meat inspection program, an indefinite withdrawal of inspection service is appropriate to protect the public health, unless Mr. Fenster is disassociated from respondent." [p. 22, Judicial Officer's Decision.] That finding is supported by substantial evidence on the whole record, in accordance with the above-discussed law, and need not be based upon "established" facts as plaintiffs argue here. It is also a reasoned and non-arbitrary exercise of the Secretary's discretion on duration of a suspension. It articulates a rational connection between the facts found and the choice made, in accordance with Bowman, supra.
> . . . As this court discussed, supra, concerning the adequacy of the complaint herein, Congress has specifically removed from this conviction-suspension section any necessity to find those facts relevant to those other sections pertaining to the wholesomeness of a participant's meat product. The Secretary need not re-establish the need for the law itself in every case heard, with findings that a person suspendable under § 671 also currently sells unwholesome meats and is therefore suspendable under other sections. Such an interpretation would render § 671 a nullity. In enacting § 671 Congress has declared that, in order to effectuate the purposes declared in the above-quoted preamble, there are two types of criminal convictions which render a program participant unfit to continue in the industry; any felony, or two lesser crimes undermining the national interest in wholesome, unadulterated foods. Implicit is the congressional finding that the likelihood of such persons introducing unwholesome meats into commerce in the future is unacceptably strong, regardless of the quality of their meats at the time of the adjudication.

So the purpose of the hearing accorded the participant under § 671 is (1) to determine the actuality of a conviction and the status of the person convicted as a participant in the program or responsibly connected therewith; (2) to ascertain the elements of the crimes, if not felonies, and whether they are such as the statute describes as rendering a participant unfit; (3) to establish the duration of suspension necessary to effectuate the purposes of the act. On the issue of duration the elements of the felony committed are also relevant to a determination of what is necessary to effectuate the act. None of the issues to be heard or decided under § 671 make relevant plaintiffs' arguments, or evidence, that the hogs now being sold are wholesome. Congress has stated that this section shall have no effect on any other provisions for withdrawal of services based upon unwholesomeness.

The convictions on which this proceeding was initiated were four felony counts, each of which constituted an attempt to subvert the purposes of the act and facilitate the sale of at least arguably unwholesome food. Therefore, plaintiffs were plainly suspendable by both of the standards set out in § 671. The order of indefinite suspension, accordingly, cannot be said to be arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion. Indeed, the order has been carefully tailored to minimize its economic impact on Utica, either by the sale of Fenster's stock (over the duration of a year) or his withdrawal from active participation (after 90 days).

* * * * * * *

The Administrative Decisions also rely upon the testimony of Dr. Robert Gonter, the Director of the Evaluation and Enforcement Branch of the Compliance Division of the Food Safety and Quality Services of the Department of Agriculture. . . . His expert opinion was that inasmuch as the meat inspection service must rely considerably upon the integrity of plant management in effectuating the meat inspection program, he sought suspension in this case and it has become departmental policy to seek suspension in all cases of convictions involving bribery of federal meat inspection personnel. . . .

. . . Much of plaintiffs' evidence at the Administrative level constituted an attempt to mitigate or impeach the significance of Fenster's bribery convictions, or was related to the alleged current wholesomeness of plaintiffs' plant and the meats processed therein. To that extent it was irrelevant and immaterial, under § 671. . . .

. . . Plaintiffs' arguments that Fenster's bribes were futile in effectuating the sale of unwholesome meats are similarly self-defeating, and irrelevant as well. The evidence of probable economic loss to this community if Utica were to close is also, although unfortunate, irrelevant. That argument also reflects plaintiffs' continued adherence to the mentality which led to an offer of cash to a United States Veterinarian, in the first place. It is a refusal to acknowledge the declaration of our federal government, through Congress, that our interest in wholesome meats as a nation is superior to our economic interests, as individuals. All of plaintiffs' evidence taken together, including his character evidence, if considered relevant, is insufficient to render insubstantial the evidence on which the Secretary has based his rational decision that a suspension of Utica of indefinite duration is proper under § 671 if Fenster retains any responsible connection with the firm.

. . . It appears that, at the inception of these administrative proceedings, the ALJ advised the parties that, in accordance with an earlier Judicial Officer's Opinion, In Re Norwich Beef Company, 38 Ag.Dec. 380 (1970), he would hear plaintiffs' evidence of the circumstances surrounding Fenster's felony convictions and his present reputation in the community. Accordingly, plaintiffs presented such evidence, which has been discussed supra. In his subsequent decision however, the ALJ noted plaintiffs' mitigation and character evidence and concluded that surrounding circumstances were not relevant, where the very nature of the felony conviction itself were so directly antithetical to the integrity of the program and the purposes of the act. [Appendix P. 127]. The Judicial Officer wrote, on this point:

> In view of the type of felony involved in the present case, there is no need to consider any other circumstances in order to determine whether the conviction of this felony renders respondent unfit to receive inspection services.
> It would similarly be inappropriate to consider whether it is likely that Mr. Fenster will again attempt to bribe a meat inspector. [Appendix p. 152].

The Judicial Officer thereafter likened plaintiffs' evidence and arguments to a request for a "second chance," and noted that:

> It is a rare case where the violator cannot produce some witnesses who regard his reputation as good irrespective of the violation. It is a rare case where the violator would not appear to be truly sorry for his misconduct and indicate that the violation will never again be committed. (Appendix p. 154).

This court first notes that plaintiffs were not prejudiced by the ALJ's permitting them to introduce evidence and argue theories which were later determined to be irrelevant or incompetent. Full and fair opportunity to present their case was provided, and there is no claim of the exclusion of any evidence which plaintiffs felt was pertinent to their presentation on the record below. This court further finds no abuse of discretion in the ensuing determinations that plaintiffs' evidence in impeachment or mitigation of the convictions was irrelevant or immaterial; and indeed this court has made that same finding, in evaluating the substantiality of the evidence which supports the administrative conclusion, supra. Similarly, the evidence which plaintiffs presented on Fenster's present reputation and Utica's present plant conditions, is equally irrelevant to the application of the conviction-suspension provision of § 671: and if it were considered relevant it would not render insubstantial that evidence which supports the decision made. That is the essence of the above-quoted rumination of the Judicial Officer on the weight to be accorded the testimony of character witnesses in such cases.

(c) Circuit Court's First Utica Decision.

Utica Packing Company and David Fenster appealed the adverse decision of the district court upholding the Department's per se approach to the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. The circuit court held that "the Judicial Officer erred in refusing to consider mitigating circumstances," and remanded the proceeding to the district court, for remand to the Judicial Officer. Utica Packing Co. v. Bergland, 705 F.2d 460 (6th Cir. 1982) (unpublished). After discussing the decisions by the Judicial Officer and the district court, the circuit court gave the following reasons for remanding the case (slip op. at 5):

> On appeal, Fenster's principal argument is that the Judicial Officer erred in refusing to consider mitigating circumstances. We agree. Mitigating circumstances are not immaterial or irrelevant, and may be considered. Whether a particular conviction is itself sufficient to warrant withdrawal of inspection services depends upon the facts underlying the conviction. The more closely the conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present. See Wyszynski Provision Co., Inc. v. Sec. of Agriculture, 538 F. Supp. 361, 364 (E.D. Pa. 1982).
> Upon consideration of the briefs, the arguments of counsel, and the record, this Court is of the opinion that this action must be remanded to the district court with directions to afford the Judicial Officer an opportunity to consider the mitigating circumstances advanced by Fenster. This Court expresses no opinion on either the mitigating circumstances or the merits of the action.

In construing the circuit court's decision, we must, of course, consider the court's statements in the light of the factual situation and circumstances under consideration in Utica. "It is a maxim, not to be disregarded, that general expressions, in every opinion, are to be taken in connection with the case in which these expressions are used." Cohens v. Virginia, 6 Wheat. 264, 399 (1821). See, also, Osaka Shosen Kaisha Line v. United States, 300 U.S. 98, 102–04 (1937); Humphrey's Executor v. United States, 295 U.S. 602, 626–27 (1935).

Specifically, in construing the circuit court's decision, we must keep in mind the fact that the decision relates to convictions of David Fenster for four felonies under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) for corruptly giving money to the supervisor of the meat inspectors assigned to Utica's plant, and that the felonies involved prove that the payments were made to influence inspection at the plant. The circuit court quoted the opinion of the district court in Fenster's criminal case that "the evidence of a quid-pro-quo arrangement sufficient to establish a violation of § 201(b) is, in the opinion of this Court, overwhelming" (slip op. at 3). Moreover, the circuit court's views were expressed with respect to the review of a district court decision which upheld the Judicial Officer's refusal to consider mitigating circumstances where the felony convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection program. In the light of that factual setting, there are three aspects of the circuit court's opinion to be interpreted.

First, did the circuit court require the Judicial Officer to consider the mitigating circumstances? The circuit court said that mitigating circumstances "may" be considered, and remanded the case to afford the Judicial Officer "an opportunity" to consider the mitigating circumstances (slip op. at 5). However, the court recognized that "Fenster's principal argument is that the Judicial Officer erred in refusing to consider mitigating circumstances," and the court said: "We agree" (slip op. at 5, emphasis added). Hence, here as in Wyszynski (see note 8, supra), the use of the words "may" and "opportunity" must be regarded as euphemistic, i.e., the court's opinion must be interpreted as requiring the Judicial Officer to consider the mitigating circumstances.

The second point (which really requires no interpretation, but is mentioned here only because of a misunderstanding of the Judicial Officer's Remand Decision by the Department's attorneys and the "Replacement Judicial Officer") is whether the circuit court directed the Judicial Officer to decide the case on remand one way or the other. The concluding sentence in the circuit court's opinion states: "This Court expresses no opinion on either the mitigating circumstances or the merits of the action" (slip op. at 5). No plainer statement could be made! The circuit court was not directing the Judicial Officer to decide the case for or against Utica and Fenster, but left the initial determination of that matter entirely to the Judicial Officer.

However, although the circuit court expressed "no opinion on either the mitigating circumstances or the merits of the action," one would have to be particularly obtuse not to discern that the circuit court was indicating that in the Utica case, it would be extremely likely that Fenster's felony convictions alone would support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present. That is, the circuit court said (slip op. at 5):

> Whether a particular conviction is itself sufficient to warrant withdrawal of inspection services depends upon the facts underlying the conviction. The more closely the conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present. See Wyszynski Provision Co., Inc. v. Sec. of Agriculture, 538 F. Supp. 361, 364 (E.D. Pa. 1982).

The circuit courts knew that the felonies involved in Utica did strike at the heart of the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act. In fact, there could be no felony that strikes closer to the heart of the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act than the felony of corruptly bribing the supervisory meat inspector assigned to a packing plant for the express purpose of influencing the inspection activities at the plant! Hence the circuit court's opinion strongly suggests (notwithstanding its concluding disclaimer) that in Utica, it is extremely likely that Fenster's felony convictions "alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present." Accordingly, when I received the remand order in Utica, I was confident that if, after considering the mitigating circumstances, I again held that Utica was unfit to receive inspection, I would be affirmed on appeal.

The third point to be interpreted evoked perhaps the strongest intra-USDA disagreement in the 37 years that I have been involved with the Department's regulatory programs. The issue is whether, under the circuit court's opinion, as fairly construed in relation to the factual setting of the case, the court precluded the use of a per se approach by the Judicial Officer when he considered the mitigating circumstances on remand, and required the Judicial Officer to consider the mitigating circumstances from the viewpoint that theoretically, at least, in some future hypothetical case, some set of mitigating circumstances could be sufficiently strong so as to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

If, despite the circuit court's disagreement with the district court (which had affirmed the Judicial Officer's refusal to consider mitigating circumstances where the convictions strike at the heart of the meat inspection program), the Judicial Officer were still free on remand to adhere to his original view that where a person has been convicted of corruptly bribing the meat inspector, no mitigating circumstances could ever outweigh the bribery convictions, the Judicial Officer's decision on remand could have been very short, viz.:

Hypothetical Judicial Officer Decision on Remand

> This case is here on remand from the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit to consider respondent's mitigating circumstances. I have carefully considered all of the mitigating circumstances, but, as I indicated in my original decision in this case, there are no possible mitigating circumstances that can ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the supervisory meat inspector assigned to the plant. Accordingly, I find (again) that respondent is unfit to receive inspection service (unless David Fenster disassociates himself from respondent) notwithstanding the mitigating circumstances presented here.

However, I believe that such an approach would have been censurable conduct. It is the duty of an administrative agency to comply with the court's views on remand, irrespective of how erroneous the agency believes those views to be. As stated in 2 Am. Jur. 2d Administrative Law § 767 (1962) (footnotes omitted):

> The administrative agency has an enforceable duty to comply with the order or judgment rendered on judicial review of its action unless it is void. The lower tribunal's exercise of jurisdiction after remand by the reviewing court is necessarily conditioned by the terms of the judgment on appeal, and the administrative agency is bound to act on and respect and follow the court's determination of questions of law within a reasonable time. However, this does not mean the agency may not indicate disagreement with the court's decision.

In FPC v. Pacific Power & Light Co., 307 U.S. 156, 160 (1939), the Court stated:

> [T]here is no more reason for assuming that a Commission will disregard the direction of a reviewing court than that a lower court will do so.

Similarly, in FCC v. Pottsville Broadcasting Co., 309 U.S. 134, 145 (1940), the Court stated:

> On review the court may thus correct errors of law and on remand the Commission is bound to act upon the correction. Federal Power Comm'n v. Pacific Co., 307 U.S. 156. But an administrative determination in which is imbedded a legal question open to judicial review does not impliedly foreclose the administrative agency, after its error has been corrected, from enforcing the legislative policy committed to its charge. Cf. Ford Motor Co. v. Labor Board, 305 U.S. 364.

Less the second sentence quoted immediately above be misunderstood, it is worth reviewing the factual situation to which the statement was addressed. In Pottsville, the Federal Communications Commission had denied Pottsville a permit to construct a broadcasting station on two grounds, one being that Pottsville was financially disqualified. On appeal, the circuit court held that the Commission's conclusion regarding Pottsville's lack of financial qualification was based on an erroneous understanding of Pennsylvania law, and remanded the case to the Commission "for reconsideration in accordance with the views expressed" (309 U.S. at 139).

By the time the proceeding got back to the Commission, the Commission had pending two rival applications for the same facilities, and determined that all three should be set down for argument "on a comparative basis" (see 309 U.S. at 140). The court of appeals then ordered the Commission to set aside its order directing a comparative hearing and to reconsider the application of Pottsville alone on the basis of the record as originally made and in accordance with the prior views of the court (see 309 U.S. at 140).

That latter action of the court of appeals was set aside on the ground that, although the court of appeals had authority to correct errors of law, and the Commission was bound to act upon such correction, the Commission could still carry out its statutory mandate by considering Pottsville's claim in comparison with the claims of the two rival companies. Nothing in Pottsville suggests that the Commission was free to ignore the court of appeals' correction of its error of law, i.e., the Commission was required in the comparative proceeding to follow the court of appeals' view as to Pottsville's financial qualification under Pennsylvania law.

The case of Ford Motor Co. v. NLRB, 305 U.S. 364 (1938), which was referred to by the Court in Pottsville in the quotation above, was one in which the Labor Board voluntarily requested to withdraw its petition filed in the court of appeals to enforce an administrative order (because of a recent holding in Morgan v. United States, 304 U.S. 1 (1938), that deciding officials must themselves consider the evidence before them and not merely rely on a decision prepared by subordinates). The court said in Ford Motor Co. (305 U.S. at 373–74):

> It is familiar appellate practice to remand causes for further proceedings without deciding the merits, where justice demands that course in order that some defect in the record may be supplied. Such a remand may be made to permit further evidence to be taken or additional findings to be made upon essential points. . . . The "remand" does not encroach upon administrative functions. It means simply that the case is returned to the administrative body in order that it may take further action in accordance with the applicable law.

Accordingly, it is clear that when the court of appeals in Utica remanded the proceeding to the Judicial Officer, he was required to follow the court's view of the applicable law, no matter how erroneous he believed it to be.

If the Judicial Officer were free under the circuit court's remand order to consider the mitigating circumstances on the basis of his original view that no mitigating circumstances could ever, in any case, outweigh felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector, the outcome of the review of the mitigating circumstances would have been a foregone conclusion. No meaningful purpose would have been served by having the Judicial Officer review the mitigating circumstances if he were free to follow his original view. It was that very view that led the Judicial Officer to adopt the per se approach in the first place (which regards all mitigating evidence as irrelevant and immaterial in bribery cases), and that led the district court to affirm the per se approach in bribery cases on review.

However, when the circuit court disagreed with the Judicial Officer's original approach, and agreed with "Fenster's principal argument . . . that the Judicial Officer erred in refusing to consider mitigating circumstances," since "[m]itigating circumstances are not immaterial or irrelevant" (slip op. at 5), the circuit court must have meant for the review of the mitigating circumstances to be a meaningful review by the Judicial Officer. Specifically, the circuit court's opinion must be construed as holding (by implication) that theoretically, at least, in some future hypothetical case, some set of mitigating circumstances could be sufficiently strong so as to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

As in Wyszynski, the circuit court in Utica gave no reasons why mitigating circumstances are relevant and material, and must be considered. But the circuit court could not have reversed the holding of the district court, which held that the Judicial Officer's use of the per se approach in the corrupt bribery case was reasonable, unless the circuit court believed that the Judical Officer's use of the per se approach was arbitrary and capricious. And the circuit court could not have believed that the Judicial Officer's use of the per se approach was arbitrary and capricious in a corrupt bribery case unless, in the opinion of the circuit court, some set of mitigating circumstances in some hypothetical case could be sufficiently strong so as to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

In other words, the circuit court had no basis for reversing the views of the Judicial Officer and the district court as to the per se approach unless the circuit court disagreed with the Judicial Officer's view, affirmed by the district court, that felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant so strike at the heart of the meat inspection program that mitigating circumstances are irrelevant and immaterial because no set of mitigating circumstances could ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from such felony convictions. And if the circuit court disagreed with that view of the Judicial Officer, affirmed by the district court, the circuit court must have believed that theoretically, at least, in some future hypothetical case, some set of mitigating circumstances could be sufficiently strong so as to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from such felony convictions.

Having said all that, however, intellectual honesty compels me to admit that, theoretically, there would have been another possible basis for overturning the view of the Judicial Officer and the district court. The circuit court could have overturned the Judicial Officer's per se approach on the ground that the court lacked sufficient experience to determine whether the per se approach is valid or not, i.e., the court could have stated:

Hypothetical Circuit Court Decision

> On appeal, Fenster's principal argument is that the Judicial Officer erred in refusing to consider mitigating circumstances. The Judicial Officer is of the view, affirmed by the district court, that in the case of convictions for corruptly bribing the meat inspector, the felonies so strike to the heart of the Federal Meat Inspection Program that mitigating circumstances are irrelevant and immaterial because it is impossible for any mitigating circumstances ever to outweigh convictions for corruptly bribing the meat inspector. The Judicial Officer and the district court may be right! But we do not have sufficient experience in this field to know for sure whether they are right or wrong. Therefore, we are not at this time prepared to approve of such a per se approach.[11] But neither are we prepared to say now that theoretically, at least, there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions for corruptly bribing the meat inspector.

After we have had more experience with bribery cases under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, we may be prepared to approve a per se approach. But until we have had sufficient experience in this area, we will require the Judicial Officer to consider mitigating circumstances, even though we recognize that under his view (which may or may not be correct), he will, in every case, regard the mitigating circumstances as insufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector.

In some future case, we may decide as to the correctness of the Judicial Officer's view that mitigating circumstances are irrelevant and immaterial because it is impossible for any mitigating circumstances ever to outweigh convictions for corruptly bribing the inspector. But we do not have sufficient experience to decide that matter now, and until we do, the Judicial Officer must continue to consider the mitigating circumstances, even though the outcome of his consideration is a foregone conclusion.

[11] Cf. United States v. McKesson & Robbins, Inc., 122 F. Supp. 333, 337 (1954), rev'd, 351 U.S. 305, 308–16 (1956), in which the district court stated:

> This court is unwilling, at this stage of case law development of legislatively sanctioned resale price fixing, to hold illegal per se fair trade agreements because the producer is also a wholesaler in the absence of showing some injury, inchoate or consummate, to competition.

The Supreme Court, however, held the fair trade agreements to be illegal per se. United States v. McKesson & Robbins, Inc., 351 U.S. 305, 308–16 (1956).

If the circuit court had meant that, the court certainly would have expressed those views, in its own language, of course. It is not a fair interpretation of the views expressed by the circuit court to read such doubt into the position of the circuit court. In fact, to contend that the circuit court reversed the Judicial Officer's per se approach because the circuit court was not sure whether the Judicial Officer's views were correct or not would, in effect, be accusing the circuit court of judicial illiteracy, i.e., it would be accusing the circuit court of a complete inability to express the view that it was uncertain as to the correctness of the Judicial Officer's view.

However, there is nothing in the circuit court's decision to indicate uncertainty as to the Judicial Officer's view relating to the per se approach. The circuit court's decision expresses quite clearly the court's opinion that the Judicial Officer's view, in this respect, is erroneous. Hence it is clear that the only basis the circuit court had for overturning the decision of the Judicial Officer, which was affirmed by the district court, was that the circuit court believed that theoretically, at least, in some future hypothetical case, some set of mitigating circumstances could be sufficiently strong so as to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

In other words, according to the circuit court, there are two classes of persons who have been convicted of corruptly bribing the meat inspector, (1) those bribers who are fit to receive meat inspection (because of mitigating circumstances), and (2) those bribers who are not fit to receive meat inspection. It was the duty of the Judicial Officer on remand to determine which class Utica and Fenster fit into.

To restate the matter under discussion in a different manner so as to focus the issue more sharply, the Judicial Officer's per se approach (reversed by the circuit court in Utica) is based on the following proposition:

USDA Proposition Supporting Per Se Approach

> Where a person responsibly connected with a packing plant has been convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, there is not a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption that the packing plant is (and will be for the indefinite future) unfit to receive meat inspection so long as the convicted individual is associated with the meat plant.

The USDA proposition is categorical and universal! It is either true in every factual situation, including the situation presenting the most mitigating circumstances that can possibly be presented in any case, or else it is false. "[A]ll declarative sentences [including propositions] are true or false. . . ." M. Beardsley, Practical Logic 4 (1950). False propositions are "propositions which assert either the non-existence of what does exist, or the existence of what does not exist." M. Cohen, A Preface to Logic 180 (1944). Since the USDA proposition is so definite and categorical, if there are any mitigating circumstances that can ever outweigh the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, the proposition is false.

On the other hand, unless there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, the USDA proposition is true! That fact is so obvious that it hardly needs to be stated. In other words, a reviewing court could not believe that the USDA proposition is false unless the reviewing court was of the view that, theoretically, at least, there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

As stated in M. Beardsley, Practical Logic 282–83, 287 (1944):

> Any statement may be affirmed or denied. Take any statement—call it "S." To affirm "S" is simply to assert "S." To deny "S" is to affirm another statement, "Not-S," which has the following relationship to "S": (a) if "S" is true, then "Not-S" is false, and (b) if "S" is false, then "Not-S" is true. . . .
> . . . Speaking of statements in general, then (including atomic and molecular statements), we shall say that to deny a statement is to assert the contradictory of the statement. . . .
> . . . [E]very statement has one, and only one, contradictory.

There are three—and only three—possible views that a reviewing court could have with respect to the correctness of the USDA proposition, viz.:

1. Agree, i.e., believe that the proposition is true.
2. Disagree, i.e., believe that the proposition is false.
3. Not know whether the proposition is true or false.

As to the first of the three possible views, if a reviewing court agreed with the USDA proposition, it would have to affirm the Judicial Officer's per se approach (as was done in the district court's first decision in Utica (subsection 5(b), supra); and see the district court's first decision in Toscony (subsection 4, supra)). That is, if the reviewing court agreed with the Judicial Officer that there are no possible mitigating circumstances that can ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, the reviewing court would have to hold that the per se approach is reasonable and lawful, and that mitigating circumstances are never relevant or material where there have been felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

A reviewing court holding that the USDA proposition is true would not, of course, be setting forth that proposition as its own proposition. It would merely be holding that the administrative officials charged with protecting the public health under the Federal Meat Inspection Act could reasonably and rationally reach the conclusion set forth in the proposition.

The reviewing court would not be approaching the issue from the viewpoint of a Professor of Logic, who would expect verification of the proposition with mathematical certainty,[12] but, rather, from the viewpoint of a judge reviewing an administrative determination, which should be upheld if it has a reasonable and rational basis, is not arbitrary and capricious, and is within statutory limits.

As to the second and third of the three possible views, if the reviewing court either disagreed with the USDA proposition or did not know whether it is true or false, the court would, of course, have to reverse the Judicial Officer's use of the per se approach and require the Judicial Officer to consider the mitigating evidence. (These are the only two possible grounds for refusing to affirm the [12] The formal principles of Logic are not directly applicable to the USDA proposition since it is an opinion not subject to verification with mathematical certainty. But the principles of Logic set forth above are useful tools here since they lead to the same result reached by applying common sense.

per se approach as to felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant!)

As explained above, there is nothing in the circuit court's decision indicating that it did not know whether the proposition is true or false, and there is no basis for reading into the circuit court's decision any such doubt. Accordingly, the only rational interpretation of the circuit court's first decision, which is in accord with the plain language of the decision, is that the circuit court disagreed with the proposition, i.e., the circuit court believed the proposition to be false.

Since the circuit court's opinion must be construed as disagreeing with the USDA proposition, i.e., expressing the view that the proposition is false, the circuit court is, by necessary implication, asserting the contradictory of the proposition (see Beardsley, supra, at 282–83, 287). The contradictory of the USDA proposition is identical to the USDA proposition, except that the word "not" is removed, viz.:

Proposition Necessarily Implied By Circuit Court

> Where a person responsibly connected with a packing plant has been convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption that the packing plant is (and will be for the indefinite future) unfit to receive meat inspection so long as the convicted individual is associated with the meat plant.

There is no way of avoiding this implication! That is, the reviewing court could not believe that the USDA proposition is false unless the reviewing court was of the view that there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from the bribery conviction.

In other words, leaving aside uncertainty as to whether the USDA proposition is true or false (as we must since the court's opinion cannot fairly be interpreted as expressing doubt or uncertainty), either (i) there is not a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness, or (ii) there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness. The circuit court's reversal of the Judicial Officer's per se approach necessarily implies that the circuit court believes that there is a set ofmitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness.

It was the duty of the Judicial Officer on remand to accept the circuit court's (implied) proposition. Specifically, in exercising his discretion on remand, the Judicial Officer was not permitted to believe (as he previously had) that where there have been felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector, no set of mitigating circumstances can ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from the bribery convictions. He was required to take the circuit court's (necessarily implied) view that enough mitigating circumstances can overcome that presumption of unfitness.

In short, the Judicial Officer was required to determine whether Utica and Fenster fit into the class of bribers who are, because of mitigating circumstances, still fit to receive meat inspection notwithstanding the bribery convictions, or whether they fit into the class of bribers who do not have enough mitigating circumstances and, therefore, are unfit to receive inspection.

Analytically, we would have to recognize that even if the circuit court did not disagree with the USDA proposition, or did not know whether it was true or false, the court still could have reversed for two other reasons.

First, theoretically, at least, the court might not have given the matter enough thought to fully understand the issues or to recognize the necessary implication of its decision.

Second, since the circuit court's decision was not to be published, theoretically, at least, the court might have taken a "pragmatic" approach, i.e., without determining a reasonable basis for reversing the per se approach, the court might have thought that it could placate Utica and Fenster (and avoid possible Supreme Court review) while having the same result reached after a remand. That is, the circuit court would expect the Judicial Officer to hold Utica unfit on remand, since the circuit court stated that the "more closely the conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present," and the circuit court would affirm the Judicial Officer's remand determination if Utica bothered to appeal again (which would not present an issue of any interest to the Supreme Court).

However, it would be highly inappropriate to attribute to the circuit court either a lack of thought and analysis or a conscious decision to take such a "pragmatic" approach.

Accordingly, since the only legitimate grounds for remand were that the court believed the USDA proposition to be false, or did not know whether it is true or false, and the circuit court's opinion cannot be construed as indicating doubt, there is no alternative but to hold that the circuit court's decision necessarily expresses the view, by implication, that the USDA proposition is false. And a holding that the USDA proposition is false necessarily asserts its contradictory, i.e., according to the circuit court, there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

(d) Judicial Officer's Utica Decision on Remand.

On remand, "with great reluctance and misgiving" (slip op. at 29), the Judicial Officer dismissed the complaint, on the basis of his interpretation (see subsection 5(c), immediately above) of the circuit court's remand decision. In re Utica Packing Co., 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Nov. 18, 1982).[13] It is important to note that the decision on remand has two aspects, viz., (1) the Judicial Officer's interpretation of the circuit court's decision (see subsection 5(c), immediately above), and (2) the application of that interpretation to the particular facts involved in Utica. In dismissing the complaint, the Judicial Officer stated (slip op. at 10–29):

> In addition to considering the effect of Fenster's bribery attempt at respondent's plant, we must consider the cancerous nature of bribery. Unless stopped, bribery can spread until it is the routine course of business in a large area. See In re National Meat Packers, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 169, 172–73 (1978), in which it is explained:
> > In southern California between 1974 and 1976, 17 meatpacking houses and 35 employees of meatpackers were indicted and convicted of either bribery or illegally giving gratuity to meat graders. The involved plants constituted "a major part of the slaughtering companies or those using Federal grading service" in southern California (Tr. 19).
> > Sixteen Federal meat graders were indicted and convicted of receiving money.
> Since meat inspectors cannot observe every activity at a plant by every employee which affects the wholesomeness of the product, the inspection service must be able to depend on the reliability and integrity of the plant's management to be assured that the health and welfare of con-

[13] Although all decisions by the Judicial Officer are printed in Agriculture Decisions for the month in which they are issued, the decision was (erroneously, I believe) made not to publish the Judicial Officer's Decision and Order on Remand in this case. (Presumably, the Department planned to print the decision in the March 1984 volume of Agriculture Decisions, which will contain the ruling on reconsideration. The Department is about 3 years behind in printing Agriculture Decisions.)

sumers will be protected. See In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380, 394-96 (1979), aff'd, No. H 79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981), appeal dismissed, No. 81-6080 (2d Cir. Jan. 22, 1982).

Also, meat inspectors are relatively low paid Federal employees. Packers have, at times, paid weekly (tax free) bribes to meat inspectors or graders equal to or more than their Federal take-home pay (see In re National Meat Packers, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 169, 171-72 (1978)). Accordingly, if we are to be assured of having wholesome meat and meat food products from a particular plant, we must know without question that the plant's management will not attempt to bribe any inspector at the plant.

It is the view of the Administrator of the Department's meat inspection program and the Judicial Officer that every person convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing a meat inspector, with the necessary proof of criminal knowledge and purpose, is unfit to receive Federal meat inspection, irrespective of any mitigating circumstances. That conduct alone so strikes at the heart of the meat inspection program as to prove conclusively, without regard to any mitigating circumstances, that the convicted felon is unfit to receive Federal meat inspection.

Accordingly, in the present case, the Judicial Officer held that respondent was unfit to receive Federal meat inspection because of David Fenster's bribery convictions, irrespective of any mitigating circumstances. The Judicial Officer's decision made it clear that mitigating circumstances are to be considered in the case of felonies not striking at the heart of the meat inspection program. Specifically, the Judicial Officer held (In re Utica Packing Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 590, 603 (1980)):

* * * * * * *

In a thoughtful and well-reasoned decision, the District Court affirmed the Judicial Officer's original decision in this proceeding. Utica Packing Co. v. Bergland, 511 F. Supp. 655 (E.D. Mich. 1981).

I believe that the original administrative decision in this case is correct, notwithstanding the reversal by the Court of Appeals. The decision by the Court of Appeals in this case will assure the distribution of unwholesome or adulterated meat in some instances. That is, under the Sixth Circuit's opinion, if there are enough mitigating circumstances, a felon convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing a Federal meat inspector must, nonetheless, be determined to be fit to continue to receive Federal meat inspection. Since the judicial system has not had outstanding success in predicting which criminals will repeat their criminal conduct, we are not likely to have any better batting average in predicting which felons convicted of bribing a meat inspector will not repeat the unlawful conduct, or otherwise attempt to subvert the meat inspecton program.

It is true that the Court of Appeals' decision indicates that in the case of a bribery conviction, it is "likely" it will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present. Specifically, the Court states (slip op. at 5):

> The more closely the conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present.

Although that suggests that the great majority of persons convicted of bribery under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) will be found unfit to receive Federal meat inspection regardless of the mitigating facts present, it also suggests that some mitigating facts would outweigh a bribery conviction. Otherwise, the Court would not have remanded the present case to consider the mitigating circumstances, notwithstanding Fenster's convictions for bribing the supervisory meat inspector.

In other words, the Court's statement quoted above was made in this case where the Judicial Officer had held that Fenster's conduct so strikes to the heart of the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act that no possible mitigating circumstances could outweigh the felony convictions in determining respondent's fitness to receive Federal inspection. The Court of Appeals did not agree.

The Court's decision must, of course, be followed here—but not in cases in which an appeal does not lie to the Sixth Circuit.

For the reasons set forth above, the decision of the Court of Appeals in this case will not be followed in any case in which an appeal does not lie to the Sixth Circuit. In all cases in which an appeal does not lie to the Sixth Circuit, anyone who is convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of the felony of bribing a Federal meat inspector will automatically be found unfit to receive Federal inspection, and Federal inspection will be withdrawn indefinitely from the plant (unless it is appropriate, as in the present case, to continue inspection if the convicted felon is completely disassociated from the plant).

However, since other reviewing courts might agree with the Sixth Circuit's decision in the present case, the Administrative Law Judges should in every case receive evidence as to mitigating circumstances and indicate their opinion as to such circumstances.

Respondent relies on a number of so-called mitigating circumstances. David Fenster testified that prior to offering the bribes, he felt that the inspectors were enforcing the rules unfairly, arbitrarily and in a discriminatory manner at respondent's plant. He was receiving offers to buy his plant, and he believed that the Federal inspectors might be part of a conspiracy to induce him to sell; that they might be stopping his production line unnecessarily so as to earn overtime pay; and that some of the inspectors were harassing him because of a personal dislike for him.

There is much evidence in the record to demonstrate the reasonableness of Mr. Fenster's beliefs as to the inspectors. His production line was stopped by the inspectors for an average of two or more hours a day during the period preceding the bribes. This not only caused respondent to have to pay over 100 employees for their lost time, but, also, frequently prevented the plant from completing the killing of the hogs that arrived by truck each day.

On many days during the summer of 1976 (preceding the bribes in November and December 1976), more than 15 or 20 hogs died on the trucks because the line had been stopped by the inspectors (Tr. 277-280). Some Federal inspectors felt that inspection at respondent's plant was more strict than at its competitors' plants, and David Fenster's son observed that at a competitor's plant the line was not stopped for conditions which he felt were far worse than at respondent's plant.[2]

[2] Weighty evidence proves that much corrective action by the Inspectors at Utica was justified. A Compliance Review Staff gave respondent's plant the lowest possible rating in September 1976. If conditions were worse at competitor's plants, inspection there might have been too lax. Also, the record suggests that other plants have a "kick-out" rail which allows animals to be set aside without stopping the line. The addition of a "kick-out" rail should be explored by respondent.

Respondent contends that the ring leader of the inspectors harassing the plant was John Stadler, a close friend of Dr. Reed, who received the bribes in this case. John Stadler "hated the black people" at respondent's plant (Tr. 1026); he "had no use for blacks" (Tr. 1053). He also "hated Yugoslavians" (Tr. 1053), who comprise a large portion of respondent's work force. He referred to David Fenster's partner as "a stupid Yugoslavian" (Tr. 1025–26).

David Fenster is a Jew, and inspector Stadler made such obscene and derogatory comments about Jews that decency precludes me from quoting his comments or even giving the record citation (counsel for both parties are aware of the transcript reference). In particular, Inspector Stadler had a "personal dislike or hatred toward David Fenster" (Tr. 1050–51).

Inspector Stadler, Dr. Reed (who received the bribes) and another inspector "would go to a bar after work and think of ways to set up Mr. Fenster, or cause problems to him the following day at the plant," to "make it rough on the plant" (Tr. 1055).

These circumstances lend support to the view that David Fenster at least had a reasonable basis for believing that he was being harassed by some of the inspectors and subjected to discriminatory treatment.

Respondent complained frequently to Dr. Reed's supervisors, but conditions did not change at the plant, and Fenster felt that he was being given the "run around" by Dr. Reed's supervisors.

Notwithstanding these circumstances, they are no excuse for bribery. An individual who feels that he is being mistreated by Federal inspectors (or who actually is suffering mistreatment from inspectors) cannot take the matter into his own hands by offering bribes. He must pursue the administrative avenues which are available. If his initial efforts are unsuccessful, he must continue bringing his problem to the attention of higher officials until he reaches the top. If all that fails, bribery is still inexcusable.

If an individual having difficulty because of Federal inspectors (real or imaginary) could solve his problems by bribing the inspectors, it would lead to the public interest being subverted, not only at that individual's plant, but at other plants, where the practice would soon spread.

Accordingly, I would give no weight to this circumstance in determining respondent's fitness to receive Federal meat inspection, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's opinion in this case.

Respondent also contends that Fenster's conduct was aberrant behavior resulting from particularly stressful conditions and exacerbation of old psychic injuries while a victim of the Nazi Holocaust. David Fenster witnessed the killing of his father by the Nazis, and, together with his mother, sister, and brother, he escaped from a train en route to a gas chamber. He never saw his family again. He was recaptured and taken to a concentration camp before being liberated in 1945.

David Fenster undoubtedly was under great stress and emotional strain at the time of the bribery in 1976. In 1975 he lost the sight of his right eye, after several operations. For months after the operation, he had headaches and nerve problems, requiring him to take sleeping pills, tranquilizers, and other drugs. Then his left eye started to go bad in 1976. He consulted numerous doctors, receiving conflicting advice as to the desirability of surgery, which subjected him to great emotional stress. He had additional problems because his partner drank heavily. His problems with meat inspectors, referred to above, further contributed to his stress.

Although David Fenster deserves much sympathy for the many problems referred to above, they do not excuse bribery of a Federal meat inspector, and do not cause me to change my views with respect to respondent's unfitness to receive meat inspection so long as David Fenster is associated with respondent.

Accordingly, these mitigating circumstances would have no weight with me in determining respondent's fitness to receive Federal meat inspection, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's opinion in this case.

Respondent also relies on the prior good record of respondent and David Fenster, and his present good reputation, despite the conviction. Here again, I give more weight to the facts involved in the felony convictions than to opinions as to respondent and Fenster. I have reviewed too many files where highly respected persons testified as to a person's excellent character and reputation, despite unchallenged evidence in the file proving that he engaged in serious, fraudulent conduct, to attach any significant weight to such testimony.

Accordingly, I would give no weight to these circumstances in determining respondent's fitness to receive Federal meat inspection, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's opinion in this case.

Respondent also relies on the fact that it is not now having any problems with the meat inspection program. In fact, on October 15, 1979, the U.S. Veterinarian who serves as Area Supervisor filed a report advising the Director of Meat and Poultry Inspection that the respondent plant had, since December of 1978, established "a clean meat program" and "now is producing very clean hogs and plant management can be proud of their product."

Although this is the most substantial of the mitigating circumstances relied on by respondent, it would not begin to tip the scales in respondent's favor, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's opinion in this case. The argument that respondent is not now violating the Act is made in almost every disciplinary case that comes before the Judicial Officer, and is almost always true. Only a foolhardy respondent would continue to violate a regulatory statute, after a complaint is filed, pending the outcome of the litigation. Exemplary conduct during the course of litigation is not as revealing or weighty as conduct occurring before the spotlight of litigation is turned on a respondent.

Accordingly, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's opinion in this case, I would give no weight to respondent's conduct after the complaint was filed in this case.

Respondent also relies on the length of time since Fenster's illegal conduct. It is indeed unfortunate that so much time has elapsed. The bribery occurred at the end of 1976. The indictment was returned and filed on November 15, 1977. The criminal proceeding was concluded August 22, 1978. The criminal conviction formed the basis for the present administrative proceeding, which was initiated on October 18, 1978. The Administrative Law Judge decided the case February 11, 1980, and the Judicial Officer decided the case June 25, 1980. The remand order was received in September 1982. Although this six year period since the violation is most unfortunate from the standpoint of the public interest in assuring a wholesome meat supply, it does not afford the basis for finding that respondent is fit to receive meat inspection with David Fenster still associated with respondent.

Accordingly, I would give no weight to this circumstance, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit Court's opinion in this case.

Respondent contends that withdrawal of meat inspection would adversely affect its employees and the community. But under the terms of the order in this case, there is no need for inspection service to be withdrawn if David Fenster becomes disassociated with respondent. Although Mr. Fenster feels that he is indispensable to the successful operation of the plant, it seems likely that someone could be found to fill his role. In any event, however, it has consistently been held by the Judicial Officer that the public interest must prevail, and that an appropriate order must be issued, irrespective of any local damage to respondent, his employees or the community. [Footnote omitted.]

Accordingly, I would give no weight to this circumstance, in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's opinion in this case.

Two other circumstances that I regard as totally irrelevant, but which should be mentioned if we are to look at all the facts underlying the conviction, should be mentioned.

First, although any conviction under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing a meat inspector strikes so closely to the heart of the Federal meat inspection program that it proves conclusively to me that the convicted felon is unfit to receive meat inspection, nonetheless, there are, of course, degrees of bribery. In this case, the bribery was not as flagrant as it could have been. That is, although Mr. Fenster did not want the line stopped as often, there is some basis for his belief that the line was being stopped unnecessarily. Also, during the bribery conversations, Mr. Fenster made it clear to Dr. Reed that he wanted a clean plant, and that he wanted Dr. Reed's help in achieving that objective. As to tuberculosis hogs, although Mr. Fenster suggested several times during the bribery conversations that borderline hogs should be passed, he also stated on many occasions during the same bribery conversations that he had no right to tell Dr. Reed what to do as to tuberculosis hogs, and that Dr. Reed should use his own judgment as to them.

Second, the testimony in this proceeding indicates that the bribes would not have been given if Dr. Reed had not misunderstood a comment by David Fenster, and later hinted strongly to Fenster that he wanted money from Fenster. Fenster testified that in September 1976 when Dr. Reed was in Fenster's office, Fenster asked him "What do you want?" (Tr. 760). By this, Fenster meant, "What am I doing wrong? What do you want from me? What do you want me to do?" (Tr. 760).

Dr. Reed took Fenster's statement as suggesting a bribe, went to the FBI, got wired-up with a tape recorder, and then went back to Fenster's office on November 24, 1976. Dr. Reed initiated the discussion by saying, "Well, you told me, you asked me what I want?" (Tr. 772). Dr. Reed then said, "Well you know"—"You know what" (Tr. 772). Fenster naturally took this as an invitation for a bribe, and immediately said, "What do you want, money? Well, I'll give you a hundred," "What do you want, you want $200?" (Tr. 772).

Respondent concedes that Dr. Reed's conduct was not sufficient entrapment to constitute a defense to a criminal proceeding, but, nonetheless, if the facts are as sworn by David Fenster at the administrative proceeding in this case, this would be a mitigating circumstance to be considered under the Sixth Circuit's remand order (although I would give such circumstance no weight in the absence of the Sixth Circuit's order).

Considering all of the mitigating circumstances in this case, I strongly believe that respondent is unfit to receive Federal inspection so long as David Fenster is associated with the plant. However, my belief is based on the strongly held view that any person who is convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing a Federal meat inspector is unfit to receive Federal inspection regardless of any mitigating circumstances.

The Administrative Law Judge who saw and heard the witnesses testify in this case stated (Initial Decision 8–9) that the evidence establishes that:

> 2. His bribing of the Veterinarian-Inspector was apparently aberrant behavior for him resulting from: a) serious health problems, b) exacerbation of old psychic injuries while a victim of the Nazi Holocaust, and c) misapprehensions concerning the motivation of various inspectors who had undertaken stricter enforcement of Federal Meat Inspection Act requirements; and,
> 3. The problems which led to his aberrant behavior have largely disappeared leading the U. S. Veterinarian who serves as Area Supervisor to file an official report, on October 15, 1979, advising the Director of Meat and Poultry Inspection that the respondent plant had, since December of 1978, established "a clean meat program" and

> "now is producing very clean hogs and plant management can be proud of their product."
> Based on those facts, the Administrative Law Judge made "the consequent finding that recurrence is unlikely because of the general excellence of Mr. Fenster's character and reputation and the elimination of the conditions and motivations which led to the commission of the felony" (Initial Decision 9).

Notwithstanding all of the foregoing views, the Judicial Officer dismissed the complaint in Utica because of his view that if there are two classes of criminals who have been convicted of bribing meat inspectors, i.e., (i) those who are fit to receive inspection (because of mitigating circumstances), and (ii) those who are not fit to receive inspection, Utica and Fenster belong in the first group. His view that for the purposes of the Utica case he must assume that there are two such classes was based on his interpretation of the circuit court's remand order, discussed in subsection 5(c), above. His view that Utica and Fenster belong in the first class was based on his personal application of that interpretation. Specifically, the Judicial Officer stated (slip op. at 28–29):

> If mitigating circumstances must be considered, I cannot reasonably imagine any stronger mitigating circumstances than appear here. If any felon convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of bribing a meat inspector is fit to receive Federal meat inspection, then David Fenster is fit to receive Federal meat inspection (or, more accurately, respondent is fit to receive Federal meat inspection even with David Fenster associated with the plant).
> Furthermore, David Fenster has already been precluded from working at respondent's plant for 9 or 10 months, since a stay order was not issued following the District Court's decision in this case. This is not a significant factor to me since I believe that no period of time away from a meat plant could make a person convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of bribing a meat inspector fit to receive Federal inspection (just as no passage of time could make a Federal inspector who accepted a bribe fit to be reemployed as a Federal inspector). But this is a circumstance that is as relevant as the other circumstances referred to above.
> For the reasons set forth above, I am with great reluctance and misgiving dismissing the complaint in this case.

> I would not want to eat meat from any plant managed by a person who has been convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing a meat inspector. I deeply regret that I feel compelled by the Sixth Circuit's remand order to cause other persons to have to do so.

(e) "Replacement" Judicial Officer's Utica Decision on Reconsideration.

Following the decision of the Judicial Officer on remand, the Department filed a Petition for Reconsideration, and at the same time the Secretary revoked the Judicial Officer's authority to perform any further regulatory function in the case and appointed a replacement to consider the Petition for Reconsideration. As stated in Utica Packing Co. v. Block, 781 F.2d 71, 74 (1986):

> As the brief of the Secretary in this court states, the USDA "violently disagreed" with the latest decision of the Judicial Officer and had "little hope of reconsideration." Instead of petitioning for reconsideration immediately, these officials obtained the Secretary's agreement to revoke Campbell's authority to perform any further "regulatory function" in the Utica case and to "vest such authority in Deputy Assistant Secretary John J. Franke, Jr." Appellee's Brief at 8-9. Mr. Franke is not a lawyer and had never performed adjudicatory, regulatory or legal work. Richard Davis, an attorney in the Office of General Counsel of USDA, was assigned to assist Franke. Davis had no previous contact with the Utica case, but his immediate supervisor participated in the removal of Campbell and appointment of Franke, and also supervised the division responsible for the prosecution of Utica.

The Department has had only two Judicial Officers since the position was created in 1942 (the first Judicial Officer served from 1942 to 1972, and the present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971). There had never previously been an order removing the Judicial Officer from a case (except where the Judicial Officer disqualified himself in a case or two because of contact with the case before being appointed Judicial Officer).

The "replacement" Judicial Officer held that the Judicial Officer misinterpreted the circuit court's remand order, and concluded that respondent is unfit to receive inspection while David Fenster is associated with it. He held that the circuit court "did not hold, even by implication, that there must be some set of mitigating circumstances which will outweigh a conviction of any felony" (slip op. at 2–3). The "replacement" Judicial Officer stated (slip op. at 2–4):

> In his discussion of the import of the Court of Appeals Order, the Judicial Officer stated "under the Sixth Circuit's opinion, if there are enough mitigating circumstances, a felon convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) of corruptly bribing a Federal meat inspector must, nonetheless, be determined to be fit to continue to receive Federal meat inspection." He states further
> > Although [the Court of Appeals Order] suggests that the great majority of persons convicted of bribery under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) will be found unfit to receive Federal meat inspection regardless of the mitigating facts present, it also suggests that some mitigating facts would outweigh a bribery conviction. Otherwise, the Court would not have remanded the present case to consider the mitigating circumstances, notwithstanding Fenster's convictions for bribing the supervisory meat inspector.
> The Court of Appeals clearly held that mitigating circumstances are not immaterial or irrelevant and that the Judicial Officer erred in refusing to consider the mitigating evidence presented in this case. But it did not hold, even by implication, that there must be some set of mitigating circumstances which will outweigh a conviction of any felony. Indeed, the Court said "The more closely the conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present." All of this without once adverting to the strength of the evidence of mitigating circumstances. Finally, the Court unequivocally stated "This court expresses no opinion on either the mitigating circumstances or the merits of the action." Yet, despite the clear holdings and disclaimer quoted above, the Judicial Officer concluded that the Court's order implied that "some mitigating facts would outweigh a bribery conviction." I disagree. Indeed, for the Court to say, or imply, what the Judicial Officer inferred would have constituted the Court substituting its judgment for that of this Department. It is well established that a court may not do that. Citizens to Preserve

Overton Park, Inc. v. Volpe, 401 U.S. 402, 416 (1971); Coastal Tank Lines, Inc. v. ICC, 690 F.2d 537, 543 (6th Cir. 1982). I am unwilling to infer that the court intended to so intrude upon the Department's discretionary authority.[14]

I therefore believe that the Judicial Officer should have decided the case as he clearly indicated he thought it should be decided in his Decision and Order on Remand at page 27: "Considering all of the mitigating circumstances in this case, I strongly believe that respondent is unfit to receive Federal inspection so long as David Fenster is associated with the plant." He had at that point done all that the Court of Appeals order required him to do: considered the mitigating circumstances, considered how closely David Fenster's criminal conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, weighed the two against each other, and concluded that Utica is unfit to receive federal meat inspection while David Fenster is associated with it.

I further think that the order of the Court of Appeals, as I understand it, is correct and that in all cases under section 401 of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. § 671), if mitigating evidence is proffered it must be received and must be considered by the adjudicating officials who decide the case.

After consideration of the entire record of this proceeding, I agree, except as indicated in the three preceding paragraphs, with the Judicial Officer's original decision

[14] If the circuit court did not imply what the Judicial Officer inferred, why did it reverse the Judicial Officer's use of the per se approach, which was affirmed by the district court? (See subsection 5(c), supra.) Furthermore, the cases cited by the "replacement" Judicial Officer merely state that a court is not empowered to substitute its judgment for that of the agency. The circuit court did not violate that principle by setting forth the standard to be applied by the agency in exercising its judgment. The problem with the circuit court's decision is not that it substituted its judgment for that of the agency, but that it set forth (by necessary implication) an erroneous standard to be applied by the agency in exercising its discretion, i.e., the circuit court precluded the agency from considering the mitigating circumstances in the light of its per se view that no mitigating circumstances could ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, and required the agency to consider the mitigating circumstances from the viewpoint that, theoretically, at least, there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome that presumption (see subsection 5(c), supra).

and with his decision on remand.[15] Specifically, I agree that the felony involved here strikes at the very heart of the Federal Meat Inspection Act program and I agree that, despite the mitigating circumstances presented by respondent, respondent is unfit to receive federal meat inspection so long as David Fenster is associated with the plant. I therefore agree generally with the order originally issued by the Judicial Officer on June 25, 1980. I think, however, considering all the circumstances of this case, that a longer period of time should be allowed for David Fenster to dissociate himself from Utica.

Although the appointment of a "replacement" Judicial Officer to consider the Petition for Reconsideration was held to violate Utica's right to a "fair trial before a fair tribunal" (Utica Packing Co. v. Block, 781 F.2d 71, 77-78 (1986)), thereby rendering the "replacement" Judicial Officer's decision on reconsideration nugatory, in order to avoid any possible doubt as to the matter, I am expressly overruling that portion of his decision which states that the order of the circuit court is correct, and that in all cases under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, mitigating evidence "must be considered by the adjudicating officials who decide the case" (slip op. at 4).

As stated in my Decision and Order on Remand (see subsection 5(d), supra), the circuit court's ruling will be followed only in cases in which an appeal lies to the Sixth Circuit (slip op. at 15). However, until the matter is definitively decided, after deciding the case on the basis of the per se rule set forth above, the ALJ's should, and the Judicial Officer will, by way of dicta, indicate what weight is attached to the mitigating circumstances, and whether the respondent would be regarded as unfit if the mitigating circumstances were regarded as relevant.

This policy of "nonacquiescence" with respect to a circuit court's decision deemed erroneous is followed by many, if not all, administrative agencies where they believe that an adverse court of appeals decision adversely affects a nationwide program. Complainant fears that such a policy of not following the Utica decision outside of the Sixth Circuit will be onerous to the Department and result in confusion (Memorandum in Support of Petition for Reconsideration filed September 9, 1983, in Utica by complainant, at 10). However, complainant's fears are unfounded. This policy changes nothing that complainant or a future respondent will have to do. It determines only what the ALJ's and Judicial Officer will do.

[15] This sentence could be interpreted as agreeing with the Judicial Officer's view that if we are compelled by the circuit court's remand decision to consider the mitigating circumstances from the viewpoint that there is theoretically, at least, a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant, the mitigating circumstances in Utica are sufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness. In any event, the "replacement" Judicial Officer did not in any manner express disagreement with the Judicial Officer's application of his interpretation of the circuit court's decision. The "replacement" Judicial Officer expressed disagreement only with the Judicial Officer's interpretation of the circuit court's decision.

As stated in the Judicial Officer's Decision and Order on Remand in Utica (slip op. at 15), until this issue is definitively resolved, mitigating evidence should be received and considered in all cases. The only difference in treatment will be that in cases in which an appeal does not lie to the Sixth Circuit, the ALJ's and the Judicial Officer will decide cases involving convictions for bribery and related offenses under the per se rule, and indicate their views as to mitigating circumstances by way of dicta. However, in cases where an appeal lies to the Sixth Circuit, the per se rule will not be used by the ALJ's and the Judicial Officer.

(f) District Court's Second Utica Decision.

On appeal to the United States District Court, Judge Taylor again upheld the Department, agreeing with the "replacement" Judicial Officer's views, and strongly disagreeing with Judicial Officer Campbell's views. Judge Taylor stated (Utica Packing Co. v. Block, No. 80-72742, slip op. at 7-17 (E.D. Mich. Mar. 12, 1985)):

> Following the judicial officer's [i.e., Campbell's] consideration of all the mitigating circumstances in this case, he concluded that the Act requires that any person who is convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) be considered unfit to receive federal inspection regardless of mitigating circumstances. Thus, Utica is unfit to receive such services as a matter of law, so long as David Fenster is involved with the plant. But contrary to this conclusion, Judicial Officer Campbell felt compelled by the Sixth Circuit to dismiss the complaint because, if mitigating circumstances are capable of outweighing the bribery conviction, he could imagine none weightier than Fenster had advanced.

> This court finds that Judicial Officer Campbell's decision is unsupported by substantial evidence in the whole record and that the decision is contrary to overwhelming evidence and to his own findings and conclusions. If this case were not being otherwise decided this court would be compelled to reverse the Campbell decision. 21 U.S.C. § 671 states that the Secretary may, after a hearing and determination that the recipient of inspection services is unfit to engage in business which involves inspection, withdraw inspection services if the recipient commits a felony or more than one nonfelonious violation of law. It is undisputed that David Fenster bribed the federal meat inspector. This bribery, had it been effective, would have caused unwholesome meat to enter the stream of commerce.

Judicial Officer Campbell considered all the mitigating circumstances as the Sixth Circuit had required. He concluded that given the serious circumstances of Fenster's felony conduct, he should not be permitted to remain in contact with Utica despite the mitigation presented. At that point, we must agree with Mr. Franke, Judicial Officer Campbell had done everything that the Court of Appeals had ordered him to do. But Judicial Officer Campbell nevertheless felt "compelled" by the court to dismiss the complaint. So even though he stated in his opinion seven times that the weight of each of the mitigating circumstances presented was insufficient he ruled that if mitigating circumstances must be considered, he could not imagine any stronger mitigating circumstances than Fenster had argued, so they must be sufficient in the eyes of the Sixth Circuit. Upon such finding, he dismissed the complaint against Utica. Indeed, this is a gross misinterpretation of the Court of Appeals' order and sufficient basis for Mr. Campbell's replacement [by Mr. Franke for the purposes of this case].

Defendants ask for judgment because Assistant Secretary Franke's final decision of March 19, 1984 is supported by substantial evidence on the whole record, and the law. This court so finds. The Sixth Circuit held that the underlying facts will determine whether a particular conviction may warrant withdrawal of inspection. The court also held that in situations, in which the felonious conduct strikes closely to the policies of the Act, a determination of unfitness may be premised upon the conduct alone. Utica Packing Company, slip op. at 5. Upon consideration, Mr. Franke decided that the bribery of an inspector in this case strikes at the very heart of the program. Even after a balancing of the mitigating circumstances, Utica was unfit to be a recipient of federal meat inspection as long as Fenster was associated with the plant. Accord, Wyszynski Provision Co., Inc. v. Secretary of Agriculture, 538 F. Supp. 361 (E.D. Penn. 1982). Mr. Franke based his assessment upon the same facts which were before Judicial Officer Campbell. Mr. Franke states his agreement with Judicial Officer Campbell's original decision and with this decision on remand, except for the concluding abdication to the Court of Appeals. When Fenster was convicted in 1978, Judge Philip Pratt found overwhelming evidence that bribes had been offered to encourage more relaxed inspection of Utica's hogs. 449 F. Supp. at 438-39. This court made a similar determination that the evidence revealed an intent to "facilitate the sale of arguably unwholesome food." 511 F. Supp. at 662. As pork consumers must rely for their health upon the integrity of such plant management and upon the meat inspection services provided by law, this program must not be emasculated. There is far more than substantial evidence in this case to support the Assistant Secretary's decision. For these reasons, this court finds that Mr. Franke's order must be fully enforced and summary judgment will be entered for defendants affirming the Assistant Secretary's decision.

The district court's second Utica decision is significant in two respects. First, by disagreeing with the Judicial Officer's interpretation of the circuit court's Utica decision, it puts a judicial gloss on the circuit court's opinion.[16]

Second, it shows from a practical standpoint the wisdom and reasonableness of the per se approach in cases involving convictions for bribery and related offenses, thereby providing further support for the per se approach in the present case. That is, the only reason the Judicial Officer held on remand that Utica was fit to receive inspection was that it was impossible to "reasonably imagine any stronger mitigating circumstances than appear here [in Utica]" (slip op. at 28). Hence, from a practical standpoint, when the district court upheld the "replacement" Judicial Officer's decision on reconsideration that the mitigating circumstances in Utica were [16] I am not sure what the "gloss" is except to assert that I was wrong in my interpretation of the circuit court's remand decision. If I was wrong in my interpretation, I do not have the slightest idea why the circuit court reversed my original per se approach (see subsection 5(c), supra).

not enough to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from the bribery convictions, its holding suggests (from a practical standpoint) that no other mitigating circumstances will ever be enough to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from bribery convictions.

(g) Circuit Court's Second Utica Decision.

On appeal, the circuit court reversed the district court's decision on the gound that the replacement of the Judicial Officer with Assistant Secretary Franke violated Utica's right to a "fair trial before a fair tribunal" (Utica Packing Co. v. Block, 781 F.2d 71, 77–78 (1986)). The court remanded the proceeding to the district court, with "directions to remand it to the Secretary for re-entry of Judicial Officer Campbell's order dismissing the complaint against Utica and Fenster" (781 F.2d at 79).

However, what is important here is that the circuit court cast doubt as to the validity of Judicial Officer Campbell's interpretation of its original remand order. The circuit court stated (781 F.2d at 78–79; emphasis added):

> Nothing in this opinion should be perceived as minimizing the seriousness of Fenster's criminal activities. Bribing an inspector does strike at the heart of the meat inspection program and cannot be tolerated. As we wrote in our earlier unpublished opinion in this case:
> > The more closely the conduct strikes to the policies of the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the more likely it alone will support a determination of unfitness regardless of the mitigating facts present. See Wyszynski Provision Co., Inc. v. Sec. of Agriculture, 538 F. Supp. 361, 364 (E.D. Pa. 1982).
> Judicial Officer Campbell properly concerned himself with the nature of Fenster's criminal activities and the possible harm to the public which could flow from them. It is not certain that Campbell properly construed this court's remand order in considering mitigating circumstances. However, that is not the issue presently before us. Whether the Judicial Officer was correct or incorrect in his application of the law, the Secretary's efforts to change the result by the methods described in this opinion cannot be permitted to succeed.
> The judgment of the district court is reversed, and the case is remanded with directions to remand it to the Secretary for re-entry of Judicial Officer Campbell's order dismissing the complaint against Utica and Fenster.

It should be noted that these are gratuitous comments, unnecessary to the court's decision.[17] This again adds a judicial gloss to the circuit court's first decision in this case. Since the circuit court's first Utica decision, as I interpret it, is egregiously erroneous, I am only too happy to accept the hint in the circuit court's dicta that perhaps I incorrectly interpreted the circuit court's first decision in Utica. If I did incorrectly interpret the circuit court's remand decision, the only other possible (valid) ground on which the circuit court could have reversed my per se approach was that the court was not certain whether or not the USDA proposition underlying that approach is correct (see subsection 5(c), supra).

Accordingly, in future cases in the Sixth Circuit, I will construe the circuit court's first Utica decision as requiring a consideration of the mitigating circumstances merely because the court was not sure whether the USDA proposition underlying the per se approach is correct or not. That leaves the Judicial Officer free to believe (when he is considering the mitigating circumstances) that there is no set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant. Under that view, it is a foregone conclusion that in such bribery cases, Judicial Officer Campbell will never find the mitigating circumstances to be sufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness, but a reviewing court will then have the opportunity to determine, case by case, whether it finally concurs in the per se approach or whether it finds, in a particular case, that there are enough mitigating circumstances, in its opinion, to overcome the presumption of unfitness. (I will, however, in dicta, express my views as to how I would have decided the case if my original interpretation of the circuit court's first Utica decision is correct (see subsection 5(c), supra)).

[17] Since the court was indulging in obiter dicta, it would have been helpful if the court had been a little more positive as to whether it disagreed with the Judicial Officer's construction, i.e., interpretation, of the court's remand order, and a little more informative as to why the circuit court reversed the Judicial Officer's per se approach, which had been affirmed by the district court's first decision, if the circuit court did not mean to hold in its first decision that theoretically, at least, in some future hypothetical case, some set of mitigating circumstances could be sufficiently strong so as to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from felony convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to the plant.

6. Stevens Foods, Inc.

In In re Stevens Foods, Inc., 40 Agric. Dec. 1288 (1981), the Judicial Officer withdrew meat inspection service and meat grading and acceptance services indefinitely from Stevens Foods, Inc., and from any establishment with which Steven L. Aaron is responsibly connected.

The withdrawals were based on the fact that Stevens Foods and Steven L. Aaron were each convicted of 48 felony counts of conspiring to defraud the United States, making false statements to the government, and bribery of government personnel. The convictions included 35 counts of bribery involving the giving of gratuities to the meat inspector at the plant "for or because of any official act performed or to be performed by such public official" (18 U.S.C. § 201(f)).[18] The Judicial Officer refused to consider mitigating circumstances because conviction under Count 1 of the felony indictment for conspiracy to engage in deliberate conduct to defraud the Defense Department by intentionally preparing substandard meat for use on military contracts conclusively shows that the inspection service cannot depend on the reliability and integrity of Steven L. Aaron and Stevens Foods. However, the Judicial Officer indicated that in the case of bribery convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 201(f), the gratuity section, the Judicial Officer ordinarily would consider mitigating circumstances where the bribery occurred prior to publication of the Department's Policy Statement on June 26, 1979. Specifically, the Judicial Officer stated (40 Agric. Dec. at 1296–99, 1304):

> Under the statutory language involved in this proceeding (21 U.S.C. § 671), conviction of a single felony may be the basis for a determination, after hearing, that a recipient is unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection. "However, inspection services are not to be withdrawn automatically because of the conviction of a felony. The felony must be of such nature as to support a finding that the recipient is 'unfit to engage in any business requiring

. . . .

(f) Whoever, otherwise than as provided by law for the proper discharge of official duty, directly or indirectly gives, offers, or promises anything of value to any public official, former public official, or person selected to be a public official, for or because of any official act performed or to be performed by such public official, former public official, or person selected to be a public official . . .

Shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

inspection' as a result of that felony (21 U.S.C. § 671)." In re Norwich Beef Co., 38 Agric. Dec. 380, 394 (1979), aff'd, No. H79-210 (D. Conn. Feb. 6, 1981) (court opinion attached).

In Norwich Beef, it is explained that federal inspectors cannot watch every operation at a meat plant and, therefore, the inspection service must be able to depend upon the reliability and integrity of the plant's management so as to be able to protect the public interest by assuring that meat and meat food products distributed from the plant are wholesome, not adulterated, and properly marked, labeled and packaged (38 Agric. Dec. at 394-96).[3] It is explained in Norwich Beef that whether a felony conviction is of such a nature as to support a finding that the respondent is "unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection" depends on whether it shows that the inspection service cannot depend on the reliability and integrity of the respondent so as to adequately protect the public interest (id.).

[3] Similar testimony was given in this case by Robert Gonter, Director, Evaluation and Enforcement Division, Compliance Programs, Food Safety and Quality Service, U.S.D.A. (Tr. 19-20, 39-41, 46), and similar views are set forth in the Department's policy statement as to withdrawing inspection, grading and acceptance services based on convictions for bribery and related offenses (44 Fed. Reg. 37322, 37323 (1979)).

Although respondents Steven L. Aaron and Stevens Foods, Inc., were convicted of 48 felonies involving violations in 1972, 1973, 1974, 1975 and 1976, I would determine on the basis of Count 1 alone that Steven L. Aaron [footnote omitted] and Stevens Foods, Inc., are unfit to engage in any business requiring inspection.

Count 1 of the felony indictment against Steven L. Aaron and Stevens Foods, Inc., under 18 U.S.C. § 371, is based on a conspiracy to engage in deliberate conduct to defraud the Defense Department by intentionally preparing substandard meat for use on military contracts (including meat previously rejected by military inspectors), processing the meat in an unauthorized area not subjected to government inspection, concealing the substandard meat under conforming meat, substituting different samples for meat selected by military inspectors for inspection, fraudulently changing the lot numbers and military contract data on shipping containers, lying to military inspectors about the intended use of nonconforming meat, causing false Certificates of Inspection to be prepared, and giving gratuities to inspectors to result in ineffective inspection so that Stevens Foods, Inc., could continue to produce and deliver a product of less value than that for which the Department of Defense had contracted (Finding 5).

Conviction of Count 1 of the felony indictment shows beyond a doubt that the inspection service cannot depend on the reliability and integrity of Steven L. Aaron and Stevens Foods, Inc., and would be unable to protect the public interest if inspection service were to be provided to them.

The remaining 35 counts of the indictment are based on violations of 18 U.S.C. § 201 (entitled "Bribery of public officials and witnesses") occurring in 1972, 1973, 1974 and 1975. The specific subsection of 18 U.S.C. § 201 involved in this case is subsection (f), which is a lesser bribery offense than a violation of subsection (b), requiring proof that the bribe was "corruptly" given "to influence" or "induce" action. Where the more serious violation of 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) is involved, it has been held that conviction of bribery under that subsection compels a determination that the respondent is unfit to receive inspection service, and that it is not appropriate to consider any other facts and circumstances, such as respondent's reputation in the community or present compliance with the Act. In re Utica Packing Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 590, 600–05 (1980), aff'd, No. 80–72742 (E.D. Mich. Apr. 14, 1981) (court opinion attached).

However, where the bribery conviction is based on the gratuity section, 18 U.S.C. § 201(f), as in this case, and the offenses occurred prior to publication of the Department's policy statement setting forth the policy of the Food Safety and Quality Service to seek the indefinite withdrawal of inspection, grading and acceptance services in every case of a conviction of "bribery and related offenses such as the giving of unlawful gratuities to public officials" (44 Fed. Reg. 37322, 37323 (1979)),[5] I would ordinarily consider all of the facts and circumstances in the case, including any circumstances of a mitigating nature, since the industry was not on notice as to how serious the Department regarded "gratuity" convictions. But as to bribery and related "gratuity" offenses occurring after the publication of the policy statement, I would not ordinarily consider any mitigating circumstances because I concur in the views set forth in the policy statement that "the giving or offering of bribes or gratuities to Federal inspection or grading personnel . . . pose a direct and tangible threat to the integrity of the inspection and grading systems," warranting the indefinite withdrawal of inspection, grading and acceptance services (id.).[6]

[5] Where appropriate, the Food Safety and Quality Service might agree to settlements "which include a provision which assures a complete divestiture, by all convicted individuals, of their entire ownership interest in and operational control or direction of the establishment in question, and the termination of all associations between the convicted individual or individuals and the establishment in question. . . . These settlements may also include a provision for actual withdrawal of services for a specified period of time" (44 Fed. Reg. 37322, 37323 (1979)).

[6] "The Department has recognized the seriousness of such offenses in dealing with its own personnel, who have been subjected to immediate suspension without pay upon being charged with such offenses, and have been dismissed based upon the conviction for such offenses." 44 Fed. Reg. 37322, 37323 (1979).

In this case, I have not considered any mitigating circumstances relating to the "gratuity" convictions because Count 1 of the indictment shows that the gratuities to the inspectors were part of an overall conspiracy to defraud the Department of Defense (Count 1, ¶¶ 33-35), i.e., it "was a further part of said conspiracy that said gratuities would result in ineffective inspection by the Department of Defense and the Department of Agriculture so that STEVENS could continue to produce and deliver a product of less value than that for which the Department of Defense had contracted" (Count 1, ¶ 35). Accordingly, Count 1 forcefully proves that the gratuity violations in this case are of such a nature that the inspection service cannot depend on the reliability or integrity of Steven L. Aaron and Stevens Foods, Inc., in its effort to protect the public interest.

Even if I were to consider respondents' alleged mitigating circumstances, they would not change my views set forth above.

For example, some of Steven L. Aaron's friends and business acquaintances consider him as reputable, responsible, honest, truthful, a good citizen, and a good family man. They would be willing to continue to loan him money and do business with him. But similar testimony is adduced in almost every case, no matter how serious or flagrant the violations (see the quotation from Utica, supra, 39 Agric. Dec. at 604). Accordingly, I would give no significant weight to such testimony.

Since 16 of Thomas Burke's 23 payments resulting in the convictions involved here occurred after publication of the Department's Policy Statement (see § II, infra), the dicta in Stevens supports the view that mitigating circumstances should not be considered in the present case

7. National Meat Packers, Inc. (Charles D. Olsen).

In In re National Meat Packers, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 169 (1978) (decision as to Charles D. Olsen), the Judicial Officer withdrew meat grading and acceptance services from Olsen and any plant with which he was responsibly connected for a period of 10 years. The withdrawal was based on the fact that Olsen was convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(f) of one count of giving a gratuity ($100) to a meat grader "for or because of any official act performed or to be performed by such public official" (18 U.S.C. § 201(f)). In issuing the 10-year suspension order, the Judicial Officer stated (38 Agric. Dec. at 172–73, 177–78, 180):

> 5. In southern California between 1974 and 1976, 17 meatpacking houses and 35 employees of meatpackers [4] were indicted and convicted of either bribery or illegally giving gratuity to meat graders. The involved plants constituted "a major part of the slaughtering companies or those using Federal grading service" in southern California (Tr. 19).
> [4] The 35 employees worked for the 17 indicted companies as well as 9 other packinghouses.
> Sixteen Federal meat graders were indicted and convicted of receiving money.
> . . . [T]he evidence in this case, including the sentencing memorandum prepared by respondent's attorney, shows that the "giving and receiving of gratuities between packers and USDA graders is a practice of some twenty or more years standing in the southern California area," and that "payments to the Graders in the Los Angeles area ran as high as $300.00 per week but were limited to $100.00 in San Diego insofar as Mr. Olsen was involved" (RX 3, p. 2). . . .

* * * * * * *

There is no basis for determining in this proceeding whether the longstanding practice of bribing meat graders in southern California originated, as the graders contend, at the solicitation of the packers in return for upgrading beef of a lower quality, or as the packers contend, as a result of extortion by the graders. But in either event, the damage to the program from bribery is so great that a most severe sanction is necessary to prevent recurrence of such violations in the industry.

* * * * * * *

Respondent argues that he is 56 years of age and that a "ten-year withdrawal of grading as advocated by the Department would effectively deprive Charles Olsen of his livelihood in the meat packing business for the remainder of his employable life" (Response in Opposition to Appeal, p. 5). But that result is not too harsh, considering the serious nature of respondent's violation. The meat graders who accepted the bribes were fired from their jobs and will never again be employed as meat graders. A 56-year old lawyer who engaged in bribery in connection with his law practice could expect to be deprived of his livelihood as an attorney for the remainder of his employable life. Hence the respondent's sanction is not inappropriate considering the serious nature of bribery of a Government meat grader.

The fact that respondent Olsen cooperated with the United States attorney in obtaining the conviction of Hugo Lueck, a USDA grader not referred to in the indictment, was a relevant factor in reducing his criminal sentence. But it is irrelevant in determining what type of sanction is required to enable the Secretary to achieve the purposes of the remedial statute involved here.

The 10-year withdrawal of meat grading as to respondent Olsen is, of course, substantially more severe than the > 10-year isolation from meat graders applicable to the individuals who were involved in the consent proceedings. But, as explained above, the consent sanctions are not relevant in determining the sanction that should be imposed in a litigated case. The circumstances that induced the Department to offer more lenient sanctions to the meatpackers and individuals who promptly consented to remedial orders are not present in this case. For example, it was administratively desirable to obtain consent settlements, with affirmative action programs by the meatpackers, in as many cases as possible to immediately clean up the deplorable situation which affected a major part of the slaughtering companies using Federal grading service in southern California. Also, it was administratively desirable that graded meat should remain available to consumers in southern California. To achieve these ends, a balance had to be struck between the desirability of imposing severe sanctions to serve as effective deterrents to future violations and the desirability of inducing the violators to sign immediate consent settlements, with affirmative action programs.

> But where an individual did not agree to become a part of the immediate industry clean-up, there is no need to strike a balance between such conflicting considerations.

The decision in National Meat Packers also describes the consent orders issued in many cases prior to the Department's 1979 Policy Statement referred to in subsection 1, supra. Under the consent orders, persons convicted of bribing or giving illegal gratuities to meat graders had meat grading services withdrawn for 12 months and inspection service withdrawn indefinitely, but with such withdrawals held in abeyance provided that the plants took detailed precautionary steps for the next 10 years to insure future compliance with the Department's programs, and the convicted individuals were completely isolated from federal meat graders or inspectors for 10 years (38 Agric. Dec. at 173-76). The 1979 Policy Statement explains that such isolation provisions will no longer be included in consent settlements.[19] [19] Problems involved in enforcing the "isolation" provisions of the consent orders are discussed in In re Apex Meat Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 560 (1980) (complaint dismissed because facts did not establish violation of isolation provisions), and In re Great Western Packing Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 1358 (1980) (withdrawal and denial of inspection and grading services made effective because of violations of isolation provision), aff'd, No. CV 81-0534 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 30, 1981).

8. William H. Hutton.

In In re Hutton, 38 Agric. Dec. 332 (1979), appeal dismissed, No. 79-0634-N (S.D. Cal. May 12, 1980), final order, 39 Agric. Dec. 355 (1980), the Judicial Officer withdrew meat grading and acceptance services from Hutton and any plant with which he was responsibly connected for a period of 10 years.

The Hutton case is identical to National Meat Packers discussed immediately above in subsection 7, and involves convictions under three counts of giving gratuities to a meat grader "for or because of any official act performed or to be performed by such public official" (18 U.S.C. § 201(f)).

On appeal, an agreement was reached "for settlement purposes only, that the respondent would immediately withdraw his appeal, with prejudice, and the Judicial Officer would amend his Order" (In re Hutton, 39 Agric. Dec. 355 (1980)). The amended order suspended the 10-year withdrawal of meat grading and acceptance services, provided (39 Agric. Dec. at 355–56):

> . . . William H. Hutton does not, for the term of this Order, become an officer, director, partner, substantial investor or supervisor in any establishment requiring federal meat grading and acceptance services; and provided further, that respondent, William H. Hutton does not assume, for the term of this Order, any employment or do any acts that would entail direct or indirect review of federal meat grading and acceptance determinations and activities.

9. Indiana Slaughtering Company.

In In re Indiana Slaughtering Co., 35 Agric. Dec. 1822 (1976), aff'd sub nom. Indiana Slaughtering Co. v. Bergland, No. 76-3949 (E.D. Pa. Aug. 1, 1977), the Judicial Officer entered an order agreed to by the parties indefinitely withdrawing meat inspection service from respondent, but with the withdrawal of inspection suspended for so long as Leon Netzman is not associated with respondent or its successors in any manner and provides no direction or advice to respondent or its successors, and has no contact or dealings with federal meat inspection or grading personnel, and respondent does not within 5 years offer money or other things of value to any meat inspector, meat grader or other public official (35 Agric. Dec. at 1833).

The case was instituted after Leon Netzman was convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b)(3) and (f) of "four felonies for giving a thing of value, otherwise than as provided by law for the proper discharge of official duty, to public officials, to wit, a meat inspector and a compliance officer of the United States Department of Agriculture, for and because of official acts to be performed by said officials" (35 Agric. Dec. at 1832).

Since the order issued in the case was agreed to by the parties, it is not relevant in determining the sanction in litigated cases (In re Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1569 (1974)), but the dicta in the case makes it clear that mitigating circumstances are not relevant where the felony convictions involve bribery of a meat inspector. The Judicical Officer stated (35 Agric. Dec. at 1830–31):

> Although it is not necessary to consider the merits of respondent's defense if the case had proceeded to a full hearing, the transcript of the interrupted hearing shows that respondent would have fared no better after a full hearing than under the consent agreement.
> Although the extenuating circumstances referred to by respondent's counsel were relevant in the criminal proceedings, they are totally irrelevant in this administrative proceeding. This is not a proceeding to punish respondent. It is a proceeding designed to achieve the purpose of remedial legislation administered by this Department. It is the policy of this Department to impose severe sanctions for serious violations of the regulatory programs administered by the Department in order to serve as an effective deterrent not only to the respondent, but also to other potential violators [footnote omitted]. Personal circumstances, e.g., relating to a violator's present health, need to work, or prior tragic experiences [7] are not relevant considerations in such an administrative proceeding, under the Department's settled sanction policy. Consideration of such circumstances would not be conducive to achieving the purposes of the remedial legislation, and, therefore, would not be in the public interest [footnote omitted].
> [7] Respondent alleges that Leon Netzman "lost his parents, brothers, sisters, and most of the rest of his family due to murder by the Nazis in World War II, and this, along with the aforementioned sentence of the court, is much more than enough suffering for one man."

10. Summary as to Per Se Policy Involving Convictions of Bribery and Related Offenses.

The industry has been on notice since June 26, 1979, that it is the view of the administrative officials charged with protecting the public health under the Federal Meat Inspection Act that the giving or offering of bribes or gratuities to Federal inspection or grading personnel pose a "direct and tangible threat to the integrity of the inspection and grading systems," and that the Department will "institute an administrative proceeding seeking the indefinite withdrawal or denial of Federal inspection and/or grading and acceptance services from any recipient of or applicant for such services when the Department's action is based upon a criminal conviction or convictions for bribery or related offenses," including, specifically, convictions under "18 U.S.C. 209" (subsection 1, supra), which is the statutory provision involved here.

As shown above, where there have been convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program, there is a reasonable basis for following the USDA policy irrespective of any mitigating circumstances. District judges in two cases have approved that per se policy (subsections 4 and 5(b), supra). The two courts that have disagreed with that policy have advanced no reasons in support of their view (subsections 3 and 5(c), supra), and one of those courts later cast serious doubt on the Judicial Officer's interpretation that the court expressed the view by implication that theoretically, at least, there is a set of mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of corruptly bribing the meat inspector assigned to a plant (subsection 5(g), supra).

In addition, the courts that have considered the mitigating circumstances in particular cases have sustained the Department's determinations that the mitigating circumstances were inadequate to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program under circumstances which demonstrate that, from a practical viewpoint, no set of mitigating circumstances will ever be found sufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness in such cases. Specifically, the mitigating circumstances that have been found not sufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program include:

1. An unblemished record before and after the criminal conviction.

2. No difficulties with the meat inspection program before or after the criminal conviction.

3. Testimonials from friends and business associates and others who regard the convicted individual as a responsible and honest member of the business community, notwithstanding the criminal conviction.

4. Exceptionally stressful personal circumstances relating to the convicted person.

5. Real or perceived improper conduct by the inspection staff causing great harm to the packer, with no satisfaction achieved from supervisory inspection officials.

6. A belief that the inspector was soliciting a bribe.

7. A desire to have the meat inspector insure that the product produced at the plant remains wholesome, notwithstanding the bribe.

8. The withdrawal of meat inspection would adversely affect numerous packing plant employees and the community.

9. Time lapse of many years since the criminal conduct.

10. A finding by the Administrative Law Judge that recurrence of the criminal conduct is unlikely.

11. Adequate punishment in the criminal proceeding.

12. The criminal conviction involved one isolated event.

13. Adverse publicity from the criminal conviction caused loss of business to the company.

The first 10 mitigating circumstances listed above were all present in Utica (see subsection 5(d), supra), in which the district court affirmed the "replacement" Judicial Officer's determination (subsection 5(e), supra) that they were insufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from the bribery convictions (subsection 5(f), supra).

From a realistic viewpoint, the mitigating circumstances rejected as insufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program demonstrate quite clearly that, as a practical matter, there are no mitigating circumstances that can overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program. This affords additional basis for affirming the per se approach adopted by the Judicial Officer here.

For the reasons set forth above, where there have been convictions for bribery or related offenses that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program,[20] the Department's per se approach is not only reasonable, but it is the only policy that will properly protect the public health. Assuming, however, that a reviewing court should disagree with this position, or with the view expressed in [20] The "heart of the meat inspection program" is an area, not a pinpoint. The administrative determination that convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 209 fall within that area (and, therefore, are subject to the per se rule) is reasonable and rational, notwithstanding the fact that convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 201(b) strike closer to the center of the area than convictions under 18 U.S.C. § 209.

§ I(A) (that convictions for supplementing the salary of the meat inspector assigned to a packing plant in connection with his official meat inspection duties necessarily involve fraud in connection with transactions in food), the fact relating to the "fraud" issue and the "unfitness" issue are set forth in § II, immediately following.

II. Assuming (Erroneously) That Where There Have Been Convictions of Supplementing the Salary of the Meat Inspector Assigned to a Packing Plant in Connection with His Official Meat Inspection Duties, the Facts of Each Case Must Be Examined to Determine Whether the Convictions Are Based on "Fraud in Connection with Transactions in Food" and Render the Plant "Unfit" to Receive Meat Inspection, the Facts Here Show Such "Fraud" and "Unfitness."

The same facts that show that Mr. Burke's convictions are based on "fraud in connection with transactions in food" also show that respondent is "unfit" to receive meat inspection (unless Mr. Burke disassociates himself from respondent). Accordingly, the facts relating to both issues will be considered together.

At the outset, however, the "unfitness" issue will be determined under the assumption that even though we must consider the mitigating circumstances, we are free to adhere to our view that no set of mitigating circumstances can ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from convictions of bribery or related offenses involving the meat inspector. Since that is my view, I have given careful consideration to all of respondent's mitigating circumstances, but find them inadequate to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from the criminal convictions. No useful purpose would be served by discussing the mitigating circumstances in detail since it is impossible for any set of mitigating circumstances ever to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program, such as the convictions involved here.

Assuming further, however, that a reviewing court will not accept as valid a determination of unfitness based upon a consideration of the mitigating circumstances when the Judicial Officer has the preconceived view that no set of mitigating circumstances can ever overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike at the heart of the meat inspection program, the circumstances relating to "fraud in connection with transactions in food" and "unfitness" are considered in detail below, without any preconceived views.

In the criminal proceeding against Thomas Burke, he was charged with 23 counts of supplementing the salary of the meat inspector assigned to his plant. Count 1, which is identical to the others, except for the date and amount of the payment, is as follows (PX 12, Information at 1-2):

The 23 payments to the meat inspector over a period of 9½ months total $5,070. Sixteen of the 23 payments were made after publication of the Department's Policy Statement (which was well publicized in the meat industry) advising that the Administrator of the Federal Meat Inspection Program will seek the indefinite withdrawal of inspection services in all cases of bribery or related offenses, including, specifically, violations of 18 U.S.C. § 209(a), the criminal section involved here.[21]

The jury found Mr. Burke guilty of all 23 counts. The court's charge instructed the jury that the payments must have been made as compensation "for the services having to do with Dr. Gabriel's [21] Respondent contends that there would not have been 16 violations committed after publication of the Department's Policy Statement if the Department had ended its investigation sooner. The Department kept the investigation open for a considerable period of time in order to learn the "degree of corruption in the plant, and to find out if possible what other members of USDA were involved" (PX 1, p. 15). But, in any event, Mr. Burke's actions and convictions are to be judged by what actually occurred—not what would have occurred had the Department blown the whistle sooner.

responsibility" as a meat inspector, and that the payments must have been made knowingly and willfully "with bad purposes" to "disobey or disregard the law." The court instructed the jury as to the defendant's claim that the payments were not made voluntarily, but only because Mr. Burke feared that unless they were made, Dr. Gabriel would use his position as meat inspector in an unreasonable and punitive manner. The court further instructed the jury that the wisdom or correctness of the USDA regulations were not at issue. Specifically, the court charged the jury (PX 11, pp. 15–17, 19):

> The offense has four essential elements, each one of which must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. . . .
> Concerning the third element, the law requires that the payments have to have been made as compensation for Dr. Gabriel's services, as a meat inspector. Thus, the Government has the burden of proving, beyond a reasonable doubt that the payments made were for the services having to do with Dr. Gabriel's responsibility as an employee of the United States Government. Accordingly I instruct you that no violation is present, merely because a private person gives money to a government employee, unless a connection is shown to exist between the public employment and the private compensation.
> As to the fourth or final element that must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, the word knowingly, as that term has been used from time to time in these instructions, means, that the act was done voluntarily and intentionally, not because of mistake or accident or other innocent purposes.
> The word willfully, as that term has been used from time to time in these instructions means, that the act was committed voluntarily and purposely with specific intent to [do] something the law forbids. That is to say, with bad purposes. There're to disobey or disregard the law.
> One of the defenses raised by the defendant Thomas Burke is, that he made certain payments only because he feared that unless those payments were made, Dr. Gabriel would use his position as meat inspector in an unreasonable and punitive manner, thereby causing or threatening the defendant to suffer the loss of money and business.

The defendant therefore claims that he did not voluntarily contribute to or supplement the salary of Dr. Gabriel, an employee of the United States Government.

I have defined for you the meaning of the terms knowingly and willfully, which are the four elements of the offense charged.

If you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant acted knowingly and willfully as those terms have been defined for you, then, the Government would have carried the burden of establishing the final element of the offense.

Conversely of course, if you do not so find, then you'll acquit.

. . . I charge you that USDA regulations are not an issue in this case. It's not your responsibility to consider, nor may you consider the wisdom or correctness of any regulations which you have heard about in this case.

During the sentencing proceeding, both Mr. Burke and his attorney advised the court that the United States Department of Agriculture would withdraw meat inspection from Mr. Burke's plant, so long as he was associated with the plant. Mr. Burke's attorney stated during the sentencing proceeding (PX 13, p. 7):

He faces, your Honor, not only what this Court can deliver in terms of sentence, he also faces, as the Court is aware, administrative action by the United States Department of Agriculture which in effect would mean that they would not inspect his premises so long as he is a partner of that organization That means that there is going to have to be a reversal of what he does in this business. It means that he is going to have to take alternative means of support, and it is a difficult thing in these circumstances with a family, after the effort that has been made over a number of years in providing a successful function to even the City of Newark in its employment of people.

To think that Mr. Burke will not be able to continue in that business; that is severe punishment, and it is severe punishment, your Honor, also in terms of what this period is like.

Similarly, Mr. Burke stated in a written statement used in the sentencing proceeding (RX H, Burke's Statement at 5):

> As the Court is aware, I now face not only a sentence in which imprisonment is possible, but also face the almost certain potential of personally losing federal inspection.

After considering all the circumstances, the court fined Mr. Burke $11,500, placed him on 3 years' probation, and required him to engage in community service. The court stated (PX 13, pp. 13–16; emphasis added):

> The COURT: Thank you. All right, knowing of the serious interest that the government has taken in the sentence in this case, and being aware, even without that reminder, of the serious nature of the offense charged here, and the manner in which this type of offense can undermine the functioning of any democratic government, I've taken some pains in evaluating the materials that have been furnished to me by both sides.
> I am also aware of the tendency of the courts today to resort to custodial sentences in cases of this sort in order, I believe, primarily, to demonstrate to the public at large that this is a kind of conduct that cannot be tolerated, and that if tolerated will bring about, and I sincerely believe this, a great detriment to the system of government under which we live.
> Now, with those things in my mind, I have compared this particular defendant, and I have found two things. One, the incidents, repeated deliberate incidents, in which he involved himself, did not, however bad they were, involve the corruption, the actual corruption of the United States. The inspector with whom Mr. Burke was dealing was in fact, not suborned, and therefore, the effect of Mr. Burke's conduct was not as devastating as perhaps it was intended to be.[22]
> In the second place, I find that the areas for which change was sought illegally were not of the sort that would have resulted in the injection into commerce of unwholesome food products. Thus, this was not, in my view as I heard the case, the offense of a man who was uncaring about the public consequences of his act. These two factors have led me to conclude, in view of the prior life of the defendant, that a custodial sentence would not be appropriate. However, it is not my intention, in any way, to diminish the seriousness of the offense either in the mind of the defendant or in the mind of the public, and I have, therefore, attempted to include that consideration in my formation of a sentence. It is adjudged that the imposition of term sentence is suspended. The defendant is placed on probation for a period of three years. It is a special condition of probation that the defendant engage in a community service undertaking with the direction of and approved by the United States Probation Office.

In addition, it is adjudged that the defendant do pay a fine of $500 on each of the 23 counts totaling $11,500. . . .

The sordid details of Mr. Burke's fraudulent endeavor to corrupt Dr. Gabriel, the USDA meat inspector assigned to his plant, are revealed in the transcript of the criminal proceeding, received in evidence in the administrative proceeding. (The jury had access to tape recordings of Mr. Burke's payments and transcripts of the tape recordings, but, unfortunately, they are not part of the administrative record, except for a few excerpts from the transcripts read into the record of the criminal proceeding.) Although I must accept at face value the criminal convictions, and could not properly attempt to reweigh the evidence introduced at the criminal proceeding, the criminal testimony is relevant here, if mitigating circumstances are regarded as relevant.

The fact of Mr. Burke's payments to Dr. Gabriel are not disputed. But whether the payments were voluntarily made by Mr. Burke or were, contrariwise, extorted by Dr. Gabriel, was an issue resolved against respondent by the jury. Hence that issue is no longer open for questioning. As stated by Mr. Burke's attorney at the sentencing proceeding (PX 13, p. 5):

At no time during the trial have we indicated, nor has Mr. Burke testified to any kind of statement which denied what was done, and that was admitted, and it was admitted not only because of the tapes, but it was admitted because it was done. What the essence of the defense was, as the Court understands, is what provocation there was. The jury didn't agree with it, and we don't quibble with that, there's no way that we can. . . .

Dr. Gabriel testified that the payments related to overtime and to induce him to permit lice-infested calves to be placed in respondent's cooler in plastic bags for skinning in the next day or two, or after a weekend. Mr. Burke agreed (except for the "provocation").

As to the proper overtime procedure, a packing plant is free to operate overtime, but the plant must pay USDA for the overtime, and USDA, in turn, pays overtime to the inspector (PX 1, p. 14; PX 2, pp. 241–44).

As to the proper procedure for lice-infested calf carcasses, the regulations require the removal of the skin at the time of the postmortem inspection if a calf's carcass is infested with any parasite, such as lice. No discretion, in this respect, is left with the inspector (or his supervisor). Specifically, the regulations provide (9 CFR § 310.10; emphasis added):

> When a carcass is to be dressed with the skin or hide left on, the skin or hide shall be thoroughly washed and cleaned before any incision is made for the purpose of removing any part thereof or evisceration, except that where calves are slaughtered by the kosher method, the heads shall be removed from the carcasses, before washing of the carcasses. The skin shall be removed at the time of postmortem inspection from any calf carcass infested with the larvae of the "oxwarble" fly (Hypoderma lineata and Hypoderma bovis), or external parasites, or affected with other pathological skin conditions.[23]

The purpose of the regulation in not permitting lice-infested carcasses to be placed in the cooler (even in plastic bags) is to prevent contamination not only of other carcasses in the cooler, but also of [23] The ALJ sustained an objection to the introduction of the regulation (Tr. 16–17), but the criminal judge said that official notice will be taken of all the regulations "in effect at the time in question and relative to the situation that we have before us" (PX 7, p. 200). Similarly, I take official notice of the regulations (pursuant to 7 CFR §§ 1.141(g)(6), .145(i)). In addition, there is abundant testimony in the criminal record stating that lice-infested calves must be skinned on the killing floor at the time of the postmortem inspection, and cannot be placed in the cooler in plastic bags, and killed the next day, or after a weekend, as desired by Mr. Burke (PX 1, pp. 101–02; PX 2, pp. 215–16, 239–41; PX 3, pp. 317–18; PX 6, pp. 39, 87; PX 8, p. 62; and see Tr. 190).

the meat of the lice-infested carcass itself (Tr. 188–91; PX 1, p. 102; PX 2, pp. 215–16). As explained by Mr. Gould, Deputy Director, Compliance Division, Food Safety and Inspection Service, USDA (Tr. 189–91; capitalization in original):

Q. WHEN THERE IS FEAR ABOUT PUTTING AN ANIMAL WITH A HIDE ON IT IN A COOLER IN WHICH THERE ARE ALREADY SKINNED ANIMALS THE FEAR THERE IS THAT THE LICE ON THE ANIMAL THAT HAS THE HIDE ON IT WILL IN SOME WAY BE COMMUNICATED TO THE ANIMALS WHICH HAVE NO HIDE ON IT AT ALL; CORRECT?

A. YES, TO INCLUDE THE ANIMAL ITSELF THAT HAS THE HIDE ON IT. THERE'S AN OPEN CAVITY THERE.

Q. IT'S TRUE THAT ONE OF THE REASONS FOR THE BAGGING OF THE ANIMAL IS TO PREVENT THAT KIND OF COMMUNICATION WITH THE ANIMALS THAT HAVE ALREADY BEEN SKINNED?

A. WITH OTHER CARCASSES, YES.

Q. IT IS ALSO TRUE, IS IT NOT, THAT ONE WAY OF SEPARATING THE BAGGED ANIMALS FROM THE ALREADY SKINNED ANIMALS IS TO PUT THEM EITHER IN ANOTHER COOLER OR IN A FAR SECTION OF THE COOLER AWAY FROM THOSE HIDES OF ANIMALS THAT HAVE ALREADY BEEN SKINNED?

A. IT'S ONE WAY, BUT IT'S NOT THE WAY THAT THE REGULATION ADDRESSES.

Q. BUT IT AFFECTS, DOES IT NOT, THE OBJECTIVE, IS THAT TRUE?

A. IT POSSIBLY AFFECTS THE OBJECTIVE OF CONTAMINATING—THE POSSIBILITY OF CONTAMINATING OTHER CARCASSES, BUT NONETHELESS THERE IS A LIKELIHOOD THAT THE LICE WILL FIND ITS WAY ON TO THE CUT SURFACES, EXPOSED SURFACES OF THE CARCASSES THAT THE HIDE IS ATTACHED TO. KEEP IN MIND, IF YOU WILL, WHEN THE ANIMAL IS SLAUGHTERED THE VITAL ORGANS ARE REMOVED FROM THE ANIMAL FOR INSPECTIONAL PURPOSES, AND WE DO HAVE EXPOSURE FROM THE INSIDE AS WELL AS CERTAIN PORTIONS OF THE BREAST HAVE BEEN SKINNED BACK TO A CERTAIN DEGREE. SO EXPOSED MEAT IS AVAILABLE ON THAT CARCASS.

Dr. Gabriel testified that respondent prefers to skin calves after they have been cooled in the plant's cooler for a day or two, or after a weekend, but that the regulations do not permit that as to lice-infested calves. He testified) PX 2, pp. 215–16):

Q. What are you looking for when you look at the hide of the animal?

A. We're looking to see if there is any pathological or conditions on the hides of the animals.

Q. What type of parasitic conditions would there be? What are you looking for?

A. Something like lice, grubs.

Q. Why is it important to determine if the animal hide [h]as lice or grubs on it?

A. Because some of the plants use what we call color [cooler] skin[n]ing procedure in their calves. This plant like the hide to be on their calves to be put in the cooler and to be skinned while it is called [cooled] in the next day or the day after. It is up to the plant. So whenever we find a skin condition which will not permit the animals to go to the cooler, this is derailed out in a separate rail to be skinned on the same day of slaughter.

Q. Why must an animal that's railed out be skinned on the same day of slaughter? What's the purpose of that?

A. This is the regulation, sir.

Q. Well, do you know the purpose for the regulation?

A. Yes, sir. Because if you let this animal go to the cooler, it will be a source of contaminating the other meat.

Q. Doctor, do you—at Great American Veal, do you know what type of skinning processes they have there?

A. Yes. They have the cold skinning procedure.

* * * * * * *

Q. What's the purpose of the cold skinning procedure?

A. This the management of any plant that choose the procedure of the skinning and at Great American Veal the management chooses the cold skinning procedure which they would skin also carcasses after it is chilled in their cooler for a day or two or whatever their needs are, the plant needs.

* * * * * * *

Q. Dr. Gabriel, did Mr. Burke ever tell you why he had that procedure?

A. Yes, sir. Because he felt that when he skinned this carcass, after it will keep the bloom of the carcass and make it look much better than if it will be skinned the same day.

Q. Bloomed. Does it have anything to do with the value of the carcass?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is bloomed, by the way?

A. This is the color mainly of the carcass. And they feel that when it is skinned the same day it will look in bad shape then if it will be skinned the next day.

Dr. Gabriel testified that Mr. Burke told him that the value of a calf decreases by about $25 when it is skinned on the day of slaughter (PX 2, p. 240). Mr. Burke testified that the farmer loses the money when a calf is hot-skinned (PX 10, pp. 120–21). But since respondent is in a "very competitive" market "in terms of attracting growers" to supply it with product (PX 10, p. 9), and, on the other end, respondent could lose a customer if respondent failed to supply the product required (PX 10, pp. 9–10), respondent has a very real interest in keeping good growers satisfied with the prices received from respondent (PX 10, pp. 8–10).

Dr. Hall, who was Dr. Gabriel's supervisor, testified that the regulations require lice-infested calves to be skinned immediately on the killing floor to prevent the condition from being imparted to the meat sold to the public. He testified (PX 1, pp. 101–02):

> Q. What is the regulation concerning calves that are found with lice in their skin or with a skin condition?
> A. The regulations state that an animal with lice or any skin condition, that the hide must be removed on the killing floor.
> • • • • • • •
> Q. What's the reason for the federal regulation requiring that the skin on animals with skin conditions be removed immediately?
> A. Well, the fear is that this disease condition of the skin will be imparted to the meat which is sold to the general public.

However, Dr. Hall testified that, in particular circumstances, he had allowed lice-infested carcasses to be placed in a cooler, but "under no circumstances overnight" (PX 1, p. 151). He testified (PX 1, pp. 141, 151)):

> Q. Now, doctor, if an animal has lice is it possible to put that animal in a sheet or bag and place that animal in a cooler without impairing the safety of the rest of the plant?
> A. That can be done.
> Q. And is that within the discretion of the veterinarian?
> A. Yes. Yes. The purpose—well, all right. Yes. That would be true.
> Q. And it would not be improper if he followed such procedures?
> A. No. It would not.
> • • • • • • •
> Q. Under what circumstances could an inspector put lice infected calves in a shroud in a cooler?

A. Well, we have circumstances, the government says an animal, a calf with a skin condition, any skin condition, has to be killed [skinned] on the killing floor. However, if you have circumstances whereby you get a particular contaminated lot with lice or grubs or what not, and and you cannot handle them on the killing floor, there are too many, in order not to hold up the production of their plants, you might put them in the cooler.

It's my practice to find an isolated rail where there will be no contamination with those calves that are not infected and you can put them there and hold them until they can be skinned but, but under no circumstances overnight.

Acting on Dr. Hall's authorization, Dr. Prasad, a meat inspector who was assigned to respondent's plant after the relevant time period involved here, on occasions when the regular inspector was unavailable (PX 8, pp. 18, 21), permitted lice-infested calves to be placed in the cooler (PX 8, pp. 56–57). However, Dr. Prasad recognized that "the regulation says that you've got to have those calves skinned on the kill floor," and that when he was asked by the packing plant to let lice-infested calves be put in the cooler in a plastic bag, he had to get authorization from his supervisor, Dr. Hall (PX 8, p. 62). He testified (PX 8, p. 62; and see PX 8, pp. 56–57):

Q. Okay. You testified that when you were at the Paterson [packing] plant that there was a lice problem there, and you found lice-infected calves. Is that right?

A. Yes, ma'am.

Q. And you followed the regulations. And the regulation says that you've got to have those calves skinned on the kill floor. Is that right?

A. Right.

Q. Were you asked to put those calves in a bag, in a plastic bag by the plant?

A. The instruction has to—see, I cannot bifurcate the regulation. And still I don't bifurcate.

Any bifurcation and other ruling has to come from my supervisor if they want. Because Circuit sets its own standard. I have no right to go beyond that regulation. I have to follow that regulation.

Q. And did you follow it at the Paterson plant?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. In other words, you had the calves skinned immediately on the kill floor, right?

A. I ordered it to skin it, and then the objection came, and then the ruling came that you can use the plastic bag on it.

Q. And you ordered it because that's what the regulation said, right?

A. Right.

Q. And you have no right to disobey the regulation, do you?

A. Nobody has the right to disobey the regulation.

Turning to the evidence as to Mr. Burke's cash payments, Dr. Gabriel testified in the criminal proceeding that Mr. Burke offered to pay him cash for overtime on a number of occasions, which overtures Dr. Gabriel initially refused. Dr. Gabriel testified that he was paid about $10 an hour for overtime, and that Mr. Burke told him he was a "fool" to work for such a low amount. Specifically, Dr. Gabriel testified (PX 2, pp. 245–46):

Q. Doctor, you had testified that Mr. Burke had begun to complain about the lice problem.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To you. And telling you that he was losing money and everything like that. How soon after he started complaining about the lice did he first offer you cash directly for your overtime?

A. At least about 8, 10 months.

Q. All right. So he had been complaining about the lice almost from the day you got to the plant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now, tell us what happened in December of 1978 when Mr. Burke offered you this cash.

A. At that day I was taking that M.D. form—MB–11, which having all the overtime hours during four weeks period to be signed by Mr. Tom Burke.

> And when I was giving it to him to sign it he asked me how much I'm getting for an hour of overtime. I said about $10. He said, oh, that low, I pay twice that much. I didn't make any comment. So he told me you're a fool to accept that, I can pay you the overtime in cash.
> I turned him down and took the form and left.

When Mr. Burke's offers to pay cash for overtime continued, in accordance with USDA policy, Dr. Gabriel contacted Mr. St. Pierre, an agent of USDA's Inspector General, and, with the concurrence of the Department of Justice, Dr. Gabriel was furnished with a hidden tape recorder. Dr. Gabriel then accepted Mr. Burke's cash payments, recorded the conversations, and turned the tapes, together with the cash payments, over to Mr. St. Pierre. (PX 2, pp. 244–59; PX 6, pp. 95–96)

Mr. Burke paid Dr. Gabriel $15 an hour for overtime (PX 2, pp. 271–73, 298–300; PX 3, pp. 314, 375; PX 4, p. 32), which is about 50% more than the amount (about $10 per hour) paid by USDA to Dr. Gabriel for overtime.[24]

In order to prevent USDA from becoming suspicious, Mr. Burke instructed Dr. Gabriel at the end of each 2-week period how much of his overtime should be recorded on his USDA time sheets (for which Dr. Gabriel was paid by USDA) and how much would be paid in cash by Mr. Burke (PX 2, pp. 293–99; PX 3, pp. 311–12; PX 10, pp. 83–87). Dr. Gabriel testified (PX 2, pp. 293–96, 298–99):

> Q. Well, what was Mr. Burke telling you when he said "You give them five and I'll give you five and one half"? [The quotation is from the transcript of the tape-recorded conversation.] What was that in reference to?
> A. I give them five means the federal government and he give me the amount of hours he is going to pay me cash.
> Q. And did he either at that time or subsequently give you cash for those hours?

[24] Some witnesses erroneously testified that $15 per hour is about one-third more than $10 per hour.

A. The plant of Great American Veal known to be working overtime and he wants me to put some overtime for the government so no one will notice what was going on between him and myself.

Q. Dr. Gabriel how did you know how many hours Burke was going to pay for and how many hours you were supposed to give to USDA according to Burke?

A. At the end of every two weeks, when I send my time and attendance sheet for the federal government, I will go to Mr. Burke and tell him about how many hours I work overtime at his plant during these two weeks. And I will have the little piece of paper the first week and the second week, how many hours and the total of the first week and the total of the second week, and the total of the two weeks. And then he will write a number about how many hours I'll give them, how many hours he will pay.

I take this little piece and then put whatever hours he told me to give the government, I give it to the government, take the little piece and push it in the garbage and that's it.

At the end of the four weeks I'll give him another little paper. The same thing, like the first two weeks. And then he will decide how many hours to go to the government and how many hours he will pay in cash, and then I'm having the MB-11 with the whole four weeks. I'll ask him to sign it and he'll sign it; and that's it.

Q. Directing your attention to May 18, Dr. Gabriel, did you have a conversation with Mr. Burke on May 18, 1979 concerning this overtime, the cash he was paying you for overtime?

* * * * * * *

Q. All right. According to this conversation you gave them [USDA] five of the hours. Is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That left him [Burke] six?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To pay for?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he pay you the cash for them?

A. Did they? No. But he paid later.

Q. How much did he pay you for?

A. 90 dollar.

Q. Now, during course of that conversation Mr. Burke said to you I would like to take care of all of it, but you can't because they know you're getting some [expletive deleted] overtime.

What was that all about?

A. He wants to pay me all the hours I work for overtime at his place but because I note that it will be very noticed, and his place is known to work overtime, we discussed it before and I'm still trying to put some hours so no one will notice what's going on.

In a further effort to prevent USDA from being suspicious, Mr. Burke instructed Dr. Gabriel to submit an uneven amount of overtime to USDA on his time sheets, e.g., 5¼ hours rather than 5 hours. Dr. Gabriel testified (PX 3, pp. 380–81):

Q. Now, even later in the conversation [recorded on the concealed tape recorder] there's an exchange in which Mr. Burke says, "don't make it even." You say "sometimes it comes even." And he says, "add a quarter." A little later he says, "never make it even, it always has to be a quarter, a half, three-quarters."

What is that in reference to?

A. In reference to the hours I will put on my time and attendance sheet to be paid by the government.

Q. He's telling you not to make those hours even?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he ever tell you why he didn't want you to make the hours even?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why, what did he tell you?

A. Because they just may notice the hours are equal or—they might suspect that something is going on between him and me in the plant.

At first, no "favors" were requested for the cash payments, but later Mr. Burke began "pressuring" Dr. Gabriel. Dr. Gabriel testified (PX 3, pp. 314–16):

Q. Did you have a discussion with Mr. Burke about what, if anything, he wanted you to do for this overtime?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he tell you, if anything, in that conversation?

A. When he offered to pay me the overtime I asked him what favors he wants me to do, and he said, "No favors at all."

* * * * * * *

Q. Doctor, did he ask you to do anything at all for him concerning any of the regulations?

A. When he offered me the overtime he didn't ask me to do anything for paying me the overtime in cash. But later on on many occasions he was in a sense pressuring me to do things.

The "pressure" was Mr. Burke's efforts to get Dr. Gabriel to let lice-infested calves go to the cooler (in plastic bags), to be skinned in a day or two, or after the weekend, which is contrary to the regulations. Dr. Gabriel at first refused, but later accepted $50 per week from Mr. Burke to allow this practice. Mr. Burke told Dr. Gabriel that $50 per week was the amount he paid other inspectors (including supervisors) to allow lice-infested calves to go to the cooler.[25] Dr. Gabriel testified (PX 3, pp. 317–18, 327–30; PX 6, pp. 86–87; PX 3, p. 321; see also PX 3, p. 375):

Q. Well, tell us what, if anything, Doctor—Doctor, tell us what, if anything, Mr. Burke asked you to with respect to the regulations.

A. He asked me to let the carcasses with the lice go to the cooler, and this is against the regulations.

[25] As shown below, Mr. Burke admits that he told Dr. Gabriel that he paid other inspectors and supervisors, but denies that he actually paid anyone other than Dr. Gabriel (see note 29, infra, and accompanying text).

Q. Did that happen on more than one occasion?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How often did that happen?

A. Almost every time when we have lice calves to be skinned on the same day of the slaughter.

Q. Did you do it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did he ask you to do anything else with respect to the regulations, the enforcement of the regulations?

Mr. SEGAL: Your Honor, can we have a date on these so-called events?

The COURT: If you know, could you date these events.

The WITNESS: I can't remember the exact date, but in many occasions in this tape recording, there is some conversations in regard to Mr. Burke asking me to let this calves go to the cooler to be skinned next day or sometimes to stay in the cooler over the weekend and to be skinned at the start of next week. And this is been recorded in this exhibit. [PX 3, pp. 317–18]

* * * * * * *

Q. Dr. Gabriel, did there come a time when Mr. Burke offered you cash that had nothing to do with your overtime or anything else.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When approximately was that?

A. May 25, 1979.

Q. Did Mr. Burke tell you why he was offering you this cash?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why?

A. He wants to have the calves with lice go to the cooler and not to be skinned in the same day of slaughter as the regulations say.

Q. He offered you a specific quid pro quo for the money?

A. Yes, sir. [PX 3, pp. 327-28]

* * * * * * *

A. Not in—I wasn't speaking to him in the government office, in my office, but before he made the offer he walked outside and looked for an empty room in his establishment and called me. He whistled to me to come over to the other room. I went to the other room, and he offered to pay me the cash not to let this animals to be skinned in the same day of the slaughter.

Q. How much money?

A. $50 a week.

Q. Anything else? Did he tell you anything else during that conversation?

A. Yes, sir. When I asked him 50 a week,[26] he said, "Yes," and he told me that offer is from his own experience of paying other people the same amounts of money.

* * * * * * *

Q. In what context? What was the context in which he told you that, Doctor?

A. Just because when I asked him 50, he said 50, and this is from his experience of paying other inspectors. So I told him, "You paid other inspectors $50?"

He said, "Yes, higher-ups. Higher graders than you I paid this $50." [PX 3, pp. 329-30]

* * * * * * *

Q. Did he [Mr. Burke] ever get you to change your proceedings in railing out liced cattle?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did he try to do that? What method did he use to try to get you to change your procedures?

[26] Note that Dr. Gabriel did not ask for $50 a week, he merely aked, "50 a week?" after Mr. Burke offered him $50 a week, to be sure of the exact terms of the offer.

A. For many occasions, he let these liced calves stay on the kill floor to the end of the kill and maybe sometimes he come to me and told me he cannot do it or someone left the plant and tried to make any excuses to let these calves go to the cooler or stay to the next day.

Q. Did he do anything else to get you to change your procedures with these calves?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What would that be?

A. He paid me money to change this procedure.

Q. You're familiar with U.S.D.A regulations, are you not, Doctor Gabriel?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you aware of any regulation which says it's permissible to pay the inspector money to get them to change the regulations?

A. Permissible?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, it is not permissible. [PX 6, pp. 86–87]

* * * * * * *

Q. Doctor, by the way, after Mr. Burke started paying you the cash, did the lice situation change?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did it change?

A. There was too many carcasses with lice coming to the plant.

Q. You mean there were more after he started paying you the cash?

A. Yes, sir. [PX 3, p. 321]

Dr. Gabriel testified that Mr. Burke's payments to him for overtime and for letting lice-infested calves go to the cooler lasted until he (Dr. Gabriel) was (routinely) reassigned to a different packing plant. He testified (PX 3, p. 332; and see PX 4, pp. 38–39):

Q. Doctor, you testified that after you had this conversation you met with St. Pierre and that as far as you were concerned you felt that the investigation was ended at that point. Did in fact the investigation end at that point?

A. No, sir.

Q. It continued?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At whose direction?

A. Mr. Tom St. Pierre's direction.

Q. Did Mr. Burke pay you the $50 a week?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he do it more than one time?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did he continue to pay you the $50 a week?

A. From May until I left the plant, which was sometime in November, January 1980, I believe.

Q. Every two weeks he gave you a hundred dollars?

A. Every two weeks if I worked at his place, because sometimes I was scaled to go to some other plants for a period of a week or two——

Q. Every time that Mr. Burke gave you a hundred dollars did he—by the way, did he continue to pay cash, the overtime in cash?

A. Yes.

Q. Every time he gave you cash either for the hundred dollars or for the overtime, what did you do with it?

A. I go out of the plant and Mr. Tom St. Pierre will be waiting outside and he will draw his car after my mine. We will stop at one place. I will get out of the my car, go to his car, give him the recorder, initial the money, and he will initial the money and initial the tape.

Q. So each time you [were] paid cash you gave that cash to Tom St. Pierre. Is that correct?

A. The same day, sir, yes, sir.

Q. Each time you made a recording you gave the recording to Tom St. Pierre. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Mr. Burke testified at the criminal proceeding that Dr. Gabriel extorted the cash payments from him, and that they were not made voluntarily (PX 10, pp. 43–88, 116–17). However, the jury did not believe Mr. Burke's version of the facts and, therefore, for the purposes of this proceeding, I accept Dr. Gabriel's testimony as true and correct. Although the jury's verdict is conclusive as to this matter, the transcript of the criminal proceeding includes a number of additional references to the tape-recorded conversations, which are of interest here, e.g. (PX 10, pp. 74–76, 79–80, 82–88, 106–07, 110, 114–15):

Q. Mr. Burke, I believe you testified that you were beside yourself at having to pay this money for these liced calves on a Memorial Day weekend and that you were truly upset about the fact that this money was being extorted from you, sir?

A. That's correct.

Q. Nevertheless, it is true that what you actually said on that occasion to Doctor Gabriel, "You and I are two big boys. We know there are certain things we can do together." [The quotation is from the transcript of the tape-recorded conversation.] That's not Doctor Gabriel speaking, Mr. Burke, that's you speaking, is it not?

A. Could I see it?

Mr. SEGAL: Can we have an identification?

The COURT: What's the exhibit number?

Mr. MILNER: 12a, your Honor.

* * * * * * *

Q. You're talking with Doctor Gabriel about these liced calves that he wants you to skin and Doctor Gabriel says to you, "This is, you know, regulations and he's doing what he's supposed to do," speaking about the inspector; is that correct?

A. Where are you on here?

Q. This is page three. Doctor Gabriel says, "This is, you know, regulations and he's doing what he's supposed to do." [PX 10, pp. 74–76]

* * * * * * *

Q. Right here. Beginning right there. (Indicating.) Did you find it?

A. "This is, you know, regulations."

Q. That's Doctor Gabriel speaking?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say, "Right, right," and he says, "Really?" [27] And you say, "Understand," and Doctor Gabriel says, "If you feel that the regulation is breaking you, you fight the regulations." And you say, "You can't." He says, "You fight the people who put these regulations. Okay?" You said, "Listen to me," and he said, "I'll listen to me," and he said, "Okay," and you say, "You and I are two big boys," right? That's what you said, right?

A. That's what I said.

Q. And he says, "Oh okay," and you say, "We know there are certain things we can do together," just like that, and he says, "Okay." And then you say, "Mr. Burke, you know, so make a deal with me." [28] He didn't say make a deal with me. You said it, Mr. Burke.

A. No.

* * * * * * *

Q. Is that an accurate transcription of what occurred, Mr. Burke?

A. I think it's part of a total conversation that went on.

Q. That's Doctor Gabriel extorting money from you, is it, Mr. Burke? That's what that is?

[27] The question mark after "Really," added by the reporter, would appear to be erroneous. An exclamation point would seem more appropriate.

[28] This again appears to be a reporter's error as to punctuation and capitalization. As shown by the following two sentences, this sentence should read: "And then you say, Mr. Burke, 'You know, so make a deal with me.' "

A. The total conversation, in my reading, it clearly reflects that. [PX 10, pp. 79–80]

* * * * * * *

Q. Mr. Burke, you've indicated that, in fact, it was Doctor Gabriel who was asking you for this money and not the other way around; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that you were pressuring him—or he was pressuring you with the overtime. Isn't it a fact that you were pressuring him to let him to do what you wanted him to do with the lice calves?

A. I didn't want him to do anything differently than anybody else had done.

Q. Isn't it true that you have described this situation exactly opposite than the way it actually happened at the time the incident occurred?

A. No.

Q. Why then is it that on April 6 when you're speaking to Doctor Gabriel you say to him, "I don't want to talk to you about nothing like that in that office at all." You ask him, "Where's the microphone?"

Isn't it true that you, in fact, knew that what you were doing was wrong and that you didn't want to be in a position of possibly being recorded in this conversation?

Mr. SEGAL: Objection. We've got multiple questions.

Mr. MILNER: Yes, I'll withdraw the question.

The COURT: Yes.

BY MR. MILNER:

Q. Isn't it true that throughout listening to these tapes, Mr. Burke, that, in fact, it's Doctor Gabriel who comes to you and it's you telling him how many hours he's going to be paid for. It's not him——

A. Doctor Gabriel was making up the slips. It was him saying, "Here's how much you have for the week. How much should I give them?"

Q. On April 20 you tell him, "You give them five and I'll give them five and one-half." You're telling him.

A. From the sheet that he has written, laying down in front of me on his table.

Q. On May 18 he's asking you how much to give them, being the U.S.D.A., and you say, "Whose is this, yours?" And he says, "This is mine, yes." Referring to his overtime and you say, "Right, always give them half." It's you telling him how much to give them.

A. He's showing me the sheet there about the hours on it for each week.

Q. How do you explain this, Mr. Burke? On May 18 on page two you say, "I would like to take care of all of it but I can't because they know you're getting some overtime." How do you explain that, Mr. Burke?

A. Because we had a situation where I was forced into it and any conversations after that could go either way, whether he's catching me on the run—he wants to see me in his office. He's calling me in there. I'm trying to get out of there and get a plane to go home on Friday afternoons and he's showing me paperwork and any conversations like that would be normal. The pattern was established. He pushed me into it and it was going to continue like that.

Q. You say, "I would like to take care of all of it."

A. If he'd leave me alone and stop strangling me with unfair and unnecessary things, I would have done anything to get rid of this man.

Q. Then you say, "So give them half." You're talking to Doctor Gabriel, a man who you say is pressuring you. He's extorting this money from you. He's after you and he's got you around the throat and you say to him, "Give them half." He doesn't say that to you. He doesn't give me half. You're telling him how much to pay them and how much you're going to pay. You're telling him?

A. That's after he's got me in there going over this thing.

Q. This is the man that's got you by the throat?

A. That's right.

Q. You're telling him?

A. The very same man.

Q. On July 27, this very same man who's got you is talking to you and he says to you, "I just want, you know, you tell me how much you want to pay for the Government time." You say, "How many you got?" And then you tell him, "So give them—I take 15. Give them the rest, whatever it is."

You're the one who is telling him how much you're going to pay, Mr. Burke.

A. I think it was a well-established pattern in the beginning.

* * * * * * *

Q. Mr. Burke, you testified that, in effect, you weren't saving any money on this deal, yet on April 6, Doctor Gabriel says to you, "Okay. Now, you know, I will understand this is a favor from you." You say, "This is not a favor," and he says, "Uh-huh," and you say, "It's for you and it's for me. They charge me twice what you should get."

Mr. SEGAL: Your Honor, is this a question or are we just having declarations?

The COURT: The question will come. I think perhaps we're waiting for the siren.

Q. Mr. Burke, who else did you pay at U.S.D.A. besides Doctor Gabriel?

A. No one at all.

* * * * * * *

Q. You told Doctor Gabriel you did, didn't you?

A. I told Doctor Gabriel that to stop him from getting a complete situation going.

Q. You told Doctor Gabriel you paid other people at U.S.D.A, didn't you, Mr. Burke?

A. Yes. Doctor Gabriel is approaching me for money and I definitely told him that to stop him from extorting more money from me.

Q. In fact, you told Doctor Gabriel it was somebody above him at U.S.D.A. didn't you?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Was it Doctor Glasser?

A. No.

Q. Doctor Hall?

A. It was nobody whatsoever. I have never paid a cent to any Government emplolyee except Doctor Gabriel.

Q. In fact, you told Doctor Gabriel you were going to pay him the same thing you were paying these other folks; is that correct?

A. That's right. To keep him in line and to keep him from asking me for crazy figures. [PX 10, pp. 82-88] [29]

* * * * * * *

Q. On April 9, you were talking to Doctor Gabriel about a calf which he said was moribund and which you said wasn't and you told him, "But the regulations are wrong. They're really wrong," didn't you, sir?

A. The part that he was reading was wrong.

Q. You didn't say the part that you're reading is wrong. You said the regulations are wrong.

A. You are looking possibly four or five hours in total of conversations and you're leaving out the other hundred or 200 hours.

* * * * * * *

Q. Didn't you say on April 9 to Doctor Gabriel, "But the regulations are wrong. They're really wrong and if they're wrong—" Didn't you say that, Mr. Burke?

---

[29] See note 25, supra, and accompanying text, for Dr. Gabriel's testimony in this respect.

A. If that is exactly what I said there in quotation marks and that's the only part of the conversation you want to look at . . .

Q. Mr. Burke, just answer the question?

A. Yes, I'm sure that I said it.

Q. And if this is wrong, you don't want to follow them, do you? [PX 10, pp. 106–07]

* * * * * * *

Q. Maybe you would eat that but Doctor Gabriel wouldn't have, would he? Doesn't he go on to say, "Maybe you would eat it, but don't you think, really, Tom, those people that buy the meat from you, if they know you're selling this calf,you think they will come back and take meat from you? No."

A. Conversations like this with Doctor Gabriel in such a repulsive situation of having to be in his office and handing him money can certainly not be looked at as the way that I think at all. [PX 10, p. 110]

* * * * * * *

Q. And the problem was caused by him railing out all of these calves; is that correct, sir?

A. The problem was caused by him insisting to skin these calves on the kill floor. Did I say kill? Skin the calves on the kill floor.

Q. Yet on May 4, you have this conversation with Doctor Gabriel, don't you, Mr. Burke? "Right now the first thing is really—" this is you speaking. "Right now the first thing really, you know, is to—if I had known about it right away, we could come to a better understanding because it, you know, the problem with the lice. Can I put bags on them or not?"

Doctor Gabriel says, "Tom." You say, "I'm not trying to compromise you but, you know, could you bullshit them [USDA] that we killed late? There was no time or something like that, you know, because that's my biggest headache here. That's the damn lice."

Doctor Gabriel says, "You told me you were going to take care of this problem, especially with the farmers."

You said, "I did. I tried. I screamed. I carried on and everything. It improved greatly."

Doctor Gabriel says, "It improved greatly until you started paying me the overtime."

Isn't that what you said on May 4, 1979?

A. Well, I assume you're reading it and maybe I should look at it.

Q. Isn't that what you said?

A. That's what this says here, yes, that's correct.

Q. That's what you said, isn't it?

A. It's a copy of what I said. [PX 10, 114–15]

The one tape-recorded conversation that is helpful to Mr. Burke's contention that Dr. Gabriel solicited the money for permitting the lice-infested calves to go to the cooler to be skinned later is as follows (PX 10, pp. 116–17):

Q. Mr. Burke, on May 25, do you recall this exchange between yourself and Doctor Gabriel?

Tom Burke: "Could we put a plastic bag and skin them on the kill floor Tuesday morning early?"

Gabriel: "That's what you want me to do?

Burke: "It would help me. It would really help.

Gabriel: "And you pay me overtime, my overtime and that's it."

Burke: "I don't follow you.

Gabriel: "What do you mean you don't follow?"

Burke: "What do you mean? I know. What do you mean?"

Gabriel: "You just want me to do you these favors and you pay me overtime which I work every minute of it and you know that and that's it."

Do you remember that conversation with Doctor Gabriel?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you consider that conversation a solicitation to you?

A. Yes.[30]

However, the jury considered all of the tape-recorded conversations and all of the testimony, and found that Mr. Burke voluntarily made the cash payments to Dr. Gabriel. That determination is binding here. As shown above, even Mr. Burke's attorney concedes that the "jury didn't agree" with Mr. Burke's version as to the "provocation" for the payments, and Mr. Burke's attorney said we "don't quibble with that, there's no way that we can" (PX 13, p. 5).[31]

One additional isolated incident is worth mentioning here. On one occasion, Mr. Burke asked Dr. Gabriel to let him personally have a calf Dr. Gabriel had tagged USDA condemned, so that he could eat it himself. Dr. Gabriel testified (PX 3, pp. 319–20):

Q. All right. Doctor, did Mr. Burke ever ask you to do anything against the regulations with respect to the moribund [dying] calves?

Mr. SEGAL: Objection as to doing things against the regulations. I would object to that.

Mr. MILNER: I'll rephrase the question.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Burke about the moribund calves after he started paying his cash for the overtime?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell us what those conversations were, Doctor.

A. One of the conversations about moribund was that I tagged a carcass as USD condemned. And Mr. Burke told me that he can eat this carcass meat if I let him have it.

[30] See also Mr. Burke's testimony accompanying note 33, infra, with respect to this incident, in which Mr. Burke admits that he paid "money to Doctor Gabriel with regard to the lice and bagging."

[31] Even if an inspector or grader used language that led the convicted individual to believe that a bribe was being solicited, that would be significant only in the criminal proceeding (by way of defense on the ground of entrapment, or in mitigation of the punishment), but it would not be significant in determining whether the packing plant is unfit to receive inspection (see Utica, § I(B)(5)(d), supra, and National Meat Packers, § I(B)(7), supra).

I said, "No, I can't let you do that. Once I tag it USDA condemned, it must be condemned and disposed as a condemned carcass."

Next day, if I remember, when I met Mr. Burke, I brought the subject again because that carcass which I tagged as USD condemned died in the antemortem area almost about two hours after I tagged it.

So I told him, "Your remember that carcass which you discussed with me yesterday?"

So he told me, "Yes."

I told him it died about two hours after I tag it.

"Would you still eat that meat?"

I think he said, "yes;" something like that.

This isolated incident is not tied in with any of the payments, but it is the type of "favor" that a packing plant operator might request of a meat inspector who is on his personal payroll.

The facts set forth above show clearly that Mr. Burke's convictions are based upon "fraud in connection with transactions in food." He put the meat inspector assigned to his plant, Dr. Gabriel, on his personal payroll, paying Dr. Gabr iel about 50% more for overtime than he was paid by USDA. That was a fraudulent interference with the relationship between Dr. Gabriel and his employer, USDA—an interference that would normally lead to a conflict of interest. The fact that Dr. Gabriel was an honest meat inspector and was not suborned does not detract in any manner from the fraudulent nature of Mr. Burke's convictions.[32]

Mr. Burke's further payments made to Dr. Gabriel to induce him to violate the regulations with respect to lice-infested calves are additional circumstances showing "fraud in connection with transac-

[32] During the administrative hearing, complainant's expert witness and attorney at times seemed to express the view that the only fraud involved relates to the payments for the lice-infested calves (e.g., Tr. 15, 46-48, 133-34). At other times, they seemed to recognize (correctly) that any payment to a meat inspector in connection with his official duties involves fraud (e.g., Tr. 17-22, 115-16, 119-20, 180). As stated by complainant's witness, Mr. Gould, "you don't have control of your program when inspectors are in business for themselves" (Tr. 180). In any event, however, the complaint is broad enough to include more than just the lice matter (in fact, the complaint does not specifically refer to the lice matter), and we are not bound here by any (erroneous) legal views expressed by the Department's attorney or witness. It is clear that respondent had a fair opportunity to present all of its defenses, by way of evidence and argument, to the matters relied on in this decision.

tions in food." It is immaterial that Mr. Burke was charged under the compensation section, 18 U.S.C. § 209(a), rather than the bribery section, 18 U.S.C. § 201(b), or the gratuity section, 18 U.S.C. § 201(f). Mr. Burke was charged with making payments to Dr. Gabriel "in connection with his official duties as the certified inspector assigned to the Great American Veal, Inc. slaughtering operation" (PX 12, Information, Counts 1-23). The undisputed evidence at the criminal proceeding shows that a portion of these payments, viz., $50 per week, was made for the purpose of inducing Dr. Gabriel to permit lice-infested calves to be placed in the cooler for skinning on the next day, or later. The only conflict in the testimony was whether these payments were requested by Dr. Gabriel or whether they were volunteered by Mr. Burke. Mr. Burke's admissions that the payments were made to permit the bagging and cooling of the lice-infested calves are as follows (PX 10, pp. 43, 46-50, 53, 74; emphasis added):

Q. Were you ever asked for money by Doctor Gabriel?

A. Yes, I was. [PX 10, p. 43]

* * * * * * *

Q. Mr. Burke, in your experience, was your request for bagging calves with lice on them something that you had not experienced before?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Well, had you had calves bagged?

A. Yes, on several occasions I had calves bagged, yes, and I had seen them in other areas of the country, all over, calves in bags.

Q. Well, did you deem this a favor from Doctor Gabriel that you were requesting.

A. Not a favor at all. It was a normal thing that was a local rule, where a calf was put in the cooler with a plastic bag on it if it had a lice problem.

Q. In your plant today, are you permitted to bag calves and put them in the cooler?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Who is your inspector?

A. Doctor Hall is the supervisor. My present inspector today is Doctor Prasad. Until a few weeks ago or a few months ago it was Doctor Choy, over twenty different inspectors that I had in that plant.

* * * * * * *

Q. Now, doctor, did there come a time when a request was made of you for any monies in connection with the bagging of calves?

A. Yes, there did. We had—I was sent for and told that we had a few dozen calves on the kill floor with lice and I was asked to—Doctor Gabriel had sent for me and he told me, "Tom, we have a lot of calves on the kill floor with lice and what do you want me to do about it?" And I said, "Just put plastic bags on them like everyone else has done."

Q. When was the occasion when you had this conversation with him?

A. This was Memorial Day weekend.

Q. Had you had a similar discussion with him at an earlier time before Memorial Day?

A. Yes, a few weeks earlier or a month earlier there was another discussion about lice.

Q. What happened on that occasion?

A. I asked him to bag the calves and put them in the cooler and he said, no, he couldn't do that and I said, "Fine. Go ahead and skin them."

Q. On this occasion, on the eve of Memorial Day, could you tell us what your conversation with him was?

A. I said, "Doctor, we're going to have problems with these calves over the long weekend and I think they should be bagged and put away." And he tried to tell me that that would be a big favor to me, that in addition to the money he was getting, he wanted more money.

Q. Did you make any reply to whether or not it was a favor or whether you wanted a favor?

A. I said, "Doctor, I don't want any favors in this plant whatsoever. I want a clean piece of meat to leave here and what is to be done is the standard procedure to be followed." I never asked Doctor Gabriel for a favor.

Q. Now, when this Memorial Day situation occurred, did you pay money to Doctor Gabriel with regard to the lice and bagging after that?

A. Yes, I did.[33]

Q. Did you have—did you pay him on more than one occasion?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you have any multiple situations after that in which calves were bagged and hung because of the lice situation? Would that become a practice after that?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Well, did you do it often? Was it done often?

A. No, it was very rarely, and whether that was when Doctor Gabriel was there or not, I don't remember.

Q. Well, during the time that Doctor Gabriel was there, did you have a greater or a lesser incidence of lice?

A. A much lesser incidence.

Q. And was there a necessity for bagging these lice afterwards?

A. I believe that we skinned some and bagged some.

Q. Well, then what was it that you got in return for the payment of this money?

A. I got absolutely nothing in return and I didn't want anything in return. [PX 10, pp. 46–50]

* * * * * * *

Q. And in connection with the lice situation, did he bring up the subject of money to you specifically then?

---

[33] See the testimony accompanying note 30, supra, with respect to this incident, in which Dr. Gabriel's exact words are quoted from the transcript of the tape-recorded conversation.

A. Yes, he did. [PX 10, p. 53]

* * * * * * *

Q. Mr. Burke, I believe you testified that you were beside yourself at having to pay this money for these liced calves on a Memorial Day weekend and that you were truly upset about the fact that this money was being extorted from you, sir?

A. That's correct. [PX 10, p. 74]

Mr. Burke cannot here disavow his admission in the criminal proceeding that he paid money to Dr. Gabriel for permitting the lice-infested calves to be bagged and placed in the cooler, for skinning at a later date. And, as stated above, we are bound here by the jury's determination that the money was paid voluntarily, rather than extorted by Dr. Gabriel.

Mr. Burke's statement quoted above that he got "absolutely nothing in return for the payment of this money" with respect to the lice-infested calves (PX 10, p. 50) is not inconsistent with his admissions quoted above (text accompanying note 33, supra) that he paid Dr. Gabriel to let the lice-infested calves be placed in the cooler to be skinned at a later date (PX 10, pp. 43, 47–49, 74; see also Dr. Gabriel's testimony quoted earlier (text following note 25, supra) that Mr. Burke told him that he paid other inspectors $50 per week for the lice-infested calves (PX 3, pp. 329–30), and Mr. Burke's admissions quoted earlier (text preceding note 29, supra) that he told Dr. Gabriel he paid other inspectors and supervisors $50 per week (PX 10, pp. 82–88)). That is, according to Mr. Burke, there was nothing wrong with placing lice-infested calves in the cooler, since it was a practice permitted by Dr. Hall in the area (but not overnight (PX 1, p. 151)). Hence Mr. Burke could testify truthfully (from his viewpoint) that he received no favor for his money with respect to the lice-infested calves notwithstanding his admission that he paid Dr. Gabriel to induce Dr. Gabriel to follow the same practice permitted by Dr. Hall, but which would not, except for the payments, have been permitted by Dr. Gabriel.

For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Burke's convictions are clearly based upon "fraud in connection with transactions in food."

The criminal record also shows clearly that respondent is "unfit" to receive inspection service so long as Mr. Burke is associated with the plant. Mr. Burke has been convicted of criminal violations which strike at the heart of the meat inspection program. The sordid facts set forth above as to Mr. Burke's endeavors to corrupt the meat inspector by paying him 50% more than his usual overtime pay, and later by paying him for permitting lice-infested calves to go to the cooler to be skinned later, show clearly that respondent is unfit to receive inspection so long as Mr. Burke is associated with the plant.

Respondent relies on a number of mitigating circumstances, none of which overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from Mr. Burke's 23 misdemeanor convictions.

Assuming that Mr. Burke honestly believed that bagging the lice-infested calves could have been permitted by Dr. Gabriel under the USDA regulation, that is not a persuasive mitigating circumstance here. Instead of going through supervisory channels to (attempt to) get Dr. Gabriel to change his policy as to lice-infested calves,[34] Mr. Burke took the fraudulent course of paying Dr. Gabriel money to change his policy. USDA cannot place the required degree of trust in such a person (see § I(B), supra).

For the same reason, even if there were (i) a lack of clarity in the regulation (which is not the case),[35] and (ii) uncertainty as to how lice-infested calves should be handled, that would not be a persuasive mitigating circumstance. If there were a lack of clarity in the regulation, Mr. Burke would have to go through supervisory channels to obtain a policy determination rather than take the fraudulent course of paying the inspector to change his policy. USDA cannot place the required degree of trust in such a person (see § I(B), supra).

Respondent relies on the fact that USDA concedes that no unwholesome meat ever left respondent's plant (PX 1, p. 86; and see Tr. 189) (at least not to USDA's knowledge (Tr. 148, 192–195)). That is respondent's strongest mitigating circumstance, but it is not enough to overcome the presumption of unfitness arising from Mr. Burke's 23 criminal convictions.

The statutory provision involved here expressly refers to convictions based upon "[i] the acquiring, handling, or distributing of unwholesome, mislabeled, or deceptively packaged food or [ii] upon fraud in connection with transactions in food" (21 U.S.C. § 671, emphasis added). Hence Congress expressly recognized that some convictions leading to a finding of unfitness would not involve unwholesome meat. See also the district court's first Utica decision, subsection I(B)(5)(b), supra (511 F. Supp. at 661–65).

[34] Dr. Hall, who was Dr. Gabriel's supervisor, testified that he would never permit lice-infested calves to be held overnight (PX 1, p. 151), which is what Mr. Burke paid Dr. Gabriel to do.

[35] As shown above, the regulation is clear and categorical, and leaves no discretion in the inspector or his supervisor to change the procedure prescribed in the regulation. Nonetheless, a Bulletin issued April 7, 1983, by Dr. McNay, Regional Director of the Meat Inspection Program, indicates that there is a "lack of uniformity in the region," and states, inter alia, that "All veal carcasses must be warm skinned if they show skin disease, lice, ticks, and grubs (hypoderma)." Hence it appears that not all inspectors were following the clear terms of the regulation.

In addition, although I accept, for the purposes of this Decision, the Department's admission (or, perhaps, self-serving assertion, i.e., to avoid possible criticism for continuing the investigation for 9½ months) that no unwholesome meat ever left respondent's plant, the undisputed evidence is that "THERE IS A LIKELIHOOD THAT THE LICE [IN PLASTIC BAGS IN THE COOLER] WILL FIND ITS WAY ON TO THE CUT SURFACES, EXPOSED SURFACES OF THE CARCASSES THAT THE HIDE IS ATTACHED TO," since the "VITAL ORGANS ARE REMOVED FROM THE ANIMAL FOR INSPECTIONAL PURPOSES, AND WE DO HAVE EXPOSURE FROM THE INSIDE AS WELL AS CERTAIN PORTIONS OF THE BREAST HAVE BEEN SKINNED BACK TO A CERTAIN DEGREE" (Tr. 191; capitalization in original).[36] Perhaps the lice that found their way onto the exposed meat surfaces died in the cooler (although Mr. Gould was not sure what temperature kills lice (Tr. 193–94)). Perhaps if the lice died, they fell into the plastic bag. Perhaps if some lice adhered to the meat, Dr. Gabriel found them all. Perhaps the lice that found their way onto the exposed meat surfaces laid eggs on the meat. If they did, perhaps the eggs fell into the plastic bag. If not, perhaps Dr. Gabriel found them all. Perhaps the fact that lice crawled around on the meat does not make it "unwholesome."

Although lice infestation presents a major problem to calves,[37] nothing in the record suggests that lice crawling around on meat presents a health hazard to consumers. But as for me and my house, we prefer to eat meat that has not had lice crawling around on it!

[36] This evidence was not presented in the criminal proceeding, and came out in the administrative proceeding only on respondent's cross-examination of Mr. Gould, the Department's only witness at the administrative hearing.

[37] Both biting and sucking types of lice infest cattle. Louse infestation tends to be more of a problem during colder months when cattle have longer coats and are confined in close proximity to one another. Lice are species specific for the most part and cattle lice tend not to affect other species of animals or humans.

The major signs are itching and loss of hair in affected calves and cattle. Hair loss is self-induced due to rubbing and licking by affected animals who are greatly irritated by the lice. In severe cases, blood-loss anemia may develop due to thousands of lice draining blood from a single animal. This most often occurs in younger animals that are exposed to large numbers of lice.

Yearbook of Agriculture, Animal Health 165–66 (1984).

Respondent also argues that Dr. McNay, Regional Director of Meat Inspection for the Northeast Region, offered to include respondent in the Department's Total Quality Control Program (under which the management of packing plants are involved in the inspection program at their plant and designated employees of the packing company are given certain responsibilities to insure a wholesome product) after Mr. Burke's criminal convictions (Tr. 169–73). However, the undisputed evidence shows that Dr. McNay merely solicited respondent's application to participate in the Quality Control Program, and he was not the person who had authority to determine whether respondent should be included in the program or not (Tr. 196–97).

Respondent contends that it had many difficulties with Dr. Gabriel, causing unnecessary production delays and losses to farmers (PX 7, pp. 223–24; PX 9, pp. 23–37; PX 10, pp. 6–38), including too many determinations by Dr. Gabriel that calves were moribund (dying), which must be condemned under USDA regulations (PX 1, pp. 94–95; PX 2, pp. 228–29; PX 5, p. 139; PX 6, p. 132; PX 7, pp. 213–14). Dr. Gabriel testified that Dr. Rellosa, staff assistant to the Regional Director, agreed with his handling of moribund calves at respondent's plant (PX 2, pp. 233–37), and Dr. Rellosa testified that Dr. Gabriel was doing what he had to do with the moribund calves—the problem was with the calves (PX 6, pp. 128–29; PX 7, pp. 151, 191). But, in any event, assuming that Dr. Gabriel was erroneously determining that too many calves were moribund, that is no excuse for making cash payments to Dr. Gabriel (for overtime). The only recourse to a meat plant that has real or perceived difficulties with the inspector assigned to the plant is to appeal to the inspector's supervisors, and their supervisors, up to and including the Secretary of Agriculture. (Appeals could also be made to Senators, Congressmen, trade associations, etc.). Real or perceived difficulties with the inspection staff is not a mitigating circumstance sufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from criminal convictions that strike to the heart of the meat inspection program (see § I(B)(5), supra).

Respondent also relies on a number of letters submitted on his behalf during the sentencing proceeding, and received in evidence here (RX H). They include letters from Dr. Prasad and Dr. Hall, expressing the view that Mr. Burke is cooperative and, if given the chance, will conduct himself more cautiously and with prudence in the future, and within the confines of the law. A banker states that Mr. Burke has shown good character in his dealings with the bank. A supplier of shipping containers to respondent states that Mr. Burke is a model of probity and has never misrepresented himself or circumstances. A creditor, who is also a friend, states that Mr. Burke has good character notwithstanding his convictions. A consulting engineer who was involved in the design of respondent's plant states that he is a responsible member of the community. A fellow church member states that he is a good citizen. The pastor of Mr. Burke's church (which he had attended for approximately one year) states that he is a respected member of the congregation and "has the ability to be a responsible member of our congregation and add support in ministering to our community." Finally, three organizations express appreciation to Mr. Burke for supplying calf parts of value to their programs. However, here, as in Toscony and Utica (see § I(B)(4), and I(B)(5), supra), Mr. Burke's "job-related" [38] convictions outweigh the letters.

Even if I were to review the mitigating circumstances here under the strictures of the Utica remand order, as I originally interpreted Utica (see § I(B)(5)(d), supra), I would not regard the mitigating circumstances here as sufficient to overcome the presumption of unfitness resulting from Mr. Burke's 23 convictions, considering all of the facts and circumstances revealed in the record of his criminal proceeding, including Mr. Burke's admissions that he paid money to Dr. Gabriel in order to induce Dr. Gabriel to permit a practice that Dr. Gabriel regarded as contrary to the regulations (and which was, in fact, contrary to the regulations).

No useful purpose would be served by discussing the extent to which my views differ from those of the ALJ. There is no issue of credibility to be determined by the ALJ. In fact, the only witness who appeared before the ALJ was Mr. Gould, Deputy Director, Compliance Division, Food Safety and Inspection Service, USDA. The conflicts in the testimony occurred during the criminal proceeding. Insofar as the expressions by the ALJ and respondent are out of harmony with the views here set forth, those expressions are disapproved.

Complainant's proposed order does not contain the customary provisions permitting the convicted individual 90 days within which to disassociate himself from the packing plant and one year within which to sell his stock. Presumably, this was an oversight. If not, complainant should develop in future cases why a change of policy in this respect is appropriate.

In addition, complainant's proposed order would activate the withdrawal of inspection if respondent or "its packers, officers, directors, shareholders, employees, successors [or] assigns" committed "any felony" within 5 years. That is far too broad, and unnecessary to protect the public health.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Inspection service under Title I of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.) is indefinitely withdrawn from and denied to respondent, its officers, directors, successors, assigns, and affiliates, directly or through any corporate or other device; Provided, however, That such withdrawal and denial of inspection shall be suspended for so long as:

(a) Thomas J. Burke is not associated with respondent, its officers, directors, successors, assigns or affiliates, directly or through any corporate or other device, as a partner, officer, director, shareholder, employee, or consultant, and for so long as Thomas J. Burke provides no direction or advice to and exercises no control over respondent, its officers, directors, successors, assigns or affiliates, directly or through any corporate or other device; Provided, further, That Thomas J. Burke shall be permitted to be associated with the respondent firm for 90 days subsequent to the date this order becomes final and shall have one year subsequent to the date this order becomes final in which to dispose of his stock; and

(b) Respondent, its partners, officers, directors, shareholders, employees, successors and assigns do not, within 5 years following the effective date of this order, commit any violations of any section of the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.) or any other statute based upon the acquiring, handling, or distributing of unwholesome, mislabeled, or deceptively packaged food or upon fraud in connection with transactions in food, or commit any violation of §§ 201 or 209 of Title 18 of the United States Code; and

(c) Within 5 years of the effective date of this order, respondent, or any of its officers, employees or agents does not unlawfully give, pay, or offer, directly or indirectly, any money or other thing of value to any meat inspector, meat grader, or other person acting on behalf of the United States Government in connection with any aspect of its operation; and

(d) Within 5 years of the effective date of this order, respondent (1) does not knowingly hire, in any capacity, any individual who has been convicted of violating the FMIA or 18 U.S.C. § 209, and (2) immediately dismisses from its employment any such individual, hired after the effective date of this decision, when that individual's conviction becomes known.

(e) The term "violate," as used herein, means a violation found upon conviction, or upon final decision in a formal adjudicatory proceeding before the Secretary, or upon affirmation of such conviction or decision, if appealed.

And provided further, That if it is determined, after opportunity for a hearing under the Federal Meat Inspection Act, that any term of the above provision has not been or is not being complied with, the suspension will be terminated and the withdrawal and denial provisions of this order will become effective immediately.

This order shall become final and effective upon service on the respondent.

5. Two (2) consecutive weeks of actual suspension from respondent, from December 23, 1984 through January 5, 1985, was required in the above-referenced Stipulation and Consent Decision.

6. The withdrawal of inspection from respondent, as set forth in the above-referenced Stipulation and Consent Decision, was held in abeyance for the remaining fifty (50) weeks for so long as certain terms and conditions were followed.

7. One of the pertinent conditions specified in the above-referenced Stipulation and Consent Decision involved the preparation, sale, transportation, or attempted distribution of any adulterated or misbranded products.

8. On or about January 24, 1985, February 26, 1985, and February 28, 1985, the respondent prepared and sold corned beef rounds, within the designated State of New York, which were adulterated and misbranded because the corned beef rounds contained more than the allowable added substance.

CONCLUSIONS

Inasmuch as the parties have agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Order and Consent Decision in disposition of this proceeding, such decision will be issued.

ORDER

1. Inspection services under Title I of the FMIA are withdrawn from and denied to the respondent, its owners, officers, directors, successors, affiliates, or assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device for a period of one (1) year beginning on October 1, 1986. Four (4) consecutive weeks of actual suspension will begin on December 5, 1986 and end on January 2, 1987. The remaining forty-eight (48) weeks of the one (1) year withdrawal period will be held in abeyance and will not become effective for so long as, in addition to all other requirements of inspection, for one (1) year from the effective date of this Consent Decision, unless otherwise noted infra:

(a) Respondent does not knowingly hire or permit, to the extent allowed by New York law, the continued employment of any person who has been convicted of any violations of the FMIA or similar State and local food safety laws.

(b) Respondent designates a member of the management team to act as a quality control manager at its establishment. Said individual shall have specific authority to forbid shipment of products that have excess added substance as established by the Consent Decision and applicable USDA regulations. The name of the quality control manager will be provided to the FSIS Inspector in Charge at respondent's establishment.

(c) Respondent shall establish and implement the following monitoring program at its establishment for processing products containing added substances:

(1) After the product is accepted at respondent's establishment, said product will be placed into tanks before processing. A piece count will be made and the product weighed as an entire lot. For the purpose of this consent decision, a lot shall be defined as one (1) day's production. Moreover, at least twenty percent (20%) of the individual pieces in the tank will be individually weighed and recorded. The product will then be pumped with the permitted added substance. After pumping, the product will be placed back into tanks and weighed again both as an entire lot and as the individual pieces specified above.

(2) If the product is found to contain more than the allowable limit of added substance, said product will stand and drain until it is below the allowable limit. Once draining has been completed, said product will be weighed again to insure that it is within the allowable limit of added substance.

(3) If the product is found to be within the allowable limit of added substance, either as pumped or as drained, said product will be removed to a separate tank. The product will be given a lot number, which shall be recorded for identification at the time of packing along with the date of pumping in respondent's records. Moreover, respondent shall record the identifying lot number on the product's package.

(d) Respondent shall keep a record of the piece count, product weight prior to processing, pumped weight, drained weight (if applicable), date(s) of processing, and lot number for each lot processed. One (1) copy of said record will be attached to the processing tank(s) for identification, one (1) copy will be provided to the FSIS Inspector in Charge at respondent's establishment, and one (1) copy will be retained in respondent's files until at least sixty (60) days beyond the end of this monitoring program.

(e) Respondent shall permit the FSIS Inspector in Charge at its establishment to take product samples of his own choosing for testing by the USDA. The number of samples provided in a given thirty (30) day period will be determined by the Meat and Poultry Inspection Office, located at 80 Wolf Road, Suite 503, Albany, New York 12205.

2. For the purposes of this Consent Decision and Order only, a "violation" involving added substances will be defined as one (1) or more product samples containing more than three percent (3%) added substance above the allowable added substance limits as set forth in the applicable USDA regulations and found in two (2) separate lots in any given thirty (30) day period. Moreover, for the purposes of this Consent Decision and Order, a violation must occur during the one (1) year period specified supra and be discovered by the USDA either during the one (1) year period or in the sixty (60) days immediately following the end of said one (1) year period.

3. The violation of this Consent Decision and Order, as defined in paragraph 2 supra, will result in the immediate withdrawal of inspection services under Title I of the FMIA. The Secretary of Agriculture shall have the right to summarily withdraw inspection service upon finding of a violation by appropriate national headquarters staff. The appropriate national headquarters staff will consider the procedures that have been implemented by respondent, the overall history of compliance, and such other factors as may be deemed relevant prior to making any final determination to summarily withdraw inspection services. Any summary withdrawal of inspection service shall be subject to respondent's right to request an expedited hearing on the alleged violation. Moreover, nothing in this Consent Decision shall preclude the referral of any such violations to the Department of Justice for possible criminal or civil proceedings.

4. If any provision of this Order is declared to be invalid, such declaration shall not affect the validity of any other provision herein.

5. This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

William Weber, Administrative Law Judge.
Ben Bruner, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondent by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Royal J. Alexander is an individual doing business as LaFontaine Livestock Sale. His business mailing address is 203 S. Walnut, Box 222, LaFontaine, Indiana 46940.

(b) Respondent at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of conducting and operating the LaFontaine Livestock Sale stockyard, a posted stockyard under the Act, hereinafter referred to as the stockyard;

(2) Engaged in the business of selling livestock on a commission basis at the stockyard; and

(3) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock in commerce on a commission basis. This registration states that LaFontaine Livestock Sale is a partnership consisting of Royal J. Alexander and Alpha B. Alexander; however, at all times material herein, Alpha B. Alexander was not a partner in such organization.

2. Respondent during the period of December 31, 1984 through January 31, 1985, failed to maintain and properly use his Custodial Account for Shipper's Proceeds (hereinafter "custodial account"), thereby endangering the faithful and prompt accounting therefor and payment of the portions thereof due the owners or consignors of livestock in that:

(a) As of December 31, 1984, respondent had outstanding checks drawn on his custodial account in the amount of $17,095.12, and had an overdraft in his custodial account in the amount of $1,432.29, resulting in a deficiency of $18,527.41 in funds available to pay shippers their proceeds.

(b) As of January 31, 1985, respondent had outstanding checks drawn on his custodial account in the amount of $11,400.80 and had an overdraft in his custodial account in the amount of $7,444.95, resulting in a deficiency of $18,845.75 in funds available to pay shippers their proceeds.

(c) Such deficiencies were due to the failure of respondent to deposit in his custodial account, within the time prescribed by the regulations, an amount equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock.

3. (a) Respondent, in connection with his operations as a market agency selling on commission and on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III(a) of the complaint, sold consigned livestock and in purported payment to the consignors, issued checks which were returned unpaid by the bank upon which they were drawn because respondent did not have sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks were drawn to pay such checks when presented.

(b) Respondent, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III(a) of the complaint, and in the transactions set forth in paragraph III(b) of the complaint, sold consigned livestock and failed to remit, when due, the proceeds received from the sale of such livestock to the consignors of such livestock.

(c) As of September 23, 1985, there remained unpaid a total of $18,369.69.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent has wilfully violated sections 307 and 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 208, 313(a)), and section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 3 herein, respondent has wilfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b).

ORDER

Respondent Royal J. Alexander, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his operations subject to the Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Failing to deposit in his Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds within the time prescribed by section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42), an amount equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock;

2. Failing to otherwise maintain his Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds in strict conformity with the requirements of Section 201.42 of the regulations;

3. Issuing checks to any person in payment of the net proceeds resulting from the sale of consigned livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available in the bank account upon which such checks are drawn to pay such checks when presented;

4. Failing to remit, when due, the net proceeds from the sale of consigned livestock in commerce on a commission basis to the consignors; and

5. Failing to remit the net proceeds from the sale of consigned livestock in commerce on a commission basis to the consignors.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of two years and thereafter until such time as he demonstrates that the deficiency in his Custodial Account for Shippers'

Proceeds has been eliminated. When respondent demonstrates that the deficiency in his custodial account has been eliminated, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the expiration of the two year period.

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR # 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

4. Respondents, in connection with their operations as packers, have failed to create, keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose their transactions subject to the Act, in that respondents have failed to create, keep and maintain a general ledger, an accounts receivable ledger, a cash receipts and cash disbursements journal, a sales journal and copies of all purchase and sale invoices.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Findings of Fact 2 and 3 herein, respondents have violated sections 202(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a), 228b).

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 4 herein, respondents have violated section 401 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 221).

ORDER

Respondents Lourdes G. Marquez and Gerado R. Marquez, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with any business or operation as a packer, shall cease and desist from:

1. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock;

2. Failing to pay the full purchase price of livestock; and

3. Issuing checks in payment for livestock without having sufficient funds on deposit and available to pay such checks when presented.

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

Fraudulent business practices in purchase/sale of livestock—Suspension—Civil Penalties—consent.

In In re Welch, P&S Docket No. 6537 (decision as to Michael Benson), decided by the Judicial Officer on September 25, 1986 (38 pages), the Judicial Officer affirmed Judge Weber's order barring respondent Benson from engaging in business subject to the Act for 1 year and assessing a $10,000 civil penalty. The Judicial Officer amended the order, however, to require payment of the civil penalty in equal payments each month over a 3-year period, rather than at the end of 2 years. The Judicial Officer affirmed the cease and desist order requiring Benson to cease and desist from engaging in practices that would operate as a fraud or deceit upon any person in connection with the purchase or sale of that person's livestock; cooperating in any arrangement with a livestock selling agency in (i) purchasing consigned livestock at less than fair market value, (ii) enabling the selling agency to operate as a fraud or deceit upon consignors to the selling agency, or (iii) sharing in the profits derived from the resale of livestock purchased from consignments to such selling agency; or cooperating with any market agency buying livestock on a commission basis or its employees or agents in engaging in any act or practice which operates as a fraud or deceit upon the market agency or its principals. Benson, a hog salesman for commission firms operating at a terminal stockyard, violated §§ 307 and 312(a) of the Act by splitting the profits made by a dealer (Welch) buying livestock from Benson's commission firm or selling livestock to Benson's commission firm and in transactions where Benson transferred purchase orders received by Benson's employer to Welch to fill. Proof by a preponderance of the evidence is all that is required. The ALJ's determination as to the veracity of the witnesses is controlling. Such profit-sharing is particularly odious at a terminal stockyard where intentional. The sanction imposed here is not nearly as severe as numerous sanctions that have been issued in recent years under the P&S Act (numerous cases cited).

DECISION AND ORDER AS TO MICHAEL BENSON

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.).* An initial Decision and Order was filed on June 17, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge William J. Weber (ALJ) barring respondent Michael Benson from engaging in business subject to the Act for 1 year, assessing a $10,000 civil penalty payable within 2 years, and ordering respondent Michael Benson to cease and desist from engaging in practices that would operate as a fraud or deceit upon any person in connection with the purchase or sale of that person's livestock; cooperating in any arrangement with a livestock selling agency in (i) purchasing consigned livestock at less than fair market value, (ii) enabling the selling agency to operate as a fraud or deceit upon consignors to the selling agency, or (iii) sharing in the profits derived from the resale of livestock purchased from consignments to such selling agency; or cooperating with any market agency buying livestock on a commission basis or its employees or agents in engaging in any act or practice which operates as a fraud or deceit upon the market agency or its principals.

On July 17, 1986, complainant, seeking to have the civil penalty payable upon the effective date of the decision, appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35). On the same date, respondent, seeking to set aside the Decision and Order, also appealed to the Judicial Officer. On September 9, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

 The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program (December 1962–January 1971)).

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the ALJ's findings and conclusions are adopted as the final decision in this case, with changes too minor to itemize (except that the last sentence of Finding B(1)(2), which follows the sentence containing note 4, was added by the Judicial Officer). Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions. The order is amended to require payment of the civil penalty in equal payments each month over a 3-year period.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

The complainant charges Doug Welch and Michael Benson (and others who may bear legal responsibility) with conspiratorial, unfair, and deceptive trade practices to defraud consignors and others in a series of transactions in violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act 1921, 7 USC 181 (Act), and the related regulations, 9 CFR 201.1.

Respondents denied any violation of the law or regulations.

At the time of trial, respondent Doug Welch d/b/a W. W. Garry (Welch), agreed to the entry of a Consent Decision and Order providing for six (6) months suspension, and a ten thousand dollar ($10,000.00) civil penalty and a cease and desist order.

Earlier, Roger D. Koch, an individual, and Roger D. Koch Corporation d/b/a Switzer Wagner and Company, and Switzer-Bar 10 (Switzer Wagner, Switzer-Bar 10), agreed to the entry of a Consent Decision providing for a cease and desist order.

An agreement was reached between counsel concerning a cease and desist order with respect to respondent Marlowe K. Benson and Wagner-Hudson Livestock Marketing Agency, Inc. (Wagner-Hudson), but it has not yet been implemented. (TR p.8)

Trial of the issues was held on December 10, 11, and 12, 1985, with respect to the remaining respondent, Michael Benson. The last brief was filed April 17, 1986.

* * * * * * *

A. (1) On nine transactions [1] between July 15 and November 17, 1983, respondent Michael Benson in the course of his employment with respondent Wagner-Hudson, in private treaty transactions, sold consigned livestock to respondent Welch at substantially less than full market value of the livestock.

Purchase Date (1983)	No. Head	Resale Date (1983)	Resold to/at	Profit
July 15	4	July 15	Sioux City Livestock	$110.00
Aug. 8	33	Aug. 8	Iowa Stock Pig Co.	$306.05
Sept. 14 & 15	27	Sept. 15	Wagner-Hudson	$87.26
Oct. 3	9	Oct. 3	Hayes Order Buyers Inc.	$113.70
Oct. 6	7	Oct. 6	Hayes Order Buyers Inc.	$128.25
Oct. 12	10	Oct. 12	Iowa Pig Co.	$182.20
Nov. 17	17	Nov. 17	Hayes Order Buyers Inc.	$147.70
Nov. 17	5	Nov. 18	Wagner-Hudson	$128.65

* * * * * * *

(2) These sales at substantially less than full market value enabled respondent Welch to immediately resell [2] the livestock at substantial price increases ranging up to 40%.

(3) Welch shared approximately one-half of the profits with Benson.

* * * * * * *

B. (1) In seven transactions,[3] between February 20 and March 29, 1984, respondent Welch consigned hogs to Switzer Wagner. Respondent Michael Benson purchased those hogs to fill commission orders placed with his employer, Switzer Wagner.

Consignment and Sale Date (1984)	No. Head Consigned	No. Head Purchased for Bar 10	Bar 10 Customer/Principal
Feb. 20	84	2	C & B Livestock
Mar. 15	38	14	C & B Livestock
Mar. 19	46	27	C & B Livestock
March 20-23	76	19	C & B Livestock
Mar. 26	66	17	C & B Livestock
Mar. 29	100	21	M & K Livestock

[2] In one instance hogs were held over and sold the following day.

(2) Respondent Benson paid unusually high prices, ranging from $2.20 to $4.30 per hundredweight (cwt) above the mode price [4] for the total lot of hogs. The resulting profit to Welch was split with respondent Michael Benson.

(3) Respondent Michael Benson did not tell his employer, nor the principals for whom the hogs were purchased, of his share in the profit from these transactions.

(4) Respondent Welch paid the usual commission to Switzer Wagner for the normal market services to sell these hogs.

(5) Respondent Michael Benson did not perform any unusual or extra services warranting or justifying any direct payment(s) by Welch to Benson.

* * * * * * *

C. (1) Respondent Michael Benson in his employment for Switzer-Bar 10 received orders to purchase hogs on a commission basis. Respondent Benson transferred these orders to respondent Welch to fill.[5]

[5] Purchase Date (1984)	No. Head	Actual Purchase Price	Invoiced Purchase Price	Fraudulent Gain
Mar. 13	29	$1,697.85	$2,073.76	$360.40
Mar. 15	23	$1,673.87	$1,900.39	$211.60
Mar. 19	42	$2,765.90	$3,061.33	$272.30
Mar. 20	23	$1,620.70	$1,969.21	$334.22
Mar. 22	59	$4,301.90	$4,702.87	$365.74
Mar. 26	17	$1,373.60	$1,550.36	$165.71
Mar. 29	49	$3,872.75	$4,124.91	$221.82

(2) Respondent Welch purchased hogs to fill the orders and invoiced and collected from Switzer-Bar 10 at falsely increased prices.

(3) Respondent Welch charged Switzer-Bar 10 the usual buying commission for these purchases.

(4) Again, respondent Michael Benson shared with Welch about 50% of the profits from these transactions.

* * * * * * *

[4] A mode price is the price paid the greatest number of times in the observed transactions.

D. (1) Between May 13, 1983 and April 16, 1984 Welch paid Benson $15,015.37 in 20 checks (ranging from $100 to $2,319.22), as Benson's share of the profits.

* * * * * * *

E. (1) Doug Welch is engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account, as well as, buying livestock in commerce on a commission basis under the name of W. W. Garry, 208 Livestock Exchange Building, Sioux City Stockyards, Sioux City, Iowa 51107.

(2) He is registered with the Department of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock for his own account, as well as, a market agency to buy livestock on a commission basis.

* * * * * * *

F. (1) Respondent Michael Benson at relevant times here was the Secretary/Treasurer of Wagner-Hudson Livestock Marketing Agency, Inc., Sioux City Stockyards, Sioux City, Iowa, until early January 1984. He was a hog salesman for respondent Wagner-Hudson.

(2) Thereafter, respondent Michael Benson was head hog salesman for Roger D. Koch Corporation d/b/a Switzer-Wagner and Company and Switzer-Bar 10.

(3) Respondent Michael Benson at all times material herein was engaged in the business of a market agency furnishing stockyard services and of a dealer buying or selling livestock in commerce as the agent or employee of the vendor or purchaser. [Respondent Benson's Answer]

* * * * * * *

Respondent Benson had a fiduciary responsiblity to sell consigned hogs at the highest price available.

The evidence here indicates that Benson sold some hogs at unusually low prices and purchased other hogs at unusually high prices. This, by itself, is not necessarily illegal or unethical.

However, in these transactions, Benson dealt with Doug Welch. When Benson was buying from or selling to Welch the relationship should have been at arm's-length. The evidence here raises some questions whether they actually dealt at arm's-length.

Welch gave Benson some $15,000.00 during this time. A 50% split of the profits is established by admissions of both Welch and Benson to the investigator, and the records themselves.

Thus, the record shows that Benson sold consigned hogs at less than full value, purchased hogs at unusually high prices, and received substantial payments from the favored party.

The transactions themselves are well documented and not disputed. Basically, Benson tried to explain away the incriminating $15,000.00 as payments for "services" he rendered to Welch. This evidence lacks credibility and persuasiveness, is implausible and is somewhat contradictory. In fact, Welch admitted sharing profits with Benson and promised to stop, when interviewed by the investigator.

The clear preponderance of the evidence shows that Benson was paid by Welch for Benson's favored treatment.

This cheats consignors and purchasers of hogs, and erodes confidence in the people who operate the system and those who rely on the system. This erosion can become self-aggravating.

The division in profits established by the record is the keystone that locks both sides of the archway into a solid pattern of wrongdoing. It overrides any quibbling arguments about the degree of "highness" or "lowness" of the prices concerned.

The sharing of profits between supposedly competing interests (Benson and Welch, buyers and sellers, and vice versa) is the critical wrongdoing here.

When Benson bought at a high price and sold at a low price, in deals with Welch, it cheated his employers, those who consigned hogs to be sold by Benson, those who placed orders for Benson to fill on commission purchases, the industry and the public.

They trusted Benson to sell high and buy low, to the best of his ability, and market conditions. Benson appears to have failed this trust, to enhance Welch's profits and thereby his own secret share of these profits.

Benson engaged in willful, fraudulent, false and deceptive trade practices, careless disregard of duties under the Packers and Stockyards Act and regulations, in violation of sections 307 and 312(a) of the Act (7 USC 208, 213(a)).

Complainant seeks a $10,000.00 civil penalty and an order preventing Benson from operating under the Act for one year.

The violations are serious, and cannot be tolerated. Efforts must be made to deter them. An appropriate sanction is required.

Great weight must be given to the complainant's recommended sanction. In re Braxton Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1567 (1974); In re Sy B. Gaiber and Co., 31 Agric. Dec. 843, 845-51, (1972); In re J.A. Speight, 33 Agric. Dec. 280, 310-19 (1974); In re Samuel Esposito 38 Agric. Dec. 613, 665 (1979).

The record shows a calculated course of conduct striking at the heart of the industry—integrity in the purchase and sale of livestock by an agent/representative.

Binding precedents of the USDA Judicial Officer require the recommended sanction be imposed.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Respondent Michael Benson contends on appeal that the ALJ's findings of fact are not adequately supported by the record, and that the sanction is unduly severe. However, there is no merit to either contention.

No useful purpose would be served by setting forth in full the record supporting the ALJ's findings of fact. The proof here far surpasses the preponderance of the evidence, which is all that is required.[6] In addition, the record is relatively short and easy to understand. Furthermore, complainant's briefs, which should be included in the record on appeal, contain detailed citations to the evidence supporting the ALJ's findings of fact. Nonetheless, reference to some of the testimony and exhibits is set forth below to aid the reviewing court.

The checks issued to Michael Benson by Doug Welch were issued by Welch's company, viz., W. W. Garry Co. (e.g., CX 1, p. 10). Doug Welch admitted that he split his profits on hogs with Michael Benson. Mr. Welch testified (Tr. 226):

> Q. You are obviously familiar with the allegations contained in the Complaint. During the period set forth in the Complaint, 1983 and 1984, did you split profits on hogs with Mike Benson?
> A. Yes.

Similarly, Michael Benson admitted to Philip O. Edwards, Supervisory Marketing Specialist in complainant's Omaha Regional Office, that the payments were for half the profits of Welch's W. W. Garry Company. Mr. Edwards testified (Tr. 80):

> Q. Did your—did your conversation [with Michael Benson] talk about anything else?

A. Oh, yes. I asked Mike the basis for—of percentage or how he got the money or what was the basis on the money. And he said he presumed it was on half the profits.

Q. What money were you talking about?

A. The checks that were issued to Mike Benson by W. W. Garry.

At the hearing, Michael Benson testified that he told complainant's investigator, Philip O. Edwards, that Doug Welch's payments were for extra work done by Benson for Welch (Tr. 321–23). But the ALJ, who saw and heard the witnesses testify, believed Edward's version of Benson's admission to Edwards. That is, the ALJ stated (Initial Decision at 11):

> A 50% split of the profits is established by admissions of both Welch and Benson to the investigator, and the records themselves.

The ALJ's determination as to the veracity of the witnesses is controlling in the circumstances here. As stated in Great Western Food Distributors v. Brannan, 201 F.2d 476, 479–80 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 345 U.S. 997 (1953), on appeal from a decision by USDA's Judicial Officer:

> Often the "most telling part" of the evidence is not apparent from the printed page, "for on the issue of veracity the bearing and delivery of a witness will usually be the dominating factors". N.L.R.B. v. Universal Camera Corp., 2 Cir., 190 F.2d 429, 430. Thus, "we may not disregard the superior advantages of the examiner who heard and saw the witnesses for determining their credibility, and so for ascertaining the truth." Ohio Associated Tel. Co. v. N.L.R.B., 6 Cir., 192 F.2d 664, 668.

> . . . In short, anyone who has observed witnesses on the stand will know that those "who see and hear witnesses are much better equipped to weigh the evidence and determine the credibility to be extended to those testifying than are the judges of courts of review who do not enjoy the same advantages." Jennings v. Murphy, 7 Cir., 194 F.2d 35, 36.
> It would seem, then, that the function of this court is something other than that of mechanically reweighing the evidence to ascertain in which direction it preponderates; it is rather to review the record with the purpose of deter> mining whether the finder of the fact was justified, i. e. acted reasonably, in concluding that the evidence, including the demeanor of the witnesses, the reasonable inferences drawn therefrom and other pertinent circumstances, supported his findings. To go further is to disregard the "most telling part" of the evidence. N.L.R.B. v. Universal Camera Corp., supra. With this in mind we approach the proof offered in this proceeding.

Similarly, in Cella v. United States, 208 F.2d 783, 788 (7th Cir. 1953), cert. denied, 347 U.S. 1016 (1954), a case under the Packers and Stockyards Act, the court stated:

> The hearing officer observed these witnesses upon the stand. He was the trier of the facts. The matter of their credibility was for him to decide. Great Western Food Distributors V. Brannan, 7 Cir., 201 F.2d 476, 479.

Finally, in Fairbank v. Hardin, 429 F.2d 264, 268 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 400 U.S. 943 (1970), also under the Packers and Stockyards Act, the court stated:

> When the trier of the facts, as here, expresses a doubt on the validity of oral testimony, the reviewing authority should not substitute its own judgment for that of the Examiner unless his findings are hopelessly incredible or flatly contradict either a "law of nature" or undisputed documentary evidence. National Labor Relations Board v. Dinion Coil Co., 201 F.2d 484, 490 (2d Cir. 1952); see also United States v. Oregon Medical Society, 343 U.S. 326, 339, 72 S.Ct. 690, 96 L.Ed. 978 (1952).

In addition, Michael Benson's testimony at the hearing was vacillating and contradictory as to the payments from Welch. He testified at times that he did not expect to be paid by Welch, but at other times he testified that he did expect to be paid by Welch. He testified that the payments by Welch were for his physical labor rather than as a share of Welch's profits, but at other times he seemed to recognize that the payments must have been larger, at times, because Welch made more money on the hogs. Specifically, Michael Benson testified (Tr. 316–17, 320, 327, 332–34, 338, 342–47):

> Q. Did you have an agreement as to how much he would pay you?
> A. No.
> Q. How often would he pay you?

A. There was no real time when he would pay me. He just would pay me. I never, you know, asked when are you going to pay me or anything. I just never—at first when we first did it?

Q. Yeah.

A. I didn't think I was going to get paid for it.

Q. Then he came up and gave you some money?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your understanding that that money was for?

A. For the work I did. [Tr. 316–17].

* * * * * * *

Q. Did you expect to be paid for all this extra work [for Welch]?

A. Yes.

Q. And, of course, you got paid?

A. Yes. [Tr. 320].

* * * * * * *

Q. Did he [Welch] ever show you or tell you I marked these hogs up or I did this with these hogs or anything like that?

A. No.

Q. All you did was the physical labor for him?

A. That's right. Yes.

Q. And then he paid you for the physical labor?

A. Yes. [Tr. 327].

* * * * * * *

Q. Okay. Did Doug Welch ever come to you and say, here, I'm going to split these monies with you that I made off my transactions?

A. No.

Q. Did he just pay you a sum of money?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever ask him, say, how come you are paying me 1065 dollars this time—strike that. Let me get some exact figures. Did you ever ask him today you paid me 613 dollars and 13 cents, but last week—last month you paid me 397.39. Did you ever ask him why the difference?

A. No.

Q. Would it correspond that in the months that you received higher checks—like in August of '83 you received 1003 dollars and 71 cents versus in June receiving 613 dollars and 13 cents. Would there be a correlation or—you know what I mean by correlation?

A. Yeah.

Q. Would there be a correlation between the amount of work you did, the number of hogs that you had to work on versus the amount of money that you would get?

A. It would be the amount of hogs that I took care of or handled. Butchers you make more.

Q. The more hogs you took care of and handled, the more money that you would be receiving for the services rendered from Doug Welch and W. W. Garry?

A. Yes. [Tr. 332-34].

* * * * * * *

Q. . . . Did you ever know what profit he [Welch] made?

A. Never. [Tr. 338].

* * * * * * *

Q. So you did many of the same things for all your other customers——

A. Yes.

Q. —that you do for Mr. Welch?

A. Yes.

Q. How come you didn't get money from them?

A. From who?

Q. From the other customers that you were selling hogs.

A. I never asked them for anything. I just—I do not know why.

Q. The first time that Mr. Welch gave you a check, did you ask what's this for?

A. Yeah. I said what's this for.

Q. And what did he say?

A. For the work you are doing.

Q And did you say, gee, it seems to be a lot of money?

A. Who said that? You said that.

Q. No, I'm asking you, did you say, oh, gee, seems to be a lot of money?

A. No. Somebody gives me a check, I don't ask what it's for.

Q. Even when that check is larger than your salary?

A. I won't—no, I won't ask—if somebody gives me a check, I won't ask what it's for.

Q. Even when it's two and a half times your weekly wages?

Mr. SHUMINSKY: I am going to object. That is not true.

Q. The check was—there was one check received—dated August 30th of 1,003 dollars; one check dated November 25th of 1055 dollars; and one check dated December 19th which was not two and a half times, but close to five times your salary, 2,2——

A. Per month or per week?

Q. No, per week. You got——

A. He didn't give me a check every week, did he?

Q. No. But that is——

A. Per month—what would it be per month? Would it be about——

Q. A thousand dollars per month.

A. Yeah. Be about the same for the work I was doing for him and anybody else.

* * * * * * *

Q. And you never asked no matter what the size of the check as to how he determined the amount?

A. No. I would say—I would just say to him the hogs must have been all right or something. He said, yeah. Yeah. If he said—and then he would give me the check, say thanks a lot. I would say thank you. I was—I was surprised they were that big. I mean I will—I was surprised it would be that big.

Q. And you never——

A. And I never expected a check from him anyway.

* * * * * * *

Q. What did you tie the amount of money that he gave you to because it was varying amounts?

A. Well, I figured it was probably for the work that I was doing for him. His hogs must have been making money, you know, must have been making good money, so he was paying me for it. You know, that's what I—you know, so that's what I figured it was for.

Q. How—what did you assess or what did you believe was the reason that sometimes you would get like 668 dollars and that sometimes you would get 1055 dollars?

A. Well, the hogs must have made more money. One set of hogs must have made more money and then there was more of them.

Q. More of them?

A. More of the hogs, and so he paid me more.

Q. There were a larger number of hogs?

A. Yes.

Q. When there were more hogs, what would be your compensation? Would it be smaller or lower?

A. Smaller or what?

Q. Okay. What was the correlation between the number of hogs that you worked during a month period and the size of the check that you received?

A. The more hogs I dealt with and handled, the more money I got. [Tr. 342-47].

In addition to the admissions by Doug Welch and Michael Benson, and the contradictory nature of Benson's testimony at the hearing, the fact that 14 of the 20 checks given to Michael Benson by Doug Welch were in uneven amounts further supports the conclusion that the payments represented a split of the profits, and that Michael Benson knew that the payments represented a split of Doug Welch's profits. The dates and the amounts of the checks are as follows (CX 24, p. 1):

After a first payment of $250 in an even amount, Michael Benson received seven checks from Welch ending in 39¢, 13¢, 13¢, 7¢, 56¢, 71¢, and 40¢. Michael Benson would have to be incredibly naive not to recognize that these checks had to be computed on a percentage of Welch's profits.

The documentary evidence shows that the checks were, in the main, for exactly one-half of Welch's profits. For example, the documentary evidence shows that during the period July 5–15, 1983, Doug Welch made profits totalling $1,040.15 on hogs involving Michael Benson (CX 1, p. 7). His check to Michael Benson on July 19, 1983, for $520.07 represented exactly one-half of the profits ($1,040.15 ÷2 = $520.075).

The documentary evidence shows that from August 2–29, 1983, Doug Welch made profits totalling $2,007.43 on hogs involving Michael Benson (CX 2, p. 6). Doug Welch's check dated August 30, 1983, to Michael Benson for $1,003.71 represents exactly one-half of those profits ($2,007.43 ÷2 = $1,003.715).

The documentary evidence shows that from September 7–21, 1983, Doug Welch made profits totalling $592.81 on hogs involving Michael Benson (CX 3, p. 7). Doug Welch's check to Michael Benson dated September 22, 1983, for $296.40 represents exactly one-half of those profits ($592.81 ÷2 = $296.405).

The payment in even amounts of $100 on October 7, 1983, and $300 on October 14, 1983, appear, at first glance, to be contrary to the norm. However, a closer analysis reveals that the $100 and $300 checks represent cash advances to Benson (either requested by Benson or volunteered by Welch before the exact profits were computed and divided in half). That is, the documentary evidence shows that during the period September 23–October 21, 1983, Doug Welch's profits on hogs involving Michael Benson totalled $2,137.02 (CX 4, p. 6). The checks for $100 and $300 dated October 7 and 14, 1983, combined with the check for $668.50 dated October 25, 1983, total $1,068.50, which is just 1¢ less than exactly half of Welch's profits for the period September 23–October 21, 1983 ($2,137.02 ÷2 = $1,068.51).

Large discrepancies in the 50% profit sharing appear in two of the checks. The documentary evidence shows that Doug Welch made profits totalling $1,906.32 on hogs involving Michael Benson from February 9–March 2, 1984 (CX 11, p. 24). One-half of the profits would have equalled $953.16. Instead of receiving that amount, Michael Benson received a check dated March 5, 1984, for $903.16. (This $50 discrepancy between $953.16 and $903.16 could have been a clerical error or a $50 reduction for some unexplained reason.)

The largest discrepancy relates to the period from March 9–26, 1984, in which Doug Welch made profits totalling $5,837.44 on hogs involving Michael Benson (CX 12, p. 20). During this period, Doug Welch gave Michael Benson a check for $100 on March 16, 1984, and a check for $2,319.22, on March 28, 1984, totalling $2,419.22.

One-half of the profits during this period amounts to $2,918.72 ($5,837.44 ÷ 2 = $2,918.72).

Even in the absence of any admissions by Welch and Benson, the documentary evidence would have led me to conclude that Doug Welch was giving Michael Benson approximately half of his profits on hogs, and I would have inferred from the documentary evidence that Michael Benson knew that he was receiving about half of Doug Welch's profits. But, in view of the admissions set forth above, there is no need to rely on the documentary evidence and inferences in this respect.

Griffen E. Bonham, Chief, Marketing Practices Branch, Livestock Marketing Division, Packers and Stockyards Administration, USDA, testified that respondent Michael Benson's conduct was unfair and deceptive, and that it is considered as a very serious violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act for a commission firm salesman to enter into the type of arrangement that Michael Benson had with Doug Welch (Tr. 355–89). Any type of arrangement involving the sharing of profits between an order buyer or dealer doing business at a terminal stockyard and a commission seller at the stockyard is an unfair, unjust and deceptive practice in violation of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 208, 213(a)). Such profit sharing is particularly odious at a terminal stockyard where livestock is sold by private treaty (as distinguished from auction), in view of the nature of private treaty selling. Private treaty selling at a terminal stockyard (such as the Sioux City stockyard involved here) is described in Campbell, The Packers and Stockyards Act Regulatory Program, in 1 Davidson, Agricultural Law 228–29 (1981), as follows (quoting from one of the author's prior decisions):

> In a private treaty sale, the prospective purchasers gather at the head of a commission firm's alley. Prior to the sale, the commission firm sorts each consignment into uniform lots, which are placed in separate pens. A good commission firm salesman knows what types of livestock are needed by particular buyers, and he has an opportunity to visit with the buyers before the sale begins. The salesman selects the buyer whom he believes to be the best buyer for a particular lot of livestock and takes that buyer into the pen (or pens) and negotiates in secret with him as to the price. No buyer knows exactly what the other potential buyers will bid. Thus, each buyer entering the pens must bid as high as he believes is necessary to purchase the livestock. At a private treaty sale, there is haggling over the price between the buyer and the seller. If they agree on a price, > the sale is consummated. If not, the salesman takes another buyer into the pen and negotiates secretly with him as to the price. The salesman's offering price to the subsequent buyers may be higher or lower than the price involved in the negotiations with the previous buyers. Where a commission salesman has no good basis for selecting one buyer over another, on occasion he will flip a coin to determine the order in which the purchasers will have an opportunity to negotiate for livestock in a particular pen or alley.

> In a private treaty sale, if the livestock are sold to the first buyer who is taken into the pen, the other buyers do not have an opportunity to bid on the livestock. But all buyers had the opportunity to make known to the salesman their particular buying needs that day and, therefore, they all had an opportunity to try to influence the seller into selecting them as the first potential purchaser. (Footnote omitted.)

In the present case, the record supports the ALJ's finding that in a number of private treaty transactions, Michael Benson, in the course of his employment as a commission firm salesman, "sold consigned livestock to respondent Welch at substantially less than full market value of the livestock" (Initial Decision at 3). That violated one of the main objectives of the Act, which "is to safeguard farmers and ranchers against receiving less than the true market value of their livestock" (H.R. Rep. No. 1048, 85th Cong., 1st Sess. 1 (1957), reprinted in [1958] U.S. Code Cong. & Ad. News 5212, 5213. See Glover Livestock Comm'n Co. v. Hardin, 454 F.2d 109, 113 (8th Cir. 1972), rev'd on other grounds, 411 U.S. 182 (1973); Bruhn's Freezer Meats of Chicago, Inc. v. U.S.D.A., 438 F.2d 1332, 1337-38 (8th Cir. 1971).

Even if there had been no proof that Benson sold consigned livestock to Welch at less than the full market value, or purchased livestock consigned by Welch at more than the full market value (to fill Benson's employer's purchase orders), the mere fact that there was a transfer of funds from Welch to Benson in connection with transactions at the stockyard placed Benson in a conflict-of-interest situation, which is a very serious violation of the Act. As stated in Midwest Farmers, Inc. v. United States, 64 F. Supp. 91, 95, 102 (D. Minn. 1945) (3-judge court):

> The producer consigns his livestock to a market agency to represent him as his agent and who is supposed to have no interest except the welfare of his principal. Accordingly > the producer places his financial interests in the absolute control of his agent. Consequently, the success of the livestock producing industry of the country in a large measure depends on the business practices of the stockyard agencies that sell livestock of great value. To say that much depends on the integrity and ethics of those engaged in marketing livestock is speaking mildly. Experience long ago taught that stockyards require some sort of supervision and Congress has lodged it in the Department of Agriculture under the Act of 1921, as amended, obviously because a major portion of the great agricultural industry of the country is vitally concerned.

> The methods of transacting business in the yards constantly are a temptation to collusion. Sales of livestock are made by negotiation and bargaining, and not at public auction. The purchaser is present; the shipper is not, but relies on his market agency. The agent is in closest contact with buyers for packers, with speculators and traders and perhaps has dealt with these same persons for many years; so, in accordance with human instincts, ways and means are found to profit at the expense of the absent member to the transaction. A marketing agency should maintain a position at all times which would assure absolute loyalty to its shippers. No interest should be allowed to interfere between the agent and his principal. When an agency receives a consignment of livestock, the sole objective should be to sell it at the highest price obtainable on an open, competitive market. When the agency acquires an interest, other than agent, it no longer can honestly and efficiently represent the principal.

A commission firm employee is in a fiduciary relationship to the firm's principals, and owes the highest degree of loyalty to the firm's principals.[7] Respondent Michael Benson engaged in a very serious violation by entering into an arrangement with Doug Welch that necessarily and inherently created a conflict-of-interest situation.

It would have been highly improper for Michael Benson to have received even small payments from Doug Welch, in view of their relationship. But here the payments from Welch to Benson exceeded $15,000 in a period of just over 11 months. That was almost as much as Benson's yearly salary (Tr. 268-70, 379-80)! If Benson's salary was not adequate payment for the work he did on behalf of all consignors, including those instances in which Doug Welch was the consignor, the remedy was to obtain more pay from his employer—not to secretly obtain $15,000 from Welch. (Michael Benson admits that he never told anyone (other than the Internal Revenue Service (Tr. 271)) about Welch's payments to him (Tr. 334-35)).

Although respondent should have known that it was highly improper for him to secretly accept over $15,000 from Doug Welch, even if we assume that he did not (which requires the assumption that he lacks any sense of business morality), his conduct was, nonetheless, willful, within the meaning of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. § 558(c)). As stated in Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896, 900 (7th Cir. 1961):

> We think it clear that if a person 1) intentionally does an act which is prohibited,—irrespective of evil motive or reliance on erroneous advice, or 2) acts with careless disregard of statutory requirements, the violation is wilful. Eastern Produce Co. v. Benson, 3 Cir., 278 F.2d 606, 609.

Similarly, in Eastern Produce Co. v. Benson, 278 F.2d 606, 609 (3d Cir. 1960), the court stated:

> Nor can we subscribe to the proposition that the test of willfulness in this context is to be evil purpose or criminal intent, for this is not a criminal statute.

In Butz v. Glover Livestock Comm'n Co., 411 U.S. 182, 186-87 (1973), the Court stated with respect to the Packers and Stockyards Act:

> The Secretary may suspend "for a reasonable specified period" any registrant who has violated any provision of the Act. 7 U.S.C. § 204. Nothing whatever in that provision confines its application to cases of "intentional and flagrant conduct" or denies its application in cases of negligent or careless violations. Rather, the breadth of the grant of authority to impose the sanction strongly implies a congressional purpose to permit the Secretary to impose it to deter repeated violations of the Act, whether intentional or negligent.

Accord Finer Foods Sales Co. v. Block, 708 F.2d 774, 778 (1983); American Fruit Purveyors, Inc. v. United States, 630 F.2d 370, 374 (5th Cir. 1980) (per curiam), cert. denied, 450 U.S. 997 (1981); In re Shatkin, 34 Agric. Dec. 296, 297-314 (1975).[8]

It is the policy of this Department to impose severe sanctions for serious violations of any of the regulatory programs administered by the Department to serve as an effective deterrent not only to the respondents, but also to other potential violators. This policy has been followed in all of the Department's disciplinary proceedings in recent years.

The basis for the Department's severe sanction policy is set forth at great length in numerous decisions, e.g., In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238, slip op. at 498-520 (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand),[9] which is set forth as an appendix to this decision.[10]

[8] The definition of willful in TWA v. Thurston, 105 S. Ct. 613, 624-26 (1985), is based on the legislative history of the Age Discrimination Employment Act, which is quite different from the legislative history of the term willful under the Administrative Procedure Act. Accordingly, the Court's holding in Thurston as to the meaning of "wilful" is not appropriate for use in our Department's disciplinary proceedings.

[9] The Department's severe sanction policy did not originate with Saylor, but, rather, was mentioned briefly in the first decision issued by the present Judicial Officer, In re Henner, 30 Agric. Dec. 1151, 1263-64 (1971), and was further developed in numerous other decisions before it was finalized in In re Miller, 33 Agric. Dec. 53, 64-80 (1974), aff'd per curiam, 498 F.2d 1088 (5th Cir. 1974). Slight revisions (mostly editorial) were made in Saylor.

[10] Severe sanctions issued pursuant to the Department's severe sanction policy were sustained, e.g., in In re Collier, 38 Agric. Continued

In view of respondent Michael Benson's serious violations of the Packers and Stockyards Act occurring over an extensive period of time, the sanction recommended by complainant is fully justified. Respondent argues "that the greatest punishment and penalties goes to the person who has the audacity to require P & S to hold a hearing" (Appeal Petition at 4). However, respondent has not been given an increased sanction because he went to a hearing—he merely was not afforded the opportunity to accept a decreased sanction that was given to the other parties, including Doug Welch, who consented to the issuance of a decision and order without a hearing. Doug Welch consented to a $10,000 civil penalty and a 6-month suspension order, which is the identical sanction that was offered to respondent Michael Benson on a consent basis (Tr. 382).

Many criminals who engage in plea bargaining are punished less than others who go to trial. Similarly, in appropriate circumstances, the Packers and Stockyards Administration offers a reduced sanction to a respondent who consents to a decision and order, without a hearing. There are sound administrative reasons for that practice. In the first place, a consent order is effective much sooner than in the case of a litigated order. This aids in deterring others from violating the Act.

Second, consent decisions conserve the Department's limited money and manpower.

Third, a consent decision eliminates the uncertainty that may develop at a hearing. It is not unusual for trade witnesses who give sworn statements during the investigation favorable to complainant's case to change their story on the witness stand. Moreover, it is not unheard of for respondents in administrative cases to offer perjured testimony in support of their defense. In a recent Packers and Stockyards Act case, In re Saylor, 41 Agric. Dec. 2187 (1982), remanded, 723 F.2d 581 (7th Cir. 1983), final decision, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (Sept. 20, 1985), Saylor arbitrarily raised the weights of cattle he purchased for customers in 14 transactions, and invoiced them at falsely increased weights. However, Saylor created a phony set of worksheets and scale tickets purporting to show that he substituted a few heavier cattle for light cattle, which accounted for the increases in weights. His false worksheets and scale tickets and perjured testimony were so convincing that, in the absence of a detailed exposition, the court remanded the proceeding, admonishing the Department to "carefully examine the record in this case and to give clear and cogent reasons for whatever result it reaches on remand" (723 F.2d at 584).

On remand, Saylor filed four briefs relying on the falsely created documents and perjured testimony. However, after the Judicial Officer took the time and effort required to write a 529-page decision, which included copies of the documentary evidence (328 numbered arrows were added by the Judicial Officer to the documentary evidence to facilitate the explanations), and set forth 173 circumstances that proved conclusively (beyond the possibility of any doubt) that Saylor invoiced customers on the basis of falsely increased weights, Saylor did not even file a petition for reconsideration with the Judicial Officer. He acquiesced in the $10,000 civil penalty and 8-month suspension order without appealing again to the court of appeals.

Since the complainant can never be sure what type of proof will be offered at a hearing, there is a sound basis for decreasing the appropriate sanction in particular cases in order to obtain a consent settlement.

The $10,000 civil penalty and 1-year sanction requested by complainant here is not out of line with numerous severe sanctions that have been issued in recent years under the Packers and Stockyards Act, e.g., In re Garver, 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (June 19, 1986) (2-year suspension); In re Holiday Food Services, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 8, 1986) ($50,000 civil penalty), appeal docketed, No. 86-7332 (9th Cir. Dec. ___ (Feb. 27, 1986) (decision as to Millspaugh) (5-year suspension, but permitting respondent to be employed as an auctioneer after 1 year); In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand) (8-month suspension and $10,000 civil penalty); In re ITT Continental Baking Co., 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 18, 1985), final consent decision, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Oct. 24, 1985) ($10,000 civil penalty); In re Mid-West Veal Distributors, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (July 13, 1984) ($77,000 civil penalty, with $27,000 suspended); In re Mayer, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Apr. 12, 1984) (decision as to Doss) (2-year suspension), appeal dismissed, No. 84-4316 (5th Cir. July 25, 1984); In re Peterman, 42 Agric. Dec. ___ (Dec. 12, 1983), aff'd, 770 F.2d 888 (10th Cir. 1985) ($20,000 civil penalty).

In In re Garver, 45 Agric. Dec. ___, slip op. at 17-21 (June 19, 1986), it is explained that 2-to-5-year suspension orders are now issued in the case of serious failures to pay for livestock where 30-to-60-day suspension orders would have been issued in comparable cases a few years ago.

In assessing a civil penalty, the Act requires consideration of the "gravity of the offense, the size of the business involved, and the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business" (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)). Since respondent Michael Benson is not the owner of a business, the "gravity of the offense" should largely determine the civil penalty here. But, inasmuch as respondent Michael Benson's earning ability is limited (Tr. 268–70, 379–80), the $10,000 civil penalty should be payable in equal monthly installments over a 3-year period.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent Michael Benson, his agents and employees, directly or indirectly, through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in any act, practice, or course of business which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon any person in connection with the purchase or sale, on a commission basis or otherwise, of that person's livestock;

2. Entering into, continuing in, or cooperating in any arrangement, agreement, understanding or course of business with any market agency selling livestock on a commission basis, or any employee or agent of such market agency, for the purpose of purchasing consigned livestock at less than its fair or true market value;

3. Entering into, continuing in, or cooperating in any arrangement, agreement, understanding, or course of business with any market agency selling livestock on a commission basis, or any employee or agent of such market agency, which would enable such market agency, employee or agent to engage in any act or practice which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon the consignors of livestock to such market agency;

4. Entering into, continuing in, or cooperating in any arrangement, agreement, understanding or course of business with any market agency selling livestock on a commission basis, or any employee or agent of such market agency, to split or otherwise share in any profits derived from the resale of livestock purchased from consignments to such market agency; and which operates or would operate as a fraud or deceit upon the market agency or its customers or principals.

5. Entering into, continuing in, or cooperating in any arrangement, agreement, understanding or course of business with any market agency buying livestock on a commission basis, or any employee or agent of such market agency, which would enable such market agency, employee or agent to engage in any act or practice

Respondent Michael Benson is found to be unfit to engage in business subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act and shall not engage in business or operate subject to the Act as a market agency, buying and selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis or furnishing stockyard services, or as a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce, either on his own account or as the employee or agent of the vendor or purchaser, for a period of 1 year.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), respondent Michael Benson is assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $10,000, to be paid over a 3-year period (35 monthly payments of $277.78, and the last monthly payment of $277.70), with the first monthly payment due on December 1, 1986, and each payment thereafter due on the first day of the applicable month. The civil penalty is to be paid by checks made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, and mailed to the Assistant General Counsel, Packers and Stockyards Division, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2446-South, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400. If complainant advises respondent that any check was returned unpaid because of insufficient funds or any other reason, all future monthly payments shall be by certified checks.

The cease and desist provisions of this order shall become effective on the day after service of this order. The 1-year prohibition shall become effective on the 60th day after service of this order.

U.S.D.A. SANCTION POLICY

[Excerpt omitted.—Ed.]

In re: RICHARD N. GARVER. P&S Docket No. 6449. Order issued September 29, 1986.

John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.
Peter Train, for complainant.
Thomas Smith, Cincinnati, Ohio, for respondent.

ORDER DENYING PETITION FOR RECONSIDERATION

On August 15, 1986, respondent filed a petition for reconsideration challenging Finding of Fact 11 and arguing that a severe sanction is inappropriate and would have no deterrent effect on respondent or others.

Finding 11, which relates to respondent's sale of property used as security by the bank for its line of credit, and the bank's termination of the line of credit, is fully supported by the record. Moreover, it makes no difference why the bank terminated its line of credit. As stated in the original decision herein, note 2, the "bank's action in withdrawing respondent's line of credit did not cause his loss of at least $700,000 [which is the actual cause of respondent's failure to pay], but merely exposed his insolvent condition."

As to the appropriateness of the sanction, respondent argues that a severe sanction should only be imposed in nonpayment cases where the nonpayment occurred because of fraud. Respondent's argument would, however, emasculate the 1976 payment provisions enacted by Congress. The Act was amended in 1976 to provide (7 U.S.C. § 228b):

> § 228b. Prompt payment for purchase of livestock
> (a) Full amount of purchase price required; methods of payment
> Each packer, market agency, or dealer purchasing livestock shall, before the close of the next business day following the purchase of livestock and transfer of possession thereof, deliver to the seller or his duly authorized representative the full amount of the purchase price: Provided, That each packer, market agency, or dealer purchasing livestock for slaughter shall, before the close of the next business day following purchase of livestock and transfer of possession thereof, actually deliver at the point of transfer of possession to the seller or his duly authorized representative a check or shall wire transfer funds to the seller's account for the full amount of the purchase price; or, in the case of a purchase on a carcass or "grade and yield" basis, the purchaser shall make payment by check at the point of transfer of possession or shall wire transfer funds to the seller's account for the full amount of the purchase price not later than the close of the first business day following determination of the purchase price: Provided further, That if the seller or his duly authorized representative is not present to receive payment at the point of transfer of possession, as herein provided, the packer, market agency or dealer shall wire transfer funds or place a check in the United States mail for the full amount of the purchase price, properly addressed to the seller, within the time limits specified in this subsection, such action being deemed compliance with the requirement for prompt payment.

(b) Waiver of prompt payment by written agreement; disclosure requirements

Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section and subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe, the parties to the purchase and sale of livestock may expressly agree in writing, before such purchase or sale, to effect payment in a manner other than that required in subsection (a) of this section. Any such agreement shall be disclosed in the records of any market agency or dealer selling the livestock, and in the purchaser's records and on the accounts or other documents issued by the purchaser relating to the transaction.

(c) Delay in payment or attempt to delay deemed unfair practice

Any delay or attempt to delay by a market agency, dealer, or packer purchasing livestock, the collection of funds as herein provided, or otherwise for the purpose of or resulting in extending the normal period of payment for such livestock shall be considered an "unfair practice" in violation of this chapter. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit the meaning of the term "unfair practice" as used in this chapter.

The 1976 payment amendment does not use the term fraud or any synonym thereof. Congress was not concerned merely with fraudulent failures to pay. Congress was concerned with all failures to pay (see the legislative history quoted in the original decision herein at 18). The 1976 payment amendment was enacted because livestock buyers (primarily packers) failed to pay for substantial amounts of livestock. See In re Beef Nebraska, Inc., 44 Agric. Dec.

___ (Nov. 26, 1985), appeal docketed, No. 85-2534 (8th Cir. Dec. 31, 1985). As stated in the House Report on the 1976 amendatory legislation (H.R. Rep. No. 1043, 94th Cong., 2d Sess. 5 (Apr. 14, 1976)):

> Between 1958 and early 1975 167 packers failed, leaving livestock producers unpaid for over $43 million worth of livestock. By far the largest of such failures was that of American Beef Packers (ABP), which went bankrupt in January, 1975, leaving producers in 13 states unpaid for a total of over $20 million in livestock sales.

The average loss to livestock sellers as a result of each packer failure from 1958 through early 1975 was $257,485.02 ($43,000,000 ÷167 = $257,485.02). If we omit the one $20 million failure of American Beef Packers, the average loss to livestock sellers from each packer failure from 1958 through early 1975 was $138,554.21 ($23,000,000 ÷166 = $138,554.21). In contrast, respondent Garver's financial failure caused livestock sellers to lose about $700,000, or more than five times the average loss caused by packer failures, excluding American Beef ($700,000 ÷$138,554.21 = 5.05).

Accordingly, respondent Garver's violations are extremely serious, warranting a very severe sanction under the Department's sanction policy, set forth in the original decision herein. The 2-year suspension order issued in this case is not out of line with numerous severe sanctions that have been issued in recent years under the Packers and Stockyards Act, e.g., In re Welch, 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (Sept. 25, 1986) (decision as to Michael Benson) (1-year suspension from engaging in business subject to Act and $10,000 civil penalty); In re Holiday Food Service, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 8, 1986) ($50,000 civil penalty), appeal docketed, No. 86-7332 (9th Cir. June 6, 1986); In re Corn State Meat Co., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 8, 1986) ($50,000 civil penalty); In re Blackfoot Livestock Commission Co., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 7, 1986) (6-month suspension), appeal docketed, No. 86-7198 (9th Cir. Apr. 16, 1986); In re Farmers & Ranchers Livestock Auction, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (Feb. 27, 1986) (decision as to Millspaugh) (5-year suspension, but permitting respondent to be employed as an auctioneer after 1 year); In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand) (8-month suspension and $10,000 civil penalty); In re ITT Continental Baking Co., 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 18, 1985), final consent decision, 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Oct. 24, 1985) ($10,000 civil penalty); In re Mid-West Veal Distributors, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (July 13, 1984) ($77,000 civil penalty, with $27,000 suspended); In re Mayer, 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Apr. 12, 1984) (decision as to Doss) (2-year suspension), appeal dismissed, No. 84-4316 (5th Cir. July 25, 1984); In re Peterman, 42 Agric. Dec. ___ (Dec. 12, 1983), aff'd, 770 F.2d 888 (10th Cir. 1985) ($20,000 civil penalty).

If respondent's payment violations had resulted from fraud, a much more severe sanction would have been appropriate.

Respondent argues that there is no deterrent value to a severe sanction where a person merely cannot pay his bills. However, that same argument was rejected in a case under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, In re Foursome Brokerage, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. ___, slip op. at 19–20 (Dec. 5, 1983), aff'd per curiam, 747 F.2d 1463 (5th Cir. 1984) (unpublished), in which the Judicial Officer stated:

> A number of respondent's creditors expressed the view that a sanction imposed on respondent would not have any deterrent effect on respondent or others in the industry. Judge Palmer also expressed the view (Tr. 268) that severe sanctions have no effect in deterring payment violations since—
> > People don't pay their bills, because they don't have the money, and I don't care what you do in any of these cases. That is not going to change one thing.
> That view overlooks the fact that a person who fears a severe sanction if he violates the payment provisions of the Act can take steps to minimize the likelihood of payment violations. For example, he can obtain adequate capitalization before starting in business. (The record in this case suggests that respondent was undercapitalized.) He can also refrain from knowingly selling to risky purchasers, who frequently pay a little more than other purchasers, if they pay at all, but who cause serious problems if they fail to pay. In addition, he can avoid letting one firm get too deeply in debt to him and carefully monitor the payment practices of all his debtors.
> Adequate clerical staff can also be employed to assure prompt attention to the paperwork involved in produce transactions. (The record here suggests that respondent, at times, had inadequate clerical staff to handle the heavy volume of paperwork.) Where more than one person is involved in buying produce for a firm, reporting and review procedures can be utilized to catch potential problems in their incipiency. (The record here suggests that Mr. Patlan was permitted to freewheel without supervision or review.)

> The records I have reviewed in about 40 payment violation cases have convinced me that there are many steps that can be taken to minimize the likelihood of payment violations. Accordingly, severe sanctions imposed on payment violators should have a significant deterrent effect in the produce industry. In re Worsley, 33 Agric. Dec. 1547, 1558–67 (1974).

The same reasoning is applicable to the livestock industry. Furthermore, as stated in the original decision herein (slip op. at 17), violations involving fraud normally deprive a livestock seller of only about 1% of the value of his livestock, whereas a failure to pay deprives the livestock seller of 100% of the value of his livestock. Accordingly, failure to pay violations, whether resulting from fraud or not, warrant a very severe sanction.

For the foregoing reasons, respondent's petition for reconsideration should be denied.

ORDER

Respondent's Petition for Reconsideration is denied.

In re: PORK CUTTERS, INC., DON BIRAKOWSKY, and MARGA BIRAKOWSKY. P&S Docket No. 6457. Decided August 29, 1986.

William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.
Allan Kahan, for complainant.
Kevin Nash, New York, N.Y., for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

Complainant has failed to sustain the burden of proof to establish that respondents have willfully engaged in an unfair, unjustly discriminatory or deceptive practice in violation of § 202(a) of the Packers and Stockyards ("Act") (7 USC 192(a)) by reason of respondents' failure to pay some $945,000 for meat and meat food products purchased by respondent.

Respondents purchased "packer style hogs," i.e., hog carcasses cut in half to be further cut for commercial and wholesale uses, and sold to wholesalers, jobbers and provision houses in the New York City area.

Respondents, Don and Marga Birakowsky started the business on a shoestring in 1964, doing all the work themselves. Don's only skill was with a knife, and Marga was without any experience in administration or bookkeeping. However, the business at first was so small that the two of them operated it, working almost round the clock, by themselves. Marga learned bookkeeping from an accountant who came in once a month.

Their sole supplier since 1964 was Arbogast and Bastian, Inc., (A&B). Short-term credit was given to respondents and as the relationship grew and strengthened, the credit terms lengthened to about 40 days.

Respondents agreed to pay A&B for delivered hog carcasses on a formula price based on the nationally reported averaged price for prime live hog sales in four designated cities. Later a $3.50 "kill fee" was added to the formula. The relationship apparently was mutually beneficial for some years.

A bookkeeper, salesman, driver, and eleven butchers or butcher helpers were eventually employed in respondents' business.

About 1980, the supplier, A&B underwent a change of management.

Respondent Marga Birakowsky was forced to cut back her working time in the business, from the mid-1970's, due to the terminal illnesses of her son, and in the 1980's, her mother. Marga was also ill some of the time herself.

In the 1980's, respondents' business slowed, but respondents believed it was due to a general business slowdown. In 1983 their financial situation became critical. In checking, Marga Birakowsky discovered the pricing formula had been unilaterally changed by A&B when A&B changed management.[1]

The effect of the change was a substantial hidden price increase to respondents.

[1] The findings concerning the relationship with A&B are subject to a caveat discussed letter.

Marga Birakowsky was convinced that A&B had cheated them. When she confronted A&B's officers with these charges, they gave evasive responses.

A financial crisis was reached where respondents could not continue in business and they sought legal assistance. Their attorney recommended bankruptcy. When A&B was notified, A&B requested a meeting with respondents and respondents' attorney in August 1983. (TR p. 192)

"Overcharges" claimed by respondents were discussed at the August 1983 meeting with A&B. A&B promised to "work out" the claimed "overcharges" if given "time." (TR p. 193) A new price formula at reduced rates to compensate respondents for past overcharges was agreed to. (TR p. 194) Respondents then agreed to continue in business and abandoned the bankruptcy proposal.

Respondents continued to buy from A&B, and pay the outstanding invoices. A&B needed the disputed invoices paid, as well as the subsequent invoices at the newly adjusted price, because of A&B's banking arrangements. Refusal to pay the disputed invoices would have precipated immediate failure for both respondents and A&B at that time.

About 9 months later, in May 1984, A&B failed. Respondents having relied on A&B as a sole supplier for over 18 years, also failed. Respondents owed A&B about $945,000 for the last 40 days purchases.[2]

The accumulated unrecovered losses from the A&B "overcharges" plus additional losses when respondents failed to continue to supply their customers finally killed respondents' business.

Pork Cutters was unable to pay A&B, in part because of the accumulated losses from 1980 due to A&B's "overcharges." In respondents perception, the "overcharges" by A&B were not yet "worked out" and should be used as an offset against the $945,000.

Respondents were so acutely sensitive to debts that they closed their business for a short time in August 1983, because they wanted to avoid "going deeper into debt." (TR p. 231-232) Then the meeting with A&B promising to "work out" the claimed "overcharges" by a new price formula gave respondents new hope. But when the business failed, the "overcharges" had not yet been "worked out," as the Birakowsky's saw it.

A&B had brought suit against respondents for $740,000 and respondents had counterclaimed for the alleged fraudulent "overcharging" by A&B. (TR p. 231) The August 1983 meeting apparently put this litigation on the backburner, while the parties "worked out" their differences under the new pricing formula.

[2] During the last 40 days respondent paid A&B about $980,000 for earlier purchases. (TR P. 138)

Pork Cutters computed the alleged overcharges in a conservative manner, based on averages for prime hogs only (not all the delivered hogs fell into the prime category). This gave A&B the benefit of doubt on any differences in the calculations. Calculating each individual transaction at the lesser price appropriate for non-prime hogs would have resulted in even greater overcharges, Marga believed.

The "overcharges" were calculated by Marga for their civil litigation with A&B (TR p. 185), and not as an afterthought to raise as a (fictional) defense in this disciplinary proceeding.

In the last half of 1981, Pork Cutters computed overcharges of $276,972.59 arising from $6,500,704.45 in purchases billed by A&B to Pork Cutters. Pork Cutters recomputing the billings on the original price formula, claims the billings should have been $6,223,731.86. (TR p. 212)

During 1982, Pork Cutters computed alleged overcharges of $917,199.23 on purchases of $12,111,266.47. (TR p. 187)

Overcharges of $542,756.05 were computed by pork cutters on 1983 purchases of $5,552,826.69. (TR p. 219-220)

Pork Cutters thus computed a total of more than $1.7 million "overcharges" which more than offset, in its view, any obligation it owed.

When complainant's investigator went to Pork Cutters' office to check their records, only Don Birakowsky was there. He had no knowledge of the books and records and urged the investigator to return on an agreed date when Mrs. Birakowsky was expected to be there. The investigator agreed and did so.

Mrs. Birakowsky's mother was terminally ill and Mrs. Birakowsky was directing all of her time and energy to her mother. When the investigator returned on the agreed date, Mrs. Birakowsky was not there. However, Don saw that the investigator had access to all the records he desired.

Throughout to the investigation, from the initial stages, the question of A&B's overcharges offsetting Pork Cutters' obligations to A&B were raised by the Birakowskys. (TR p. 17, 18, 21, 22, 106, 132, 133, 136, 259, 260, and 261)

Complainant's investigator made a thorough and full investigation to the extent that he could. However, due to the serious illness of Mrs. Birakowsky's mother, the lack of understanding by the Birakowskys of the seriousness of the investigation, and unfortunate legal advice, the Birakowskys failed to provide the degree of cooperation that the law required and their best interest should have provided. Respondents refusal or failure to cooperate for whatever justification was a subject that also arose frequently. (TR p. 21, 66, 67, 107, 137, 138, and RE9, 10). That failure to cooperate was unjustified and unwise and probably in violation of the regulations. However, that failure should not be a barrier to consideration of respondents contentions of overcharges offsetting the failures to pay.

The Birakowskys testimony is exceptionally persuasive, and warrants full probative value.[3]

Complainant makes out a well documented, and in fact admitted, failure to pay over $945,000.00. But the respondents evidence indicating very large overcharges cannot be casually brushed aside as irrelevant and inconsequential.

Complainant did not call anyone from A&B in rebuttal. Without question, that would be important to decide the merit of the overcharge issues. However, the ultimate merits of the overcharge issue between A&B and Pork Cutters is not being determined here. That will be decided in their civil litigation.

The issue here is whether respondents' evidence is sufficiently probative to explain and justify the failure to pay A&B. This is a disciplinary action, not a civil suit for damages or collection of overdue bills.

The complaint charges respondents "willfully" engaged in an "unfair, unjustly discriminatory, or deceptive practice." (7 USC 192(a)) This hinges on whether respondents' failure was "unjustifiable."

Complainant agrees that "justification" is a hinge issue. Complainant argues that respondents "unjustifiably" refused to pay A&B. Pages 7–8, complainant's Proposed Findings of Fact, Conclusions, and Brief in support thereof filed 5/2/86.

In essence, respondents claim to have been defrauded by A&B when A&B unilaterally changed the agreed pricing formula, increasing the price significantly. This record shows no changes in that agreed pricing formula for 16 years, except for adding the $3.50 "kill fee."

In this context it cannot be said that respondents were unreasonably careless or "unjustified" in relying on the integrity of their supplier. Respondents may have been imprudent or naive, but that should not trigger heavy disciplinary penalties based on unfair trade practices.

[3] In 31 years as a trial Judge, the Birakowskys rank very high for sincerity, persuasiveness, credibility and probative value.

On this record, it is uncontroverted that a problem existed in the summer of 1983 that brought A&B and Pork Cutters together to discuss their mutual obligations and responsibilities. Thereafter, Pork Cutters abandoned bankruptcy and continued to do business with A&B under a new, reduced pricing formula.

The evidence in this record explains the price reduction as A&B's effort to "work out" the "overcharges." Complainant argues that the price concession was made for A&B's advantage (and needs), rather than to "work out" a dispute with respondents. The credible evidence here supports respondents' position contrary to complainant's argument.

No criticism is implied concerning complainant's investigator and none should be inferred. The investigator was thorough, complete and vainly tried to pry from respondents the information necessary to support or verify their claims of overcharges.

Considering the life history of respondents, it is not difficult to understand their fear and reluctance to cooperate with governmental authorities, although, it was a serious mistake here. That failure however, should not bar them from serious consideration of their plea and evidence they present concerning it.

Other than the dispute with A&B concerning the pricing formula, this record is devoid of anything suggesting a lack of integrity and sincerity in respondent's testimony and evidence. That is not to say that each jot and tittle is accurate and fully in conformance with reality. That is not necessary.

Complainant here seeks a $90,000.00 civil penalty from the individual respondents. The corporate respondent is not operating and is probably insolvent. The issues are seriously disputed. Complainant has established that respondents have failed to pay $945,000 to A&B for the last 40 days purchases.

However, respondents have established that a serious dispute exists between A&B and respondents, that efforts were made to resolve it, that both parties acted on that resolution for 9 months. Further, according to respondents, the resolution was "working out" the differences, but the unworked out portion far exceeded respondents' obligations to A&B at the time the businesses failed. Although, the record does not support each item of respondents' testimony by documentary evidence, that is not necessary here. The credibility, persuasiveness, and consistency of respondents evidence is strong.

It is not being determined here what obligatons A&B might have to Pork Cutters but merely that Pork Cutters' evidence is sufficiently meritorious to justify their failure to pay until the dispute is resolved in an appropriate civil forum.[4]

Regardless of the ultimate outcome there, the evidence here establishes that a serious, extensive dispute exists between respondents and A&B, concerning possible fraud, which relates to and arises from possible "overcharges" by A&B.

This justifies respondents failure to pay til that dispute is resolved. A $90,000.00 civil penalty should not be assessed against the Birakowskys individually.

Considering all the evidence in this record, the complainant has failed to sustain the burden of proof. There is not a preponderance of the evidence showing respondents' willfully failed to promptly pay obligations it owed to A&B. The evidence establishes that the outstanding obligations from Pork Cutters to A&B were the subject of serious and still unresolved dispute.

In re: MANUEL PERRY. P&S Docket No. 6513. Decided September 10, 1986.

Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.
Allan Kahan, for complainant.
Max Mickelsen, Petaluma, Calif., for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative, disciplinary proceeding under Title III of the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. 181, et seq.), hereinafter sometimes referred to as the Act, instituted by a Complaint, filed on March 29, 1985, by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

The Complaint alleges that Respondent Manual Perry, in connection with his activities as a dealer subject to the Act, sold ten (10) calves to Rancho Veal Corporation, a packer. In connection with the sale, Respondent signed a "guaranty" stating that no animal being sold "contained a non-permitted residue of a drug in its edible tissue; that since the last drug administered to the animal . . . the withdrawal period . . . has passed; and that all label warnings and directions "for use have been followed in the administration of any drugs to the animal." Although Rancho Veal Corporation purchased only "certified" calves, there is controversey as to the extent, if any, that such certification was relied upon by Rancho Veal in the purchase and slaughter of the calves in this case.

However, after slaughter and testing, two of the calves were found to contain violative levels of residues of an antibiotic drug.

Upon the basis of the aforesaid, the Respondent is alleged to have "engaged in unfair and deceptive practices" in willful violation of section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 213 (a)).

On April 25, 1985, Respondent filed an Answer to the Complaint in which he admitted the facts of the transaction set forth in the Complaint, denied that he willfully engaged in any unfair or deceptive practice or act, and denied any intential, willful or negligent marketing of any calves for slaughter that he knew or should have known contained violative levels of drug residues. Respondent's Answer further denied that Rancho Veal Corporation relied on the written "guaranty" in its purchase, marketing or slaughter of livestock.

The Agency Complainant indicates that this is a case of first impression and is meant to send a message to Respondent and to the industry in general, that the "certification" program hereinafter described will be strictly enforced with significant penalties.

The Respondent contends that the facts do not justify the stance taken by Complainant and that written regulatory requirements were unclear or non-existent as to the proper method of achieving "certification".

The case takes on particular importance to three agencies within the Government: The Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, which brought the Complaint; the Food, Safety, and Inspection Service of the Department of Agriculture which is charged with inspecting meat and insuring that it is wholesome and safe to eat; and, the Food and Drug Administration which sets standards with respect to the amounts of residues which can be contained in food for human consumption.

Said Governmental agencies, particularly, the Packers and Stockyards Administration, believe that the practice of certifying something as being drug free, when Respondent was in no position to be able to so certify such fact, and the effect on the packers, as well as the potential danger to the meat supply of America, constitutes an unfair and deceptive practice under the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The case also takes on importance because of the background against which it is thrust. It was discovered in 1981, that there was a problem with sulfa and antibiotic residues in bob veal meat nationwide, and, commencing in 1982, and continuing until February, 1984, when it was decided that the program "had failed miserably", there was an effort to resolve the problem and to try to educate the farmers. This did not work, nothwithstanding the expenditure of $2 million in funds. In trying another approach, an "interim rule with request for comments" was published in the Federal Register, Thursday, June 7, 1984 (42 F.R. 23602) relating to drug residues in young calves.

An oral hearing took place on May 13, 15, and 16, 1986, in Sacramento, California, before Administrative Law Judge Dorothea A. Baker. Respondent was represented by Max A. Mickelsen, Esquire, 205 Keller Street, P.O. Box 2538, Petaluma, California. Complainant was represented by Allen R. Kahan, Esquire, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Complainant called sixteen witnesses and offered nineteen exhibits. Respondent called two witnesses and offered two exhibits. The transcript of the hearing comprises four hundred fifty-four (454) pages. References to specific pages in the transcript will hereinafter be designated by the prefix "Tr.".

In due course, the parties filed briefs, with the last brief having been filed August 4, 1986.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Manuel Perry, hereinafter referred to as the Respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is 673 Lohrman Lane, Petaluma, California 94952.

2. Respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and,

(b) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce and as a market agency to buy livestock on a commission basis in commerce.

3. Respondent regularly purchases "bob" calves, i.e., calves less than three weeks old and weighing less than 150 pounds, from dairy farmers in the Galt and Lodi, California area. He follows a procedure, in purchasing said "bob" calves of specifically inquiring as to whether the calves have been "medicated". The health of the calves may require such medication and, as herein pertinent, there is nothing illegal in the administration of such medication. As to any calves Respondent is advised have been medicated, they are marked and sold for "raising" (kept for a week or so), instead of for slaughter.

4. After Complainant concluded that its prior program relative to voluntary certification of drug free animals was not working, Complainant, in May of 1984, caused to be distributed to auction markets and to others a "flyer" relative to the certification program, but this was not sent to dealers such as the Respondent Perry (Tr. 130, 131). In June of 1984, there was published in the Federal Register, aforementioned, proposed regulations where identification and voluntary certification of drug free animals were contemplated.

5. On January 4, 1985, Respondent received a letter, dated January 2, 1985, from the Packers and Stockyards Administration's Lawndale, California, office informing him that two veal calves which he had previously sold to Rancho Veal Corporation in December of 1984, had been found to contain violative drug residues which caused the carcasses to be condemned. The letter informed Respondent of the requirements of obtaining certifications from the producers of the animals that the animals were "drug free". More specifically, the letter advised: "A calf dealer cannot represent a calf to be drug free unless he has a valid certification from the producer." . . . "Also, certification without knowledge of whether or not drugs have been administered would be considered a false certification." . . . "You must also retain evidence in your records that the calf was certified by the producer." The letter further informed Respondent of the position of the Packers and Stockyards Administration that providing false certifications by a dealer was considered an unfair and deceptive practice contrary to Section 312 of the Packers and Stockyards Act, and that such violations could subject him to both criminal penalties, and to a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for each violation.

6. On January 7, 1985, Respondent Perry made a telephone call to Mr. Kenneth Freeze, Regional Supervisor of the Lawndale, California, office of the Packers and Stockyards Administration to discuss the contents of the letter he had received. Respondent Perry stated to Mr. Freeze that he had been in business for 25 years and that he had never had any trouble with the Packers and Stockyards Administration and that he was too old to get into trouble now. Mr. Freeze told Respondent not to sign any more certifications with Rancho Veal unless he had written certifications for the animals involved, contained in his records, and signed by the producers. Respondent was told that the giving of certifications to Rancho Veal without the corresponding written certifications from the producers would be considered an unfair practice contrary to the Packers and Stockyards Act and could subject him to a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for each violation. Respondent Perry, in his testimony indicated that he did not remember if Mr. Freeze told him to have the producers sign anything.

7. On or about January 15, 1985, Respondent purchased forty-eight (48) bob veal calves (sometimes referred to as "drop calves") from a number (approximately ten) of dairy farmers in the Galt, and Lodi, California, area. By reason of past inquiries and instructions to said dairy farmers and/or their employees, Respondent believed that the said calves were not medicated. However, he did not ask his usual question as to medication or not of the calves.

8. Respondent disposed of thirty-eight (38) of the calves to a calf feeder in the Petaluma, California, area.

9. Respondent sold the remaining ten (10) calves to Rancho Veal Corporation, a packer located in Petaluma, California. When a calf was condemned, Respondent did not get paid for it. In order to sell the said calves to Rancho Veal, Respondent signed a document presented to him by Rancho Veal, which, because of its importance to this case, is reproduced herein in full:

10. A scrutiny of Complainant's Exhibit 10. as aforesaid, reveals several things: It is labeled "Draft"; it was contemplated that the guarantor would be the "producer or auction market" (Respondent was neither); and, such guarantee is to be applicable to each subsequent shipment or other deliveries of animals etc. Mr. Perry was indicated to be the person giving the guaranty. Said document does not use the word certify or certification anywhere in the document. Without seeking to make meaningless distinctions, "certification" has been said to be the act of certifying a document containing a certified statement especially as to the truth of something; whereas, "guaranty" is said to be an undertaking to answer for the payment of a debt or the performance of a duty of another in case of the other's default or miscarriage. It is doubtful that any distinction is made by the Complainant between a certification and a guaranty, and, certainly, while the Respondent was waiting to unload and sell his calves, and was told he had to sign a form to do so, he probably was not concerned too much with the language in the form. He believed that the calves which he wanted to sell did meet the requirements, based upon his past understanding with the dairy farmers.

11. After the calves were slaughtered, a small number of the calf carcasses (known as the lot sample) purchased by Rancho Veal on January 15, 1985, which had been the subject of the guaranty set forth above and stated to be "drug free", were tested by Dr. Lee T. Watt, DVM, the Federal meat inspector, the Food Safety and Inspection Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, to determine if any of the edible tissue of the animals, which included the muscle, liver, and kidney, contained violative levels of sulfa or other antibiotic residues. Two of the animals belonging to the Respondent Perry, which were in the sample tested by Dr. Watt, tested positive.

12. Portions of tissue from the muscle, liver and kidney from both of Respondent's calves which tested positive were sent to the Western Laboratory of the Food Safety Inspection Service of the U.

S. Department of Agriculture to confirm the initial test and to determine the particular drug involved, as well as the amount of violative drug residue present. Bio-assay tests were run on the various tissue samples from the liver, muscle, and kidney of the two carcasses. The test confirmed the presence of violative levels of Neomycin in the kidneys of the two carcasses in the amounts of 17.55 and 13.35 ppm. The maximum permissable level or "tolerance level" is 0.25 ppm. Thus, the kidneys of the two carcasses contained levels of a non-permitted drug in excess of sixty-nine (69) and fifty-three (53) times the permissible tolerance.

13. Whether the Complainant's Exhibit 10, signed by the Respondent, be regarded as a "certification", "guarantee" or a simple statement, the evidence clearly shows that the calves delivered to Rancho Veal on January 15, 1985, were represented to be drug free when in fact at least two were not. This is a violation of section 312 of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

14. Although the Respondent has set forth arguments relative to the lack of intent to be in violation, good faith effort and intent to comply, extenuating circumstances relating to his instructions to the dairy farmers, and a position that alludes to the lack of specificity as to the manner required for compliance with the program, nevertheless, the evidence establishes that the Respondent did receive earlier notice in the letter of January 2, 1985, of the consequences of giving false certifications, and, there was contained in such letter, in the last full paragraph, the following statement:

> Section 401 of the Packers and Stockyards Act requires every packer, stockyard owner, market agency, and dealer to "keep such accounts, records, and memoranda as fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business". To meet this requirement in transactions involving baby calves certified as drug free, you must keep a record of all calves purchased and sold, including the name and address of the seller, the name and address of the person to whom sold, the tag number or other identity of each animal purchased and sold, and the amount paid or received in each transaction. You must also retain evidence in your records that the calf was certified by the producer. (emphasis added)

Furthermore, the Respondent had a telephone conversation with Mr. Freeze who further explained the certification program to him.

15. The record evidence herein does not show a knowing, wanton disregard of the program requirements on the part of the Respondent, but, rather, less than a diligent attempt to comply therewith. The Respondent believed that it was sufficient that he made inquiry, on a regular basis, of the dairy farmers or the person taking care of the calves, as to whether the calves were medicated, and, that he informed each of the dairymen of his desire to have calves that were not medicated, although there was no evidence presented that he specifically did either of those things on the date of the transactions herein involved.

The Complainant admits that the Respondent "occasionally" inquired about the status of the calves. The weight of the evidence is that the Respondent made such inquiries on a regular basis, although on the day in question, the Respondent testified that he may have failed to ask his usual question.

Events have shown that the methods used by the Respondent could not be relied upon, particularly in light of the fact that prior to January, 1985, the Respondent did not consistently identify the calves with a unique back-tag number, and they easily could become co-mingled once on his truck. This is not to say that the producers mislead the Respondent, as their testimony shows:

(Mr. Simoes)

Q. "Okay. Did you mark the calves which might have been treated with electrolytes, or other medication?"

A. "Well, all the Calves that have been treated, we marked the cages."

(Tr. 278)

Q. Okay, in January of 1985, did Perry ask about the calves which he purchased, and whether they had been medicated?

A. Oh, he asked me all along if the calves had been medicated.

Q. Okay, if you weren't there, who would he have asked?

A. He asks my workers. I—I mark the cages so they can tell him. (Tr. 280)

Q. Do you identify them in such a fashion? You know, do you mark them?

A. Well, when I treat them, I mark the cages. (Tr. 284)

Q. Okay, if he knew they were medicated——

A. Put's a mark over the back. (Tr. 285)

Judge BAKER: You would not know what the directions on the label state?

WITNESS: No. Well, I get—the directions I got I get from the—I go to the veterinarian, and they'll tell me what to use, and I use.

Judge BAKER: And they read it to you.

WITNESS: Yeah. Yeah.

(Tr. 287)

16. The action of the Respondent, under the circumstances of this case, in representing, by means of a written statement or "guaranty" that the calves were drug free, when they were not, is a willful violation of the Packers and Stockyards Act, as that term has been interpreted by the Department of Agriculture.

17. Dr. Waguespack, the Regional Director of Food Safety Inspection Service's Southwest Region, comprised of eight States, testified, in detail concerning the program and its objectives. He was a most knowledgeable witness and explained the desirable effects the program would have on the industry if the written certification practice were adhered to, but, he admitted that after the expenditure of large amounts of money and time, the program was not working as expected.

18. Dr. Waguespack further indicated, in his testimony that there is nothing in the regulations which requires a written certification signed by the producers, although according to him, a certification was valid only if written. He stated that there was no set form for such certification and it could be a simple statement which followed the calves, and, that one piece of paper can follow many animals as long as identity is maintained. Of importance in his testimony was the assertion that the producer would not be certifying that there was no drug residue in the calves, but, only that he did not administer same, or, if he did, what occurred, and the withdrawal period.

19. As Complainant sets forth, and as the evidence shows, Rancho Veal had good reason why reliance on certified calves was to its advantage:

(1) Labor cost savings;
(2) Less overtime;
(3) Less disruptions of a packer's operations; and
(4) More efficient use of a packer's cooler.

As compared to the testimony of the general advantage to a packer of certified calves, there was no direct and convincing evidence that Rancho Veal relied upon Exhibit 10, paid any heed thereto or was harmed in any way, although at the time it was purchasing only certified calves. Respondent had dealt with said concern over a period of years, and, Rancho Veal knew that Respondent was not a producer. However, it is not necessary that actual reliance be shown. It is sufficient that Rancho Veal had a right to place reliance on such guaranty or certification.

20. The fact that some of the dairymen and/or their employees did not speak or read English has not been shown to be relevant or material to the issues of this case. In any event Respondent had no difficulty in conversing with such individuals because he spoke several languages.

21. The giving of false certificates constitutes a serious danger to the public health by potentially permitting violative levels of drug residues to enter the food supply.

22. The Respondent gave a false certificate to Rancho Veal Corporation on January 15, 1985.

23. The Respondent has willfully violated section 312(a) of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

CONCLUSIONS

The evidence is free of conflict in that Respondent, on January 15, 1985, sold ten bob calves to Rancho Veal Corporation, after having purchased them from dairy farmers; that Respondent signed a "guaranty" indicating such calves to be drug free; and, that subsequent testing showed two calves to have drug residues.

The Complainant views this as a most important case and one of first impression. Accordingly, its approach to the sanction sought was expressed by Mr. Davis, who, while recognizing that Respondent was a "small" operation, stated in his testimony:

> Q. But you are still recommending the $5000 sanction?
> A. Yes.
> Q. Because you want the attention of the industry?
> A. Yes. We believe that it is appropriate to address a penalty that not only addresses the individual involved, but addresses the problem within an industry and serves notice on the industry as well." (Tr. 435).

Essentially, and in summary form, the Complainant maintains that the action of the Respondent was a "willful" one as that term is defined by the Secretary of Agriculture; that Respondent voluntarily executed the calf drug guaranty or certification; that the Respondent signed a valid certification, irrespective of the name it is given; that despite the absence of specific language requiring that certifications have to be in writing, the Respondent herein had actual notification that certifications were to be in written form; that Rancho Veal relied upon the certification; and, that the sanction being sought is warranted, reasonable and meets the requirements of the Act.

Although large amounts of money have been spent, and much time devoted thereto, Complainant's witnesses admit the absence of satisfactory industry recognition of its program. It should be noted, as herein pertinent, that there was nothing illegal in administering the pertinent drugs involved to the calves. However, under Complainant's program, it was necessary that the applicable withdrawal period have expired, prior to certification that the calves were drug free.

Calves can be sold certified, or, non-certified—and that is a choice which the buyer can make. If a buyer finds that a seller is wrongly stating that calves are drug free, when they are not, the buyer can refuse to do business with such seller, as well as take whatever legal remedy is available to him. As the evidence shows, there is a tendency toward non-certified calves, notwithstanding the Complainant's program.

The record, as a whole, supports the contentions of the Complainant, except for its argument that Rancho Veal relied upon the certification. There is not enough evidence of record to show that, in this case, Rancho Veal did, in fact, rely upon the guaranty signed by Respondent. However, whether it did, or not, Rancho Veal had a right to make such reliance.

A concern raised by the Respondent is the one which addresses the issue of whether the Complainant, in the absence of regulatory directive, can require the generation of data to implement a program relative to drug residues, which admittedly had not been successful in the past with respect to its enforcement. The provisions of the Act, and the published regulations, as applied by the Complainant, require dealers such as Respondent to generate, and maintain, in their records written certifications. Yet, nowhere is this clearly spelled out so that persons, unaccustomed with technical language and implications, can understand it. In the subject case, the record shows that the Respondent had actual notice of what the Complainant expected.

The many contentions raised by the Respondent are ones deserving of attention and consideration, both of which have been accorded thereto.

The Respondent is charged with willfully violating Section 312(a) of the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended. The Respondent indicated difficulty in delineating what, if any, violation of Section 312(a) was committed. The questions posed by Respondent are:

(1) Was the alleged violation the fact that two bob calves were sold with illegal drug residues?

(2) Was the violation the signing of the Guaranty presented to Respondent by Rancho Veal?

The position of the Complainant is that the violation was the signing of the guaranty without having a basis for knowing whether it was true or false.

The Respondent, in its pleadings, and by evidence adduced at the oral hearing, emphasized that there is no published regulation requiring a written certification. Although Section 401 of the Act requires certain record keeping requirements, which truly reflect the transactions engaged in by a dealer, it does not speak of generating data that customarily is not present in such transactions. Thus, the Complainant is expanding upon the previously known requirements by mandating that dealers, such as Respondent, if they want to sell calves, as drug free, obtain written certifications from the producers that the animal either has not been administered drugs, or if it has, that the necessary withdrawal period has passed. If this is done, then, even if the animal is subsequently condemned for drug residues, the dealer has committed no violation of the Act.

Among other concerns raised by Respondent, on brief, is that the Complainant's arguments, in its initial brief, do not display a working knowledge of the calf certification program, such as, that as to all medicated calves there was a ready, willing and able market with the industry. The dairymen knew, and the Complainant acknowledges, that calves sold for veal brought substantially more money than calves sold for slaughter. It was to the dairymen's benefit to deliver a healthy type calf rather than a sick one which would have to go to slaughter.

The Complainant suggests that the producers-dairymen who testified may have lacked candor with respect to their operations and may have been stretching the truth. The Judge finds that this is not justified on the record, and, that the testimony of such producers-dairymen was forthright and credible.

The realistic way those dairymen dealt with marketing their calves negates that there was any economic or profit motive behind their testimony. It made a lot more sense, economically, for those dairymen to mark calves as medicated, hold them for a week or two, or some other applicable period, and then sell a healthy calf to the Respondent that would have a market value of $40. or $50. to a veal producer, as opposed to receiving approximately $15. for a non-medicated calf.

Mr. Singleton, President and owner of Rancho Veal Corporation, verified this analysis:

> "Q. What incentive is there for a livestock dealer to sell a medicated calf to a slaughter house such as yours?
> A. There's no incentive. It's like throwing $15, or $20, or $30 out the window, or whatever the calf is worth. If you knowingly know it's medicated." (Tr. 179)

Continuing on, the Respondent argues, on brief, that the most confusing aspect of Complainant's case is the contention that Respondent engaged in a deceptive and unfair practice by signing the aforesaid guaranty. The record herein adequately supports the reasons the Complainant has engaged in its drug certification program, even though during the years 1982-to the middle of 1984, it was not working satisfactorily. These reasons are well set forth in Complainant's brief and are not reiterated herein.

The Complainant spent considerable time in its presentation of the case to outline the history and procedure of the drug residue program instituted by the Food Safety and Inspection Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Food and Drug Administration and the Packers and Stockyards Administration. An explanation of the historical reasons for instituting the program; the resources expended to achieve the goal of removing violative amounts of sulfa and other antibiotic drugs in the veal meat supply; the procedures used to insure the integrity of the test; what success, if any, the program, including the educational aspects, has had in reducing the incidence of violative levels of drug residues; and the potential serious threat to public health as a result of violative residues of sulfa and antibiotic drugs in our Nation's meat supply, all were the subject of considerable evidence because of the importance thereof to all three Governmental agencies involved in the program.

As Dr. Waguespack testified, in 1981 the Food and Drug Administration and the Food Safety and Inspection Service of the United States Department of Agriculture both became very concerned over the problem of sulfa and antibiotic residues being found in bob calves. Testing disclosed that levels of sulfa and antibiotic residue contamination at levels of 100 to 1000 times the tolerance levels established by the Food and Drug Administration were being found and constituted a threat to the health of consumers. (CX 1,p.4) In early 1982, a group of individuals representing industry, professional organizations, all the farm organizations and associations dealing with livestock, handling, growing, selling of milk, and meatpackers, met and worked for two years trying to resolve the problem by educating the farmers not to use medication or not to abuse medication in the bob veal meat supply. (Tr. 11) In February, 1984, the Food Safety and Inspection Service determined that the educational program was not working after having spent more than Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000.00) in trying to get the word out through state extension services. The Food Safety and Inspection Service, the Food and Drug Administration and the Packers and Stockyards Administration then joined together to develop a regulation that could effectively address the problem. (Tr. 11-12) Because the FSIS is limited in its jurisdiction to the premises of the packing plants where it conducts meat inspection, but still has the responsibility to insure that the meat supply is safe and unadulterated by chemicals or disease, they joined with the Packers and Stockyards Administration to formulate a procedure that would be effective in reducing the problem—the voluntary certification program.

The certification program which was adopted permits the packer to slaughter calves which are certified "drug-free", chill them, and ship them to their customers without any retention or delay. A sample lot of three animals is tested, irrespective of the size of the certified lot, using the CAST test, to determine whether the certification is valid. However, the certified calves which are not in the test sample are not retained pending the results of the CAST test. Thus, the certification permits the unrestricted movement of the calf carcasses through the packing house without "tying-up" valuable cooler space within the packer's plant, and allows the packer to operate normally.

Non-certified lots, on the other hand, are not treated the same. A much larger sample of animals is selected from the group of non-certified calves. This can range from the entire population of calves in a small lot to as many as thirty (30) in a large lot of the animals. While the CAST test is performed on the sample lot, the entire group of non-certified calves is retained pending the results of the CAST test. Since the CAST test results take approximately sixteen (16) hours to be determined, the entire lot of non-certified calves must remain in the packer's cooler for this extra day. In addition, if any of the CAST tests taken on the animals in a sample lot of non-certified animals tests positive, the CAST test is performed on each and every one of the remaining calves in the non-certified lot.

Those carcasses testing positive are retained by the packer pending verification of the test, or are condemned immediately. Thus, there is a very real possibility of non-certified calves being retained for a total of two days, clogging the packer's valuable cooler space.

The testing of the slaughtered calves, done by the Federal meat inspector, is performed by making an incision into one of the calve's kidneys with a clean, unused razor blade, inserting a sterile cotton-tipped swab into the kidney to absorb the kidney fluid, placing the fluid-soaked swab tip onto an agar plate which has been seeded with bacterial spores, and incubating the plate for a period of sixteen (16) hours. After the incubation period is completed, the agar layer in the area around the head of the swab is carefully observed to see if there is an area that is clear of bacterial spore growth, the area known as the "Zone of Inhibition". A "Zone of Inhibition" 18mm or more constitutes a positive test, and indicates the presence of sulfa or other antibiotics. A "Zone of Inhibition" of less than 18mm, or a plate in which there is no zone of inhibition and the bacterial spore growth is to be seen everywhere except the area around the antibiotic disk, constitutes a negative test.

When a CAST test result is positive, the meat inspector removes one of the kidneys of the carcass involved, as well as portions of the animal's muscle tissue and liver, places each of the samples in separate specimen bags carrying a unique serial number for the particular animal, issues a special form providing particular information about the animal involved which also contains the serial number, and sends the sample, in a temperature controlled condition, to the laboratory of the Food Safety and Inspection Service for confirmation of the CAST test and determination of both the actual amount of the drug, as well as the exact nature of the drug involved. (Testimony of Dr. Watt, Tr. 193–194)

Upon receipt of the tissue sample, the laboratory checks the tissue to insure that it has not deteriorated as a result of temperature, logs the sample in, giving it an internal serial number, and then repeats the CAST test using the very same procedure that the meat inspector used at the plant. If this second CAST test is also positive, the various tissues are subjected to an extensive test, known as a bio-assay, to determine what drug is present in which tissue, and its concentration. During the entire testing procedure, both in the packing plant itself as well as in the laboratory, extreme caution and attention is given to maintaining the sample's identity so that whatever the results of the tests, they can be related back to the exact calf which was involved. (Testimony of Dr. Chiu, Tr. 58–67)

In actual practice, the Western Laboratory, which was the laboratory where the bio-assays of the Respondent's calves occurred and which is supervised by Dr. Chiu, has a confirmation of positive results of approximately ninety percent (90%), with some months showing confirmations of ninety-five percent (95%) of the samples tested. (Tr. 68)

Both the Food Safety and Inspection Service and the Packers and Stockyards Administration have devoted substantial resources, both in terms of time and money, in implementing, educating the industry, and policing the program to assure its success. Dr. Waguespack testified about the extensive travel that he and other members of the FSIS engaged in, often with the participation of administrative officials of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, to inform market owners, packers, dairy organizations and others of the importance of the program and how it would work. (Tr. 15) Mr. Harold Davis, Director of the Livestock Marketing Division of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, testified of his extensive involvement and time commitment with the program, and the extensive travel he made, as representative of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, in preparation to implement the program nationwide. Kenneth Freeze, Regional Supervisor of the Lawndale, California, office of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, told of distributing the one page flyers as to the various markets affected, and which he wanted them to distribute to their customers, as well as his office spending more than one man-year each year on this program.

Complainant points out that the Food Safety and Inspection Service is aiming for a 1% positive CAST rate, from a high of 7.7% rate, before they are satisfied and willing to consider the program a practical success. There is evidence of record indicating that the number of "certified" calves going to slaughter is decreasing, and, the number of non-certified ones going to slaughter is increasing,—thus reflecting a choice by the industry to choose between the two.

When asked if there was any problem with aminoglyocides, tetracyclines, sulfonamides and other antibiotics, in amounts above the FDA established tolerance levels in meat used for human consumption, in amounts above the FDA established tolerance level, Dr. Judith Weissinger, Pharmacologist with the Residue Evaluation Branch of the Food and Drug Administration's Center for Veterinary Medicine, testified:

> These tolerances have been established and the withdrawal periods set in order to maintain the safety of the human food supply.

> If you have a situation such as veal calf which is slaughtered at a very early age which has residues, and veal calf meat is used for sausage and hot dogs, all beef hot dogs, veal baby food. . . . an antibiotic residue, . . . such as penicillin. Just a small amount of that penicillin can cause hypersensitivity or allergic reaction. And a baby that is allergic to penicillin could get that in a veal baby food jar. So you'd have to be really sure that these bob veal calves don't have it. (Tr. 96-97)

Dr. Weissinger further testified about the dangers that residues of neomycin, the drug found in the Respondent's calves, above tolerance levels, post to the population:

> Well, it's illegal if it's above tolerance. And it's a problem because its a drug which could cause problems in the human population.
> For instance, the toxicities associated with neomycin include ototoxicity and nephrotoxicity; and I'll explain those. Nephrotoxicity what happens is the binding to the kidney tissue causes a decrease in kidney function; therefore, there is more of a build-up of neomycin. And that build up could cause an ototoxicity which is damage to the eighth cranial nerve, which ends up being manifested as deafness or a similar inbalance in the motor system . . . the whole population is susceptible but in infants with immature renal function and ability to excrete neomycin; the elderly with their difficulty in renal excretion, again, decreased renal function with age; and anybody with renal disease or any kind of renal compromise would certainly not be as able to excrete neomycin as a healthy person.
> But even healthy people bind it to their kidneys as do calves. (Tr. 98-99)

The Respondent high-lights a focal point of controversy—i.e., there is nothing in the published regulations which requires a written certification. The Complainant maintains, as Mr. Davis explained, that the Respondent gave a false certification which constitutes a willful violation of Section 312(a) of the Act. Had the Respondent had written certifications from the producers in his records, even though drug residues were found in two calves, Respondent would not have been in violation of the Act.

The Complainant argues that its requirement of written certification is associated with the national program instituted by the Food Safety and Inspection Service of the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Food and Drug Administration, as set forth herein. It is further contended, based upon interpretation and implication, not readily apparent in the published regulations, that a "guarantee" or "certification" is given voluntarily by the producer of the bob Calves which are to be slaughtered, and that a dealer or market agency can "certify" calves as long as the dealer or market agency has the corresponding written certifications, from the actual producers, contained in his books and records. Although the Complainant states this on brief, the testimony is to the contrary. The rules and regulations (Complainant's Exhibit I) are clear that only a producer may certify a calf. There is no provision anywhere in the regulations for certification of calves by anyone other than a producer. That was reemphasized by MR. WAGUESPACK (Tr. 38)

Q: But suppose that dealer certified the calf, as I understand what you said, that if he didn't treat the calf in any way during the time he had it, he could certify it as to his possession of the calf.

A: He could, but we wouldn't accept it because the certification must come from the producer.

Q: So you wouldn't even rely on it.

A: That's right.

Q: It would be a wasted piece of material.

A: As far as we're concerned, we wouldn't accept it.

It seems that what the Complainant desires, to make its program effective, is to have a certification made by the producer of the calf at birth and thereafter until it is sold. From then on, reliance may be placed on such certification by those who subsequently may have the animal. Any subsequent certification would have to be premised on the original producer's certification.

Mr. Harold Davis, Director of Livestock Marketing Division, United States Department of Agriculture, testified with respect to the position of the Packers and Stockyards Administration, thusly:

"A. We believe that, for a livestock dealer, which Mr. Perry is, to certify that the calves were drug-free for slaughter when he—without the appropriate backup certification from the livestock producers or the dairymen, is an unfair and deceptive practice under the provisions of 312(a) of the Packers and Stockyards Act in that it permits an animal which may contain a drug residue to be slaughtered without the appropriate sampling and testing requirements set forth in the Regulations under (sic) FSIS, and offers the very real potential of animals moving into the food channels for human consumption which do, in fact, have residue or certain residues without ever having been tested or sampled for residue.

In the case here, we are talking about two calves which had residues; but there is no way of knowing how many calves may have had residues which were not caught because of the certifications which allowed the calves to be slaughtered without being tested." (Tr. 429)

Mr. Davis, after hearing all the testimony, made an assessment of the Respondent's conduct as follows:

"* * * that this type of practice is one which simply demonstrates that the individual involved was exercising a careless disregard for the requirements of the program and what the program was attempting to do." (Tr. 430). Emphasis added.

Respondent has set forth arguments relative to the lack of intent to be in violation, recited good faith efforts and intent to comply, extenuating circumstances, and a position that alludes to the lack of specificity as to the manner required for compliance with the program. Since there is no published standard nor regulation requiring a writing, the only way the Respondent would have been aware that an oral statement by the dairy farmers would not suffice, was by reason of his telephone call to Mr. Freeze, which he indicated he did not recall or understand in the same manner as Mr. Freeze, and, the contents of the letter of January 2, 1985, which specifically made reference to the record keeping requirements of Section 401 of the Act.

It is obvious that the program is premised upon implication that the certification must be in writing, but, as testified to by Mr. Davis, it could have been on a tape recording, which became a part of the Respondent's records. Of course, when standards are less than specific, this gives rise to subjective interpretation and implication, and, possible uncertainty as to what is required for legal compliance. However, in this case, I believe that the Respondent had been adequately advised of the written certification requirements. The record herein does not reflect arbitrary nor capricious action on the part of the Complainant,—it is reasonable to require a certification in writing. Nor, does it show a wanton disregard of the program requirements on the part of the Respondent, but, rather less than a knowledgeable, diligent attempt to comply therewith.

The cumulative evidence herein shows that the Respondent, seventy years old, made an effort to ascertain what he could do to keep out of trouble when he telephoned Mr. Freeze after receiving the letter dated January 2, 1985; that subsequent to January 15, 1985, he has taken steps to maintain the identity of the medicated calves; and, that Mr. Vedder, a Marketing Specialist and investigator, found Mr. Perry "very cooperative". (Tr. 148)

Mr. Singleton, President and owner of Rancho Veal, indicated a business relationship with Respondent of approximately 19 years, and, that he had been buying bob calves from Respondent for slaughter for approximately 4 or 5 years. (Tr. 168). Had Rancho Veal been dissatisfied with the business relationship with Respondent, Rancho Veal could have discontinued buying calves from Respondent, or, could have pursued legal remedy for breach of guaranty.

A majority of the producers from whom the purchases, as herein pertinent, were made, testified. From the Respondent's viewpoint, he had dealt with these same producers-dairymen over a period of years, and had continuously told them to let him know if any calf had been medicated. All the producers who testified so confirmed this understanding with the Respondent. The Respondent testified that on the day in question, he may have failed to ask his usual question relative to medication. He relied upon a past course of conduct, apparently, when he signed the guaranty presented to him by Rancho Veal, which is designated for the producer or auction yard, of which Respondent was neither.

The testimony of the producers corroborates that of the Respondent. Mr. DeKuyer indicated that although the Respondent did not inquire as to medication every time—"He don't have to mention that, because everybody's aware of it." (Tr. 227). Mr. Costa testified that Respondent always asked about medication (Tr. 240), and that slips were signed differentiating between medicated and non-medicated calves. (Tr. 243). Mr. Vandenberg's testimony was that Respondent was "very picky" about calves, and always asked if the calves had been treated, and that when Respondent purchased medicated calves, they were marked, (Tr. 254), although, Respondent usually told Mr. Vandenberg to keep the medicated ones.

Although an affidavit had been obtained ahead of time by the agency from some of the testifying producers, including one from Mr. Vandenberg, it is believed that the live testimony of Mr. Vandenberg as to "marking" of the calves was the more accurate.

The import of the testimony of other testifying producers was substantially the same—that Respondent usually asked if the calves were medicated (Mr. Captein, Tr. 268–274); that in Mr. Simoes case, the receipt showed which calves were medicated, and with respect to the calves purchased from him, Mr. Simoes' calves were treated as medicated calves. (Tr. 289). Mr. Van Exel indicated—"the ones with medication, he (Mr. Perry) don't want them" and, Mr. Van Exel, the same as the other producers, knew which calves had been medicated. (Tr. 325). Similar testimony was given by Kooyman and Mr. Borges.

Apparently, such oral representations and arrangements which Respondent had with the producers were sufficient for him to rely thereon. Circumstances proved that this was an erroneous reliance because two calves showed up with impermissible drug level residues. Perhaps contributing thereto was the failure of Respondent to maintain the identify of the calves, which precluded a meaningful association of "marked" calves with the appropriate producer.

The evidence indicates, through the testimony of Dr. Bennett, a witness for the Respondent, that there are at least five conceivable scenarios by which a calf may possess antibiotic residues at slaughter in a situation where producers have not administered those drugs with prior knowledge or intent. Those situations were described as follows:

1. Milk from medicated cows unknowingly being switched with milk from non-medicated cows.

2. A calf may suckle a cow which has been medicated.

3. It's possible for incidental exposure to calves of antibiotics when employees are treating calves.

4. The opportunity for milk which has been medicated and intended for one calf to contaminate other milk sources.

5. The possibility of a young calf to suckle a cow that has just been recently dry-cow medicated.

As DR. BENNETT went on to state, the problem is compounded in California as follows:

> Judge BAKER: ". . . DR. BENNETT, in these various scenarios that you have set forth, namely five, is it true that they could occur without the dairy herd's owner knowing about them?
> WITNESS: Yes, particularly California, because the larger farms and the number of employees who are operating without the direct supervision of the dairy owner/operator.

However, it was not shown, by record evidence, that any of the possibilities mentioned by Dr. Bennett happened in this case.

Although Respondent made an effort to understand what was required of him, the evidence indicates that he either did not have a clear understanding as to what was meant by certification being in writing (Tr. 343) and the necessity for identification of the animals, or, he did not make sufficient effort to achieve compliance.

Notwithstanding the above, the Respondent's own testimony is sufficient in itself to establish a violation of Section 312 of the Act, as alleged in the Complaint. Respondent testified that he was told, "* * * before you unload these calves, you'd better certify them." (Tr. 344, 349)—"Well, they told me it was a new law that I had to sign." (Tr. 345). Respondent went by the producers' understanding he had with them, and he had no document in this records indicating that the calves were drug free. (Tr. 345, 348). Although the Respondent may have marked medicated calves with chalk on the head or hip, he acknowledged that he did not back tag the animals until after January 15, 1985 (Tr. 353, 362). With respect to the two calves which were condemned from the January 15, 1985, sale, the Respondent did not know the source thereof. (Tr. 375).

When questioned about whether he asked the dairymen on January 14, 1985, whether the calves were medicated, or not, Respondent Perry replied:

> "No. I do not remember if I asked all the dairymen on January 14, 1985, if they had given any kind of medication. I could have asked a few of them. But maybe I didn't as (to) them all." (Tr. 380)

Respondent sums up the situation most accurately himself when he testified regarding the guaranty which he signed, "—But I shouldn't have done it." (Tr. 343)

The Respondent further contests the Complainant's characterization of Respondent's conduct on January 14, and 15, 1985, as a willful and wanton disregard of the requirements of the Act. According to the Department's interpretation and definition of "willfulness", the Respondent must be so designated. The Complainant's brief sets forth the position of the Department of Agriculture as to what is meant by the term "willful". Respondent has not shown why such interpretation is not applicable here.

The meaning of the word "willful" in administrative proceedings brought under the Packers and Stockyards Act is found in numerous cases.

In In re J.A. Speight, 33 Agric. Dec. 280, 302 (1974), a case brought under the Packers and Stockyards Act, the Judicial Officer gave the following definition of "willful" within the meaning of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. § 558(c)):

> A violation is willful within the meaning of the term in a regulatory statute, if the violator 1) intentionally does an act which is prohibited—irrespective of evil motive or reliance on erroneous advice, or 2) acts with careless disregard of statutory requirements (Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896, 900 (C.A. Ky. 1961)

See also Butz v. Glover Livestock Commission Co., 411 U.S. 182 (1972); In re Rayville Livestock Auction, Inc., Agric. Dec. 886, 896 (7th Cir. 9161); In re Lufkin Livestock Exchange, Inc., 27 Agric. Dec. 596, 609 (1968); and In re Smithfield Livestock Market, Inc., Agric. Dec. 1546 (1977).

Although the issue of giving a false calf drug certification is one of first impression before the Secretary, the issue of whether the giving of a false record constitutes an unfair and deceptive practice under section 312(a) of the Act has been decided previously. In both In re Rayville Livestock Auction, Inc., 30 Agric. Dec. 886 (1971); and In re Red River Livestock Auction, Inc., 30 Agric. Dec. 898 (1971), the Judicial Officer held it to be a violation for the Respondents therein to have created and given false records in connection with livestock transactions which concealed the fact that the animals they were selling were either "brucellosis-reactor" or "brucellosis-exposed" animals.

In the present case, the Respondent Perry's actions were contrary to the Act and willful. He intentionally did an act which was prohibited and acted with careless disregard of the statutory requirements after he had been informed of them twice—once by letter and once by oral communication, even though there may have been some confusion and misunderstanding on his part.

Additionally, as further pointed out by Complainant on brief, the contentions of Respondent that his actions were not willful, as that term is used by the Department of Agriculture under its regulatory statutes, have been considered at length and rejected.

The case of In re: James J. Miller, 33 A.D. 53 (1974), sets forth a thorough explanation of the meaning of the term "willful". In part, it is stated:

> A violation is wilful, within the meaning of the term in a regulatory statute, if the violator "1) intentionally does an act which is prohibited,—irrespective of evil motive or reliance on erroneous advice, or 2) acts with careless disregard to statutory requirements." Goodman v. Benson, 286 F.2d 896, 900 (C.A. 7, 1961). Accord, United States v. *Illinois Cent. > Wilfulness means "no more than that the person charged with the duty knows what he is doing," and it "does not mean that, in addition, he must suppose that he is breaking the law." Townsend v. United States, 95 F.2d 352, 358 (C.A.D.C., 1938), cert. denied, 303 U.S. 664; Fields v. United States, 164 F.2d 97, 100 (C.A.D.C., 1947), cert. denied, 332 U.S. 851. It is only in statutes involving turpitude that "wilful" includes evil purpose, criminal intent, or the like. Spies v. United States, 317 U.S. 492, 497–499 (1943).
> In Trenton Chemical Co. v. United States, 201 F.2d 776, 777–780 (C.A. 6, 1953), cert. denied, 345 U.S. 994, the Court held that a company which exceeded its quota, under a regulatory order establishing quotas as to grain used by distillers, "wilfully" violated the quota restriction, subjecting it to criminal prosecution. The defendant contended that it used grain products, not grain, and "that it had been advised by its attorney that it was not illegal to use grain products in its distilling operations," but the "District Judge declined to permit the * * * [Company] to show at the trial that it acted in good faith and on advice of counsel that its acts were not illegal, in using the materials in question" (201 F.2d at 778, 779). In sustaining the judgment of the District Court, the Court of Appeals held that inasmuch as the regulatory statute did not prescribe acts "in themselves wrong," evidence of "bad faith or evil purpose on the part of the defendant was not necessary to constitute a violation of the act, but it was sufficient if the prohibited act was intentional or voluntary" (201 F.2d at 780).

Similarly, in Chicago, St. P., M. & Co. Ry. Co. v. United States, 162 F. 835, 840-842 (C.A. 8, 1908), cert. denied, 212 U.S. 579, the Court upheld the conviction of the defendants under the Elkins Act on the ground that they "willfully" granted rebates to a shipper, notwithstanding the reliance by the defendants on decisions by the Interstate Commerce Commission which, according to the Court, "might well have afforded ground for belief by defendants that their act * * * was justifiable and lawful" (162 F. at 840-41). The Court said that to "hold that the belief of an individual concerning the legality of his action should constitute a standard of innocence or guilt would establish an uncertain and dangerous doctrine. It would in many cases justify a violation of statutes expressive of public policy concerning which there may obviously be and frequently are as many different opinions as there are different individuals affected by them" (id, at 842). See also, Sinclair v. United States, 279 U.S. 263, 299 (1929); Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U.S. 56, 70-71, 85-86 (1908); United States v. Union Pac. R. Co., 169 F. 65, 67 (C.A. 8, 1909).

It was held in Dennis v. United States, 171 F.2d 986, 990-991 (C.A.D.C., 1948), affirmed on other grounds, 339 U.S. 162 (1950), that in order to prove a wilful failure to appear before a Congressional Committee, it is not necessary to show that the act of refusal was done from a bad purpose or an evil motive. The Court held that the mere fact that > the defendant claimed to have followed the advice "is no defense," and that "[i]f it were, many corporations, organizations and even individuals would maintain counsel permanently for the purpose of advising them against doing anything that they do not wish to do" (171 F.2d at 991).

Thus, the Respondent's actions were willful under the Act, as that term is defined by the Secretary.

The Act vests in the Secretary authority to impose sanctions with a view to enforcement of his statutory and regulatory mandates. This is carried out, in these administrative, disciplinary cases through the Agency and by the Secretary's Judicial Officer. The exercise of their discretion with respect to the imposition of sanctions is accorded deference by the courts, which recognize that choice of a sanction is peculiarly a matter for administrative competence. Butz v. Glover Livestock Commission Co., Inc., 411 U.S. 182 (1972); F.T.C. v. Universal-Rundle Corp., 387 U.S. 244 (1967).

As both parties are aware, the sanction sought by the Complainant is well within the statutory limits. However, it is not without reason to consider the Respondent's argument that the imposition of a $5000. penalty is not justified on the facts, even though the Complainant may want to make an example of the Respondent to shore up a program, which, admittedly, until mid 1984, was not accomplishing what it set out to do. This is a case of initial impression. Accordingly, I believe that any change in the requested sanction should be made by the Judicial Officer, on appeal.

In the Glover case, supra, the United States Supreme Court was explicit when it stated that the breadth of the grant of authority to the Secretary to impose sanctions strongly implies a congressional purpose to permit the Secretary to make such imposition to deter repeated violations of the Act, whether intentional or negligent. When the Secretary's practice is to employ a sanction which, in his judgment, best serves to deter violations and achieve the objectives of the statute, then such choice of remedy is not to be overturned unless unwarranted in law or without justification in fact.

Respondent Perry has shown no illegality associated with the Complainant's requested sanction, which is warranted in both law and fact.

The reason for the requested Cease and Desist Order, and, the $5000. sanction was explained by Mr. Davis in his testimony, after having listened to the testimony of Respondent Perry, on the stand:

> Q Why does the Administration seek such a civil penalty and a cease and desist order?

best copy available

> A The civil penalty, in this case, is based, at least in part, on what we believe is a necessary deterrent effect, not only for Mr. Perry, but for the industry as a whole, to recognize and understand that the false certification or the certification without the background and without the knowledge of whether or not an animal has been treated—we believe that the civil penalty must be of an amount sufficient that the industry will set up and take notice that this is a problem and that a person who does do this can and will be appropriately prosecuted under the law, so that the industry is served affective notice that, if they are to sign a certification, they must know what they are signing and they must treat it as a serious matter.
> And the Administration believes that anything short of a significant civil penalty simply will not serve the notice that is necessary and will not provide the deterrent effect that is needed to address the problems in the residue program.

As further justification for the requested sanction, Complainant makes reference to the Consent Order agreed to in the Van der Geest & Sons, Inc., case, P. & S. Docket No. 6484 (December 26, 1985) wherein a $4000. civil penalty was imposed. This is the only other administrative case cited by the Complainant on the "same issue". I agree with the Respondent that such case is lacking in precedental value herein. At best, the facts in the Van der Geest case have to be derived from a reading of the Complaint therein. Also, it is not known what matters were discussed and were a part of the negotiating process. From a reading of the Complaint therein, it would appear that Van der Geest is a rather large business since it is a corporation, whereas the Respondent is a single person characterized by Complainant as a small operation. Also, the Complaint against the Respondent here deals with one violation, whereas, in Van der Geest, there were four or more alleged violations. Another most important difference is that the Complaint in Van der Geest charges the corporate respondent therein with actually administering drugs and consigning the calves for sale without waiting for the withdrawal period, a clear violation of the calf certification program. At no time was Respondent Perry charged with administering drugs or has there been any implication that he affirmately caused drug residues. On this, and other contentions, the Respondent argues for a nominal penalty or at least one less than that sought by the Complainant. Under the circumstances, such a request can not be granted by the Administrative Law Judge, who is not the policy maker for program sanctions within the United States Department of Agriculture. That is a matter which the Judicial Officer has emphatically and clearly addressed in his many decisions. The Department's sanction policy has been reiterated in two recent cases: Corn State Meat Company, Inc., et al, P & S Docket No. 6427 (May 8, 1986); and, Holiday Food Services, Inc., P & S Docket No. 6488 (May 8, 1986).

A consideration of the record as a whole indicates that Complainant did consider the size of the Respondent's business, Respondent's testimony at the hearing, his ability to pay the sanction, and the necessity therefor, in order to deter the Respondent and others in the industry from permitting calves with drug residues entering into the current of commerce without the proper safe-guards.

The Complainant has shown a rational and considered relationship between the sanction sought and the seriousness of the violation.

Accordingly, the Order below is issued:

ORDER

Respondent Manuel Perry, individually or through any corporate or other device, in connection with activities subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Preparing and issuing certifications or any other documents which state that drugs have not been administered to livestock, or that if drugs have been administered to livestock that the withdrawal period specified on the drug label has been followed, unless Respondent knows from his own personal knowledge that such facts are true or has received signed statements from the producer of said livestock that drugs have not been administered to livestock, or that if drugs have been administered to livestock that the withdrawal period specified on the drug label has been followed; and

2. Representing in any manner to purchasers of livestock, to agents or employees of such purchasers, or to any other persons involved in the marketing or slaughter of livestock, that drugs have not been administered to livestock, or that if drugs have been administered to livestock, the withdrawal periods specified on the drug labels have been followed, when such representations are incorrect.

Respondent shall keep accounts, records and memoranda that fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business as a market agency and dealer subject to the Act, including written statements from producers that certify that the calves which are sold to Respondent have not been treated with animal drugs or, if so treated, the withdrawal period as prescribed on the drug's label has passed. Respondent shall keep such memoranda for all calves which he sells or consigns to a packer or other person and so certifies or guarantees the same to the packer or other person.

In accordance with Section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C., section 213(b)), Respondent Perry is assessed a civil penalty in the amount of Five Thousand Dollars ($5000.00).

All contentions, requests, motions, and otherwise of the parties have been duly considered, and, to the extent, if any, not ruled upon and which may be inconsistent with this Decision and Order, they are hereby denied.

This Decision and Order shall become final thirty-five days after service thereof unless appealed to the Secretary's Judicial Officer within thirty days, as set forth in the Rules of Practice and Procedure, 7 CFR sec. 1.131, et seq.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

[The Decision and Order became final on October 20, 1986.—Ed.]

In re: CRAIG LANDEEN. P&S Docket No. 6626. Decided October 21, 1986.

William A. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.
Andrew Stanton, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

RULING ON CERTIFIED QUESTION

On October 17, 1986, Judge William J. Weber certified to the Judicial Officer the question as to whether adequate service was made on respondent of the complaint and proposed default decision.

The complaint alleges that respondent engaged in business as a market agency, buying livestock in commerce on a commission basis, without being registered with the Secretary or furnishing the required bond. The complaint further alleges that during June and July 1985, respondent purchased livestock and failed to pay approximately $17,614.57 for his livestock purchases.

The complaint was sent to respondent's last known address by certified mail, but was returned as "Unclaimed." Thereafter, the Hearing Clerk sent a copy of the complaint to respondent at the same address by regular mail, which was also "Unclaimed." The Motion for Adoption of Proposed Decision was sent by certified mail to respondent at the same address, but the envelope was returned marked "MOVED, LEFT NO ADDRESS." (The return receipt card for this document shows that it was received by "Stewart," who is not identified in the file.) Thereafter, the Hearing Clerk sent the Motion for Adoption of Proposed Decision to respondent at the same address by regular mail, but the letter was returned marked "NOT DELIVERABLE AS ADDRESSED—UNABLE TO FORWARD."

Service by regular mail after respondent failed to accept delivery (i.e., failed to pick up the documents at his post office box or leave a forwarding address) complies with the Department's rules of practice, and meets the requirements of due process. The rules of practice provide (7 CFR § 1.147(b)):

> (b) Service; proof of service. Copies of all such documents or papers required or authorized by the rules in this part to be filed with the Hearing Clerk shall be served upon the parties by the Hearing Clerk, or by some other employee of the Department, or by a U.S. Marshal or deputy marshal. Service shall be made either (1) by delivering a copy of the document or paper to the individual to be served or to a member of the partnership to be served, or to the president, secretary, or other executive officer or any director of the corporation or association to be served, or to the attorney of record representing such individual, partnership, corporation, organization, or association; or (2) by leaving a copy of the document or paper at the principal office or place of business or residence of such individual, partnership, corporation, organization, or association, or of the attorney or agent of record and mailing by regular mail another copy to such person at such address; or (3) by registering or certifying and mailing a copy of the document or paper, addressed to such individual, partnership, corporation, organization, or association, or to the attorney or agent of record, at the last known residence or principal office or place of business of such person: Provided, That if the registered or certified document or paper is returned undelivered because the addressee refused or failed to accept delivery, the document or paper shall be served by remailing it by regular mail. Proof of service hereunder shall be made by the certificate of the person who actually made the service: Provided, That if the service be made by mail, as outlined in paragraph (b)(3) of this section, proof of service shall be made by the return post-office receipt, in the > case of registered or certified mail, or by the certificate of the person who mailed the matter by regular mail. The certificate and post-office receipt contemplated herein shall be filed with the Hearing Clerk, and made a part of the record of the proceeding. [Emphasis added.]

To meet the requirement of due process of law, it is only necessary that notice of a proceeding be sent in a manner "reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections." Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314 (1950). And see NLRB v. Clark, 468 F.2d 459, 463-65 (5th Cir. 1972); In re Eastern Air Lines, Inc., 44 Agric. Dec. ___ (Sept. 23, 1985).

The Department's rules of practice providing for service by certified mail addressed to respondent's last known place of business, followed here, meet the requirement of due process of law. As held in Stateside Machinery Co., Ltd. v. Alperin, 591 F.2d 234, 241-42 (3d Cir. 1979):

> Whether a method of service of process accords an intended recipient with due process depends on "whether or not the form of . . . service [used] is reasonably calculated to give him actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard." Milliken, 311 U.S. at 463, 61 S.Ct. at 343 (emphasis added); see Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 315, 70 S.Ct. 652, 94 L.Ed. 865 (1950). As long as a method of service is reasonably certain to notify a person, the fact that the person nevertheless fails to receive process does not invalidate the service on due process grounds. In this case, Alperin attempted to deliver process by registered mail to defendant's last known address. That procedure is a highly reliable means of providing notice of pending legal proceedings to an adverse party. That Speigel nevertheless failed to receive service is irrelevant as a matter of constitutional law. [Omission and emphasis in original.]

A person who engages in the highly regulated livestock industry as a market agency or dealer has an obligation to register with the Secretary on forms which include his address (7 U.S.C. § 203; 9 CFR § 201.10).

Prior to 1984, the regulations expressly required market agencies and dealers to report any change of address within 10 days after making such change (9 CFR § 201.13 (1984)). This regulation was removed effective September 19, 1984 (49 Fed. Reg. 33,001, 33,003 (1984)). However, the regulation was removed only because under normal circumstances the agency could obtain the information from other sources. In the notice of proposed rule making with respect to the removal of 9 CFR § 201.13, the Administrator states (47 Fed. Reg. 20,311, 20,312 (1982)):

> The proposed removal of regulation 201.13, which presently requires registrants to report any change in name, address, management or control, would ease current industry reporting requirements. This information can be obtained from annual reports, state agencies and from other industry sources, and the removal of this regulation will not adversely affect the agency's ability to enforce the Act.

If a market agency or dealer changes his address without leaving forwarding information with anyone, he has no one but himself to blame if he fails to receive important legal documents. Accordingly, the proposed default decision and order should be issued.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

These are two reparation proceedings under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) (hereinafter "the Act"), begun by complaints filed by Mitchell Livestock Auction, Inc. (hereinafter "Mitchell"), on November 24, 1981, and by Daniel Lammers (hereinafter "Lammers") on September 22, 1981. Taken together, the complaints alleged in substance that Lammers issued an insufficient funds check to pay for livestock purchased from Mitchell by Lammers and Stanley Schmidt (hereinafter "Schmidt"), and that Larry Ryken d/b/a Yankton Livestock (hereinafter "Ryken") caused the insufficient funds check by wrongfully failing to remit to Lammers the proceeds generated by Ryken's resale of the same livestock. Mitchell sought reparation of $45,334.58 from Lammers, Schmidt and Ryken. Lammers' reparation claim against Ryken was for $52,634.14, later reduced to $49,404.13.

Copies of the complaints and the investigation reports prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration were served on the respondents who duly filed answers. Lammers admitted owing Mitchell the amount claimed. Schmidt filed a general denial. Ryken denied the allegations in both complaints, alleged a cross-claim in Docket No. 5994 against Lammers and Schmidt for $3,259.67, arising out of unspecified transactions, and an identical counterclaim against Lammers in Docket No. 5996 for the same amount. Ryken later abandoned his cross-claim against Schmidt and at hearing increased his counterclaim against Lammers to $32,853.47. In his answers to the complaints, Ryken also alleged Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., of Dakota City, Nebraska (hereinafter "IBP"), to be an indispensable party to these proceedings and requested leave to file a cross-claim against that company. The request was not granted since the Act does not give the Secretary jurisdiction to order a packer to pay reparation, and IBP is a packer (7 U.S.C. §§ 209, 210).

As a result of decisions by a South Dakota Circuit Court involving Mitchell, IBP, Ryken, Lammers and Schmidt, on December 27, 1984, Mitchell withdrew its complaint in Docket No. 5994 against Lammers and Schmidt, thereby resting its entire claim against Ryken.

Pursuant to respondents' requests for an oral hearing, a hearing was held on March 19, 1985, in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, before Thomas C. Heinz of the Office of the General Counsel of this Department. Mitchell was represented by Burleigh E. Boldt, Esquire, of Mitchell, South Dakota. Lamers was represented by Carleton R. Hoy, Esquire, of Sioux Falls, and Ryken was represented by Robert M. Cook, Esquire, Norfolk, Nebraska. Six witnesses testified. Mitchell introduced two exhibits, and Ryken introduced eleven exhibits into the record. Briefing by the parties was completed on July 15, 1985.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Mitchell is a corporation which at all times material herein was engaged in business as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account and as a market agency selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis at a posted stockyard at Mitchell, South Dakota, and is so registered with the Secretary of Agriculture under the Act.

2. Lammers is an individual who at all times material herein was engaged in business as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account and for the account of others with his principal place of business located at Fordyce, Nebraska.

3. Ryken is an individual who at all times material herein was engaged in business as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account and as a market agency selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis at a posted stockyard with the name "Yankton Livestock Auction Market" at Yankton, South Dakota, and is so registered with the Secretary under the Act.

4. From December 1980 until September 1, 1981, Lammers was employed by Ryken as a field man soliciting cattle to be sold at Ryken's Yankton Livestock Auction Market. During that period Lammers also purchased livestock in his own name at various locations and consigned them to Ryken for resale. In addition, Lammers regularly purchased livestock from Ryken which he sold to IBP on a grade and yield basis.

5. On August 19, 1981, Lammers bought 109 head of livestock from Mitchell for $53,229.92 and issued a personal check to pay for them. At the time Lammers wrote this check he knew he did not have enough money in his account to cover it. Lammers' consigned all but one of these livestock to Ryken who two days later, on August 21, 1981, sold them at auction for $52,364.60 net, which amount Ryken has not remitted to Lammers.

6. Lammers told Ryken on August 25, 1981, that he had to have the proceeds from the August 21 sale in order to cover the check he had written to pay for the livestock purchased from Mitchell on August 19, 1981.

7. On August 26, 1981, Lammers bought 188 head of livestock from Mitchell for $93,285.08 and issued a personal check to pay for them. At the time Lammers wrote this check he knew he did not have enough money in his account to cover it. Two days later, on August 28, 1981, Lammers consigned 141 head of these livestock to Ryken who sold 112 head at auction for $51,180.42 and issued a check in that amount on his custodial account for shippers' proceeds. On Lammers' instructions, this check was issued to Schmidt, Lammers' uncle and sometime business partner. The remaining 29 head out of the 141 consigned by Lammers were not sold by Ryken but were disposed of elsewhere and are not in controversy here.

8. On September 1, 1981, Mitchell was informed by Lammers' bank that the check Lammers had written on August 19, 1981, was being returned because of insufficient funds. Mitchell immediately contacted Lammers to discuss payment for both his August 19 purchase and his August 26 purchase, since it was clear that Lammers' August 26 check was also going to be returned for insufficient funds. (Both checks indeed were later returned by the bank.) Mitchell and Lammers agreed to meet on September 2, 1981.

9. On September 1, 1981, Lammers' employment with Ryken ended when they met to settle their accounts with each other. Ryken claimed Lammers owed him $91,303.22 but Lammers disagreed. Lammers again told Ryken that he had to have the proceeds check from the August 21 sale to pay Mitchell for the purchase of the livestock on August 19, and although Ryken issued a proceeds check in the correct amount, $52,364.60, Ryken said he wanted it endorsed back to cover an insufficient funds check for $3,620.00 Lammers had issued earlier to Ryken. Lammers testified that he complied with Ryken's request on the strength of Ryken's promise that he would issue another proceeds check reduced by $3,620.00. Ryken did not do so, and instead applied the entire $52,364.60 proceeds check to reduce the $91,303.22 debt he claimed Lammers owed him as a result of Lammers' various livestock purchases. Lammers also testified that Ryken said "he could give a God damn if Ray Henderson [Mitchell's owner] ever got his money."

10. When Mitchell and Lammers met on September 2, 1986, the Ryken check for $51,180.42 which had been issued to Schmidt was endorsed over to Mitchell to reduce Lammers' debt for the August 19 and August 26 purchases. The debt was reduced another $50,000.00 through a bank money order delivered to Mitchell the following day, leaving $45,334.58 unpaid. No part of this amount has been paid to Mitchell.

SUBSIDIARY FINDINGS OF FACTS AND CONCLUSIONS

Ryken does not dispute that Lammers acquired cattle from Mitchell on August 19 through the use of an insufficient funds check, nor does he dispute that his failure to remit to Lammers the proceeds from the resale of those livestock on August 21 has caused Mitchell to remain unpaid. Rather, Ryken contends he properly used those proceeds to reduce Lammers' pre-existing debt arising out of other transactions. That contention has no merit.

Section 201.39 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.39) spells out Ryken's duty as a market agency selling consigned livestock regarding the proceeds from the sale of the livestock consigned by Lammers.

> No market agency shall . . . [with exceptions not applicable here] pay the net proceeds or any part thereof, arising from the sale of livestock consigned to it for sale, to any person other than the consignor or shipper of such livestock except upon an order from the Secretary or a court of competent jurisdiction, unless (1) such market agency has reason to believe that such person is the owner of the livestock, (2) such person holds a valid unsatisfied mortgage or lien upon the particular livestock, or (3) such person holds a written order authorizing such payment executed by the owner at the time of or immediately following the consignment of such livestock . . . .

On or before August 25, 1981, Ryken knew Lammers needed the August 21 sale proceeds to pay Mitchell for the purchase of the livestock, but Ryken testified he received a telephone call during the week of August 24 from an individual from the Production Credit Association suggesting that the livestock consigned by Lammers on August 21 in fact belonged to Schmidt and that the Production Credit Association had a valid mortgage on the livestock. Although this telephone call appeared to corroborate a claim made earlier by Schmidt that he was the true owner of the livestock, Ryken did not give the proceeds to Schmidt or to the Production Credit Association or to Lammers or to Mitchell. Instead, he used the proceeds on September 1 to reduce the debt he claims Lammers owed him as a result of other livestock transactions. As shown in section 201.39 of the regulations, that is an impermissible use of the sale proceeds from consigned livestock. Moreover, Section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42) provides that the proceeds generated by the sale of consigned livestock are trust funds which may be withdrawn from a market agency's custodial account for shippers' proceeds only for payment of lawful marketing charges and for "payment of the net proceeds to the consignor or shipper, or such other person or persons who the market agency has knowledge is entitled thereto . . ." Ryken as trustee could not offset against these trust funds a debt owed him individually and not as trustee. Doing so constitutes a well-established unjust practice in violation of section 307 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 208) and the regulations, for which reparation may be awarded. Rowse v. Platte Valley Livestock, Inc., 43 Agric. Dec. ___ (Feb. 3, 1984), aff'd, 604 F. Supp. 1463, 1467 (D. Neb. 1985); Mid-South Order Buyers, Inc. v. Tige Enterprises, 34 Agric. Dec. 1691 (1975), and 35 Agric. Dec. 232 (1976), aff'd, Mid South Order Buyers, Inc. v. Platte Valley Livestock, Inc., 210 Neb. 382, 394, 315 N.W. 2d 229, 235 (1982); Rice v. Wilcox, 34 Agric. Dec. 1651 (1975), 35 Agric. Dec. 212 (1976), aff'd, 630 F.2d 586 (8th Cir. 1980); Minot Livestock Auction v. Wood Bros., et al., 24 Agric. Dec. 459, 465 (1965).

When Lammers issued a check to Mitchell for the August 19 purchase, he received title conditioned upon making the payment due. (UCC §§ 2-507(2) and 2-511(3)) Although Lammers could pass that title to a good-faith purchaser (UCC § 2-403(1)), Ryken was not a purchaser, he was Lammers' agent selling the livestock on commission. Ryken's rights to the sale proceeds could rise no higher than the rights of Lammers, his principal. Rowse v. Platte Valley Livestock, 604 F. Supp. 1463, 1466 (D. Neb. 1985); Mid-South Order Buyers, Inc. v. Platte Valley Livestock, Inc., 210 Neb. 382, 395, 315 N.W. 2d 229, 236 (1982). Since Lammers did not in fact pay for the livestock, he did not acquire title to them, and neither he nor Ryken has a right to the proceeds from their resale. Those proceeds belong to Mitchell which was injured by Lammers' fraudulent purchase using an insufficient funds check and by Ryken's misuse of trust funds in violation of the Act and the regulations. Ryken will be ordered to pay reparation to Mitchell for that portion of the August 21 sale proceeds by which Mitchell remains unpaid. (7 U.S.C. §§ 208(a), 209(a))

Ryken argues that the case of Mid-Columbia Livestock Exchange, Inc. v. Mike Bray, Templeton Sales Yard, Inc., d/b/a Templeton Livestock Market, Richard L. Nock, Duane C. Baxley and Gary A. Davis, 43 Agric. Dec.____(September 13, 1984) "is on all fours and dispositive of the issues here." That argument is without merit. The Mid-Columbia decision dealt only with the issue of whether respondent Templeton Sales Yard, Inc., and its officers were liable for the unpaid purchase price of livestock purchased by respondent Bray from the complainant by virtue of the nature of the business relationship between all of the respondents. Unlike the case at hand, that decision did not address the issue of a market agency's duty regarding the disposition of proceeds from the sale of consigned livestock. Hence Mid-Columbia is inapposite to the instant case and is not dispositive of the issues raised here.

Mitchell's cause of action accrued on September 1, 1981, upon receipt of information that Lammers' check was being returned by the bank for insufficient funds. Mitchell's complaint therefore was timely filed on November 24, 1981, within the prescribed 90 day period (9 CFR § 202.103(e)).

			$73,178.35

Subtracting $73,178.35 from $122,582.48 leaves $49,404.13, the amount that Lammers seeks as reparation from Ryken. Of that, Lammers concedes $45,334.58 belongs to Mitchell, leaving $4,069.55 as Lammers' independent claim against Ryken. That claim is based in part on allegations that Ryken has retained proceeds of $7,381.73 from the sale of 63 hogs on August 22, 1981. Ryken denies retaining these proceeds, and there is no evidence in the record to corroborate Lammers' allegations that he has not received the sale proceeds from these 63 hogs. Lammers has therefore failed to sustain his burden to prove his claim by a preponderance of evidence, and his complaint will be dismissed. See, Lambert v. Moran, 37 Agric. Dec. 1191 (1978); Riechers v. Farrar, 36 Agric. Dec. 356 (1977); Agri-Link v. J. D. Schultz, 35 Agric. Dec. 557 (1976).

In his answer to Lammers' complaint in Docket No. 5996 Ryken filed a counterclaim stating:

> Daniel Lammers is indebted to Larry Ryken, d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market in the amount of $3,259.67 arising out of livestock transactions and insufficient fund checks issued by Daniel Lammers which checks are held by Larry Ryken, d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market, as a holder in due course.

This language is identical to Ryken's cross-claim against Lammers in Docket No. 5994.

On brief, Ryken amended his counterclaim as follows:

> In sum, Yankton Livestock, pursuant to the transcript to this proceeding, hereby amends its counterclaim against Lammers which counterclaim arises out of the initial transaction brought by Lammers and alleges that Lammers owes Yankton Livestock the amount of $29,593.78, less credit of $948.53 plus bad check of $4,208.20 for a total due and owing of $32,853.45.

The Rules of Practice governing this proceeding provide that an "amendment cannot state a new and different cause of action if it is filed more than 90 days after accrual of such new and different cause of action . . ." (9 CFR § 202.103f(2)). The Rules provide further: "No counterclaim or cross-claim shall be considered unless it is based on a violation for which the act authorizes reparation to be ordered to be paid, and filed within 90 days after accrual of the cause of action alleged therein; Provided, That a counterclaim not filed within such time limit may be considered if based on a transaction complained of in the complaint." (9 CFR § 202.106(c))

Ryken's original counterclaim does not indicate on what livestock transactions it is based, nor does it indicate whether the alleged insufficient funds checks involved matters over which the Secretary has jurisdiction. It is clear from the amended counterclaim, however, that the original counterclaim was based on Lammers' purchase of 15 cattle from Ryken on June 23, 1981, for which he issued an insufficient funds check in the amount of $4,208.20. From that, Ryken subtracted a credit of $948.53, leaving $3,259.67 as the original counterclaim amount. Ryken's original counterclaim must be dismissed because it was filed in February, 1982, considerably more than 90 days after the cause of action accrued, and it was not based on a transaction complained of in the complaint which did not even mention the June 23, 1981, transaction for $4,208.20.

The cross-claim must be dismissed because it was not filed within 90 days after the cause of action accrued. As for the amended counterclaim, it seeks $29,593.78 in addition to the $3,259.67 request in the original counterclaim. The $29,593.78 claim arises out of a transaction which occurred on August 26, 1981, involving Lammers, his Uncle Schmidt and IBP. Although that transaction was mentioned in Lammers' complaint, no part of Lammers' claim was based on it. Therefore, since Ryken's amended counterclaim for $32,853.45 was not filed within 90 days of the accrual of the cause of action and was not based on a transaction complained of in the complaint, it cannot be considered either.

Even if Ryken's amended counterclaim was free from this fatal defect, it would nevertheless fail for want of proof. The $29,593.78 claim rests entirely on a finding by a referee appointed by the Circuit Court, State of South Dakota, County of Yankton, in the case of Stanley Schmidt, Plaintiff v. Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., Defendant and Third Party Plaintiff v. Larry Ryken, d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market and Daniel J. Lammers, Third Party Defendants. Civ. 82-5. The referee stated in a written report submitted to the court:

> It is our finding and conclusion that Daniel J. Lammers has not paid a balance of $29,593.78 for cattle he purchased from Larry Ryken d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market.

The court did not adopt this finding however. Instead, Circuit Judge E.W. Hertz wrote in a June 8, 1984, memorandum opinion:

> The Referee's report, which is part of the evidence before the court, reveals that IBP has paid for all of the cattle delivered to it by Lammers, but that Ryken had not received $29,593.78 due from these August shipments.

Unlike the referee, Judge Hertz did not conclude that Lammers owed Ryken $29,593.78. In any event, these statements are at best obiter dicta, since Ryken did not file a cross-claim against Lammers, his co-defendant. That is, the South Dakota Circuit Court has not adjudicated any factual or legal issues between Lammers and Ryken. Hence the Circuit Court's judgment cannot be deemed res judicata in the instant litigation between Lammers and Ryken before the Secretary of Agriculture.

> The rule granting conclusiveness to a judgment in regard to issues of fact which could properly have been determined in the action is limited to cases involving the same cause of action. Where a second action is upon a different claim, demand or cause of action, the established rule is that the judgment in the first action operates as an estoppel only as to the issues, points or questions actually litigated and determined and not as to matters not litigated in the former action, even though such matters might properly have been determined therein. Indeed, it has been declared that for an issue to be conclusively determined under the doctrine of res judicata, the issue decided in the prior action must have been identical with the issue presented in the later action; and that the plea is not available where the issues in the second action differs in any way from that in the earlier action. Accordingly, before the doctrine of res judicata is applied in such cases, it should appear that the precise question involved in the subsequent action was determined in the former action. These rules prevail whether the judgment is used in pleading as a technical estoppel, or is relied on by way of evidence as conclusive per se.

46 Am Jur. 2d Judgments § 418.

In sum, Ryken's amended counterclaim must be dismissed because it was not timely filed and because it is not based on proof upon which the Secretary may rely.

All contentions of the parties presented for the record have been carefully considered whether or not specifically mentioned herein.

This decision and order is the same as a decision and order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR § 2.35, 42 F.R. 4395, as authorized by the Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g. It constitutes an "order for the payment of money" within the meaning of section 309(f) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 210(f)).

Under that section, if Ryken does not comply with this order within the time limit in this order, Mitchell may within one year of the date of this order file in the district court of the United States for the district in which they reside or in which is located the principal place of business of Ryken, or in any state court having general jurisdiction of the parties, a petition setting forth briefly the causes for which damages are claimed and this order in the premises. That section further provides that such suit in the district court shall proceed in all respects like other civil suits for damages except that the findings and order herein shall be prima facie evidence of the facts herein stated, and the petitioner shall not be liable for costs in the district court nor for costs at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless they accrue upon appeal. That section further provides that if the petitioner finally prevails, he shall be allowed a reasonable attorney's fee to be taxed and collected as a part of the costs of the suit.

It is requested that copies of all pleadings filed by any party in any such suit be filed with the Hearing Clerk, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, for inclusion in the file of this reparation proceeding. It is further requested that if the construction of the Act, or the jurisdiction to issue this order, becomes an issue in any such suit, prompt notice be given to the Office of the General Counsel, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

On the Secretary's jurisdiction to issue this order, see discussion in Neugebauer v. Ryken, Civ. 74–4018, U.S.D.C., D. So. Dak., So. Div. 1975, 34 Agric. Dec. 1712; Mid-South Order Buyers, Inc. v. Platte Valley Livestock, Inc., 210 Nebr. 382, 315 N.W.2d 229, 41 Agric. Dec. 48 (1982).

On a petition to reopen a hearing, to rehear or reargue a proceeding, or to reconsider an order, see rule 17 of the Rules of Practice, 9 CFR § 202.117. On respondent's right to judicial review hereof, see Maly Livestock Commission v. Hardin, et al., 446 F.2d 4, 30 Agric. Dec. 1063 (8th Cir. 1971). On complainant's right to judicial review hereof, see United States v. I.C.C., 337 U.S. 426.

ORDER

Within 30 days of the date hereof, Larry Ryken d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market shall pay to Mitchell Livestock Auction

Co., the sum of $45,334.58 plus interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from November 1, 1981, until paid.

The complaint of Daniel Lammers against Larry Ryken d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market is hereby dismissed.

The cross-claim in Docket No. 5994, the counterclaim of the same amount in Docket No. 5996, and the amended counterclaim in Docket No. 5996 of Larry Ryken d/b/a Yankton Livestock Auction Market against Daniel Lammers are hereby dismissed.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

MIKKELSON BEEF v. LEE BREITSPRECHER. P&S Docket No. 6284. Decided September 30, 1986.

Burden of proof of damages not carried—Dismissal

Complainant sought damages resulting from loss of yield, death loss and labor cost due to fluke infestation in cattle bought from respondent, alleging respondent knew of the fluke infestation, but concealed that knowledge from complainant at time of consignment. Investigations showed that respondent did not reside in the Victoria, Texas, area, where the livestock originated and where fluke infestation is known to be a common problem, and there is no evidence that respondent was advised of the fluke problem. It was thus ruled that complainant had not carried the burden of proving that repondent concealed the fluke problem and accordingly, the complaint was dismissed.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.). Complainant filed a formal complaint on July 14, 1983, alleging the purchase on June 16, 1983, of 274 head of cows which had been consigned by the respondent at the Oklahoma City Stockyards. The complainant seeks damages of $8,796.96, resulting from loss of yield, death loss, and labor costs due to fluke infestation in the cattle. Complainant alleges that respondent had knowledge of the fluke infestation and concealed that knowledge at the time of consignment.

A copy of the investigative report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the rules of practice (9 CFR 202.101 et seq.) was served on the complainant. A copy of the complaint and the investigative report was served on respondent, who subsequently filed an answer and request for oral hearing which was served on the complainant. Thereafter, the complainant filed a reply which was served on the respondent.

An oral hearing was scheduled to take place in Denver, Colorado, on October 3 and 4, 1984. At complainant's request, the hearing was subsequently rescheduled for December 4 and 5, 1984. However, on November 29, 1984, counsel for both parties orally requested and were granted a postponement of the hearing and, in a telephone conference on December 4, 1984, the parties expressed a desire for a written hearing. It was then agreed that ten days after receiving respondent's withdrawal of oral hearing request, complainant's notice of opportunity to file evidence would be filed. However, on June 4, 1985, the oral hearing was rescheduled for August 5 and 6, 1985, as a result of respondent's failure to withdraw its oral hearing request or report the status of the proceeding. Then, on August 2, 1985, respondent filed his withdrawal of oral hearing request and the scheduled oral hearing was postponed. The parties subsequently requested and were granted extensions of time to file written evidence. Neither party filed written evidence or briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Mikkelson Beef, Inc., hereinafter referred to as the complainant, is a corporation whose business address is 103 S.E. 8th, Oklahoma City, Ohlahoma 73125. Complainant is engaged in the business of buying livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter as a packer, within the meaning and subject to the provisions of the Act.

2. Lee Breitsprecher, doing business as Two B Cattle Company, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business address is 2872 Highway 87 East, Billings, Montana 59101. At all times material herein, respondent was engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account as a dealer within the meaning and subject to the provisions of the Act.

3. During the first two weeks of June 1983, respondent purchased approximately 1200 head of cows owned by four separate partnerships and located at different locations in the Victoria, Texas, region.

4. About 700 or 800 of these cattle were sold by respondent to packers in the Nebraska and Oklahoma region during the period from approximately June 13, 1983, to June 20, 1983. The remaining 473 head were consigned by respondent for sale at the Oklahoma City Stockyards, hereinafter the stockyards, on June 16, 1983.

5. The 1200 head sold and consigned by respondent all appeared to be healthy at the time of arriving at the various packing plants and at the stockyards.

6. Complainant purchased 274 of the 473 head consigned by respondent at the stockyards on June 16, 1983.

7. Complainant slaughtered the 274 head at its plant during the period June 17, 1983, through June 20, 1983. Upon slaughter, it was first discovered by complainant that these cattle were heavily infested with liver flukes. All, but about a dozen livers were condemned by the U.S.D.A meat inspector at complainant's plant. Other substantial portions of the cows also had to be removed in order for the carcasses to pass inspection.

8. The complaint in this proceeding was filed within 90 days of the accrual of the cause of action.

CONCLUSIONS

Absent fraud, misrepresentation, concealment or an express warranty, the buyer bears the risk of loss after title passes. Robert Allen v. Clarence Acker, 34 Agric. Dec. 872 (1975); Wagner Mills, Inc. v. Paul Spence, et al., 34 Agric. Dec. 1339 (1975); Preston v. Melady Bros., 34 Agric. Dec. 1543 (1975). In the present proceeding the salient issue is whether respondent was aware at the time of consignment of the fluke infestation in the cattle complainant purchased on June 16. There is evidence that respondent received a telephone call from the cattle buyer for Northern State Beef Co., Omaha, Nebraska, on June 15. During that conversation, respondent was told that there was excessive liver condemnation for fluke infestation in 189 head which respondent had delivered to that packer on June 13. It is clear that these 189 head were a portion of the 1200 which respondent purchased in Texas. Nevertheless, this is insufficient in itself to place respondent on notice that the cattle consigned to the stockyards were also infested.

First, as found above, the 1,200 head purchased by respondent were owned by four different partnerships and were being shipped from at least two different locations. The trucker who transported the 189 head to Northern State informed the Packers and Stockyards investigator that those particular cattle came from McFaddin, Texas. The health permits for the livestock purchased by complainant, on the other hand, show that the animals purchased by complainant originated at Refugio, Texas, approximately 30 miles from McFaddin. Complainant's prior knowledge of fluke infestation in one of the herds is not sufficient in itself to place him on notice that this problem existed at other locations. It is noteworthy that after Northern's kill on June 14 revealed the fluke infestation, the Northern buyer agreed to purchase a second lot of cows which respondent stated were owned by the same people, but were kept at a different location. In addition, there is evidence that some of the 1200 head purchased by respondent and sold to Ken Myers Meat Packing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, did not have a fluke problem.

Nor can complainant rely on the fact that flukes are known as a common problem in the Victoria, Texas, region to carry its burden of proving that the respondent knew of this problem. Respondent does not reside in that region and there is no evidence that he was advised of the fluke problem. It is also clear from the record that respondent informed the commission firm which handled the June 16 sale that the cattle were from Victoria, Texas. This indicates that he was not attempting to conceal the origin of the cattle from others who may have been familiar with this problem.

In concluding that complainant has not carried its burden of proving that respondent concealed the fluke problem, I have taken into account an investigator's summary of a conversation with an employee of Gibbon Packing Co., Gibbon, Nebraska, which is contained in the record. During this conversation, the employee reportedly stated that Gibbon purchased 140 head from respondent and slaughtered these cattle on June 16. The employee further stated that the cattle were infested with flukes and that he subsequently telephoned respondent to tell him that Gibbon would only purchase additional animals if they were significantly discounted. The respondent then reportedly stated he would just sell the rest of them live. The Gibbon employee also stated that at the time of this transaction, the live-cow market was better in Texas than in Nebraska, so he could not understand why respondent had wanted to sell the cattle in Nebraska.

While this statement raises questions concerning respondent's knowledge and intent, it is not a sworn statement of a witness, but a recitation of a telephone conversation with another individual. Moreover, it seemingly contradicts established facts in the record. One must note that at the time of the conversation, respondent had already consigned the cows at the Oklahoma Stockyards, and these were the only cows which he sold "live" (in fact, the record indicates that respondent had probably already sold all of the 1200 cows at the time of this conversation). Consequently, the statement of this packing plant employee, in its present form and without further development, cannot carry complainant's burden of proof.

ORDER

Accordingly, the complaint in this proceeding, is hereby dismissed.

MOLDENHAUER PROPERTIES v. CLAYTON NEUROHR P&S Docket No. 6653. Decided October 6, 1986.

Fraud alleged in livestock sale but no evidence thereof—Dispute held satisfied when payment accepted—Dismissal.

Findings show that respondent Clayton Neurohr bought four semi-truck loads of lambs from complainant Moldenhauer Properties. A dispute then arose regarding payment terms. Complainant, while accepting check, objected to the amount paid for the four loads of lambs. Respondent maintained he did not owe anymore than was paid to complainant by the packers. Satisfaction of the dispute occurred when respondent tendered and complainant accepted the check in payment. Based on these facts, it must be concluded that there was an accord and satisfaction of the dispute. While there was some indication of fraud—understated weights determined after settlement by the Packers and Stockyards Administration—in its execution, present proceeding has neither the evidence nor juridiction to determine respondent's liability, if any, regarding such fraud. Accordingly, complaint was dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.). This proceeding arose out of a dispute between the parties over the payment terms of the sale of four loads of lambs purchased on order to two packers by defendant from complainant during the latter part of December, 1984. Complainant filed a formal complaint on September 16, 1985. On January 31, 1985, complainant agreed to a settlement of the dispute based on live weight records provided by one of respondent's principals. These weights were later determined by the Packers and Stockyards Administration to be false and the complainant chose to continue prosecuting his complaint.

A copy of the investigative report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of the Department of Agriculture and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the rules of practice (9 CFR § 202.101 et seq.) was served on the complainant. A copy of the complaint and the investigation report were served on respondent, who subsequently filed an answer and request for oral hearing which was served on the complainant. Thereafter, the complainant filed a reply which was served on the respondent.

An oral hearing was held on April 29, 1986. Both sides presented themselves pro se until the time of the hearing. The morning of April 29, 1986 respondent arrived at the hearing with counsel and has thereafter been represented by Charles T. Edin, Esq. Complainant has continued pro se representation. At the conclusion of the hearing, each party was given 45 days to file additional information for consideration by the presiding officer. In addition, complainant was given 30 days after the receipt of additional information from defendant to respond to that additional information. On June 12, 1986, respondent filed a brief and several affidavits with the U.S.D.A. Hearing Clerk. Complainant did not make any response.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Moldenhauer Properties, the complainant, is a partnership engaged in the feeding of cattle and sheep. Ed Moldenhauer, his son Clyde Moldenhauer and their respective spouses are the partners constituting Moldenhauer Properties. The business address of complainant is Route 4, Box 148, Minot, North Dakota 58701.

2. Clayton Neurohr, the respondent, is a livestock dealer and order buyer registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a "Dealer" and a "Market Agency Buying on Commission." The respondent's address is Box 65, Halliday, North Dakota 58636.

3. In late December 1984, complainant and respondent entered into an agreement whereby respondent would purchase four semitruck loads of lambs from complainant on order. Three loads were purchased on order for Iowa Lamb Corporation of Hawarden, Iowa and one load was purchased for Mid-America Lamb Processing, Inc. of Paulina, Iowa.

4. In January, 1985, a dispute arose between complainant and respondent regarding the payment terms of the agreement. Complainant contended that they were to be paid 63¢/cwt on the live weights of the lambs as determined by the packer at the time of receipt. Respondent contended that he had made clear to complainant that those terms only applied if the lambs yielded 52% after slaughter.

5. On January 31, 1985, respondent agreed to resolve the dispute by paying complainant the difference between what they received from the Iowa Lamb Corporation and 63¢/cwt on the live weights of the animals. With the assistance of Packers and Stockyards Administration officials, using records furnished by Iowa Lamb Corporation, the parties determined $1,408.05 to be the amount due. Respondent issued a check on February 15, 1985 for that amount. Complainant subsequently deposited the check.

6. After the settlement was executed by the parties, the Packers and Stockyards Administration determined that the weights provided by Iowa Lamb Corporation were false and understated the actual live weights of the lambs.

7. The informal complaint was received on January 14, 1985 within 90 days of the accrual of the cause of action.

CONCLUSIONS

The threshold issue is what, if any, effect does the settlement between the parties of January 31, 1985 have on the disposition of this case. More specifically, it must be determined if the settlement constituted an accord and satisfaction of the dispute such that complainant is estopped from seeking further legal redress. Three elements must be present in order for a defense of accord and satisfaction to prevail. First, there must be a bona fide dispute over a preexisting contract. Second, there must be a compromise whereby one party agrees to pay the other party a sum in excess of that which he admitted he owed and the receipt by the other party of a sum less than what he claimed was due him, all for the purpose of settling the dispute. Third, the parties must perform (satisfy) the settlement agreement. See, Delharme Industries, Inc. v. Houston Beechcraft, Inc., 669 F.2d 1049 (5th Cir. 1982).

There is no doubt that a bona fide dispute arose regarding the sale by complainant of the four loads of lambs to respondent. Complainant objected to the amount it was paid for the four loads of lambs and respondent maintained throughout that he did not owe any more than what was paid to complainant by the packers.

A more difficult issue is raised regarding whether complainant agreed to discharge its claim in exchange for an amount less than it claimed. Initially, complainant sought approximately $11,000.00 from respondent. Respondent paid complainant $1,408.00 for what he believed was a final settlement. This settlement was mediated by a representative of the Packers and Stockyards Administration. The amount $1,408.00, was arrived at by determining the live weights of the lambs from scale tickets provided to officials of the Packers and Stockyards Administration by Iowa Lamb Corporation and multiplying the total live weight by 63¢ and subtracting the amount paid complainant by Iowa Lamb Corporation. Complainant received a check for $1,408.00 from the respondent and deposited it immediately.

Testimony from both Mitch Moldenhauer, complainant's clerk and Ed Moldenhauer, a principal of complainant indicated that they did not consider the $1,408.00 settlement to be final. The Packers and Stockyards Administration report of investigation into this dispute, however, states that "[o]n January 31, 1985, Neurohr agreed to make settlement to Moldenhauer. . . . "Settlement" in the ordinary sense of the term implies final. It must therefore be concluded that the Packers and Stockyards Administration official who mediated the dispute believed that a final settlement was reached. It must also be assumed that the Packers and Stockyards Administration official indicated to the complainant that the negotiations were for a final settlement. There is no logical purpose in doing anything less. Although testimony from Mitch and Ed Moldenhauer indicated otherwise, on the whole, it is inconceivable that complainant did not consider the payment of $1408.00 to be a final resolution of the dispute. The second element of an accord and satisfaction is, therefore, satisfied.

Satisfaction of the dispute clearly occurred when respondent tendered and complainant accepted and deposited the check. Based on all of these facts it must be concluded that there was an accord and satisfaction of the dispute of $1408.00.

As in the case of other contracts, this accord and satisfaction could be set aside if there was evidence of fraud, mistake or accident. See, Kirkpatrick v. Templeton Sales Yard, 33 Agric. Dec. 639 (1974). The record is clear that a determination was made by the Packers and Stockyards Administration and is not disputed by respondent that the scale tickets upon which the settlement was based are false. No evidence is contained in the record that would indicate the respondent fraudulently falsified the scale tickets or even knew of their falsification at the time of the settlement. This proceeding is without jurisdiction over meat packers. Iowa Lamb Corporation is a meat packer and the entity from which the allegedly false scale tickets were acquired. There is also no evidence of what relationship existed between the respondent and Iowa Lamb Corporation at the time of the alleged fraud, thereby precluding any determination of an agency relationship between them at that time. Without more facts and the presence of Iowa Lamb Corporation in this proceeding it is impossible to determine what if any fraud occurred and what part if any might be attributable to the respondent.

An accord and satisfaction of the dispute took place on or about January 31, 1985 and while there is some indication of fraud in its execution, this proceeding has neither the evidence nor the jurisdiction to determine the liability of respondent, if any, regarding that fraud. It is therefore not necessary to reach the merits of complainant's allegations as there is nothing in the record that would abrogate the January 31, 1985 settlement.

ORDER

Accordingly, the complaint in this proceeding is hereby dismissed.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.;

hereinafter referred to as the "Act"), instituted by a complaint filed on January 28, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The complaint alleges among other things, that during the period September 1984 through February 1985, Respondent failed to make full payment promptly to 85 sellers, of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $1,087,262.29 for 324 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, which it purchased, received, and accepted in interstate commerce. Such actions were alleged to constitute willful, flagrant and repeated violations of the PACA. A copy of the complaint was served upon Respondents. Respondents filed an Answer admitting their licensing under the PACA and the termination of such licenses upon their failure to pay the required annual license fees. Respondents denied all other material allegations of the complaint and raised a number of affirmative defenses. Respondents and Complainant have now agreed to the entry of the Findings of Fact and a Decision and Order as set forth herein. DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on February 19, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period November 1983 through March 1985, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 29 sellers, 59 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the total amount of $132,460.30. Also, it is alleged that, during the period June 1984 through January 1985, respondent, acting as a broker, negotiated transactions on behalf of four principals (two of whom are among the 29 sellers) involving six lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, in interstate commerce, that it was authorized to collect the proceeds from such transactions on behalf of these principals, that it did make such collections, but that it failed to account truly and correctly to these principals and failed to remit to them a total of $9,764.14.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto in which it generally denied the material allegations in the complaint, but admitted the allegations in the complaint regarding its bankruptcy filing. Complainant now has filed a motion for a decision generally based on respondent's admissions in its bankruptcy proceeding.[1] Based upon these admissions, the precedent which this forum is bound to follow requires that complainant's motion be granted.[2] Therefore, upon the motion of the complainant for the issuance of a default order, the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, A. Levy Distributing Co., Inc., is a corporation, whose address is 1559 West Shaw Avenue, Fresno, California 93711.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 830669 was issued to respondent on March 11, 1983, was renewed annually, presently is in effect, and was next subject to renewal on or before March 11, 1987.[3]

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint,[4] during the period June 1984 through January 1985, respondent, acting as a broker, negotiated transactions on behalf of four principals, involving six lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, in interstate commerce. In accordance with agreements between respondent and its principals, respondent was authorized to negotiate sales or consignment transactions of fruits and vegetables, collect the authorized purchase prices or net proceeds for the fruits and vegetables, and remit the proceeds collected to the sellers, less the reasonable brokerage fee. Respondent invoiced the various receivers for the shipments of fruits and vegetables collected the proceeds for said shipments, but failed to account truly and correctly and to remit to the sellers the monies due them which totalled $9,764.14.

4. As more fully set forth in paragraph 6 of the complaint, during the period November 1983 through March 1985 respondent purchased, received and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce, from 29 sellers, 59 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $132,460.30.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 65 transactions set forth in Findings of Fact Nos. 3 and 4, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

CONSENT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed on September 29, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

The complaint further alleges that with respect to certain of these lots of perishable agricultural commodities, purchased in transactions between October, 1985, and February, 1986, 14 of these sellers timely filed written notices preserving statutory trust interests totalling $305,693.91 and that the respondents failed to maintain and dissipated assets subject to such trust. Such actions were alleged to constitute willful, flagrant and repeated violations of the PACA. A copy of the complaint was served upon the respondent. Respondent and complainant have now agreed to the entry of the Findings of Fact and a Decision and Order as set forth herein. Therefore, pursuant to section 1.138 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.138), the following Decision and Order is issued without further procedure or hearing.

6. The Secretary has jurisdiction over respondent and the subject matter involved herein.

7. As set forth more fully in paragraph 6 of the complaint, during the period October, 1985, through March, 1986, respondents failed to make full payment promptly to 18 sellers of the agreed purchase prices, or balances thereof, in the total amount of $451,000.31 for purchases of perishable agricultural commodities, purchased, received, and accepted in interstate commerce.

8. Respondent admits that it received statutory trust notices from some unpaid sellers in the amount of approximately $80,000.00 and that it failed to maintain and wilfully dissipated assets subject to such trust interests.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of section 2 of the PACA (7 U.S.C. § 499b), by failing to make full payment promptly with respect to the transactions set forth in Findings of Fact No. 7 above and by failing to maintain the trust interests set forth in Findings of Fact No. 9, above, for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent AAA's license is revoked, Provided, however, that if AAA makes full payment of the amount due and owing referred to in Finding of Fact No. 7 herein on or before December 15, 1986, the revocation will be remitted to a suspension of the license for 90 days commencing on March 1, 1987.

REPARATION DECISIONS

MICHAEL S. McKAY d/b/a OLYMPIC PRODUCE v. RICHARD SHELTON d/b/a MID-VALLEY BROKERAGE COMPANY. PACA Docket No. 2-7216. Decided September 4, 1986.

Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER REQUIRING PAYMENT OF UNDISPUTED AMOUNT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely formal complaint was filed on February 24, 1986. Complainant seeks to recover $2,268.75 which amount is alleged to be the total purchase price for a trucklot of onions sold to and accepted by respondent on November 22, 1985. Respondent filed an answer to the formal complaint on June 27, 1986, admitting that $934.19 of the amount claimed by complainant was due and owing to complainant on account of the transaction involved herein.

Section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499g(a)) provides in part:

> If after the respondent has filed his answer to the complaint, it appears therein that the respondent has admitted liability for a portion of the amount claimed in the complaint as damages, the Secretary . . . may issue an order directing the respondent to pay the complainant the undisputed amount . . . leaving the respondent's liability for the disputed amount for subsequent determination.

Accordingly, under the authority of the above quoted section, respondent shall pay to complainant, as an undisputed amount, $934.19. Payment of this amount shall be made within 30 days from the date of this order with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from January 1, 1986, until paid. A failure to pay this amount within 30 days will constitute a violation of section 2 of the Act. 7 U.S.C. 499b.

It is noted that, in his answer, respondent claims that no interest should be awarded on this amount because he had previously offered it to complainant who refused it. However, respondent's offer was in settlement of the matter and, had it been accepted, would have resulted in an accord and satisfaction. Therefore, complainant could not have accepted the offer. Accordingly, it is proper to award interest on this amount.

Respondent's liability for payment of the disputed amount is left for subsequent determination in the same manner and under the same procedure as if no order for the payment of the undisputed amount had been issued.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

EVERKRISP VEGETABLES, INC., v. ROBERT W. CASTO d/b/a PRIMA CITRUS & FRUIT EXCHANGE. PACA Docket No. 2-7219. Decided September 4, 1986.

Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER REQUIRING PAYMENT OF UNDISPUTED AMOUNT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely formal complaint was filed on February 6, 1986. Complainant seeks to recover $9,920.25 which amount is alleged to be the remaining balance for honeydew melons sold to and accepted by respondent on October 21 and October 29, 1985. Respondent filed an answer to the formal complaint on June 3, 1986, admitting that $622.50 of the amount claimed by complainant was due and owing to complainant on account of the transaction(s) involved herein.

Section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499g(a)) provides in part:

> If after the respondent has filed his answer to the complaint, it appears therein that the respondent has admitted liability for a portion of the amount claimed in the complaint as damages, the Secretary . . . may issue an order directing the respondent to pay the complainant the undisputed amount . . . leaving the respondent's liability for the disputed amount for subsequent determination.

Accordingly, under the authority of the above quoted section, respondent shall pay to complainant, as an undisputed amount, $622.50. Payment of this amount shall be made within 30 days from the date of this order with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from December 1, 1985, until paid. A failure to pay this amount within 30 days will constitute a violation of section 2 of the Act. 7 U.S.C. 499b.

Respondent's liability for payment of the disputed amount is left for subsequent determination in the same manner and under the same procedure as if no order for the payment of the undisputed amount had been issued.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

NAT FEINN SALES CORPORATION v. WEINSTEIN PRODUCE SALES, INC.
PACA Docket No. 2-7329. Decided September 4, 1986.

Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $1,014.35 in connection with a shipment of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Nat Feinn Sales Corporation, is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 848, Fresno, California 93712. Respondent, Weinstein Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 7364, Boise, Idaho. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $1,014.35. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $1,014.35, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from July 1, 1985, until paid.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $31,253.00 in connection with two shipments of tomatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto in which it admitted being obligated to complainant in the amount of $17,326.00, but denied any further liability to complainant. In addition, respondent enclosed its check in the amount of $17,326.00 made payable to the complainant which it authorized the Department to release to complainant as an undisputed amount. Subsequent thereto, that check was made available to complainant who negotiated it.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeded $15,000.00, the parties waived oral hearing. Therefore, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties is considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. The complainant filed a verified opening statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Earl J. Roy, is an individual doing business as Avoyelles Sweet Potato Auction and also trading as Earl J. Roy Produce, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 134, Hessmer, Louisiana 71341.

2. Respondent, Terrific Tomato Brokers, Inc. a/t/a Terrific Tomato Co., is a corporation whose mailing address is 11459 Little Bear Drive, Boca Raton, Florida 33429. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 26, 1985, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold to respondent a truckload of green tomatoes, U.S. Combination Grade, consisting of 588

6×6, 719 6×7, and 293 5×6 lugs, f.o.b. Immokalee, Florida. The tomatoes were the subject of a shipping point inspection on the same date and were graded as U.S. Combination Grade. On or about that same date, the complainant invoiced the respondent for the tomatoes at the following prices: $11.00 per lug for the 6×6 tomatoes, $9.00 per lug for the 6×7 tomatoes, and $13.00 per lug for the 5×6 tomatoes for a total f.o.b. price of $16,748.00.

4. On or about January 27, 1985, in the course of interstate commerce, by oral contract, complainant sold to respondent a truckload of green tomatoes, U.S. Combination Grade, consisting of 313 lugs 5×6, 766 lugs 6×6, and 521 lugs 6×7 tomatoes. On that same date, the tomatoes were the subject of a federal shipping point inspection and were graded as U.S. Combination Grade. Also, on that same date, the complainant invoiced the respondent for the tomatoes at the following prices: the 6×6 tomatoes at $9.00 per lug, the 6×7 tomatoes at $8.00 per lug, and the 5×6 tomatoes at $11.00 per lug, for a total f.o.b price of $14,505.00.

5. Each truckload of tomatoes was shipped on the day it was inspected, and was received by the respondent in good order. The respondent also received each of the invoices referenced above. On February 15, 1985, the respondent returned each of the invoices to the complainant, noting on each the following: "The prices on this invoice do not reflect market prices as agreed. Please rebill." Subsequent to receipt thereof, the complainant perfected his right to trust protection pursuant to section 5 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499e), and resent the invoices to respondent.

6. On or about March 1, 1985, the respondent sent checks to the complainant in the amounts of $7,584.00 and $7,148.00 with respect to the shipments. By letter dated April 8, 1985, the complainant returned these checks to respondent.

7. As reported in the Federal-State Market News for Monday, January 28, 1985, the market price for mature green tomatoes in the relevant sizes, in Florida, on that date, were as follows: 5×6—$20.00, 6×6—$18.00, and 6×7—$16.00. Demand was noted as being "moderate," and the market was noted as being "steady." On the following day, demand was noted as being "light," and the market was noted as being "much lower." Also, on January 29, 1985, the prices for the relevant sizes of mature green tomatoes in Florida was noted as being as follows: 5×6—$15.00, 6×6—$14.00, and 6×7—$12.00.

8. The formal complaint was filed on May 22, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The sole issue in dispute between the parties concerns the price agreed upon for the two truckloads of tomatoes which respondent admits purchasing and receiving from complainant. Complainant alleges that the tomatoes were sold at specific agreed prices. The respondent contends, in contradistinction to this, that the prices were not specifically agreed upon, but rather were to be "market prices." The sales of these tomatoes took place on a Saturday and Sunday preceding a week in which the market prices of tomatoes apparently began to drop drastically. However, irrespective of the fact that the tomato prices dropped drastically on the Tuesday following the Saturday and Sunday sale of these two truckloads of tomatoes, the prices at which the complainant invoiced the respondent ($8.00–$13.00) were lower than even the market prices on that Tuesday ($12.00–$15.00). Therefore, even were we to rule in respondent's favor on the question of whether or not the parties agreed to a specific contract price, and hold that the parties did not so agree, but rather that they agreed the tomatoes were to be billed at the "market price," we would still order it to pay the complainant the prices which the complainant invoiced it. In view of this, we hold that the respondent was obligated to the complainant in the total amount of $31,253.00. It has paid complainant $17,326.00, and remains obligated to complainant in the amount of $13,927.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, the respondent shall pay the complainant, as reparation, $13,927.00 plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $5,801.60 in connection with a shipment of tomatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00. Therefore, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. The respondent filed a verified answering statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Woody's Tomato Corp., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 962, Palmetto, Florida 33561.

2. Respondent, D. Scolaro Produce Co., is a corporation whose mailing address is Tampa Wholesale Produce Market, P.O. Box 11064, Tampa, Florida 33680. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about May 9, 1984, the respondent placed an order with Mott and Simmons Brokerage and Sales Corp., P.O. Box 1105, LaBelle, Florida 33935, for two loads of 6×7 tomatoes. Later that day, the broker confirmed that the order had been placed with Ruskin Vegetable Corp., address unknown. On May 10, respondent was informed by Mott and Simmons that only one of these loads was placed in the gas room, but that the other load would be placed in the gas room later that same day. However, on May 11, Mott and Simmons informed respondent that Ruskin Vegetable Corp. would not be able to fill the order for the second load of 6×7 tomatoes.

Consequently, respondent instructed Mott and Simmons to purchase a second load from someone else. On or about May 15, 1984, Mott and Simmons reported to the respondent that it had placed the order for the second load of 6×7 tomatoes with complainant.

4. On or about May 15, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract sold to the respondent one truckload of tomatoes consisting of 1,584 cartons, size 6×7, grade Yes Mam, at an agreed price of $3.00 per carton, plus $237.60 for palletizing, $792.00 for gassing, and $20.00 for a temperature recorder, for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $5,801.60.

5. At sometime on the day on which the respondent purchased the subject load of tomatoes from complainant, it lost its customer for the load. It then requested that Mott and Simmons place the load elsewhere. Mott and Simmons was able to place the tomatoes with Fred Karem & Sons, Scranton, Pennsylvania.

6. The load of tomatoes was shipped to respondent's customer, Fred Karem & Sons, in Scranton, Pennsylvania, on or about May 16, 1984. The tomatoes were unloaded from the truck by Fred Karem & Sons. Without having them inspected, Fred Karem & Sons notified the respondent through Mott and Simmons that it was rejecting the load of tomatoes. It then had the load of tomatoes placed on board another truck and shipped to the East Tennessee Produce Co., Knoxville, Tennessee. On May 21, 1984, the tomatoes were the subject of a federal lot inspection at the place of business of East Tennessee Produce Company. The inspection certificate (F 048081) indicates that the tomatoes were unloaded from the truck, that the temperature of the tomatoes was 50 to 59°F, and that the condition of the tomatoes was as follows:

> Average approximately 5% turning or pink, and 85% light red or red. Decay ranges 2 to 22%, average 12%. Bacterial Soft Rot and Gray Mold Rot each mostly in advanced some in early stages. In most samples from 2 to 10 percent, in some none, average 4% damage by numerous sunken discolored areas occurring over the shoulders.

7. The respondent received $3,168.00 from East Tennesse Produce which also paid freight of $700.00.

8. The informal complaint was filed on August 30, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Inasmuch as the respondent's customer in Scranton, Pennsylvania, Fred Karem & Sons, unloaded the tomatoes from the truck, we must conclude that the respondent received and accepted the load of tomatoes. Thereon Hooker v. Ben Gatz Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 1109 (1971). Having received and accepted the load of tomatoes, it is obligated to the complainant for the contract price, less any damages caused by a breach of contract committed by the complainant. The burden of proving such a breach and such damages is on respondent. Sunny Ridge Farms v. Edward Dilatush & Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 961 (1971). There is no evidence that the complainant committed any breach of contract. Fred Karem & Sons, the respondent's customer in Scranton, Pennsylvania neglected to obtain a federal inspection with regard to the tomatoes. The tomatoes, therefore, were not inspected until May 21 in Knoxville, Tennessee. However, such an inspection, which took place after the tomatoes had been in transport from Florida to Pennsylvania, unloaded in Pennsylvania, reloaded, and then transported from Pennsylvania to Tennessee, over a five day period, cannot be said to reflect the condition of the tomatoes upon arrival in Pennsylvania on May 18, 1984. Pan-American v. Hazzouri, 25 Agric. Dec. 681 (1966). In view of this, we must conclude that the respondent has failed to prove any breach of contract on the part of the complainant. It is therefore obligated to the complainant for the full contract price, or $5,801.60.

In so concluding, we note that respondent may have had a cause of action against Mott and Simmon and/or Fred Karem & Sons under the Act for their actions or failures to act.[1] However, the existence of such a cause of action would not exculpate respondent from its liability to complainant. Respondent's failure to pay the complainant $5,801.60 is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, the respondent shall pay to complainant $5,801.60, as reparation, plus interest in the amount of 13 percent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $19,370.00 in connection with the sale and shipment of a carload lot of potatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon respondent, which filed an answer denying liability. Although the amount claimed as damages exceeds $15,000, because neither party requested an oral hearing, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is being used in this proceeding. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. Both parties used their opportunities to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant S&H, Inc., is a corporation doing business as Ida-Pride Potato Co., (hereinafter "Ida-Pride") with a mailing address at P.O. Box 68, Hazelton, Idaho 83335. At the time of the transaction involved herein, Ida-Pride was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent Gary Watkins Produce Co. (hereinafter "Watkins") is a corporation with a mailing address at 3160 Produce Row, Houston, Texas 77023. At the time of the transaction involved herein, Watkins was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about May 8, 1984, Ida-Pride sold, by oral contract, to Watkins one carload of potatoes in interstate commerce at an agreed delivered price of $23,020.00.

4. The transaction involved herein was negotiated by Steve Weidenbaker, d/b/a Steve's Brokerage Co. of Humble, Texas, (hereinafter "Steve's") who acted as agent for Ida-Pride.

5. The potatoes were shipped on May 11, 1984, to Houston, Texas, where they arrived on May 15, 1984.

6. Without the authorization or knowledge of Ida-Pride, Steve's negotiated a reduction in price for the potatoes from $23,020.00 to $22,427.57 based upon Watkins' count of the different sizes of potatoes unloaded from the railroad car in Houston.

7. Without the authorization or knowledge of Ida-Pride, Steve's billed and collected $22,427.57 from Watkins as payment for the potatoes. Steve's has not remitted any portion of that payment to Ida-Pride.

8. In order to retain its credit with the railroad, Watkins has paid the railroad freight bill of $3,650.00 but has not paid Ida-Pride the remaining $19,370.00 of the purchase price of the carload of potatoes purchased on May 8, 1984.

9. The informal complaint was filed within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

SUBSIDIARY FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS

Watkins contends it did not receive the original bill Ida-Pride mailed to Watkins in May of 1984, but only a copy which arrived in August of 1984, long after it had paid Steve's on June 13, 1984. Watkins argues that if Ida-Pride had used certified mail to send the May billing or if it had followed up within 30 days of shipment, Watkins would have been prevented from paying Steve's based upon Steve's misrepresentation that it was authorized to receive payment. Watkins further argues that Ida-Pride's past use of brokers to bill and collect cloaked Steve's with apparent authority to do so in the instant case, and that Watkins reasonably relied upon that apparent authority. Ida-Pride, on the other hand, contends it only authorized a few established brokers to bill and collect and would not grant such authority to a newly formed company such as Steve's with no established credit rating. Therefore, Ida-Pride argues, Steve's did not have apparent authority to receive payment.

Since there is no requirement that shippers send bills by certified mail or follow-up unpaid billings within 30 days, Watkins' argument in this regard cannot be credited.

Steve's had no actual authority to receive payment. The question is whether it had apparent authority as a result of Ida-Pride conduct. Although Ida-Pride used brokers for approximately 75% of its business, only three long-established firms had been granted authority to bill and collect: C.H. Robinson Company, Tom Lange Company, and Ruby Robinson Company. Watkins had bought and paid for Ida-Pride potatoes through only one of these, C.H. Robinson Company, on only three occasions in September and October of 1983 before the transaction in dispute occurred in May 1984. This very limited experience with C.H. Robinson Company was not sufficient ground for Watkins reasonably to conclude that Steve's had the same authority to bill and collect for Ida-Pride as did C.H. Robinson, particularly when Steve's was a new company without demonstrated financial reliability. A grant of authority to one broker agent by a shipper does not in itself constitute a grant of the same authority to all broker agents of that shipper.

In Pasco County Peach Association v. J.F. Smolley & Company, 164 F. 2d (4th Cir. 1949), 8 Agric. Dec. 327 (1949), the Fourth Circuit Court refused to imply a seller's agent had authority to receive payment in the absence of actual authority and stated: "The rule was long ago established that when one deals with or through an agent he assumes all the risks of lack of authority in the agent . . . The burden of any necessary diligence to ascertain the agent's authority rests on the party dealing with the agent." 146 F. 2d 880, 883. Further, the mere authority to sell does not confer the authority to receive payment. J. Manning & Co. v. Bass & Swaggerty 34 Agric. Dec. 1036 (1975). J. Manning & Co. v. Red's Market, 33 Agric. Dec. 1848, and cases cited at 1851-2 (1974).

When Watkins did not inquire to determine whether Steve's in fact had actual authority to receive payment, it assumed the risk that Steve's did not have such authority, and authority to receive payment cannot be implied under the circumstances of this case. Therefore, payment to Steve's and the later payment of freight to the railroad does not discharge Watkin's liability to Ida-Pride. Failure to pay Ida-Pride the full purchase price of the potatoes minus freight constitutes a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent, Gary Watkins Produce Co., Inc., shall pay to complainant, S&H, Inc., as reparation $19,370.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

SUNSHINE STATE PRODUCE SALES, INC. v. SUMTER VEGETABLE COOPERATIVE. PACA Docket No. 2-6899. Decided September 5, 1986.

Failure to pay total commission—failure to prove—reparation awarded.

From findings it emerges that complainant and respondent entered into contract whereby complainant would act as grower's agent in sales of respondent's produce. On sales effected, complainant was to receive 6% commission, but respondent failed to pay total due. He alleged he was entitled to credit for six transactions handled by complainant, but in this claim respondent was nebulous and submitted insufficient evidence supporting the claim. Respondent was, accordingly, directed to pay reparation to complainant in the amount of the unpaid commission due, plus interest.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $10,332.66 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of numerous loads of mixed perishable produce. A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant, and asserting a counterclaim arising out of the same transactions. Complainant filed a reply to the counterclaim.

The amount claimed in neither the formal complaint nor counterclaim exceeds $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Sunshine State Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1500 West Atlantic Boulevard, Pompano Beach, Florida. At the time of the transactions involved herein complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent, Sumter Vegetable Cooperative, is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 648, Webster, Florida. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. At some time during the latter part of April or the early part of May of 1984, complainant and respondent entered into a contract whereby complainant would act as a grower's agent on behalf of respondent in the sale of respondent's produce. Complainant delivered to respondent a written document setting forth the terms of their agreement, and stating that selling charges would be 6% of gross sales, and further stating in relevant part as follows:

> How sales will be made: Naturally we shall do our utmost to sell everything at a firm F.O.B. price. However, authority is granted to us to dispose of your produce according to market, weather and quality conditions as to what we think is to your best advantage. When this becomes necessary, we shall use certain firms with which we have done business for years, also brokers and commission merchants. On such sales, we shall return to you the net proceeds less our customary selling charge. As a normal practice we will not pool or co-mingle various grower's merchandise. However, if it becomes necessary to do so to make a sale, we have the authority to do so.
> The Grower's Agent has the authority to make any adjustments or allowances; also the agent will file all claims on behalf of the Growers. In the event of trouble, the Agent shall determine the necessity of inspections or dump certificates.

4. Gross sales amounted to $1,189,822.40, and the 6% commission on such sales amounted to $71,389.34. Of this amount respondent has paid to complainant $58,449.42, leaving a balance of $12,939.92.

5. The informal complaint was filed on October 9, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant brings this action to recover commissions earned under its grower's agent contract with respondent. Initially complainant alleged that it was aware of receipts totalling $1,150,731.42, which would warrant commissions in the total amount of $69,043.89. Complainant stated that it had received $58,711.23 of this amount from respondent. Complainant also asserted there were other sales after June, 1984, for which complainant had received no commission. During the informal stages of this proceeding complainant admitted that it owed an outstanding balance of $4,592.50 to respondent which should be deducted from the total balance due by respondent to complainant.

Respondent, in its answer, agreed with all of the figures submitted by complainant, and referred to above, except that respondent showed that its payment to complainant amounted to $58,449.42, or $261.81 less than claimed by complainant. It is interesting that complainant in making the often repeated assertion that respondent had paid $58,711.23, attached as an exhibit to its complaint a copy of the check issued by respondent to complainant in the amount of $58,449.42, as well as an accounting from respondent showing the same figure. Neither complainant nor respondent ever explained the discrepancy. We can only surmise that the higher figure used by complainant is to be accounted for by complainant's having credited respondent with the $261.81 discussed below relative to "exhibit" 1. In view of this probability we have used the lower payment figure claimed by respondent in all our computations herein. Subtracting this payment figure, or $58,449.42, from the total of the commissions admitted to be due by respondent leaves a balance of $12,939.92. Respondent does not take issue with this amount. It does assert, however, that it is entitled to credit from complainant in the total amount of $19,704.54 in connection with six of the transactions handled by complainant for respondent. Respondent using its lesser payment figure referred to above computed a balance due to it from complainant of $6,764.62. However, respondent completely failed to take into account in its computations the $4,592.50 which complainant admits it has collected in connection with the sales of respondent's produce, and which it admits is due to respondent.

Basically the only disputed items between respondent and complainant are relative to the six transactions referred to above, in connection with which respondent claims a total of $19,704.54 as being due from complainant. These constitute an affirmative defense on respondent's part, and respondent has the burden of proving that the amounts alleged due in connection with these transactions are in fact due. See Newmiller Farms v. Nicolls, 36 Agric. Dec. 1230 (1977). In its answer respondent set forth each of these six transactions separately, and stated that "there is due complainant $71,389.34 sales commission less the following items: (Exhibits are enclosed for reasons we do not owe this amount)." Respondent then set forth the six separate amounts which total $19,704.54, with an exhibit number beside each, numbered from one to six. Respondent then included an explanation as to each "exhibit". However, except as to item number 6, the exhibits attached to respondent's answer have no real relevance to the items set forth in its answer. We will deal with each of these items separately.

As to "exhibit" 1 respondent asserts that commissions in the amount of $261.81 were taken before adjustments were made to the invoice, and that consequently complainant is not entitled to commissions in such amount. Complainant responded in its reply to the counterclaim that it agreed with this assertion by respondent. Accordingly we conclude that the amount of $261.81 should be deducted from the commissions which would otherwise be due from respondent to complainant.

As to "exhibit" 2 respondent asserts that complainant's representative, Brad Furguson, erroneously shipped large peppers on an order which called for small peppers. Respondent states that Furguson "claims to have made up for this error by overbilling on subsequent invoices". Respondent further asserts that the mistake was not made up for in this manner, and that comparative returns of other growers who were shipping to other sales agents show that such growers were receiving an average of over $2.00 per bushel more for their peppers on the same dates. These nebulous assertions, which are totally unsupported by any documentation, constitute all of respondent's evidence on this point, and on this basis respondent claims that $1,200 is due from complainant to respondent. These claims would be easily dimissed were it not for the fact that complainant in replying to respondent's assertions further muddies the waters by what appears to be an admission. Complainant asserts "as was stated in our letter dated September 7, 1984, there was a $1,200 loss on TWR invoice 5287. TWR made up $900.00 of this $1,200.00 on two other invoices which are noted on the back of invoice 5287. The bookkeeper at Sumter, Mary Ann, is totally aware of this entire situation and has been since the day of occurrence." We are unable to find invoice 5287 anywhere in any of the submissions of the parties in this proceeding. Furthermore, there is no disclosure as to who or what "TWR" is. Complainant has admitted to a $1,200.00 loss on this invoice, but we have no way of knowing how the loss was incurred, whether such loss was the responsibility of complainant. Furthermore complainant apparently claims that $900 of the loss was "made up". On the basis of all of the evidence, such as it is, we conclude that respondent has failed to show that it is due $1,200.00, or any other amount, from complainant as to this transaction.

Respondent asserts that there is due from complainant the sum of $4,173.16 as to "exhibit" 3. While no invoice was submitted to support respondent's assertions, respondent is making this claim relative to 1470 bushels of peppers which were shipped to "De-Marco". Respondent states that the federal inspection made of these peppers following arrival at destination does not "justify cutting the price to 25% of the original sales price". Respondent does not disclose what the original sales price was, but only claims that $4,173.16 is due from complainant on this transaction. There is no assertion, or evidence, from either party as to when the peppers were shipped, or when they arrived, but there is includedas an exhibit to the report of investigation a copy of the federal inspection dated June 18, 1984, covering a portion of the load of peppers which apparently both parties agree was the load in question. The inspection shows that 900 cartons were inspected according to "applicant's count", that temperatures ranged from 47°F. to 49°F., that the inspection was restricted to "product and lading in all layers of eight stacks nearest rear doors", and that the van was loaded to within 15 feet of the rear doors. Respondent asserts that the inspection was too restricted to be representative of the load and consequently the low returns were not justified. If respondent had submitted documentation showing the original invoice price, and had proven the time of shipment and time of arrival of the peppers, there might have been more substance to respondent's claim. However, under the circumstances of this case, and considering the broad discretion granted to complainant to make adjustments on respondent's merchandise, we are unable to find that respondent has proven that any amount is due from complainant to respondent on this load of peppers.

As to "exhibit" 4 respondent states that "much of what was said about item 3 applies to this exhibit", but does not state specifically what part of what was said concerning item 3 it has reference to. Respondent asserts that it is due $4,959.50 as to item 4. Again, respondent did not submit any invoice, and we have no way of knowing the sale price of this load of produce. A federal inspection covering this load of peppers was also included as an exhibit to the report of investigation. Such inspection covers a load which, according to "applicant's count" consisted of 1444 cartons. The inspection was also made at the place of business of DeMarco Produce in Rosenhayn, New Jersey, and was made on June 21, 1984, at 4:58 p.m. Such inspection shows the temperature of the peppers to have been, at various locations, 48°F. to 49°F. and states that the inspection and certificate are restricted to product and lading in nine stacks nearest rear doors. Respondent again asserts that "this is a very inadequate inspection to justify a reduction in price in 25% of agreed sales price." However, respondent has not shown what the original sales price was and has not shown when the load was shipped, or when it arrived at destination. We conclude that respondent has failed to show that it is due any amount from complainant as to this load.

As to "exhibit" 5 respondent states that it is due the sum of $2,805.07 from complainant. Respondent's justification for claiming this amount is as follows: "A total of $46,751.27 was returned below our packing costs, which are $2.50 per bushel. As per our verbal agreement with Sunshine State Produce Sales, Inc., these items were not to be charged sales fees." Respondent does not show how the claimed $2,805.07 is related to the justification which it gives claiming such amount. We find that respondent has shown no reason why it should be credited with the claimed $2,805.07.

As to "exhibit" 6 respondent sets forth four invoice numbers with amounts totalling $6,305.00 which it states represent amounts paid to complainant, and not remitted to respondent. Complainant's reply is that it has already admitted owing respondent $4,592.50. However, complainant does not go on to state that it does not owe the balance claimed by respondent on these four invoices. Complainant does state at a later point in its reply to respondent's counterclaim that it feels that "the above statements and facts disprove the counterclaim submitted by Sumter Vegetable Cooperative." However, part of the above statements referred to include complainant's admission as to the first "exhibit." We conclude that complainant has in effect admitted that the balance claimed on the invoices set forth as respondent's "exhibit" 6, or $6,305.00, is in fact due to respondent. We also conclude that the $4,592.50 which complainant has admitted owing respondent corresponds to at least some of the invoices referenced in respondent's "exhibit" 6 and that such $4,592.50 must be viewed as a part of the $6,305.00 admittedly due to respondent. Apart from this admission by complainant we would be unable to credit respondent with any of the amounts claimed relative to its "exhibit" 6 since respondent submitted insufficient evidence or documentation that such amounts had indeed been paid to complainant, and not remitted to respondent.

Of the $12,939.92 in commissions which we have found to be due to complainant on the sales of respondent's produce there remains, after offsetting the amounts due from complainant to respondent, a total of $6,373.11. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest. Since the above computations take into consideration respondent's counterclaim against complainant, such counterclaim should be dismissed.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $6,373.11, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from August 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

The Statement of a Broker, entitled to great weight—An express warranty may be any promise or guarantee by a seller which entices a buyer or consignor to accept goods—Breach of an express warranty justifies rejection.

The parties agreed to a consignment of 1,764 cartons of cantaloupes by complainant to respondent. Complaint made express warranty that the cantaloupes would be in good condition and "not green". Respondent, through statement of broker, proved a breach of that express warranty.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), hereinafter, "the Act."A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the total amount of $9,287.30, in connection with the consignment of 1,764 cartons of cantaloupes in interstate commerce. A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent and respondent filed a timely answer.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000, the shortened method of procedure set forth in the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence herein, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent did not file an answering statement. Complainant also filed a brief, while respondent chose not to do so.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. S. Stamoules, Inc., a/t/a Stamoules Produce Co. is a corporation whose business mailing address is P.O. Box 56, Mendota, California 93640.

2. Sid Goodman & Co., Inc. is a corporation whose business mailing address is Units 2-12 Building A, Maryland Wholesale Produce Market, Jessup, Maryland 20794. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about August 2, 1984, the parties orally agreed to a consignment of 1,764 cartons of S&S brand cantaloupes 12's by complainant to respondent.

4. The contract for this consignment was negotiated by Sunburst Produce, Co., Inc., a licensed broker located in Bonita, California. As a condition of this contract, complainant guaranteed that the cantaloupes would arrive in good color and condition.

5. Upon arrival on or about August 14, 1984, respondent's agents determined that the color and condition of the cantaloupes were not as guaranteed, and communicated a rejection to complainant.

6. Complainant initially sought to find another consignee or a buyer for the melons with the assistance of Sunburst Produce Co., Inc. Subsequently, complainant attemped to refuse the rejection tendered by respondent.

7. An inspection conducted approximately three days after arrival showed that the color and condition of the cantaloupes were not as guaranteed.

8. The formal complaint in this proceeding was filed on March 7, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The record supports the conclusion that the complainant expressly warranted the color and condition of the consignment of cantaloupes and that they were not delivered in conformity with that warranty. The record further supports the conclusion that the complainant accepted respondent's rejection of the cantaloupes. Either one of these conclusions is sufficient to warrant a dismissal of the complaint.

The record supports respondent's contention that at the time of negotiating this contract, respondent specifically informed complainant that it would not accept or handle the melons unless they were not green and were of good quality. The broker who negotiated this contract confirms that this was a requirement of the respondent and that these terms were stated to the complainant, which then guaranteed the shipment in accordance with the requirements of the respondent. The statement of the broker, an impartial third party is entitled to great weight.Homestead Tomato Packing Co. v. Mims Produce 43 Agric. In the present proceeding, it is sufficient to carry respondent's burden of proving the existence of an express warranty. Spada Distributing Co. Inc. v. Michael Swanson Brady Produce Co. 19 Agric. Dec. 88 (1980). An express warranty may be any guarantee or promise by a seller which induces a buyer to purchase goods, or a consignee to accept the goods. Wine Produce Co. v. Arrowhead Growers Sales, 17 Agric. Dec. 1243 (1958).

The inspection which was performed at respondent's request clearly shows that the cantaloupes were "mostly green" at the time of arrival. This establishes the breach of contract by the complainant. Where the goods delivered are not of the kind or quality contracted for, the buyer or consignee may refuse to accept them. Franklin Produce Exchange v. Kelly, 17 Agric. Dec. 756 (1958). In this case, respondent's rejection was in clear and unmistakable terms, as it must to be. Davison Grape Co. v. Mercurio 18 Agric. Dec. 1434 (1959).

Furthermore, the record supports a finding that complainant accepted respondent's rejection of the cantaloupes. The statement of the broker establishes that after the rejection was communicated to complainant, the complainant requested, and the broker provided assistance in attempting to locate another consignee or a buyer. It was only after these attempts were unsuccessful that the complainant decided respondent must pay for the shipment. Complainant's telegrams communicating a refusal to accept the rejection do not change this result since complainant's statements to the broker could be properly interpreted as reversing that refusal. In any event, as concluded above, the rejection was made in clear and unmistakable terms and the respondent was entitled to reject the cantaloupes as a result of complainant's breach of its express warranty.

ORDER

The complaint in this proceeding is hereby dismissed.

JOHN K. HARMON d/b/a HARMON COMPANY PRODUCE v. PACIFIC GAMBLE ROBINSON COMPANY a/t/a PACIFIC FRUIT AND PRODUCE COMPANY. PACA Docket No. 2-6939. Decided September 8, 1986.

Unloading constitutes acceptance—Proof that commodity is commercially worthless in absence of dump certificate—Use of Market News quotations to establish market price.

Inspection report showing 44% condition damages and receiver's daily shrink report showed some 38% of shipment dumped is sufficient evidence to show 38% commercially worthless so as to justify dumping. Respondent entitled to claim these damages for receiving non-conforming goods.

In dispute over whether there was an agreement to return bins in shipping watermelons, Market News Reports were used to establish complainant charged only market price for watermelons and therefore established that bins were to be returned.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act. A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $4,047.10 in connection with the sale of watermelons in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint and a copy of the Department's report of investigation were served upon respondent. A copy of the report of investigation was served upon complainant.

Respondent filed an answer alleging that it was not liable for the entire amount claimed because some of the watermelons were damaged and had to be dumped. Respondent asserted that it owed complainant only $1,524.35 after appropriate deductions were taken. An order requiring payment of the undisputed amount was entered on October 7, 1985 and such payment has been made.

Since the amount claimed in damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided for in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) applies. Pursuant to such procedure, the parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements. Both parties filed opening statements. Respondent filed an answering statement and complainant filed a statement in reply. Respondent also filed a brief in the form of a closing statement. Complainant declined the opportunity to file a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant John K. Harmon, hereinafter referred to as the complainant, is an individual doing business as Harmon Company Produce whose address is 3821 E. Bronco Trail, Phoenix, Arizona 85044.

2. Respondent, Pacific Gamble Robinson Company, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is a corporation which also trades as Pacific Fruit and Produce Company, whose address is 3140 North Webster, Portland, Oregon 97217.

3. Both parties are, and at all times herein were, licensed with the Secretary of Agriculture to do business under the Act.

4. On June 22, 1984, complainant sold to respondent one truckload of striped, number one quality watermelons in interstate commerce at an agreed price of 7¢ a pound. The total invoice price was $3,417.10 which included a charge for additional pallets required in shipping the watermelons in an open bed truck, f.o.b. The invoice price did not include a charge for the 42 bins in which the watermelons were shipped.

5. The truck arrived at respondent's place of business on June 25, 1984, where they were received and accepted. A federal inspection was made of the watermelons on June 25, 1984. The report shows that 40 bins of watermelons were inspected in respondent's warehouse. The relevant results were as follows:

> Condition: Generally firm. Average 4% damage by transit rubs. From 1 to 3 melons per sample (20 to 60%), average 35% damage including 10% serious damage by internal rind spot. Decay in most samples 1 to 2 melons per sample (5 to 10%), many none, average 5%. Decay is brown, moist, firm and has a sour odor.

6. Watermelons weighting 18,100 pounds were dumped by respondent. Respondent did not obtain an official dump certificate.

7. The formal complaint was filed on March 12, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This case involves the questions of whether the watermelons shipped met the specifications of the contract and if not, whether the receiver-respondent has proved that they were commercially worthless so as to justify being dumped. Another issue to be resolved is whether the respondent agreed to return the bins and pallets used to transport the watermelons as complainant alleged. Respondent asserts that it had to dump 18,100 pounds of watermelons which were damaged. It is well established, however, that by unloading the watermelons respondent accepted the entire load. See, e.g., Crown Orchard Company v. Mid-Valley Products Corp., 34 Agric. Dec. 1381 (1975); Mario Saikhon v. Russell-Ward Company, Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 1940 (1975). By accepting the watermelons, respondent became liable to complainant for the contract price less any damages resulting from a breach of the contract by complainant. See Theron Hooker Company v. Ben Gatz Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 1109, 112 (1971); Rydell California Potato Co. v. The Kaufman-Brown Potato Company, 16 Agric. Dec. 1055 (1957). The question to be resolved, therefore, is whether respondent has met its burden to show a breach by complainant and, if so, how it was damaged by this breach.

Complainant correctly points out that once the watermelons were taken off the truck and placed in respondent's warehouse, there is no absolute assurance that the watermelons inspected on June 25, 1984, were the watermelons he shipped. Respondent, however, has presented a sworn statement that the watermelons inspected were complainant's, and supported that statement with its inventory report showing that there was only one other small load of watermelons in its possession on the date. Additionally it is noted that the inspection report itself indicates that it inspected 40 bins weighing 45,250 pounds. While, in fact, 42 bins were shipped the figures given are sufficiently close to warrant a finding that the watermelons inspected were those shipped by complainant.

An examination of the inspection report clearly establishes that complainant breached the contract by failing to ship watermelons in conformity with the contract. The inspection report indicates that there was an average of 35% damage including 10% serious damage by internal rind spot. Additionally there was an average 5% decay and 4% damage by transit rub. This is well in excess of the tolerances allowed. See 7 CFR §§ 51.1970–1987.

Respondent asserts that it had to dump 18,100 pounds of watermelons. This is in excess of 38 percent of the load. Under section 46.22 of the regulations (7 CFR § 46.22), respondent has to provide an official dump certificate or other adequate evidence that the produce was commercially worthless if 5 percent or more of a shipment is dumped. No dump certificate was provided. Rather, respondent provided a copy of the federal inspection report for lot 357, and what it calls a Daily Shrinkage Report showing that it dumped 18,100 pounds of watermelons from lot 357 on June 26, 1984. Neither an inspection report showing condition defects or respondent's self generated Daily Shrinkage Report alone are sufficient to show that the produce was commercially worthless. However, where the inspection report shows damage of 44 percent from various factors, we find that the report together with the respondent's shrinkage report constitutes sufficiently adequate evidence that some 38 percent of the load was commercially worthless. Homestead Pole Bean Co-op, Inc. v. Wayne F. Jones, PACA 2-6345, 43 Agric. Dec. ____, (1984); Eggren & Sons, Inc. v. Wood Co., 11 Agric. Dec. 1032 (1952). The inspection report together with the Daily Shrinkage Report constitutes sufficient evidence that respondent properly dumped the watermelons.

Respondent claims damages of $2,127.40 calculated as follows:

$234.65 for an erroneous overcharge of $.005 per pound
$1,267.00 for the cost of the dumped watermelons
$47.70 for 3 hours labor in repacking the load
$543.00 for the freight paid on the dumped watermelons
$35.05 for the USDA inspection fee

The overcharge was corrected in the complaint herein and thus is no longer an issue. Complainant has not asserted that these calculations are unreasonable. The other deductions do seem reasonable and justified under the circumstances and will be allowed with the exception of the inspection fees which have been consistently disallowed since they are considered an expense for obtaining evidence. See, e.g., Ritepak Produce v. Green Grove Markets 29 Agric. Dec. 165, 170 (1970). Total damages are therefore $1,857.70.

The final issue to be resolved in this case is whether the parties agreed that the respondent would return the bins and pallets issued in transporting the watermelons. There is no explicit agreement, but complainant asserts that it is common industry practice for receivers to return the bins. Additionally, complainant argues that had there not been an agreement for the return of the bins, he would have charged for the bins. Instead he alleges he only charged the market price (7¢ per pound). Respondent offers the sworn statement of its Nogales, Arizona manager who denies there was an agreement to return the bins, and denies that it is common industry practice to return bins.

Complainant offers no evidence that the market price of the watermelons alone was 7¢ per pound, but official notice may be taken of relevant market price quotations from applicable Federal Market News Service reports. Arico Distributors, Inc. v. Mandell, Spector, Rudolph Co., 24 Agric. Dec. 1155 (1965). A review of the Market News Service report for the Phoenix, Arizona area for watermelons on June 22, 1984 substantiates complainant's claim that the 7¢ per-pound charged was the market price. See Volume LVIX, Vegetable and Fruit Report No. 182, June 22, 1984. Therefore, we believe complainant has met its burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the invoice price was only for the watermelons, with the bins to be returned to complainant. Complainant has valued the unreturned bins and pallets at $630.00 which was unchallenged by respondent.

In summary, because respondent accepted the watermelons it is liable for the invoice price including the value of the bins less any damages sustained by complainant's failure to ship watermelons conforming to the terms of the contract. Respondent's damages are $1,857.70. This leaves $2,189.40 owing on the contract. Respondent has already paid $1,524.35 which was not in dispute. The amount still unpaid is thus 665.05. The failure of respondent to pay this amount to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act. Reparation should be awarded to complainant in the amount of $665.05, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $665.05, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from August 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

GAC PRODUCE CO., INC., v. G & J PRODUCE, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6942. Decided September 8, 1986.

Disputed price—Liable less sum already paid.

Complainant sold various consignments of tomatoes to respondent, who paid complainant only part of the total amount due. The broker who negotiated the contracts between the parties affirmed to the Department that an adjustment was made in regard to a third load of tomatoes, but he failed to state the amount of the adjustment. Thus, his assertion that an adjustment was made is of no value in that it failed to specify the adjustment amount. The same broker affirmed there were two price reductions agreed to by complainant who, however, disputed the amounts involved. Total balance found due from respondent to complainant was $8,400.80. Accordingly, respondent was directed to pay that amount to complainant with 13% interest yearly until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $16,723.40 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of three truckloads of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, neither party requested an oral hearing, and accordingly the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified complaint is considered a part of the evidence in this proceeding as is the Department's report of investigation. The answer, since it was not verified, is not in evidence. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, GAC Produce Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1231, Nogales, Arizona.

2. Respondent, G & J Produce Inc., is a corporation whose address is 2526 Airline Drive, Suite 106, Houston, Texas. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about August 11, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped from loading point in California to respondent in Houston, Texas, one truckload containing 726 flats of 4×4 pink tomatoes at $10.05 per flat, and 990 flats of 5×5 pink tomatoes at $10.05 per flat, plus 65 cents per flat for palletizing and precooling, or a total of $18,361.20. Respondent accepted the tomatoes on arrival, and has paid complainant $14,928.20 leaving a balance still due of $3,433.00

4. On or about August 13, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped from loading point in California to respondent in Houston, Texas, one truckload containing 858 flats of 4×4 pink tomatoes at $10.05 per flat, and 858 flats of 4×5 pink tomatoes at $10.05 per flat, plus 65 cents per flat for palletizing and precooling, or a total price of $18,361.20. Following arrival of these tomatoes complainant granted respondent an allowance of $8,322.60 which left a balance of $10,038.60.

5. On or about August 15, 1984, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped from loading point in California to respondent in Houston, Texas, one truckload containing 528 flats of 4×4 pink tomatoes at $8.05, 660 flats of 4×5 pink tomatoes at $8.05, and 528 flats of 5×5 pink tomatoes at $8.05, plus 65 cents per flat for palletizing and precooling, or a total price of $14,929.20.

6. The contracts were negotiated through Go For It Brokerage and Procurement, a broker located in Nogales, Arizona.

7. Respondent made payment to complainant in two installments of $10,000.00 each, or a total of $20,000.00 on the last two shipments of tomatoes.

8. An informal complaint was filed on November 8, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The brokerage firm that negotiated the contracts between complainant and respondent affirmed in a letter to the Department, which is included as an exhibit to the Department's report of investigation, that there was no adjustment made as to the purchase price on the first load of tomatoes. Respondent apparently is in agreement with this position, and we conclude that there is due a balance of $3,433.00 to complainant as to this load of tomatoes.

The same broker affirmed that there were two reductions in price agreed to by complainant as to the second load of tomatoes shipped on August 13, 1984. The broker asserted that these two adjustments totalled $4.00 per carton, or a total for the load of $6,864, which would leave a balance still due from respondent to complainant of $11,497.20. However, complainant stated in its informal complaint that the allowance granted on this load was $8,322.60, and that the remaining balance due was $10,038.60. When complainant filed the formal complaint it credited respondent with the $10,000.00 payment made on this load, but claimed as a balance still due $8,361.21. Complainant could only claim such figure by virtue of a failure to give respondent credit for the allowance which complainant had previously admitted. On the basis of complainant's admission we find that there remains due as to the August 13, 1984, load of tomatoes only $38.60.

The broker affirmed in its letter to the Department that an adjustment was made in regard to the third load of tomatoes. However, the broker nowhere states the amount of this adjustment. Respondent states in its unverified answer that the adjusted price on the third load was $6.05 per carton. Unfortunately, this assertion by respondent has no evidentiary standing in this proceeding. While an unverified pleading serves to frame the issues between the parties, it is not a part of the evidentiary record. See Chapman Fruit Co., Inc. v. Tri-State Sales Agency, 44 Agric. Dec. ____, (PACA Docket No. 2-6641), (1985). The broker's assertion that an adjustment was made is of no value since it fails to specify the amount of the adjustment. We conclude that a balance of $4,929.20 remains due on the third load of tomatoes, after deduction of the $10,000.00 paid by respondent. The total amount which we have found to be remaining due from respondent to complainant in this proceeding is $8,400.80. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $8,400.80, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from September 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Complainant failed to sustain its burden of proving that its contracts for the shipment of three loads of watermelons were subject to availability. Respondent entitled to damages due to complainant's breach of contract by failing to ship two of the loads. Respondent's damages are the difference between the contract prices and the prices paid for cover purchases made in good faith and without unreasonable delay. The cover purchases met these standards. Respondent already paid complainant the difference between the contract price for the one accepted load and respondent's damages, and is without further liability.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,093.90 in connection with the shipment of a truckload of watermelons in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs, but declined to do so.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, John W. Head Produce Co., is an individual, John Head, whose address is P.O. Box 1532, Arcadia, Florida.

2. Respondent, Greenbelt Farms, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 433, Crystal Springs, Mississippi. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately May 8, 1985, complainant sold to respondent, by oral contract, three truckloads of medium U.S. number one watermelons at $.07 per pound, f.o.b., for shipment to be made on May 10, 11, and 12, 1985. The contract did not provide that shipment was to be subject to availability. The contract was entered into between complainant's owner, John Head, and respondent's employee, J. N. Barron.

4. On May 10, 1985, complainant shipped in interstate commerce to respondent one truckload of watermelons complying with the contract terms, consisting of 46,330 pounds, for a price of $3,243.10. The watermelons were accepted by respondent. Complainant did not ship any additional loads to respondent.

5. On May 15, 1985, respondent sent a telegram to complainant stating as follows: "Refon [sic?] after a week delay and promise of shipment of three trailer loads of good cutters and quality medium gray watermelons at 7 cents pound f.o.b. expect to buy two loads not yet furnished for your account unless you can load one today and one tomorrow advise."

6. After receiving respondent's telegram, complainant replied on May 16, 1985, as follows:

> In reference to your wire dated May 15, 1985 our terms were subject to availability. Thus without availability our agreement is rescinded. If loads become available you'll be advised with new terms. Buying on my account will not be tolerated. As of May 16, 1985 your account with us has an outstanding balance of $3,243.10. Any misuse or mishandling of this account will be pursued with legal action.

7. In a September 17, 1985, affidavit, James B. Baldwin, Secretary-Treasurer of respondent's customer, Ginsburg-Lansburg, Inc., Sioux City, Iowa, stated that on May 15, 1985, he called complainant's John Head to find out why the watermelons his firm had purchased from respondent, one of the two loads complainant failed to ship, had not been loaded onto the truck. Mr. Baldwin stated as follows, in relevant part:

> During the course of the conversation on May 15th with Mr. Head, in which George Albritton (President of Greenbelt Farms, Inc.) was privy via conference call, Mr. Head admitted that he had no intention of filling the order at that time because the market had become stronger and he was loading multiple loads for other people at a higher price. He indicated that Greenbelt Farms, Inc. could not force delivery and that they had no remedy because they failed to issue a written confirmation and did not furnish any purchase order number. Mr. Head did not indicate that supply was any factor in his refusing to deliver.

In a September 24, 1985, affidavit, respondent's president, George Albritton, asserted the same version of events as Mr. Baldwin regarding the May 15, 1985, telephone conversation with Mr. Head.

8. On approximately May 16, 1985, respondent purchased from Pacific Landco, Immokalee, Florida, a truckload of watermelons consisting of 44,920 pounds at $.09 per pound, for a total of $4,042.80. On approximately May 17, 1985, respondent purchased from Charlie Adcock, Jackson, Mississippi, a truckload of watermelons consisting of 39,850 pounds at $.105 per pound for a total of $4,184.25.

9. On May 24, 1985, respondent sent complainant a check for $1,149.20. Accompanying this was a letter from respondent's Mr. Barron, who said that he had deducted from the $3,242.10 purchase price of the May 10, 1985, load the amount respondent paid in excess of the original contract price for the purchase of two loads of replacement watermelons. Mr. Barron stated that he charged $.02 per pound for 44,920 pounds or $898.40, and $.03 per pound for 39,850 pounds or $1,195.50, for a total price of $2,093.90. Deducting this from the $3,243.10 purchase price of the May 10, 1985, shipment results in $1,149.20, which Mr. Barron claimed to be the balance owed. Complainant accepted the $1,149.20 check as partial payment for the May 10, 1985, load.

10. A formal complaint was filed on July 10, 1985, which was within nine months from when the alleged cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant alleges that respondent wrongfully deducted $2,093.90 from the $3,243.10 contract price of a load of watermelons shipped on May 10, 1985, and accepted by respondent. Respondent claims that its deductions reflected damages incurred when complainant failed to ship two watermelon loads, in breach of contract, and respondent was therefore forced to pay a higher price in making its replacement purchases.

The parties agree that their contract was for the sale of three loads of watermelons, for shipment on May 10, May 11, and May 12, 1985. Complainant insists that the contract terms provided that shipment would be contingent on availability of the watermelons. Respondent denies the existence of such a contingency and claims that complainant's failure to ship two of the three loads constituted a breach of contract. As the moving party herein, it is complainant's burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence the contract terms, respondent's breach of contract, and complainant's resulting damages. Pablo Hernandez d/b/a Pablo Distributors v. Paragon Distributing, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 438 (1983). It is our conclusion that complainant has failed to sustain its burden of proving that the contract provided for shipment to be contingent on the availability of watermelons. Complainant's owner, John Head, has submitted a sworn statement in which he claims that such a provision was part of the contract, but his statement is flatly contradicted by the sworn statement of respondent's employee, J.N. Barron, who negotiated the contract with Mr. Head. In a May 15, 1985, telegram to respondent, in response to respondent's May 15, 1985, telegram demanding that complainant ship the two loads, Mr. Head asserted that subject to availability terms were part of the contract. However, respondent has submitted affidavits by James B. Baldwin, secretary-treasurer of its customer, Ginsburg-Lansburg, Inc., Sioux City, Iowa, who was supposed to receive one of the loads, and respondent's president, George Albritton. According to Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Albritton, they spoke by telephone on May 15, 1985, with Mr. Head, who stated that he did not intend to fill respondent's order because the market had risen, and he was handling many loads for others at a higher price (Finding of Fact 7). Complainant has never denied that this telephone conversation occurred. This evidence casts grave doubt on complainant's claim that shipment was supposed to be subject to availability, and we find that such a term was not part of the contract. Therefore, by failing to ship two of the three loads of watermelons, complainant breached its contract with respondent.

As damages resulting from complainant's failure to ship, respondent was entitled to make a cover purchase, with complainant liable for the difference between the cost of the cover purchase and the contract price, provided the cover purchase was made in good faith and without unreasonable delay. Feldman Brothers Produce Co., Inc. v. A. Pellegrino & Sons, 32 Agric. Dec. 1845 (1973); Uniform Commercial Code, Section 2-712. We are satisfied from the evidence that respondent's cover purchases from Pacific Landco., Immokalee, Florida, of 44,920 pounds at $.09 per pound, and Charlie Adcock, Jackson, Mississippi of 39,850 pounds at $.105 per pound, were made in good faith and without unreasonable delay. Therefore, respondent's damages constitute $.02 per pound for 44,920 pounds, or $898.40, and $.035 per pound for 39,850 pounds, or $1,394.75, for a total of $2,293.15. Respondent has claimed only $2,093.90 as its damages, and we shall use this lesser figure. Respondent's liability to complainant is thus $3,243.10 less $2,093.90, or $1,149.20. Having already paid this sum, respondent is without any additional liability, and the complaint therefore should be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is hereby dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act. A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $55,476.00 in connection with the sale of four loads of mangos in interstate commerce. At oral hearing, complainant amended its complaint to reduce the amount sought to $40,428.00.

A copy of the formal complaint and a copy of the Department's report of investigation were served upon respondent. A copy of the report of investigation was served upon complainant.

Respondent filed an answer in which it denied liability for the amount claimed. It asserted that it had agreed to sell the mangos on a consignment basis with a commission charge of 18 percent. It denied complainant's claim that the agreement called for complainant to receive a minimum of $4.50 per box.

An oral hearing was held in Los Angeles, California on January 27, 1986, and June 12, 1986.

Neither party filed proposed findings of fact or briefs after the hearing.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant NSG International Marketing, Inc., hereinafter referred to as complainant, is a corporation whose mailing address is 437 Mission Drive, Camarillo, California 93010. At the time of the transactions in question, complainant was a partnership which subsequently transferred all its assets to the corporation.

2. Respondent Union Produce Distributors, Inc., is, and at all times material herein was, a corporation whose mailing address is 1901 Violet Street, Los Angeles, California 90021.

3. Both parties are, and at the time of the transactions involved herein were, licensed to do business under the Act.

4. The parties had an agreement that complainant would ship mangos to respondent who would market them. Respondent would receive an 18 percent commission for its efforts. Pursuant to this agreement, four loads of mangos were shipped from Mexico to respondent's place of business in Los Angeles on August 29, 1984, September 4, 1984, September 5, 1984, and September 6, 1984.

5. On September 20, 1984, one of the four loads was transferred to a company known as Produce Products who assumed responsibility for the marketing of the mangos. It was the transfer of this load that resulted in the amount claimed as damages being reduced at the hearing.

6. The parties agreed that the first shipment was federally inspected on August 31, 1984, Report No. G. 012512. The pertinent results of the report are as follows:

> Condition: Mostly firm ripe, many ripe, some hard. Ground color mostly turning yellow to yellow, many-green. From 1 to 4 fruits per sample (13 to 40%), average 26% black discolored areas, average 5% soft bruises scattered throughout pack. Average less than ½ of 1% decay.
> Remarks: Inspection and certificate restricted to produce on 10 accessible pallets.

7. Respondent has failed to remit any money to complainant for the three loads which it received.

8. The formal complaint was filed on February 18, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This case involves a dispute over what was intended by the parties when they sought to enter into an oral contract for the marketing of complainant's mangos. Complainant asserts that the agreement was that it would receive a minimum of $4.50 per box. Respondent, on the other hand, alleges that this agreement was a typical consignment sale whereby respondent was to sell these goods for the highest price possible in exchange for an 18 percent commission.

An examination of Mr. Nolan's testimony on behalf of NSG illustrates the problem. Mr. Nolan testified that in his telephone conversation with Mr. Cliff Cavasos, respondent's employee, he agreed that respondent would receive the standard 18 percent commission, and then Mr. Cavasos asked what complainant wanted for the mangos. Mr. Nolan told him NSG had a little over $3.50 per box invested in them and they wanted $1.00 per box profit or $4.50 per box. Mr. Cavasos then told him to send the loads to Union (see, e.g., Tr. 16, 49, 67). What is unclear is whether Mr. Cavasos agreed to pay $4.50 per box or whether, after calculating that deducting his 18 percent of the current market price of $5.50 per box would still leave Mr. Nolan with the $4.50 he wanted, Mr. Cavasos simply agreed to handle the mangos on a consignment basis.

Complainant has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence the terms of the contract. Here there is testimony that the 18 percent commission was arrived at because it was the standard industry charge. It is, however, also standard industry practice to make that charge when goods are sold on a consignment basis. While not denying the honesty of Mr. Nolan's beliefs it is unlikely that respondent would have entered into a contract such as described by Mr. Nolan. The contract Mr. Nolan believed he was entering into provided a guarantee of $4.50 per box, and respondent would get an 18 percent commission only so long as the mangos sold for $5.50 or higher. See Tr. 68. Such a contract means that respondent assumed all the risk that fruit that it had never seen would bring at least $5.50 per box. If it brought less than $4.50, respondent would not only not receive any payment for its services but would lose money. Unfortunately Mr. Cavasos was not called as a witness, leaving this tribunal to draw what inferences it can from the evidence. We infer that it was unlikely that Mr. Cavasos intended to enter into such a one-sided agreement. Rather we find that the evidence shows that Mr. Cavasos intended to enter into the standard consignment contract and his statement "okay, send them" was not a guarantee of $4.50, but rather a recognition that the pricing might work out in such a way that Mr. Nolan would receive his desired $4.50.

There was, therefore, no agreement as to price, a critical term of the contract. It is fundamental that where there is a mutual mistake of a material fact between parties negotiating a contract, no contract comes into being. Cello Vegetable & Produce Co. v. John H. Grant Company, 18 Agric. Dec. 694 (1959); Mendelson-Zeller Co. v. Schwartz Produce Com. Inc., 15 Agric. Dec. 1140 (1956). Respondent, in the absence of a contract, is liable for the reasonable market value of the mangos. Vukasovich, Inc. v. W. Chas. Heitmiller Co., Inc., 32 Agric. Dec. 1394 (1973). Normally, market value is proved by the proceeds obtained from a prompt and proper resale by the receiver, respondent herein. In this case, however, the evidence shows that complainant had one load moved to another company because respondent was not, in its view, moving promptly to resell the mangos. Additionally, respondent did not provide accounts of sale showing disposition of the mangos, but merely a statement showing that after expenses and deducting an 18 percent commission, the net proceeds were $10,458 for the first shipment, $7,411.44 for the second shipment and $4,427.85 for the third. There is no showing as to the time period over which the mangos were sold. Respondent has failed to show, therefore, that the purported new proceeds were the result of a prompt and proper resale.

Respondent did submit inspection reports purportedly pertaining to the loads. Complainant challenged the applicability of inspection report number G124262 dated September 22, 1984, alleging that it no longer had mangos at respondent's warehouse on the 22nd, and also inspection report number G012572 dated September 7, 1984 alleging that since it never shipped over 3208 cartons, this inspection report covering 3500 cartons could not be their product. It is not necessary to the resolution of this case, however, to resolve the question of whether these are the proper inspection reports because complainant stipulated that inspection report number G012512 dated August 31, 1984 was for the inspection of its first load (Tr. 33), and testified that all the remaining loads were similar in quality (Tr. 95).

A review of the inspection report for the first load shows that there was an average of 26% black discolored areas and an average of 5% soft bruises. It would certainly be inappropriate to grant complainant $4.50 per box for mangos with this much damage. The damage was apparently due to breakdown in the refrigeration in the trucks, but inasmuch as complainant arranged for the shipping it must bear the responsibility of the breakdown in equipment.

In determining the reasonable value of the goods, therefore, there is no alternative but to refer to the Market News reports compiled by the Department of Agriculture. Official notice may be taken of relevant market price quotations from applicable Federal Market News Service reports. Artco Distributors, Inc. v. Mandell, Spector, Rudolph Co., 24 Agric. Dec. 1155 91965). The Market News Reports for the Los Angeles, California market during the period August 29, 1984 through September 12, 1984, the period in which the mangos were shipped, and an additional five days after the last load was received showed, a range of $4.50–$5.00 on August 29, 1984 to a price of mostly $5.50 to 6.00 on September 12, 1984. The price on most days during this period was approximately $5.50. See Los Angeles Wholesale Fruit and Vegetable Report, Volume LXX, No. 169–178, August 29, 1984 through September 12, 1984. There was no specific price quotation for poorer quality fruit. It is noted, however, that on August 24, 1984, approximately one week earlier, mangos in poorer condition were selling for $1.50–3.00 at a time when good fruit was selling in the $3.50–4.50, mostly $4.00–4.50 range. Id., No. 166, August 24, 1984. The market price apparently went up approximately $1.00 between August 24, 1984 and the period in question. We will, therefore, assume that the price of mangoes in poorer condition also went up $1.00, meaning that mangos such as those shipped by complainant should have been sold for between $2.50–$4.00 per box. Having no other basis which to compute a reasonable value, we have determined to assess a value of $3.50 a box for the mangos shipped to respondent. In doing so, we have noted the unverified testimony that complainant received $3.20 per box on the fourth load. We have given a slightly higher value to the other loads because of the approximately two week delay in marketing the fourth load. Complainant shipped a total of 9,399 boxes of mangos which at $3.50 per box had a value of $32,896.50. Respondent's 18 percent commission is $5,921.37 leaving a net value of $26,975.13.

Respondent has failed to pay any money on these loads. Its failure to pay $26,975.13 to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act. Reparation should be awarded to complainant in the amount of $26,975.13, with interest.

Although the parties were provided an opportunity to claim necessary fees and expenses, neither party did so. Therefore, none will be awarded.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $26,975.13, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from November 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,712.00 in connection with the sale and shipment of a trucklot of avocados to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement, but respondent elected not submitted any additional evidence. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Jan T. King and Sandra M. King d/b/a King Packing, is a partnership whose address is 300 East 5th Street, Camarillo, California.

2. Respondent, Agra. Inc., is a corporation whose address is 113 New England Produce Center, Chelsea, Massachusetts. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately September 25, 1984, complainant sold to respondent a trucklot of avocados consisting of 120 cartons of 48's at $8.20 per carton and 240 cartons of 40's at $7.20 per carton, for a total contract price of $2,712.00, f.o.b. Richard Kaiser Co., Inc., Salinas, California, acted as the broker in this transaction, through whom both parties communicated.

4. Upon receipt of the avocados, respondent had them federally inspected. The October 1, 1984, inspection revealed an average of 6% decay, with pulp temperatures ranging from 55 to 57% F. Respondent reported these results to the broker, who contacted complainant's Jan King. Mr. King claimed that there was abnormal transportation, evidenced by the high pulp temperatures.

5. In November 1984, respondent informed the broker that it would be needing an allowance of $2,000.00. The broker discussed the situation with complainant's Mr. King who, on November 25, 1984, at 3.30 p.m., informed the broker that he agreed to a compromise settlement of $2.00 per carton for the 40's, with no charge for the 48's. On November 25, 1984, the broker issued a "Confirmation-Change of Order" which reflected the facts of the settlement agreed to by Mr. King. A copy of this document was sent to complainant, who received it without objection. Respondent has provided complainant with an account of sales showing the results of the avocados and a check for $455.00 intended as full payment. Complainant has refused to accept the check.

6. The Department has received a letter from Richard Kaiser, president of the broker, dated February 15, 1985, concerning the transaction at issue. In that letter, Mr. Kiser states in relevant part as follows: "In November Agra reported that he would be needing allowances in excess of $2,000.00. Upon speaking to Jan King he was not happy, but we thought, accepted the settlement. It wasn't until his receipt of Agra's check and King Packing's subsequent complaint to Western Growers that we discovered otherwise."

7. A formal complaint was filed on July 2, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent admits purchasing, receiving, and accepting the trucklot of avocados consisting of 120 cartons of 48's and 240 cartons of 40's. Respondent claims that complainant breached its warranty of suitable shipping condition, as the October 1, 1984, federal inspection taken upon arrival revealed an average of 6% decay. Complainant argues that the warranty was inapplicable, as transportation conditions were abnormal, which is indicated by the high pulp temperatures reported by the inspection. However, it is immaterial whether or not there was breach of warranty by complainant, as it is clear that the parties agreed to a compromise settlement on November 25, 1984.

The broker in this transaction, through whom the parties communicated, has stated in a February 15, 1985, letter to the Department (Finding of Fact 6) that in November, respondent reported that it needed an allowance of $2,000.00. The broker claims that "[u]pon speaking to Jan King he was not happy, but we thought, accepted the settlement." The broker issued a "Confirmation-Change of Order" on November 25, 1984, which states that on 3:30 p.m. on November 25, 1984, complainant's Jan King agreed to a settlement of $2.00 per carton f.o.b. for the 40's and no charge for the 48's. The broker sent a copy of this document to complainant, who received it without objection (Finding of Fact 5). Complainant denies agreeing to the settlement, arguing that the broker admitted only that he "thought" complainant accepted the settlement. However, this argument is undercut by complainant's failure to object to the broker's confirmation. We have held that such failure is evidence of the contract terms set forth in such confirmation. Agvest Incorporated v. Parker Fruit Corporation, 37 Agric. Dec. 1104 (1978).

Accordingly, we conclude that the parties agreed to a settlement for $2.00 per carton for the 240 cartons of 40's, or $480.00, and no charge for the 48's. Respondent is thus liable to complainant for $480.00, and its failure to pay such sum is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the day of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $480.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 per cent per annum from January 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $4,462.00 in connection with the sale of a truckload of potatoes in the course of interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Respondent filed an answering statement and complainant filed a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Smith Potato Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 467, Hart, Texas.

2. Respondent, Wood Bros. Produce, is a partnership whose address is P.O. Box 13491, Columbia, South Carolina. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act, pursuant to a license issued on September 21, 1983, effective until September 21, 1984. That license showed respondent as consisting of B.R. Wood and Troy E. Wood as partners. Troy E. Wood renewed the license on October 19, 1984, without indicating any change in the licensee.

3. On approximately August 18, 1984, complainant loaded onto a truck 850 50 pound bags of U.S. number one potatoes consisting of 416 bags of 2-8 Russetts, 45 bags of 70 ct. Russetts, 50 bags of jo. Russetts, and 339 bags of A-size reds. The potatoes were for delivery to four firms in New Orleans, Louisiana; A.J.'s Produce, Market Place Produce, M & M Produce, and Bubba Produce. In the course of transit, the truckdriver converted the potatoes, delivering them to respondent in Columbia, South Carolina, who was not a party to the original contract. The potatoes were received at respondent's place of business by respondent's employee, Mike Baker, who paid the driver $2.00 per bag.

4. On August 19, 1984, complainant was informed by the F.B.I. that it had located the stolen potatoes at respondent's place of business. Complainant's president, David Smith, contacted respondent's Mike Baker and demanded payment for the potatoes, stating that he would be sending an invoice for $4,462.00. Complainant sent respondent an invoice for $4,462.00 dated August 22, 1984, which was received by respondent without objection.

5. Respondent has refused to make any payment to complainant for the potatoes.

6. A formal complaint was filed on April 15, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent denies that it is subject to the jurisdiction of the Act. Respondent claims that at the time of the events alleged in the complaint, Wood Brothers Produce, a partnership consisting of Troy E. Wood and B.R. Wood, had been dissolved, due to the death of B.R. Wood several years earlier. Respondent contends that the actions attributed to respondent were actually done by Mike Baker, acting as a sole proprietor, although respondent admits in its answer that Mr. Baker was doing business as Wood Brothers Produce. Respondent also claims that Mr. Baker was not subject to license under the Act. In addition, respondent claims that it is free from liability, as it purchased the potatoes from the truckdriver in good faith and in the ordinary course of business.

The first issue to be resolved is whether respondent was subject to the jurisdiction of the Act during the time of the transaction at issue, August 1984. The report of investigation indicates that respondent was not licensed during this period. This statement is in error, as the Department's license records, of which we take judicial notice, show clearly that on September 21, 1983, licence number 792069 was issued to respondent to extend until September 21, 1984. That license shows respondent as a partnership composed of B.R. Wood and Troy E. Wood. Troy E. Wood renewed the license on October 19, 1984, for an additional year, with no indication on his renewal form of any change in the licensee. Therefore, even if the partnership between Troy E. Wood and B.R. Wood dissolved years ago upon the death of B.R. Wood, it is clear that respondent was a licensee under the Act through August 1984, and beyond.

Respondent insists that the potatoes were purchased by Mike Baker, a sole proprietorship, although it admits in its answer that Mr. Baker was doing business as Wood Brothers Produce. It is apparently respondent's argument that the acts of Mr. Baker should not be imputed to respondent, the licensee. However, respondent's claim that it was not involved in the transaction at issue is highly dubious in view of respondent's admission that Mr. Baker was doing business under respondent's name, and the clear evidence in the Department's license records that respondent was licensed under the Act at that time. However, even if Mr. Baker was not given any actual authority by respondent to purchase the potatoes, it is evident that Mr. Baker had the apparent authority to do so. Apparent authority is defined as authority which though not actually granted, the principal knowingly permits the agent to exercise, or which the principal holds the agent out as possessing. Gulf & Western Food Products Co. v. Prevor-Meyersohn International, Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 1911 (1975). We can assume from respondent's answer that it knew Mr. Baker was doing business under respondent's name at the time he purchased the potatoes. Thus respondent held out Mr. Baker as possessing the authority to do business on respondent's behalf. This conclusion is supported by the fact that complainant sent respondent an invoice dated August 22, 1984, in the amount of $4,462.00 for the load of potatoes, and respondent does not deny receiving such invoice without objection. Further, respondent did not even deny its involvement in the transaction until its October 21, 1985, answer. Mr. Baker thus had the apparent authority to make the purchase on behalf of respondent.

Respondent claims that it should nonetheless be free from liability because under section 36-2-403 of the Uniform Commercial Code in effect in South Carolina, respondent was a buyer in the ordinary course of business and took good title from the trucker. Respondent is in error. Section 2-403 reads as follows, in relevant part: "1. A purchaser of goods acquires all title which his transferor had or had power to transfer. . . . A person with voidable title has power to transfer a good title to a good faith purchaser for value." However, in the present case, the potatoes were sold to respondent by the trucker, a bailee, to whom the potatoes had been entrusted for delivery to four firms in New Orleans. The trucker did not have a voidable title, but had no title to the potatoes at all. Therefore, there was no title which could have been transferred to respondent. Section 2-403 of the Uniform Commercial Code does not alter this well established principle, as is clearly set forth in 3

Anderson, Uniform Commerical Code, § 2-403:28 (at 585) and the numerous cases cited therein:

> The fact that a bailor entrusts the bailee with possession of his property does not give the bailee any ability or power to make an effective sale of the property and the bailor may recover the property from a third person.
> When a bailee purports to sell the goods to a dealer and the goods are then purchased by a good faith purchaser for value, no title passes to the latter because the bailee did not have a voidable title but had no title.

Respondent purchased, received and accepted the load of potatoes and is therefore liable to complainant for the contract price. Complainant's president, David Smith, asserts that on approximately August 21, 1984, he spoke to Mr. Baker of respondent, and they agreed that respondent was going to purchase the potatoes at certain specific prices, which Mr. Smith set forth in an invoice and mailed to respondent. Respondent does not deny that this conversation took place, nor that it received the invoice wihout objection. Therefore, we conclude that the contract price for the potatoes was as set forth in the invoice, or $4,462.00. Sunshine Produce Company v. Si Si Fruit Distributors, Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 104 (1975). Respondent's failure to pay complainant this sum is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $12,800.00 in connection with the sale and shipment of a trucklot of tomatoes to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and file briefs, but declined to do so.

FINDINGS OF FACTS

1. Complainant, Homestead Tomato Packing Co. Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 3064, Florida City, Florida.

2. Respondent, Albee Tomato Co. Inc., is a corporation whose address is Stores 118–120, Row A, New York City Terminal Market, Bronx, New York. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On January 18, 1985, complainant sold to respondent a trucklot of tomatoes consisting of 800 cartons of 6×6 tomatoes and 800 cartons of 6×7 tomatoes, 85% or better U.S. number one, f.o.b.

4. The parties agreed on a price of $18.00 per carton for the 6×6 tomatoes and $16.00 per carton for the 6×7 tomatoes, plus $.50 per carton for gassing, $.15 per carton for pallets, and $22.50 for a Ryan temperature recorder, for a total of $28,262.50. It was understood that the tomato prices would be in effect only if the Florida f.o.b. market structure maintained such prices until January 23, 1985. The contract was negotiated through a broker, Stan Scherer Marketing Services, Inc., Miami, Florida, with whom both parties communicated. Shortly after the contract was negotiated, the broker issued a confirmation of sale reflecting the agreed upon contract terms, except that it did not set forth any prices for the tomatoes.

4. The tomatoes were treated with gas. On January 23, 1985, at respondent's request, the tomatoes were removed from the gassing facility and shipped in interstate commerce to respondent, where they arrived and were accepted.

5. Respondent has paid complainant $15,462.50, leaving $12,800.00 allegedly due and owing.

6. A formal complaint was filed on October 4, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

There is no dispute herein over the quality and condition of the trucklot of tomatoes which respondent admittedly received and accepted. The only point of contention concerns the agreed upon contract price. Respondent claims that at the time of the sale, January 18, 1985, it was agreed that the prices quoted by complainant, $18.00 per carton for the 6×6 tomatoes and $16.00 per carton for the 6×7 tomatoes, would be in effect only if the Florida tomato f.o.b. market structure held at these prices through January 23, 1985.

In a May 13, 1985, letter to the Department, which is part of the report of investigation, the broker generally confirms respondent's account of the pricing arrangement between the parties. We thus assume that respondent's version of the pricing is correct. Therefore, the dispositive question is whether on January 23, 1985, when respondent had the tomatoes removed from the gassing facility and shipped to its place of business, the Florida f.o.b. market was still holding at the prices quoted by complainant. Respondent claims that during the period January 23 to 25, 1985, the entire Florida market structure was pricing 6×6 tomatoes at $8.00 per carton and 6×7 tomatoes at $5.00 per carton. However, respondent has provided absolutely no proof of the existence of these prices. More convincing evidence of the f.o.b. prices can be found in the Market News Service Reports for Winterhaven, Florida, of which we take judicial notice. These reports show prices per carton on January 21, 1985, at $9.00 to $10.00, mostly $9.00 for 6×6 tomatoes, and $7.50 to $8.00 for 6×7 tomatoes; no listings for January 22, or 23, 1985; and on January 24, 1985, $18.00 for 6×6 tomatoes and $16.00 for 6×7 tomatoes. The available listing which most accurately reflects the prevailing f.o.b. prices for Florida tomatoes on January 23, 1985, is that of January 24, 1985, showing prices of $18.00 per carton for the 6×6 tomatoes and $16.00 per carton for the 6×7 tomatoes, exactly the same as those agreed to by the parties. It is, therefore, clear that these were the prices to be applied on January 23, 1985.

The contract prices for the tomatoes were thus $18.00 per carton for 800 cartons and $16.00 per carton for 800 cartons, plus $.50 per carton for gas, $.15 per carton for pallets, and $22.50 for a Ryan recorder, for a total of $28,262.50. Deducting from this sum the $15,462.50 which respondent has already paid leaves $12,800.00. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $12,800.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $58,363.60 in connection with shipments of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including indebtedness to complainant in the amount of $57,850.40. Complainant, in a letter dated August 7, 1986, agreed to accept the amount of $57,850.40 as payment in full. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Fresh Western Marketing, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 5275, Salinas, California. Respondent, International A.G., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1930 N.W. 23rd Street, Miami, Florida 33142. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $57,850.40. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $57,850.40, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from April 1, 1986, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding brought pursuant to the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation in the amount of $69,180.25 against respondent in connection with five transactions in interstate and/or foreign commerce involving olives, a perishable agricultural commodity.

A copy of the report of investigation was served upon the parties. In addition, respondent was served with a copy of the formal complaint. It filed an unverified answer thereto generally denying the allegations of the complaint, and also filed a counterclaim against complainant in the amount of $5,000.00 in connection with the same transactions which are made the subject of the complaint.

A hearing was held on March 4, 1986, before Presiding Officer Edward M. Silverstein. At the hearing, complainant was represented by John N. Bach, Esq., 2575 Cohasset Road, Chico, California 95927, and respondent was represented by its president, Lloyd Myers.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, M & C P Farms, is a partnership consisting of Maurice Penna and his wife Cynthia Penna, whose mailing address is Route 1, Box 1694, Orland, California 95963. Complainant was not licensed, nor was it operating subject to license, under the Act during any material time.

2. Respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc., is a corporation whose last known mailing address was P.O. Box 55818, Valencia, California 91355. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act, or operating subject to license.

3. On or about October 5, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant sold to James Corotto Produce, Inc. ("Corotto"), 1578 Main Avenue, Clifton, New Jersey 07011, one truckload of sevillano olives consisting of 1,080 cartons, through respondent acting as a broker. Complainant had instructed respondent to sell the olives at a price not less than $10.25 per carton plus 25¢ per carton to cover brokerage, or $10.50 per carton f.o.b. Orland, California. This load was shipped on or about October 15, 1984, and was received and accepted by Corotto. Complainant invoiced Corotto at a price of $10.50 f.o.b. per carton. Corotto, claiming that it only had agreed with respondent to pay $10.00 per carton, remitted $10,800, or $10.00 per carton, to complainant. Respondent failed to issue a brokers memorandum of sale with regard to this shipment.

4. On or about October 6, 1984, in the course of foreign commerce, complainant sold to La Maison De Fruits Et. Le Gumes Supra, Inc. ("La Maison"), 362 Cremazie St. West, Montreal, Quebec, Canada HZPIC7, 1,006 cartons of manzanillo olives at an agreed f.o.b. price of $8.50 per carton ($8,551.00), and 506 cartons of sevillano olives at an agreed f.o.b. price of $11.50 per carton ($5,796) for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $14,347.00, through respondent acting as a broker. On or about the same date, respondent issued a confirmation of sale indicating the above terms, and also indicating that complainant owed it $377.50 (or 25¢ per carton) for brokerage. The load of olives was received and accepted by La Maison.

5. On or about October 13, 1984, in the course of foreign commerce, complainant sold to La Maison, 612 cartons of manzanillo olives at an agreed f.o.b. price of $8.50 per carton ($5,202) and 900 cartons of sevillano olives at an agreed f.o.b. price of $11.50 per carton (10,350) for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $15,552.00, through respondent acting as a broker. The load of olives was received and accepted by La Maison. Respondent failed to issue a broker's memorandum of sale with regard to this shipment.

6. On or about October 20, 1984, in the course of foreign commerce, complainant sold to La Maison, 1,944 cartons of sevillano olives at an agreed f.o.b. price of $11.50 per carton for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $22,356.00, through respondent acting as a broker. The load of olives was received and accepted by La Maison. On October 24, 1984, 724 cartons from this load were subjected to a Canadian inspection. The inspector reported that the olives were in La Maison's warehouse, and that their condition was as follows: "50% bruised. 29% showing black discolored spots or areas (affecting app. 5% of the surface in aggregate) 2% decay." Respondent failed to issue a broker's memorandum of sale with regard to this shipment.

7. On or about October 25, 1984, complainant, in the course of interstate and foreign commerce, sold to La Maison 1,341 carton of sevillano olives at an agreed f.o.b. price of $11.25 per carton for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $15,086.25. The load of olives was received and accepted by La Maison. Respondent failed to issue a brokers memorandum of sale with regard to this shipment.

8. Complainant invoiced La Maison for the shipments described in ¶¶ 4, 5, and 6 above, and respondent for the shipment described in ¶ 7 above, in accordance with the agreements described in those paragraphs, but has received no payment from either except as described in ¶ 11 below.

9. On or about October 24, 1984, complainant, on behalf of respondent and at the personal request of Lloyd Myers, respondent's president, purchased 291 buckets of processed Sicilian style olives for $4,107.26 from West Coast Products Corporation, whose mailing address is P.O. Box 623, Orland, California 95963. Respondent advanced complainant $5,000.00 to make this purchase for him.

10. During the period October 24, 1984, through November 6, 1984, La Maison paid respondent who was authorized to collect on complainant's behalf, the total sum of $52,739.70 with respect to the olive shipments described in ¶¶ 4, 5, 6, and 7. The total represents the sum of five checks, to wit: No. 5071–$17,776.80; No. 5149–$13,442.40; No. 5150–$14,145.00; No. 5239–$6,705.00; and No. 5240–$670.80.

11. On or about November 21, 1984, respondent sent complainant a check in the amount of $21,271.15, with respect to the October 6, and October 13, 1984, shipments described in ¶¶ 4 and 5 above. In computing the amount due complainant, respondent deducted the $5,000 advance referred to in ¶ 9 above, plus the $20 fee for purchasing the checks used for the advance. Complainant endorsed the

best copy available

$21,271.15 check as follows: "This instrument does not reflect pmt [sic] in full of mentioned invoices on front of check. Advance pmt [sic] does not pertain to any fresh fruit sales—." When the endorsed check reached respondent, it refused to accept the conditional endorsement, and the check was returned to complainant through banking channels.

12. All of the fresh olives sold by complainant to, or through, respondent were grown on land it owned or leased.

13. On or about January 19, 1985, complainant filed an administrative proceeding against La Maison before the Agriculture Canada, Food Production and Inspection Branch, pursuant to the Canadian Agricultural Products Standards Act. This action was voluntarily dismissed and, on or about September 20, 1985, complainant filed an action against La Maison before the Superior Court, District of Montreal Province of Quebec, Canada, designated as docket no. 500–05–008360–859, seeking payment of $66,513.25, with respect to the olives shipped to La Maison as described in ¶¶ 4, 5, 6, and 7, above. In response thereto, La Maison filed an answer indicating that the only sum owing to complainant with respect to those shipments was $52,739.70 and that said amount had been paid to respondent as agent for complainant. La Maison, also, indicated that 724 cartons of the olives had arrived in a deteriorated condition.

14. The complaint was filed on February 12, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In this reparation proceeding, complainant seeks $69,180.25 from respondent as a consequence of respondent's alleged violations of the Act with respect to five shipments of fresh olives. At the hearing held on this matter, at complainant's request, the verified complaint and reply to respondent's counterclaim were made a part of the record herein and complainant presented one witness and three exhibits. Respondent presented no witnesses. However, at respondent's request, the deposition of Maurice Penna was made part of the record and respondent presented six documents which it had subpoenaed from complainant as exhibits. In addition, two more documents which had been subpoenaed from complainant by respondent, were made part of the record by the Presiding Officer.[1]

[1] One of these documents, the answer of La Maison in the civil proceeding brought by complainant, was entered into evidence, as Exhibit D, at the hearing. The other document, the complaint filed by complainant in the same civil proceeding, was attached to complainant's brief pursuant to the order of the Presiding Offi-

The complainant alleged that respondent violated the Act by failing "to perform the duties and specifications of a broker" in that it had agreed with the buyers thereof to sell the subject five shipments of olives at a lower price than was agreed to by complainant, and by failing to remit amounts collected on its behalf from one buyer.[2] As to all of its affirmative allegations, complainant has the burden of proof. New York v. Sandler, 32 Agric. Dec. 707 (1973).

The only transaction for which complainant provided substantive evidence supporting its allegation that respondent failed to negotiate a price agreed to by it was that with Corotto. Complainant invoiced Corotto at a price of $10.50 per carton, but was told by Corotto that it had only agreed with respondent on a price of $10.00 per carton and remitted on this basis. As there was no brokers memorandum of sale issued for this transaction and no memorandum of agreement between complainant and respondent as to the amount at which respondent was authorized to sell the olives, the only substantive evidence in the record on this point is the testimony of complainant's witness Maurice Penna who negotiated its agreement with respondent. Mr. Penna testified that he only authorized respondent to sell the olives for $10.25 plus 25¢ brokerage, or $10.50, per carton. Although respondent had denied this allegation in its unverified answer, it did not seek to rebut Mr. Penna's testimony. We, therefore, must conclude that complainant has satisfied its burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that respondent had violated its duty by agreeing to sell the olives for a lesser price then agreed upon by complainant. Consequently, it is liable to complainant for the difference between the price agreed upon by complainant ($10.50) and the price at which it agreed to sell the olives to Corotto ($10.00), or 50¢ per carton, or a total of $540.

With regard to the remaining four transactions made the subject of the complaint, i.e., the sales to La Maison, it is not clear to us that respondent agreed to sell the olives to it for a lower price than was agreed upon by complainant. Unlike Corotto transaction, there cer and was made part of the record, although not identified by an exhibit number, by virtue of the Presiding Officer's order.

[2] Complainant alleged in its complaint, although it did not offer evidence supporting this allegation, that, as to the last of these loads, respondent was the purchaser. However, it appears that complainant has taken an inconsistent position with regard to this allegation in bringing an action in Canada against La Maison for this shipment. In view of the manner in which the other transactions at issue were handled, we do not believe that respondent agreed to perform other than as a broker with regard to this shipment. See Florida Tomato v. New England, 32 Agric. Dec. 488 (1973).

is no evidence that respondent agreed with the buyer to sell the olives at a lower price than complainant had agreed upon. Rather the evidence in the record, in particular the one broker's memorandum of sale issued by respondent with respect to these sales, would seem to support a conclusion that respondent did not do so.[3] Therefore, as to these transactions, we must hold that complainant failed to sustain its burden of proving that respondent had violated the Act by agreeing with La Maison to sell the olives at a price lower than authorized by complainant. In doing so, we are cognizant of the fact that respondent was paid a lesser amount by La Maison than it was billed by complainant. However, it appears that La Maison may have received some damaged olives and thereby suffered some damages. Such matters currently are being litigated between complainant and La Maison before a Canadian court and we decline to engage in any prognostication as to the result of that litigation.

Complainant has proven that respondent received $52,739.70 from La Maison with respect to the subject shipments. The $52,739.70 should have been remitted to complainant. Consequently we hold that respondent is liable to complainant in the amount of $52,739.70 with respect to these transactions.

Respondent has filed a counterclaim against complainant in the amount of $5,000. It has the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that it is entitled to such amount. Bushwich Comm'n Co. v. Maloney, 18 Agric. Dec. 1029 (1959). The $5,000 for which respondent seeks reimbursement was advanced by respondent to complainant so that complainant might purchase, on behalf of respondent, 291 buckets of processed olives from a third party. Such a purchase was made by complainant for $4,107.26, but is not indicative of a course of business engaged in by complainant.[4] However, since such a purchase was not made during the course of complaint's business but rather as an accommodation to respondent, it should not be allowed to make a 22% profit from it and, therefore, the $892.74 it retained from the $5,000 ought to be credited to the amount which respondent has been found to owe complainant.

[3] We are cognizant of the fact that La Maison does not admit the full extent of indebtedness as alleged by complainant, however, that matter is not before us. Our ruling is simply that complainant has failed to prove that respondent agreed with La Maison to sell the olives for a lower price than agreed upon by complainant.

[4] We conclude based on these facts that complainant did not operate subject to the Act during any period of time at issue here and therefore complainant was not operating subject to being licensed.

During the course of this proceeding, respondent has made no attempt to refute or rebut any of the evidence adduced by complainant. In fact, aside from offering some documents in evidence which it had subpoenaed from complainant, in a futile effort to show that complainant was operating subject to the Act, respondent offered no evidence whatsoever as to its affirmative allegations. Instead, in its defense, it merely generally denied the allegations of the complaint in its unsworn answer and relied upon its assertion that complainant failed to sustain its burden of proof in several regards: (1) that complainant is not a valid entity which owned the subject olives; (2) that it failed to prove that respondent was indebted to it; (3) that the Secretary has no jurisdiction over this matter; and (4) that it failed to prove that respondent purchased olives from complainant.[5] To the extent that these claims have any merit they are discussed above.[6]

In view of the above, we conclude that respondent is obligated to complainant in the amount of $52,386.96 ($540 + $52,739.70 −$892.74), and that its failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

In addition, as complainant is the prevailing party, it is entitled to reasonable fees and expenses related to the hearing. Complainant has filed a claim for $5,716.78 which is amply documented and has been served upon respondent. As respondent has not objected thereto, and as we find such claim to be reasonable, complainant further should be awarded $5,716.78 as its fees and expenses.

ORDER

Within thirty days from this date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $52,386.96 plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1984, until paid.

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as further reparation, $5,716.78 plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from the date of this order until paid.

Except as indicated above, the counterclaim is dismissed.

[5] Respondent also claims that a California statute precludes the complainant from filing this action because it did not file a "fictitious business statement." However, even if complainant was prevented from filing an action in a California court, such a bar is not applicable to actions filed under the Act.

[6] Subsequent to the hearing, respondent filed a motion seeking removal of the presiding officer. As the motion was frivolous, the presiding offer was correct in not certifying the motion to the Judicial Officer and in denying it.

Broker represented to shipper that he had negotiated a sale contract between shipper and buyer. Broker represented to buyer that the broker was selling the goods to buyer at different price. It was found that no contract was formed between shipper and buyer and that shipper gave buyer defective notice of shipper's interest in goods, so that buyer could not be held to any equitable liability to shipper. Broker was held liable to shipper for original contract price.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondents in the amount of $8,995.20 in connection with two shipments of cantaloupes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon each respondent. Respondent Angelo Di Giacomo filed an answer to the complaint denying any liability to complainant. Respondent M & M Produce Brokerage defaulted in the filing of an answer.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, respondent Angelo Di Giacomo filed an answering statement, and complainant filed a statement in reply. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Rancho Dos Palmas, is a partnership composed of Michael W. Morgan and John C. Veysey, whose address is 3651 Austin Road, Brawley, California.

2. Respondent, Martin Montes, is an individual doing business as M & M Produce Brokerage, (hereafter Montes) whose address is 43 Dolores Street, Watsonville, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein this respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. Respondent, Angelo Di Giacomo, is a partnership composed of Joseph Pinto and Stanley J. Sussman, whose address is 3300 South Galloway Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. At the time of the transactions involved herein this respondent was licensed under the Act.

4. On or about June 8, 1984, respondent Montes contacted complainant by telephone and secured complainant's agreement to sell to respondent Angelo Di Giacomo one lot consisting of 504 cartons of Rancho Dos Palmas cantaloupes, size 18, at $8.00 per carton, plus 80 cents per carton for cooling and palletizing, and $22.50 for a temperature recorder, for a total price of $4,457.70. On or about the same day respondent Montes contacted respondent Angelo Di Giacomo by telephone, and secured such respondent's agreement to purchase from respondent Montes are lot consisting of 504 cartons of Rancho Dos Palmas cantaloupes, size 18, at $8.00 per carton, plus 80 cents cooling and palletizing, plus 15 cents brokerage, plus one-half of the profits made from the resale of the cantaloupes.

5. On June 9, 1984, complainant shipped the cantaloupes from loading point in Brawley, California, to respondent Angelo Di Giacomo in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, by truck. On June 11, 1984, complainant mailed respondent Angelo Di Giacomo an invoice reflecting the terms of sale represented to it by respondent Montes.

6. On or about June 13, 1984, respondent Montes contacted complainant by telephone, and secured complainant's agreement to sell to respondent Angelo Di Giacomo one lot consisting of 1050 cartons of Ranchos Dos Palmas cantaloupes of which 546 would be size 12 at $5.00 per carton and 504 would be size 15 at $6.00 per carton, and including a cooling and palletizing charge of 80 cents per carton for the entire load, plus $22.50 for a Ryan temperature recorder, or a total of $6,616.50 f.o.b.

7. On or about June 13, 1984, respondent Montes contacted respondent Angelo Di Giacomo by telephone, and secured such respondent's agreement to purchase from respondent Montes one lot containing 1,050 cartons of cantaloupes of which 504 would be size 15 at $7.00 per carton, and 546 would be size 12 at $5.00 per carton, plus 80 cents per carton for cooling and palletizing, and one-half of the profits.

8. On June 14, 1984, complainant invoiced respondent Angelo Di Giacomo on the basis of the contract terms represented to it by Martin Montes.

9. After both shipments of cantaloupes had been received and accepted by respondent Angelo Di Giacomo, respondent Montes contacted complainant, and negotiated a price adjustment downward of $1.00 per carton for the shipment of June 9, and $1.50 per carton for the shipment of June 13, on the basis of alleged poor condition on arrival.

10. On June 20, 1984, respondent Angelo Di Giacomo sent complainant the following letter:

Gentlemen:

As per instructions of Mr. Martin Montez of M & M Brokerage Co., we are returning to you Invoices #132-84: 6563: and 6563 A. Mr. Montez has stated to me that he is responsible for payment of these invoices.

11. On June 22, 1984, complainant sent new invoices covering each of the shipments of cantaloupes, and showing the respective price adjustments on each shipment. The new invoices in addition to showing the name and address of respondent Angelo Di Giacomo at the top under the printed heading "to" also showed under the printed heading "billed" the name and address of respondent Martin Montes d/b/a M & M Produce Brokerage Co. On the original invoices dated June 11, and June 14, 1984, the space opposite the word "billed" was left blank.

12. Apart from the mailing of the new invoices complainant made no response to the June 20, letter from respondent Angelo Di Giacomo.

13. On June 25, 1984, respondent Montes sent a telegram to respondent Angelo Di Giacomo which stated in relevant part as follows:

PLEASE HANDLE THE FOLLOWING FOR OUR ACCOUNT: . . . LOAD SHIPPED 6/8/84 . . . 504 CANTALOUPE 18'S RANCHO DOS PALMAS LABEL LOAD SHIPPED 6/13/84 . . . 546 CANTALOUPE 12'S RANCHO DOS PALMAS LABEL 504 CANTALOUPE 15'S RANCHO DOS PALMAS LABEL PLEASE REMIT ALL MONIES AND INVOICES TO M & M PRODUCE BROKERAGE COMPANY P.O. BOX 1844 SALINAS CA 93902

14. On July 9, 1984, respondent Angelo Di Giacomo accounted to respondent Montes for the two shipments of cantaloupes on a consignment basis, and remitted net proceeds from the sale of the two shipments of cantaloupes to such respondent.

15. The formal complaint was filed on December 15, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant alleges that the two lots of cantaloupes were sold to respondent Angelo Di Giacomo at the prices represented to complainant by respondent Montes, and asserts that respondent Angelo Di Giacomo's failure to pay complainant directly for the cantaloupes is a breach of its contract for which reparation should be awarded to complainant. Complainant also asserts that, in the alternative, if it is concluded that respondent Angelo Di Giacomo should not be held liable for the purchase price of the cantaloupes, respondent Montes should be held liable to complainant.

The facts as stated in the findings of fact are clear from the record in this case, and are supported by a preponderance of the evidence. The record discloses that complainant and respondent Angelo Di Giacomo did not deal directly with each other prior to the shipment and receipt of the last load of cantaloupes. Under these circumstances the apparently duplicitous dealings of respondent Montes cannot be deemed to have resulted in a contract of sale between complainant and respondent Angelo Di Giacomo. There is clearly a lack of manifested mutual assent as to these parties. See Anonymous, 8 Agric. Dec. 374 (1949). At the most respondent Angelo Di Giacomo could only be held liable to complainant on an equitable basis for the fair market value of the produce which it received from complainant. However, this respondent would only be liable to complainant on such basis if it were possessed of adequate knowledge of complainant's interest in the two shipments of cantaloupe. Normally receipt of the two invoices from complainant would have been sufficient to put respondent Angelo Di Giacomo on notice of complainant's interest in the cantaloupes. See J. Manning & Co. v. Bass & Swaggerty, 34 Agric. Dec. 1036 (1975). However, in this case respondent Angelo Di Giacomo's letter of June 20, 1984 (see Finding of Fact 10) received no response from complainant. In addition the new invoices sent by complainant, following respondent Angelo Di Giacomo's posting of the June 20, 1984, letter, differed from the preceding invoices, not only in specifying a price adjustment, but also by placing the name and address of respondent Montes under the heading "billed" for the first time. The natural interpretation of this, in the context of the factual situation, was that respondent Montes was being billed for the cantaloupes. We find that respondent Angelo Di Giacomo is not liable to complainant for any amount.

Complainant's request that respondent Montes be held liable in the alternative that respondent Angelo Di Giacomo not be found liable is clearly meritorious. In its complaint complainant requested a total of $8,995.20 from either respondent on the basis of the alleged price adjustment. In its opening statement complainant asserted that the award should be $11,074.20, based upon the original contract price, since there was no evidence in the record that the cantaloupes in fact arrived in poor condition. A copy of the opening statement was served upon respondent Montes and it made no response thereto. Respondent Montes' willingness to confirm to complainant a sale at that price is deemed by us to be an admission that the produce was at the time worth at least such amount. Complainant's failure to realize that amount for the produce was directly attributable to the false statements made by Montes. We conclude that these false statements violated the Act (see 7 U.S.C. § 499b(4)) and damaged complainant in the amount of $11,074.20. Under the circumstances of this case we find that complainant's request for an award of the original contract price is fully justified. Respondent Martino Montes d/b/a M & M Produce Brokerage's failure to pay complainant $11,074.20 is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order respondent Martino Montes d/b/a M & M Produce Brokerage shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $11,074.20, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from July 1, 1984, until paid.

The complaint against Angelo Di Giacomo is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $13,200.00 in connection with the shipment of a truckload of frozen diced green pepper.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon the respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant. In addition, respondent filed a counterclaim against complainant in the amount of $5,210.05 in connection with the same shipment.

Since neither the amount of the formal complaint nor the amount of the counterclaim exceed $15,000.00, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered part of the evidence in this case, as is the department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant submitted a sworn opening statement, respondent filed a sworn answering statement, and complainant filed a sworn statement in reply. In addition, respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Grasso Foods, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is Route 2, Box 11, Swedesboro, New Jersey 08085.

2. Respondent, The Quaker Oats Company, is a corporation whose mailing address is 100 Lee Street, Jackson, Tennessee 38301.

3. At all material times, both complainant and respondent were licensed under the Act or operating subject to license under the Act.

4. In making purchases of frozen diced green peppers, the respondent requires that clumps in the green peppers not exceed 10% by weight of the total shipment.

5. During the 1983 shipping season, respondent purchased approximately 120,000 pounds of frozen diced green peppers from complainant through Jewell-Barksdale Associates, 5440 West Saint Charles Road, Berkeley, Illinois 60163. Of that 120,000 pounds, 80,000 pounds were initially rejected by respondent because the green peppers were frozen in clumps rather than free flowing as required by the contract's specifications. Jewell-Barksdale Associates, therefore, arranged for a local warehouse to recondition the peppers at complainant's expense, and respondent agreed to accept them.

6. During the 1984 shipping season, respondent agreed with Jewell-Barksdale Associates to accept further shipments of frozen diced green peppers from complainant. However, respondent clearly specified that it would not accept any shipment of green peppers which did not comply with their requirement that the peppers not be clump frozen. This information was conveyed to complainant by Jewell-Barksdale Associates, and complainant assured respondent through them that the flowing problem would be resolved.

7. On or about November 8, 1984, the respondent, through Jewell-Barksdale Associates, purchased 40,000 pounds of frozen green peppers from the complainant at a price of 33¢ per pound. The green peppers were required to meet respondent's specification no. 57903 which required that the green peppers not be frozen in clumps, but rather that they be free flowing. A confirmation of sale was issued by Jewell-Barksdale Associates on that same date. The green peppers were received by the respondent on or about November 19, 1984. On that same date, the respondent inspected the shipment of green peppers after it was unloaded from the truck, and discovered that the green peppers were clump frozen. In fact, some of the cartons were found to contain one single clump of green peppers. Since the shipment did not conform to its standards, the respondent attempted to reject the load by notifying Jewell-Barksdale Associates of the fact. Jewell-Barksdale Associates related this notice of rejection to the complainant. However, the complainant refused to accept the rejection. Moreover, when respondent attempted to redeliver the load to the complainant, complainant refused to accept them.

8. Of the 1,000 cases of green peppers which complainant delivered to respondent, the respondent found that 13 satisfied its quality standards and used them. The remaining 987 cases are being stored by the respondent.

9. A formal complaint was filed on March 13, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

It is clear that the complainant shipped a load of frozen diced green peppers to the respondent which did not conform to the parties' contractual agreement. That is, the parties' contract required that the green peppers be frozen in such a way as to allow them to be free flowing, however, the green peppers which the complainant delivered to the respondent were frozen in clumps. The shipment, therefore, did not conform to the parties' contractual agreement. Complainant did not dispute the fact. However, before respondent attempted to reject the load of green peppers, the 1,000 cartons were unloaded from the truck and taken into respondent's business location. Under the regulations, 7 CFR § 46.2(bb)(4), any rejection following an act of acceptance such as unloading is defined as a rejection "without reasonable cause." By unloading the cartons of green peppers, the respondent accepted them. Julius Peller v. Bonnie Lee Super Food Mart, 16 Agric. Dec. 1018 (1957). Having accepted the green peppers, respondent became liable to complainant for the full contract price less any provable damages. Rocky Ford

Dist. Co. v. Angel Produce, 29 Agric. Dec. 93 (1970). The respondent has the burden of proof as to such matters. The Growers-Shipper Pot. Co. v. South W. Pro. Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 571 (1969).

As noted above, we are satisfied that the respondent has proven that the vast majority of the green peppers delivered by complainant did not satisfy the parties' contractual requirements. However, the respondent has failed to prove that it was damaged thereby. Respondent, in its counterclaim, seeks reimbursement of expenses it allegedly incurred with respect to the subject shipment, to wit: $2,578.89 for freight charges incurred in its attempt to return the peppers to complainant; $2,037.70 for storage charges it allegedly incurred as a result of its storage of the 987 cartons of peppers it has not used; and $599.46 for labor charges it allegedly incurred "to inspect the peppers." Its claim for reimbursement for shipping charges is unwarranted inasmuch as it had no right to ship the green peppers back to the complainant after it accepted them. Moreover, as it accepted the peppers, the storage charge for which it claims reimbursement, as well as its claim for reimbursement for inspection cost, are costs of its own business operations. Such expenses are not reimbursable.

The only way in which the respondent could have proven damages was by a showing that the green peppers delivered had less value than the agreed contract price. One way of its doing so would have been for it to make a prompt and proper resale of them, or at least a valid attempt to do so. Since respondent did not do so, and did not offer any other proof showing that the peppers it accepted had less value than the price it had agreed to pay for them, it has failed to prove it was damaged. See Dilatush v. Sacks Bros., 20 Agric. Dec. 626 (1961).

Accordingly, we must hold that the respondent is obligated to the complainant in the amount of $13,200.00 and that the respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded. Moreover, in view of this, respondent's counterclaim should be dismissed.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $13,200.00 plus interest at the rate of 13% per month from December 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $14,175.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of grapes.

A copy of the report of investigation and of a supplemental report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, complainant filed a sworn opening statement, and pursuant to section 47.16 of the Rules of Practice respondent requested and was allowed to take the oral depositions of Paul Shipton, president of complainant, and Don E. Collier, employee of complainant at the time of the subject transaction. The depositions were taken with counsel for both parties present, and were subsequently received with evidence. Respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Sunfresh Distributing Company, is a corporation whose address is 6340 Green Valley Circle, 3-314, Culver City, California.

2. Respondent, Sol Salins, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1325 Fifth Street, N.E., Washington, D. C. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On July 17, 1984, a truckload consisting of 1620 lugs of Thompson seedless grapes, "OH YES" brand, was shipped from Higley Citrus Packers, Higley, Arizona to Sol Salins, Inc., in Washington, D. C.

4. After arrival at the place of business of Sol Salins, Inc., in Washington, D. C., the grapes were federally inspected on July 23, 1984, at 11:15 a.m. The federal inspection shows that the temperatures ranged from 34 to 37 degrees and stated the condition to be as follows:

> Berries generally firm and generally firmly attached to capstems. Stems mostly green, many turning brown and pliable.
> Average 3% shatter berries.
> Average 5% damage by sunken areas at capstems. From 5 to 25% in one-half of samples, none in remainder, average 7% damage by weak discolored berries. Less ½ of 1% decay.

The inspection certificate went on to state under the heading "REMARKS" that: "Samples showing weak, discolored and sunken areas, generally found in approximately one-half of pallets, located near rear doors." In addition it was stated that the inspection was restricted to the upper two layers of the load.

5. Respondent received an invoice, number 1202, dated July 17, 1984, from Texas Produce, Dallas, Texas, covering 1620 lugs of grapes at $4.50 per lug, for a total of $7,290.00, less freight in the amount of $3,600.00, for a net invoice amount of $3,690.00. On August 1, 1984, respondent issued Texas Produce a check in the amount of $3,690.00 in payment for invoice number 1202.

6. An informal complaint was filed on August 14, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant alleges in its formal complaint, which was signed and sworn to by Paul Shipton, president of complainant corporation, that complainant sold the truckload of grapes to respondent on July 17, 1984, for a total purchase price of $14,175.00 f.o.b. Attached to the formal complaint is a copy of a bill of lading showing the shipper as Higley Citrus Packers of Higley, Arizona, dated July 17, 1984, and covering 1620 lugs of Thompson Seedless grapes, "OH YES" brand. The bill of lading shows that the grapes were loaded and shipped on July 17, 1984. The consignee is shown as Sunfresh Dist. Co., 6340 Green Valley #314, Culver City, Calif. 90230. Under the printed heading "Drop-off instructions" is typed the following: "Salinas, Sol Inc., 1325 5th St. N. E., Washington, D. C. 20002." Both parties admit that this bill of lading is applicable to the subject load of grapes. Complainant's Paul Shipton further alleged in the sworn opening statement that after the grapes were received he received a telephone call from the truck broker stating that there was a problem with the load in Washington, D. C. Mr. Shipton states that he then called respondent, inquired as to the cause of the problem, and was told that the grapes were in poor condition. Mr. Shipton states that he instructed the person on the telephone from respondent to have a federal inspection made, and have the inspector call Mr. Shipton upon conclusion of the inspection. Mr. Shipton further states that approximately two hours passed, and not having heard from the inspector, he called respondent, and was told that the inspection was in progress. Mr. Shipton alleges that he kept a Mr. Lucero of "Higley Citrus Packers" informed as to what was progressing. Mr. Shipton states in addition that after another hour passed he again called respondent to inquire about the results of the inspection, and was told that the inspector had left, but was read the supposed results of the inspection by a representative of respondent. Mr. Shipton asserts that what was read to him over the telephone indicated that that grapes were in very poor condition, and that on the basis of such condition, after contacting Mr. Lucero, he agreed to the grapes being sold by respondent for trucking charges. Mr. Shipton states that he later called the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington and determined that the inspection did not show that the grapes were as bad as they had been represented to be by the representative of respondent. Complainant contends, in effect, that the agreement that the grapes could be sold for trucking charges by respondent should be voided, and complainant should be awarded the alleged original contract price of $14,175.00. See Harte McCabe v. Higgins Potato Co., 17 Agric. Dec. 1025 (1958).

Respondent's reply to complainant's allegations was made by Richard Salins, secretary of respondent firm, and contained in respondent's answer. There is no showing as to what part or parts of respondent's answer Mr. Salins had personal knowledge. However, Mr. Salins alleges in the answer, on behalf of respondent, that no sale of grapes from complainant to respondent ever took place, and that the grapes which respondent received were purchased from Texas Produce of Dallas, Texas. Mr. Salins further stated that respondent paid Texas Produce for the grapes. The Department's report of investigation contains, in addition to the documentation already mentioned, a copy of an invoice from Higley Citrus Packers to Sunfresh Distributing Company for a truckload of 1620 lugs of Thompson grapes, "OH YES" brand, at $8.75 per lug or $14,175.00. In addition the invoice states a charge of $22.50 for a Ryan temperature recorder. The invoice shows that the shipment was to be made to "Salins, Sol Inc.", at the address of Sol Salins, Inc., in Washington, D. C., and references "purchase order number 2558". The report of investigation also contains a copy of a Western Union mailgram dated July 24, 1984, from Higley Citrus Packers to Sunfresh Distributors which states as follows:

> ATTN DON COLLIER,
> IN REFERENCE TO OUR CONVERSATION THIS MORNING, I AM AUTHORIZING YOU TO HANDLE THE LOAD 302558 TO BE HANDLED FOR OUR ACCOUNT.

The supplemental report of investigation contains an unverified letter from Herman Lucero of Higley Citrus Packers to the Fruit and Vegetable Division of this Department which states in relevant part as follows:

> Gentlemen:
> On July 17, 1984 we sold to Sun Fresh Dist. Co., 1620 lugs of Thompson Seedless Grapes which carried the brand of OH YES. We have never heard of or sold anything to Texas Produce Co.

Complainant had the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that it sold the truckload of grapes to respondent. See Best Pak Potato Co., Inc. v. Louis M. Palomo Wholesale Produce, 32 Agric. Dec. 675 (1973). Complainant did not send an invoice to respondent at the time the contract was entered into nor at any time thereafter. Complainant's Paul Shipton was asked a question during the oral deposition concerning complainant's practice in documenting a sale:

> Q. IN JULY OF 1984, WHEN SUNFRESH WOULD ENTER INTO A TRANSACTION INVOLVING THE SALE OF PRODUCE TO SOME OTHER CONCERN, HOW DID SUNFRESH RECORD A SALE TRANSACTION?

A. WELL, WHEN WE PURCHASE THE MERCHANDISE, WE MAKE UP A PURCHASE ORDER. AND FROM THE PURCHASE ORDER WE, THE SAME DAY THE PURCHASE ORDER IS DRAWN—EXCUSE ME, WHEN THE MERCHANDISE IS SHIPPED, THE SAME DAY WE INVOICE THE CUSTOMER.

OR WE WAIT UNTIL THE MERCHANDISE ARRIVES AND MAKE SURE EVERYTHING IS OKAY AND THEN WE INVOICE THE CUSTOMER. WE HAD TWO DIFFERENT WAYS.

We think it is significant that neither of the ways described by complainant's president were followed in this case. However, complainant's position in this proceeding suffers from even more serious difficulties. Paul Shipton testified during the course of the oral deposition that he had absolutely nothing to do with the contracting of the sale of the subject grapes:

Q. AND AS PRESIDENT, WHAT WERE YOUR DAILY OBLIGATIONS AND DUTIES WITH SUNFRESH?

A. MY DUTIES BEING—BASICALLY I WAS SELLING ONIONS, AND DON WOULD BE SELLING THE WET.

* * * * * * *

Q. WHAT AUTHORITY DID MR. COLLIER HAVE TO BUY AND SELL ON BEHALF OF SUNFRESH IN JULY OF 1984?

A. HE HAD FULL AUTHORITY TO BUY AND SELL, PURCHASE PRODUCE AND SELL IT.

Q. AT WHAT TIME IN JULY OF 1984, DID YOU REQUIRE HIM TO CONSULT WITH YOU BEFORE HE WOULD SET A CERTAIN PRICE ON A PARTICULAR LOT OF PRODUCE OR BUY ONLY AT A CERTAIN PRICE?

A. NO RESTRICTIONS.

Q. SO HE HAD CARTE BLANCHE THEN,——

A. YES.

Q. —TO BUY AND SELL FOR SUNFRESH?

A. YES.

* * * * * * *

Q. WHEN YOU PURCHASED THESE GRAPES FROM HIGLEY IN JULY OF 1984, DID YOU TELL MR. COLLIER TO GO OUT AND TRY TO SELL THEM FOR SUNFRESH?

Mr. HORN: OBJECTION; HE SAID THAT MR. COLLIER PURCHASED THEM. HE DIDN'T SAY THAT HE PURCHASED THEM.

The WITNESS: AND HE SAID "YOU." YOU HAD TO MEAN SUNFRESH.

BY Mr. SILVERBERG:

Q. SUNFRESH, YES.

A. DON COLLIER HANDLED THE WHOLE TRANSACTION.

Q. SO YOU HAD NO FORE KNOWLEDGE OF IT WHATSOEVER?

A. NO. . . .

* * * * * * *

Q. TO YOUR KNOWLEDGE, DID SUNFRESH BECOME INVOLVED AT ALL IN ARRANGING THE TRANSPORTATION OF THE GRAPES TO SALINS?

A. DON COLLIER AGAIN. DON HANDLED THE TRANSACTION.

Mr. Shipton made his noninvolvement in the transaction even clearer when he was questioned by respondent's attorney concerning the sworn opening statement which he submitted. Such statement had been written in the first person, recounted all of the alleged events relative to the transaction, and was signed by Mr. Shipton. The statement begins as follows:

I, PAUL SHIPTON, declare:

I am President of SUNFRESH DISTRIBUTING COMPANY, a California corporation, and the Complainant in the above-entitled action. I am aware of the facts recited in this affidavit through my own personal knowledge, and if I were to be called as a witness, I could competently testify thereto.

However, respondent's attorney went over each paragraph of the opening statement with Mr. Shipton during the oral deposition testimony, and Mr. Shipton affirmed repeatedly that he had no personal knowledge of the events related in the opening statement until the last paragraph on page 3 where it is alleged that he called the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington and requested a reading of the inspection and that a copy be sent to him.

When we turn to the deposition testimony of Don Collier we are confronted with what amounts to a professed vast ignorance concerning the transaction in question, covered over by an occasional vague recollection. To summarize Mr. Collier's testimony, he admits to being personally involved in the grape transaction, and admits knowing that in July of 1984, grapes were shipped from Arizona to Washington, D. C. However, he doesn't recall by whom and when he was first advised that grapes were available for sale, nor how he first became involved. He did not know whether complainant was a shipper or seller or was acting as a broker. He did not remember whether he personally contacted Salins to see if it wished to purchase grapes, and did not remember whether he entered, or claimed on behalf of Sunfresh to have entered, into a "sale purchase" of the grapes. He did not recall what first got him involved in the grape transaction. He recalled communications that he made to Salins, but did not recall what the communications were or when they occurred. He vaguely recalled that Higley Produce was the grape supplier, and was sure that he talked to Higley about supplying the grapes, but did not remember who he talked to. He recalled problems with the grapes, and discussing the problems with Shipton, and requesting that someone at Salins get a federal inspection of the grapes. However, he did not remember being advised as to the results of the inspection by anyone at Salins, but later vaguely remembered so being advised. He was unable to answer whether he made any kind of memoranda of telephone conversations and discussions during the course of his involvement in the transaction, but later was sure that he did make notes, but could not remember what happened to them. He did not know what complainant's practice and procedure was in July of 1984, as to how it documented its sales of produce. Mr. Collier was confronted by respondent's counsel with the contrast between his memory at the time of the oral deposition, and his prior written statement which had been submitted as a part of the record in the proceeding. Interestingly the written statement parallels closely in the opening statement sworn to by Paul Shipton. Mr. Collier's testimony was as follows:

Q. THERE CAME A TIME, MR. COLLIER, WHEN YOU HAD OCCASION TO MAKE A WRITTEN STATEMENT UNDER OATH AS TO THIS PARTICULAR TRANSACTION. DO YOU RECALL THAT, SIR?

A. YES, SIR, I DO.

Q. DO YOU RECALL THE CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH THAT DOCUMENT WAS PREPARED?

A. I.E. UNDER DURESS?

Q. NO. DID SOMEBODY REQUEST THAT YOU PUT IN WRITING YOUR KNOWLEDGE?

A. YES. PAUL SHIPTON.

We freely confess that we do not know who sold the subject grapes to Sol Salins, Inc. Certainly it would seem that respondent should have been able to present far more thorough and convincing evidence concerning the alleged sale of the grapes to respondent by Texas Produce. In addition, we note that Mr. Collier did testify that he didn't believe he had ever heard of a firm called Texas Produce. But then, given a memory like Mr. Collier's, one can easily imagine him having sold the grapes to Texas Produce, and subsequently being unable to recall anything concerning the sale. The resolution of this case lies, not in determining whether Texas Produce sold the grapes to Sol Salins, Inc., but whether complainant has met its burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that it sold the grapes to Sol Salins, Inc. We conclude that complainant has not met this burden, and that the complaint should be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), hereinafter, "the Act." A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the total amount of $3,150.80, in connection with the sale of a truckload of potatoes in interstate commerce. A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent. Respondent filed an Answer and Counterclaim on July 11, 1984, alleging that it was damaged by the complainant in the amount of $1,150.00. A Reply was thereafter filed by complainant on August 13, 1985.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000, the shortened method of procedure set forth in the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence herein, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file evidence in the form of additional sworn statements. No further statements were filed by the parties. Complainant filed a brief while respondent chose not to do so.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Bliss Produce Company is a corporation whose business mailing address is P.O. Box 816, Greenley, Colorado 80632.

2. Frost Trucking is a partnership composed of Agnes M. Frost and Eugene A. Frost whose business address is Box 272X, Bakersfield, California 93307. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about December 12, 1983, by oral agreement, complainant sold to respondent one truckload of Bulk oversize Kennebec potatoes at the agreed price of $9.00 per cwt., delivered to Venice, California, payment due within thirty days of delivery.

4. Pursuant to this contract, on December 12, 1983, complainant shipped 46,120 pounds of Bulk oversize Kennebec potatoes from Grafton, North Dakota to respondent. This truckload was delivered to respondent at Venice, California on December 15, 1983.

5. Immediately after delivery, respondent was billed $4,150.80 in accordance with the contract terms. During each of the next seven months, complainant sent bills to respondent requesting the remittance of $4,150.80 and stating that the payment was long overdue. In August, 1984, complainant's billing also threatened collection action, and immediately thereafter, respondent sent a payment of $1,000.00 to complainant. Complainant mailed four additional bills to respondent during the next four months requesting payment of the balance of $3,150.80.

6. An informal complaint in this proceeding was filed on September 28, 1984, which was within the nine months after the cause of action accrued. The formal complaint was then filed on March 26, 1985.

CONCLUSIONS

The record in this proceeding clearly supports an order requiring respondent to pay complainant the balance of the amount billed on the potatoes which were delivered to respondent. The following evidence is undisputed. The truckload in question was accepted at the destination and the bill of lading was signed without any mention of a product problem. For seven months following the transaction in question, complainant billed the respondent for a "Long Overdue" obligation on this contract. On its next billing, in August, 1984, complainant referred to a telephone conversation in which respondent agreed to send a check for the invoiced amount. Complainant also threatened legal action on that bill unless the check was sent immediately. Approximately one week later, complainant received a check for $1,000.00 from respondent.

In September, 1984, complainant's monthly billing contained the following statement:

> Thanks for your check in the amount of $1,000.00, leaving a balance due of $3,150.80. Please send check to Bliss Produce Co. P.O. Box 816, Greenley, Co. 80612.
> If we do not hear from you, we will have to turn this over for collection. As per my telephone conversation with Mrs.

> Frost 9/6/84, she said you would be in this weekend. PLEASE SEND CHECK.

In October, 1984, complainant's billing stated the following:

> Dear Mr. Frost:
> As per our telephone conversation 10/9/84 P.M. You said you would follow up on this account.
> Please send your check in the amount of $3,150.80.

Respondent now claims that the potatoes were frozen when delivered and that upon informing complainant of this problem shortly after delivery, complainant agreed to investigate the matter and communicate back. Respondent makes no attempt to explain why it never responded formally to the many bills which complainant sent to it and which reference telephone conversations during which respondent purportedly agreed to pay the entire invoiced amount. Respondent further claims that it only paid the $1,000.00 because it badly needed additional product from complainant.

It is immediately apparent from the record that despite the numerous bills sent by complainant it was not until November 1, 1984, that respondent bothered to document in writing its allegation that the potatoes were frozen and useless. This was done in response to an inquiry from the regional office of the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture (this was the second inquiry sent to respondent, the first one having been unanswered). In fact, respondent's claim at that time—that the potatoes were hauled to a hog farm—is contradicted by the claim in its Answer that the potatoes were hauled to a dairy in Corona, California and dumped for cattle feed. Moreover, respondent's contention in its Answer that the potatoes were hauled to the Venice dairy by Espinoza Trucking is also contradicted by a December, 1984, letter written by Eugene Frost to the Fruit and Vegetable Division in which he claims the potatoes were hauled to a Corona hog farm by Western Pacific Carriers.

Respondent has not only failed to provide adequate explanations concerning the statements and documentation provided by complainant, but has, in fact, provided further support to complainant's claims as a result of its contradictory contentions. The evidence clearly supports a conclusion that respondent accepted the potatoes delivered pursuant to the contract. Having accepted the shipment it is respondent's burden to prove a breach of the contract. Neal v. Kanakry, 20 Agric. Dec. 771 (1961). There is no credible evidence in the record to establish that the condition of the potatoes upon delivery was not in accordance with the contract.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $3,150.80 with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim of the respondent is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $1,791.00 in connection with the sale of a quantity of potatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as is the verified complaint. The answer, since it is not verified, it not considered part of the evidence. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement, respondent submitted an answering statement, and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Floyd J. Beyer, is an individual whose address is 233 South Knight Road, Munger, Michigan.

2. Respondent, S. B. Davis Company, is a corporation whose address is 2695 Elmridge Drive N.W., Grand Rapids, Michigan. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately May 7, 1984, respondent, through its vice-president Charles Johnson, acting as a broker on behalf of Nash-DeCamp Company, Visalia, California (hereinafter "Nash-DeCamp"), the agent of the shipper, Kundert Bros., Edison, California, negotiated the sale of a carload of Kundert potatoes from Nash-DeCamp to complainant. The carload consisted of 700 sacks of size A potatoes at $10.00 per sack, and 300 sacks of size B potatoes at $5.00 per sack, plus $22.50 for a temperature recorder, for a total contract price of $8,522.50, f.o.b. Mr. Johnson did not inform complainant, at the time the contract was negotiated, that the $10.00 per sack price for the size A potatoes was a "lid" price, and that complainant would be protected in the event of market decline. The potatoes were delivered to complainant on approximately May 16, 1984.

4. Respondent prepared a confirmation of sale reflecting the contract terms agreed to between the parties, as set forth in Finding of Fact 3, and sent it to complainant and Nash-DeCamp. Complainant never objected to the confirmation of sale.

5. On approximately May 16, 1984, complainant, respondent and Nash-DeCamp agreed to a $1.00 per sack reduction in price of the size A potatoes to $9.00 per sack. Respondent prepared an invoice reflecting the adjusted price of $9.00 per sack and sent it to complainant. Complainant never objected to the invoice until it returned it to respondent on June 15, 1984, with the price altered to $8.00 per sack for the size A potatoes, reflecting a $2.00 per sack reduction.

6. An informal complaint was filed on November 30, 1984, which was within nine months when the alleged cause of action herein accrued. A formal complaint was filed on September 27, 1985.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant claims that respondent, through its vice-president, Charles Johnson, violated its duty as a broker in connection with the sale of carload of potatoes to complainant from Nash-DeCamp

Company, Visalia, California. Complainant alleges that at the time the contract was negotiated, Mr. Johnson told him that Mazzei-Franconi potatoes would be shipped, but without permission substituted Kundert potatoes. Complainant also contends that Mr. Johnson agreed that the price for the 700 sacks of size A white potatoes would have a $10.00 per sack lid, with the final price to be determined at the time of delivery. Complainant contends further that when the potatoes were delivered, on approximately May 16, 1984, Mr. Johnson adjusted the price on the size A potatoes to $8.00 per sack, a $2.00 reduction. However, complainant asserts that Mr. Johnson acted without authorization from Nash-DeCamp, which did not honor the $2.00 per sack adjustment, permitting only a $1.00 per sack reduction. When complainant refused to pay the difference of $700.00, Nash-DeCamp brought a reparation complainant against him and, on April 22, 1985, was awarded $700.00, plus $91.00 interest (Nash-DeCamp Company v. Floyd J. Beyer 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (1985)). Complainant claims this sum plus $1,000.00 as his damages resulting from complainant's breach of its broker's duties.

The duties of a broker are set forth in section 46.28 of the regulations (7 CFR 46.28) in part, as follows:

> (a) General. The function of a broker is to negotiate, for or on behalf of others, valid and binding contracts. A broker who fails to perform any specification or duty, express or implied, in connection with any transaction is in violation of the act and is subject to the penalties specified in the act and may be held liable for damages which accrue as a result thereof. It shall be the duty of the broker to fully inform the parties concerning all of the terms and conditions of the proposed contract. . . . The broker should advise his principal promptly of rejection by the buyer or of any other unforseen development of which he is informed.

Complainant, as the moving party, has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence the essential allegations of his complaint (Vernon C. Justice v. Milford Packing Co., Inc. and/or Leibowitz Pickle Products, Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 533 (1975)), including in this case that respondent violated its broker's duties. After carefully examining all the evidence in the record, we can perceive no such violation by respondent. Respondent's Charles Johnson, in a sworn statement submitted as respondent's answering statement, has denied complainant's allegations that at the time the contract was being negotiated, Mr. Johnson informed him that Mazzei-Franconi potatoes would be shipped, and that the size A white potatoes would have a $10.00 per sack lid price with the final price to be designated at the time of delivery. The most accurate indication of the contract terms negotiated by respondent can be found in respondent's confirmation of sale, to which complainant never objected. That document completely supports respondent, as it shows the shipper as Kundert Bros. and a price of $10.00 per sack for the size A potatoes. The confirmation does not mention Mazzei-Franconi potatoes, nor does it say that the $10.00 per sack price is merely a lid, with the final price to be determined after delivery. Complainant's claim that Mr. Johnson gave him a $2.00 per sack price reduction on the size A potatoes, although the seller, Nash-DeCamp, had only authorized a $1.00 per sack reduction, is also denied by Mr. Johnson in his sworn answering statement. The only other evidence of any price adjustment negotiated by respondent is respondent's May 16, 1984, invoice to complainant, issued on the seller's behalf, which shows a $9.00 per sack price for the size A potatoes. This fully supports respondent's position. Mr. Johnson asserts that complainant received the invoice but never objected to it until this invoice was returned to respondent on June 15, 1984, altered to show a price of $8.00 per sack for the size A potatoes. Complainant has not disputed this assertion. Based on all the evidence in the record, we can not conclude that complainant has sustained his burden of proving that respondent violated any of its duties as a broker regarding the original contract negotiations or the change in price terms for the size A potatoes. Therefore, there is no merit to the complaint and it must be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is hereby dismissed.
Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Acceptance by unloading—Rejection ineffective if after acceptance—Burden of proving breach of warranty and damages on respondent buyer—Determination of damages resulting from breach of warranty.

Since respondent accepted the plums by unloading them from the truck, its subsequent attempted rejection was ineffective. Respondent proved that there was a breach of complainant's suitable shipping condition warranty and that transportation conditions were normal. Respondent also proved damages. Complainant awarded the difference between the contract price and respondent's damages.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $1,802.50 in connection with a quantity of plums sold and shipped to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Respondent submitted an answering statement, and complainant submitted a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Fruit Marketing, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 399, Del Rey, California.

2. Respondent, Purity Supreme, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 312 Boston Road, North Billerica, Massachusetts. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately June 28, 1984, complainant sold to respondent 240 lugs of Honey Gold plums at prices of $4.00 per lug for 42 lugs of 4×5 plums, $4.00 per lug for 35 lugs of 3×4×5 plums, and $8.00 per lug for 163 lugs of 4×4 plums, plus $22.50 for a Stires recorder and $168.00 for precooling and palletizing, for a total contract price of $1,802.50, f.o.b.

4. The load of plums was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent's place of business, where it arrived on July 3, 1984, and was unloaded.

5. On July 3, 1984, after arrival of the plums, respondent had them federally inspected, which resulted as follows, in relevant part:

WHERE INSPECTED	Appl. Warehouse
Condition Of Load:	Stacked on pallets at above location.
Temperature of Product:	37 to 42°F.
Condition:	Generally hard to firm, ground color light green to greenish-yellow. Average 6% damage by bruising. Range 8 to 22%, average 15% damage by brown surface discoloration affecting ⅛ to ¾ of surface. Decay ranges 2 to 8%, in most samples, some none, average 5% Brown Rot in various stages.
Remarks:	Applicant states above shipment unloaded from trailer number Florida 45870.

6. Sometime after the inspection, respondent informed the broker that it was rejecting the load. Complainant refused to authorize respondent to sell the plums for its account. On July 5, 1984, respondent turned the plums over to Peter Condakes Company, Inc., Everett, Massachusetts (hereinafter, "Condakes"), for consignment handling. Condakes provided an account of sales showing that it had received gross proceeds of $967.00 and deducted $145.05 for commission and $36.00 for handling, resulting in net proceeds of $785.95.

8. Respondent has not paid anything to complainant for the load of plums at issue.

9. An informal complaint was filed on March 6, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued. A formal complaint was subsequently filed on June 28, 1984.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent alleges that it rejected the plums because of their poor condition. However, according to the July 3, 1984, inspection report, the plums were inspected while stored in respondent's warehouse, after they had been unloaded from the truck. Respondent's action of unloading the plums was an exercise of dominion that constituted acceptance. Stonoca Farms Corporation v. S & S Produce Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 937 (1983). Respondent does not state when it tried to reject the plums, but we can assume that it did so after the plums were unloaded and inspected. Respondent's attempted rejection of the plums therefore came after acceptance and was ineffective. Herbert Rich Co. v. Blue Bonnet Foods, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 480 (1979).

Respondent is liable for the contract price of the accepted plums, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty. It is respondent's burden to prove the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Stonoca Farms Corporation v. S & S Produce Inc., supra. Since this was an f.o.b. sale, complainant gave the implied warranty of suitable shipping condition, meaning that the plums, at the time of billing, will be in a condition which, if handled under normal transportation service and conditions, will assure delivery without abnormal deterioration at the contract destination agreed upon between the parties. 7 CFR § 46.46(j). The July 3, 1984, inspection shows abnormal deterioration. Complainant claims that transportation conditions were abnormal, as indicated by the readings of the Stires recorder, which shows the temperature ranging from 45° to 50°F. for most of the trip. Respondent contends that the Stires recorder was not working properly, as it was found on the floor of the truck upon arrival at respondent's warehouse. Further, respondent points out that the pulp temperatures indicated by the inspection were from 37° to 42°F., which is inconsistent with a transit temperature as high as that reported by the Stires recorder. We agree with respondent that these two temperature readings are inconsistent, and conclude that the pulp temperatures found by the federal inspection are a more accurate indication of the normalcy of the transportation conditions than the reading of the Stires recorder. As such pulp temperatures are not excessive for plums, we find that transportation conditions were normal.

Complainant was thus in breach of its suitable shipping condition warranty. As damages resulting from its breach, respondent is entitled to the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the actual value of the plums and their value if they had been as warranted. Tom Bengard Ranch, Inc. a/t/a Kleen Harvest v. Garden State Farms, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 922 (1983). The actual value is usually determined by the results of a prompt and proper resale. The consignment handling by Peter Condakes Company, Inc., resulting in net proceeds of $785.95, is not disputed by complainant and appears to be prompt and proper. For the value of the plums if they had been as warranted, we will take judicial notice of the price quotations of the Market News Service Reports for Everett, Massachusetts. Although the reports for early July 1984 do not make reference to Honey Gold plums, the price for such plums can be determined by averaging the prices quoted for the many different types of California Plums listed, utilizing the lower price where a range of prices is noted. The average price for 4×4 plums on July 3, 1984, is $11.50 per lug. The average price for 3×4×5 plums on July 3, 1984 is $7.50 per lug. While prices for 4×5 plums are not listed under July 3, 1984, they are found in the reports of July 5, 1984, at $6.00 per lug. Therefore, the price for the plums, if they had been as warranted, would have been $1,874.50 for the 163 lugs of 4×4 plums, $262.50 for the 35 lugs of 3×4×5 plums, and $252.00 for the 42 lugs of 4×5 plums, for a total of $2,389.00. The difference between the actual value of $785.95 and the value if the plums had been as warranted, $2,389.00, is $1,603.05. We should deduct from this figure the amount respondent saved by failing to pay for freight, which was respondent's obligation under the f.o.b. terms of the contract, since complainant presumably paid the freight after respondent's purported rejection. However, there is absolutely no evidence in the record as to what complainant paid for freight for the shipment to respondent, and we are thus forced to find respondent's damages to be $1,603.05.

Respondent's liability is the contract price of $1,802.50 less its damages of $1,603.05, or $199.45. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $199.45, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from August 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Broker sale—Failure to prove breach of contract—Complaint dismissed—Open Pricing.

Broker who negotiated sale confirmed respondent's contention that contract price for a truckload of tomatoes was not determined at the time of sale but rather left open to be determined on Tuesday of the week following shipment. Since respondent had paid complainant market price as of that date, complainant failed to prove contract breach, and complaint was dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter "the Act". A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $26,640.00 in connection with the sale and shipment of a truckload of tomatoes in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon the parties. After a copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, respondent voluntarily paid complainant $14,163.00, thereby reducing the amount in dispute to $12,477.00. Thereafter, respondent filed an answer denying liability except as to $6,877.00 of the $12,477.00 claim. Respondent was accordingly ordered to pay $6,877.00 to complainant, leaving $5,600.00 as the final amount in dispute.

Since the amount claimed does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given opportunities to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement but no brief. Respondent submitted an answering statement which, although not timely filed, was accepted into the record inasmuch as the relevant and material content thereof merely duplicates evidence already in the record. Respondent also did not file a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Bonita Packing Co., Inc. (hereinafter "Bonita"), is a corporation with a mailing address at Post Office Box 309, Bonita Springs, Florida 33923.

2. Respondent, Lookout Mountain Tomato and Banana Company, Inc. (hereinafter "Lookout"), is a corporation with a mailing address at 1212 Peoples Street, Chattanooga, Tennessee 37403. At the time of the transaction involved herein, Lookout was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 23, 1985, Bonita in interstate commerce sold Lookout by oral contract a truckload of fresh tomatoes, consisting of 1600 boxes of 5×6 size tomatoes.

4. The contract was negotiated by Pat Adams of Bonita Springs, Florida, who acted as agent for both complainant and respondent.

5. Lookout accepted the tomatoes at destination and has paid Bonita $21,040.00 of the $26,640.00 demanded by Bonita as the purchase price.

6. A formal complaint was filed on March 25, 1985, which was within nine months from the time the cause of action accrued.

SUBSIDIARY FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

Bonita claims the contract price for the tomatoes was $16.00 per box plus $.50 per box for degreening and $.15 per box for palletizing. In support of that claim, Bonita submitted evidence showing the average Florida price for the week ending January 19, 1985, was $17.09 per box, and for the week ending January 26, 1985, the average price was $14.70 per box. Further, for tomatoes shipped between January 18, 1985, and January 25, 1985, Bonita generally charged customers other than Lookout $16.00 per box, although some prices were as low as $10.00 per box for the same size tomatoes. Lookout, on the other hand, contends that the price was not determined on January 23, the shipment date, but rather left open to be determined by the market price on Tuesday, January 29, 1985, pursuant to the past practice of Lookout and Bonita on tomato contracts where the price was settled on Tuesday of the week following shipment.

As the moving party, Bonita has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence the terms of the contract, respondent's breach thereof, and the resulting damages, if any, sustained by Bonita. Justice v. Milford Packing Co., 34 Agric. Dec. 533, and cases cited at 535 (1975). Bonita has not met that burden. Pat Adams, the broker who represented both Bonita and Lookout in this transaction, corroborated without qualification Lookout's contention that "this load should have been priced on Tuesday, January 29, 1985."

As an ostensibly neutral third party, the broker's statements are entitled to great weight. Homestead Tomato Packing Co. v. Mims Produce, Inc., 43 Agric. Dec. ____ (1984). Therefore, we cannot credit Bonita's claims regarding the price term of the contract. Similarly, Bonita's claim for a degreening charge finds no support in the record. In fact, Bonita's own evidence shows that it did not charge the vast majority of its customers for degreening during the period in question (33 out of 43 sales or 77%). In sum, Bonita has not proved its allegations by a preponderance of the evidence.

The market price for the tomatoes was $13.00 per box on Tuesday, January 29, having dropped significantly from the previous week's abnormally high prices caused by freezing weather which destroyed part of the crop. Since Lookout has paid Bonita the market price for the tomatoes and for palletizing according to the contract between the parties, Bonita's claim will be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies shall be served upon the parties.

A. DUDA & SONS, INC. v. PETE PAPPAS & SONS. PACA Docket No. 2-6940. Decided October 17, 1986.

Contracts—Open price term—Contract term, "To be priced on next week's market"—Contracts, Objective theory followed.

Complainant sold and shipped a truck load of tomatoes of varying grades and sizes to respondent "to be priced on next week's market". This open price term was used because the parties expected unsettled market conditions due to a freeze at shipping point at about the time the contract was made. Complainant contended the term should be interpreted to refer to prices at the beginning of the following week, whereas respondent contended that, since the market remained unsettled for over two weeks, it should be allowed to pay complainant on the basis of its actual sales of the tomatoes. It was held that contract prices should be determined on the basis of actual shipping point market prices as reflected by Federal State Market News Service reports during the entire following business week.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $4,752.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complainant was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent did not file an answering statement. Complaianant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, A. Duda & Sons Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 257, Oviedo, Florida.

2. Respondent, Pete Pappas & Sons, is a partnership composed of Peter G. Pappas and Philip G. Pappas, whose address is P.O. Box 1292, Washington, D.C. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 22, 1985, complainant sold to respondent one truckload of tomatoes as follows: 288 cartons of 5×6 size, U.S. No. 2 grade, Homegrown brand; 504 cartons of 5×6 size, approximately 85% U.S. No. 1 grade, Beefsteak brand; and 792 cartons of 6×6 size, approximately 85% U.S. No. 1, Beefsteak brand; all "to be priced on next week's market".

4. The tomatoes were shipped on January 22, 1985, from Naples, Florida to respondent in Washington, D.C., and were accepted by respondent on arrival. On February 11, 1985, complainant invoiced respondent at the rate of $14.00 per carton for the 288 cartons of 5×6 U.S. No. 2 tomatoes, $16.00 for the 504 cartons of 5×6 85% U.S. No. 1 tomatoes, and $14.00 for the 792 cartons of 6×6 85% U.S. No. 1 tomatoes, or a total, including a palletizing charge of 15¢ per carton, of $23,421.60. Respondent has paid complainant $18,669.60 for the tomatoes.

5. The contract between complainant and respondent was negotiated on complainant's part by Robert C. Elliott, a salesman for Gargiulo, Inc., a broker located in Naples Florida, who was employed to act on complainant's behalf by complainant's sales agent, Naples Tomatoes Growers, Inc. The contract was negotiated on respondent's behalf by Frank Detrani of Frank Detrani Distributing Co., Inc., of Naples, Florida.

6. The Florida Fruit and Vegetable report published by Federal-State Market News Service, of Winter Park, Florida recorded the following prices, in relevant part, for tomatoes in South and Central Florida: Sales January 28, of 25 pound cartons of loose Mature Green U.S. combination grade or better; 5×6s-$15.00, 6×6s-$14.00; U.S. No. 2; 5×6s-$13.00-$13.50, mostly 13, occasional higher. Sales January 29, showed U.S. combination grade or better; 5×6s-$13.00, 6×6s-$12.00, and U.S. No. 2; 5×6s-$11.00. Federal State Market News reports for Jessup-Maryland reporting f.o.b. shipping point sales for South and Central Florida showed tomatoes on Tuesday, January 29, 1985, selling on an f.o.b. shipping point basis as follows: 25 pound cartons of loose Mature Green 85% or better U.S. No. 1 quality; 5×6s-$13.00, 6×6s-$12.00. The same report showed sales on Wednesday, January 30, 1985, as follows: "Weaker Undertone. Too few sales to establish a market." The same report for Thursday, January 31, 1985, showed sales as follows: 25 pound cartons of loose Mature Green U.S. combination grade or better; 5×6s-$10.00, few $9.00, 6×6s-$9.00, few lower.

7. The formal complaint was filed on March 13, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In this case we are refreshingly confronted with a situation in which both parties have acted with apparent integrity, but have a good faith dispute over the meaning to be given to a somewhat vague term used in their contract. Complainant and respondent, and the brokers involved in the negotiation of the contract, all agree that due to a freeze in Florida at about the time the contract was made, which was expected to cause unsettled conditions in the tomato market, the tomatoes were sold "to be priced on next week's market". It is clear that by next week the parties intended to refer to the business week beginning Monday, January 28, 1985. However, complainant maintains that the phrase should be taken to refer to prices at the beginning of the week, whereas respondent maintains that the market remained unsettled for over two weeks following the sale, and since it sold the tomatoes on the best possible terms, it should be allowed to pay complainant in the light of the market it actually experienced.

Both parties characterized the price term used by them as an "open price term", and argue for their respective positions on this basis. It is true that the term employed generically falls into the category of an open price term as those words are used in UCC section 2-305, i.e. "The parties if they so intend can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled". However, the succeeding sentence providing for a reasonable price at time of delivery does not apply since none of the three prescribed conditions is applicable. The first proviso: "if nothing is said as to price", clearly does not apply. Something was said as to price, namely "to be priced at next week's market." The second proviso: "if the price is left to be agreed by the parties and they fail to agree", also does not apply since the price was not left to be agreed to by the parties. The third proviso "if the price is to be fixed in terms of some agreed market or other standard as set or recorded by a third person or agency and it is not so set or recorded", also does not apply. Although it is true that the price was to be fixed in terms of an agreed market, namely the f.o.b. shipping point tomato market, and that market was recorded by a third person, namely the Federal-State Market News Service, it cannot be said that such market was not set or recorded.

While complainant has argued that the term "next week's market" was not tied to any market reporting service, and that such is not contended by either party, we think that the record herein establishes otherwise. Both parties, throughout this proceeding, have continually made reference to both the shipping point and destination point Federal-State Market News Service reports and have supplied, at various times, copies of such reports as a part of the record herein. Furthermore, such reports, in point of fact, are based upon actual sales of the specified commodities and therefore establish, to the extent relevant sales were recorded, what the actual market for a given commodity was. Although both complainant and respondent submitted copies of the market reports in support of their respective positions, neither party appears willing to rely wholly upon such reports. Respondent seeks to pay complainant on the basis of its actual sales plus a profit, and complainant suggests that if we do not use the market for the first part of the next week, prices should be based upon its actual sale prices during such period of time. Respondent complains that the market as reflected by the Market News Service reports was unsettled during the applicable period, and complainant complains that the market reports simply do not adequately report on the specific quality of merchandise involved in this tomato transaction. We conclude that both complainant and respondent are wrong. The Market News Service reports are from a neutral source, are based upon objective sales, and should be used if at all possible.

As to the meaning of the term "to be priced on next week's market" we have no hesitation in ascribing to such term its plain and simple meaning. We see no reason to interpret the term to mean the first part of the next week, the last part of the next week, or the middle of the next week. Complainant's sales agent, Robert C. Elliott, stated in a sworn statement submitted as a part of complainant's opening statement, that "it was my intent that the term 'next week's market' meant the market price, f.o.b. Naples, Florida at the beginning of the following week, . . ." While we do not doubt that this is precisely what Mr. Elliott meant by the term, there is absolutely no way that the person with whom he was dealing could know of such intended meaning in the absence of verbal expression of such meaning. See Anonymous, 8 Agric. Dec. 374 (1949). Complainant's credit manager, Henry L. Clark, in a letter to this Department adopted what we feel is the only possible interpretation of the term: "We maintain that the intent and interpretation of 'next week's market' means just that, next week's prices. It does not, as the respondent suggests, mean those prices two weeks from now, or when the market is settled, or when the respondent feels the price is right."

Although each of the parties submitted numerous copies of Market News Service reports, most of these reports are irrelevant to the time period with which we are concerned. Complainant submitted f.o.b. shipping point Market News Service reports covering only Monday and Tuesday of the week of January 28, 1985. Respondent submitted destination Market News Service reports for each day of the entire two weeks following the sale of the subject tomatoes. However, in each case the page giving shipping point tomato quotations was omitted. Later, respondent submitted additional destination Market News Service reports which included the page giving shipping point quotations, but the reports covered only Tuesday, January 29, Wednesday, January 30, and Thursday, January 31, 1985. The Monday and Tuesday shipping point reports submitted by complainant do not give quotations for 85% U.S. No. 1 tomatoes, but rather for "U.S. combination grade or better" tomatoes. However, the Jessup, Maryland Market News Service report in giving f.o.b. shipping prices for South and Central Florida on Tuesday, January 29, quotes 85% or better U.S. No. 1 quality tomatoes size 5×6 and 6×6 at $13.00 and $12.00 respectively, or the same identical price given by the Winter Haven Market News Service report for f.o.b. shipping point prices from South and Central Florida on the same date. We conclude that at the time U.S. combination grade and 85% U.S. No. 1 were selling at or about the same prices. Averaging the available prices for each category of tomatoes over the week of January 28 (the parties did not submit a Market News report covering f.o.b. shipping point prices for Friday, February 1, 1985, and the available reports give no prices in any of the categories of tomatoes for Wednesday, and no prices for the U.S. No. 2s for Tuesday or Thursday) the 85% U.S. No. 1 5×6 tomatoes had an average price for the week of $12.66, the 85% U.S. No. 1 6×6 tomatoes had an average price for the week of $11.66, and the U.S. No. 2 5×6 tomatoes had an average price for the week of $12.00. Multiplying these average prices by the number of cartons in each category, and adding 15¢ per carton for palletizing in accordance with the contractual agreement between the parties, yields a total f.o.b. price for the truckload of $19,308.96. Respondent has already paid complainant $18,669.60, which leaves a balance still due of $639.36. We conclude that respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $639.36, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from March 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on June 12, 1986, requiring that respondent pay complainant, as reparation, $46,767.26 plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from April 1, 1984, until paid. The Order was served on respondent who, on July 16, 1986, returned it to the Department by a letter dated July 8, 1986. In his letter, respondent claimed that certain exhibits he offered should not have been excluded from the record, and that he had difficulty in "understanding the procedures followed by" the Department. This letter is being treated as a petition for reconsideration filed pursuant to 7 CFR § 47.24.

The documents which were referred to by respondent as allegedly being excluded from the record were documents which were submitted by respondent after the case had been closed for the submission of evidence. Moreover, the documents were cumulative in that copies of them had already been submitted by complainant. Thus, the presiding officer properly refused to accept them into evidence. 7 CFR § 47.24.

Respondent's claim that he had difficulty in understanding our procedures has no merit as a ground for seeking reconsideration. Our procedures are spelled out in the Code of Federal Regulations, and are detailed in all our correspondence with the parties. Moreover, presiding officers are available to discuss these matters with parties to reparation proceedings. Additionally, and in view of the amount in dispute it would have been prudent to do so, respondent could have retained counsel.

Upon review of the record, we are of the opinion that respondent's claims in his petition for reconsideration are without merit, and we conclude that our order of June 12, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, respondent's petition for reconsideration is denied without prior service upon complainant.

The order of June 12, 1986, is reinstated except that payment shall be due within 30 days from the date of this order.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

NOTICE TO SHOW CAUSE

A formal complaint was filed in this proceeding on November 1, 1982, in which complainant asked for damages of $44,260.00. An answer and counterclaim was filed on July 5, 1983, in which respondent claimed damages of $31,295.00. An oral hearing was originally set for September 25, 1984. At the request of the parties, it was postponed indefinitely.

This tribunal has made several efforts since September 25, 1984, to reset this matter for oral hearing, but the parties have consistently requested such action not be taken. In a telephone conversation on September 9, 1986, Ms. Marlene Monson, an official with complainant, advised this tribunal that respondent had paid all of complainant's original claim. She was advised at that time that this tribunal would issue a Notice to Show Cause why this proceeding should not be dismissed.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding brought pursuant to the provisions of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on July 18, 1986, dismissing the complaint. On August 8, 1986, the Department received a letter from complainant in which it claims that it "does not agree with [our] Conclusions, page 2." As we understand complainant's petition, it claims that we erred in concluding that the respondent's $4,193.00 was accepted by it in full settlement of the parties' dispute. However, before complainant negotiated the respondent's check, it was notified by the Department that the respondent had refused to release the check as an undisputed amount. Under these circumstances, complainant cannot say that it had no notice that its acceptance of the check would result in an accord and satisfaction.

Complainant also claims that it should have been allowed to file a statement in reply. However, as the respondent did not file an answering statement, the Rules of Practice did not permit such a filing and the presiding officer properly rejected complainant's filing. See 7 CFR § 47.20(e). Had complainant desired to respond to respondent's answer, it should have filed an opening statement as solicited in the presiding officer's May 10, 1985, letter, but it failed to do. In any event, we have perused the statements in its proposed statement in reply and can see nothing which would have changed our decision.

Upon review of the record, we are of the opinion that complainant's claims are without merit, and we conclude that our order of July 18, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, complainant's petition for reconsideration is dismissed without prior service upon respondent.

The order of July 18, 1986, is reinstated.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER OF CONTINUANCE

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation of $28,573.15 against respondent in connection with transactions in interstate commerce involving shipments of fruits and vegetables. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent has filed an answer thereto.

Complainant, California Produce Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 751 Merchant Street, Los Angeles, California. Respondent, Gus' Wholesale Meat and Foods Co., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 4225, Pueblo, Colorado. Respondent was licensed under the Act at the time of the transactions involved herein.

Prior to the issuance of a Decision and Order in this proceeding, the Department was advised that respondent had filed in the United States Bankruptcy Court, District of Colorado, a voluntary petition of reorganization pursuant to Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. §§ 1101-1174). The Department also was advised that a discharge in the bankruptcy proceeding would be a release of the claim before the Department.

11 U.S.C. § 362 provides for an automatic stay against continuing an action involving a debt once a party has filed a petition under the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 362, this reparation proceeding is hereby continued until the Department receives proper notification that the Chapter 11 proceeding now pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court has been closed, dismissed, or converted to straight bankruptcy, or that the debts have been discharged through confirmation of a Plan of Arrangement.

Respondent, Vollmer Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is Route 4, Box 1360 Hwy. 6, Navosota, Texas 77868. Respondent was licensed under the Act at the time of the transactions involved herein.

Prior to the issuance of a final ruling in this proceeding, the Department was advised that respondent had filed, in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of Texas, a voluntary petition of reorganization pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. §§ 1101-1174), which has been designated docket no. 86-107-82-H3-11.

11 U.S.C. § 362 provides for an automatic stay against continuing an action involving a debt once a party has filed a petition under the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, in accordance with 11 U.S.C. § 362, this reparation proceeding is hereby continued until the Department receives proper notification that the Chapter 11 proceeding now pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court has been closed, dismissed, or converted to straight bankruptcy, or that the debts have been discharged through confirmation of a Plan of Arrangement.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $2,217.30 in connection with a transaction involving the shipment of lettuce in interstate commerce.

A copy of the formal complaint was served on respondent. By letter dated August 15, 1986, complainant notified the Department that respondent tendered to complainant a check in full settlement of complainant's claim. Complainant, in its letter of August 15, 1986, authorized dismissal of its complaint filed herein.

Accordingly, the complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER DISMISSING SECOND PETITION FOR RECONSIDERATION

A Decision and Order was issued in this matter on December 17, 1984, awarding reparation to complainant against respondent H. Schnell & Company in the amount of $3,404.00 plus interest, and against respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc. in the amount of $7,522.00 plus interest. On January 30, 1985, the order of December 17, 1984, was stayed, and respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc. was allowed to file a petition to rehear, reargue and reconsider. On May 15, 1985, we granted rehearing of this matter, and the record was reopened to receive new evidence. After receiving evidence from the parties and again closing the record an Order Upon Rehearing was issued on April 9, 1986, reaffirming and reinstating our prior order. On May 8, 1986, respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc., filed another petition to reconsider. On May 27, 1986, the order of April 9, 1986, was stayed pending the issuance of a further order in this case.

We have thoroughly reconsidered, for the second time, our order of December 17, 1984, in the light of the record in this proceeding. Aside from the question of whether respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc., received the economic benefit of the check issued to it by A & J Produce Corp., we believe that the record supports the conclusion that Lloyd Myers Co., Inc. ordered the load of broccoli for H. Schnell & Company, Inc. without its authorization, and diverted the car, without the authorization of either complainant or H. Schnell & Company, Inc. to A & J Produce Corp. The record further discloses that Lloyd Myers Co., Inc. issued a broker's memorandum of sale to A & J Produce Corp. directing that company to pay Lloyd Myers Co., Inc. for the produce. These actions were a violation of respondent Lloyd Myers Co., Inc.'s duties as a broker, and a violation of the Act, which resulted in complainant not being paid for the produce. We find that our order of December 17, 1984, requiring that Lloyd Myers Co., Inc. pay complainant, as reparation, the sum of $7,522.00, with interest is supported by the evidence of record and the law applicable thereto. That order is hereby reinstated, except that the reparation awarded therein, with interest, shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

In W. J. Wescott v. Yonk Rubin & Son and/or A. L. Schiano, 10 Agric. Dec. 358 (1951), the opinion was expressed that the Secretary has the discretion whether to allow a party to file more than one petition for reconsideration. As stated therein, the administrative consideration of a proceeding must be brought to a conclusion at some time. No further petition for reconsideration by respondent Lloyd Meyers Co., Inc., will be accepted for filing in this proceeding.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION AND DENYING PETITION TO REOPEN

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), an order was issued December 11, 1985, awarding reparation to complainant against respondent in the amount of $8,227.10. On December 26, 1985, respondent filed a petition for reconsideration and reopening. On February 4, 1986, a stay order was issued giving complainant an opportunity to file an answer to the petition to reconsider and reopen. Such answer was duly filed, and respondent filed a reply to such answer on April 28, 1986.

One of the matters raised in respondent's petition to reconsider concerns an alleged custom and practice in the industry which respondent states contravenes the Department's regulations. Consequently, respondent has requested that "if additional testimony is necessary with respect to custom and practice in the industry or with respect to the Department of Agriculture's own procedures, the record could be reopened for that purpose." It is well settled that where the evidence could have been submitted at the original hearing a proceeding will not be reopened to receive such evidence. See Monc's Consolidated Produce, Inc. v. Black Diamond Fruit & Produce Company, Inc., and/or Kenneth C. White, 36 Agric. Dec. 97 (1977). The only possible exception to this rule is where evidence comes to light after the close of a hearing which clearly shows a fundamental factual determination to have been in error. Even then, if the failure to offer such evidence was through negligence or oversight of counsel we would not reopen. Clearly, this is not a proceeding which should be reopened.

Respondent states in its petition to reconsider that the decision reached by this Department "unfairly rewards a party which has engaged in reprehensible, deceptive and fraudulent business practices", and is "based upon an incorrect understanding of custom and practice in the industry and of the United States Department of Agriculture's own procedures". Respondent further states that our decision "discounted, and indeed almost overlooked the basic, largely undisputed fact underlying this dispute." Respondent then goes on to detail its basic allegation that the pineapple which it received from complainant did not measure up to the sample which complainant had previously submitted. Respondent further alleges that:

> In rendering a decision for the Complainant the Judicial Officer abandoned any sense of fairness in favor of a wooden adherence to those regulations contained in § CFR 7 which set forth certain rigid time limits for the rejection of fruit. However, in reaching his decision the Officer completely overlooked the unchallenged testimony of the Respondent's President that custom and practice in the industry is that when dealing with what is believed to be a reputable seller, a buyer does not have to immediately inspect a shipment of hard frozen fruit.

There are two fundamental points which require the result which we reached in our decision and order of December 11, 1985. First, is the evident fact of respondent's acceptance of the frozen pineapple. Our decision of December 11, 1985, thoroughly covers this point and shows why, under the Department's regulations, and under our prior decisions, respondent must be deemed to have accepted the product. Against this respondent urges industry custom and practice. However, it is a fundamental premise of administrative law that an agency is bound by its own regulations. United States v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683, 693–696, 94 S.Ct 3090, 41 L.Ed. 2d 1039 (1974); and Service v. Dulles, 354 U.S. 363, 77 S.Ct 1152, 1 L.Ed. 2d 1403 (1957). Accordingly, respondent must fail in its effort to overthrow the December 11, 1985, decision on this point.

Respondent's acceptance of the product, standing alone, did not preclude respondent from prevailing in this proceeding. As we noted in our conclusions, "the testimonial evidence supports respondent's contention" that the pineapple which respondent accepted did not conform to the sample previously sent by complainant. This brings us to the second major point which, taken with respondent's acceptance, precludes a decision in respondent's favor in this case. As we stated in the December 11, order "respondent totally failed to submit any evidence which would form a basis for computing damages in this proceeding." Respondent did not submit an accounting covering the resale of the 511 cases of pineapple which it accepted, and indeed there was no showing that the pineapple was in fact resold. As we stated, "without such accounting . . . or some other way of determining the value of [the] product at time of delivery we cannot award damages which result from any breach." Respondent has not proposed any remedy for its failure to offer this evidence, nor has respondent seemed to grasp the significance of its failure. Assuming that respondent was now to be allowed to offer additional proof that the contract was breached, and was to succeed in convincing us that we should so decide, respondent still would not prevail due to its failure to prove damages resulting from such breach.

Respondent's failure to prove damages was the underlying reason for our discussion concerning the import to be given to the substandard grade accorded to the product accepted by respondent. Nothing that respondent has submitted or proposed to submit undercuts the conclusion reached in our prior decision that a substandard grade does not render product unmerchantable and without commercial value. Although respondent now professes to be able to prove that the substandard product in fact had a score of 71, respondent even now does not allege that it can show that such a score would be proof that the product had no commercial value. Only a showing that this product had no commercial value would be relevant, in the absence of an accounting covering a resale of the product, to show damages in this case.

Upon reconsideration we find that the order of December 11, 1985, is supported by the evidence and the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, the Petition for Reconsideration and the Petition to Reopen are hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

A Decision and Order was issued in this proceeding on May 1, 1986. A Motion For Reconsideration was filed by complainant on May 13, 1986, as a result of which the Order was stayed on June 10, 1986. Respondent filed a Response To Complainant's Petition For Reconsideration And Cross-Petition For Reconsideration on July 21, 1986.

Full consideration has been given to the arguments made by both parties in their pleadings, as well as relevant portions of the record. Based on our review of the facts and law, we conclude that the Motion For Reconsideration should be denied. Respondent's Cross-Petition For Reconsideration was apparently to be considered by this tribunal only if complainant's motion was granted. As will be discussed more fully below, it would be denied in any event.

Complainant has set forth two bases as to why the Decision should be reconsidered. First it claims that the tribunal misconstrued controlling legal principles in determining the appropriate measure of damages. Complainant believes that the Decision is inconsistent insofar as it states that the complainant did not accept the claim and settlement procedures followed by respondent, but later states that "damages are limited to no more than what was requested in [complainant's] formal written claims submitted to respondent . . . pursuant to Chiquita's claim and settlement procedures". Complainant is incorrect in its reading of the Decision. As was pointed out by respondent in its response the word "and" did not appear between the words "claim" and "settlement" in the discussion of the procedures. As was fully discussed in the Decision, by its course of conduct complainant had accepted the claim procedure, which may also be considered to be claim settlement procedures, set forth in respondent's invoices. That to which complainant had never agreed were the actual settlement terms and conditions unilaterally imposed by respondent extraneous to the procedures for filing claims which might lead to settlement, but which were not included as part of the invoices used by respondent over the years. Indeed, had respondent set forth on its invoices appropriate terminology it could have bound both parties to accept whatever amount of settlement respondent offered if a course of conduct was established over a period of time. We find the other arguments made by complainant with respect to the issue of determining the measure of damages to be saving arguments only, which we need not deal with in this Order on Reconsideration.

The second ground raised by complainant in its Motion For Reconsideration deals with loads 11 through 13 in the complaint. This tribunal denied recovery with respect to these three loads because it found that complainant failed to sustain its burden of proof that the bananas did not make good delivery. The major basis for the conclusion of the tribunal was that complainant did not file a claim of any kind with respect to the three loads until 5 or 6 days after the arrival of the bananas at its place of business, as a result of which it was not possible to determine who was responsible for the deterioration in the bananas. Complainant asked that this determination be overturned by referring to what are known as "after-ripe inspection" reports, which reports are based on inspections carried out by Chiquita for all loads of bananas which are unloaded from ships, usually a week or so after such unloading. While the specific after-ripe inspection report relied upon by complainant shows that with respect to the bananas involved in transactions 11 through 13 there were a high number of defects, we conclude that an inspection at a place other than complainant's business of a sample of bananas taken from ship is not sufficiently probative of the condition of the bananas at complainant's place of business several days after they have arrived. There are many possible distinctions to be made between specific lots of bananas and a sample taken from an entire ship. In essence, the after-ripe inspection is too remote in time, and there are too many possible extraneous factors, for us to conclude that it may be relied upon to show the condition of the bananas at complainant's place of business several days after arrival, and to attribute any deteriorated condition to respondent. For example, complainant's bananas came from hold number 4. The after-ripe inspection report does not show how the bananas were segregated by hold. Bananas from hold number 4 may have been all right. The high percentage of defects may have occurred with bananas from holds number 1, 2 and 3. Complainant has a higher burden than merely to show by a somewhat remotely related report that respondent may have delivered bananas which were not in accordance with contract specifications. Furthermore, we subscribe to the theory of respondent in its response to complainant's Petition For Reconsideration that the kinds of defects set forth in the after-ripe inspection report were not related to the primary claim of complainant that there was underpeel discoloration.

Although it is not necessary to do so this tribunal wishes to speak to respondent's Cross Petition for Reconsideration. The claim of respondent that there is an industry custom and practice of settling banana claims on an f.o.b. basis needs little elaboration over and above that which was set forth in the Decision and Order previously issued. Respondent failed to address the fact that industry practice needs to be shown not by self serving claims of shippers of bananas, but rather by testimonial and documentary evidence provided by receivers of bananas.

Respondent's claim that it is inequitable and unjust to award complainant all the and expenses fees claimed when it only received 19% of its total claim is without merit. Respondent attached as an exhibit to its cross-petition a prior letter from respondent to complainant offering settlements somewhat near the amount of money which was ultimately awarded by this tribunal. This letter has not been considered because it was not properly filed, and because in any event offers of settlement are not appropriate for consideration. Respondent has also reasoned that it won the case because 81% of the claim of complainant was disallowed. Respondent's reasoning in this regard is erroneous. The Secretary of Agriculture has determined that to award fees and expenses based upon the percentage of a claim allowed would not be in the public interest. It would discourage a complaining party from filing a valid claim merely because it might receive less than all of its claim, and have to pay fees and expenses. It is well established in American judicial practice that claims usually exceed the amount actually awarded. Furthermore, under the PACA respondents have an alternative approach to the defense of large claims under which they may receive the award of attorney's fees and other expenses.

They may admit liability and submit payment for that portion of the total claim for which they believe they may be liable. Then, a respondent may defend the remainder of the claim, and if it is correct and prevails, will be awarded its fees and expenses. The policy of the Secretary of Agriculture in this regard is long standing, has worked well, and is equitable and just. Rather than discourage settlements, it moves the parties forward towards fair resolutions of their dispute short of oral hearing, and assures that the party which prevails receives the fees and expenses to which it is entitled. That is not to say that if the Secretary found in an individual case that a complainant filed a lawsuit asking for an extreme amount of money, or its claim was otherwise unreasonable, the Secretary would not scrutinize closely this policy to determine whether an exception should be made.

ORDER

Complainant's Motion For Reconsideration is denied. Respondent's Cross-Petition For Reconsideration is denied. The Order dated May 1, 1986, is reinstated except for effective dates and the dates for the computation of interest, as set forth below.

Within thirty days from the date of this order respondent shall pay fees and expenses to the complainant, as reparation, in the amount of $6,482.10, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from the date of this order until paid.

AGRI-PAK FRUIT CO., v. NICHO PRODUCE CO., INC., and/or SO. CENTRAL BROKERAGE, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6723. Decided October 17, 1986.

Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on June 27, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant in the amount of $2,232.00 with interest at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1983, until paid, against respondent Nicho Produce Co., Inc. ("Nicho"). After the Department received an undated letter from Nicho requesting the time to file a petition for reconsideration, the Decision and Order was stayed on August 18, 1986, and Nicho was given 15 days from service of the Order to file such a petition. On September 3, 1986, a letter was received from a Mr. B.R. Stockton which was typed on the letterhead of Westlake Distributors, P.O. Box 8245, Fresno, California 93727, in which he expresses some concerns regarding our Decision and Order in this matter and attempts to amplify the record regarding the history of the subject grapes before they were shipped to Nicho. So far as the record reflects, Westlake Distributors has no interest in this matter either financial or otherwise. However, as in its request for a stay Nicho indicated that it needed more time "in order to get an affidavit from Mr. Bob Stockton, who is presently out of the country," the letter from Mr. Stockton is accepted as Nicho's petition for reconsideration.

Mr. Stockton, in his letter, claims that he (although he never explains his relationship, past or present, to any of the parties to this proceeding) never expected that Nicho would be held responsible for this load of grapes. He further goes on to claim that the grapes had been in storage and that "Nicho was justified in their [sic] rejection of" them. On the face of his letter, it appears as if Mr. Stockton may have had something of value to contribute to this proceeding which might have been helpful to Nicho's presentation of its defense. However, the sparse facts contained in his letter must be characterized as "too little, too late." Under the Rules of Practice, 7 CFR § 47.24, petitions to reopen a reparation proceeding for the taking of further evidence, and Mr. Stockton's letter would have to be construed as such, must be filed with the presiding officer prior to the issuance of the final order. As the final order in this case was issued on June 27, 1986, a petition to reopen this matter should not be entertained. In any event, without substantially more facts than are contained in Mr. Stockton's letter, such as his involvement in the transaction, the source of his knowledge as to the condition of the grapes when shipped to Nicho by complainant, etc., we cannot say that his letter, even if filed prior to the issuance of our June 27, 1986, Decision and Order would have swayed us to rule in Nicho's favor.

Upon review of the record, we are of the opinion that Nicho's claims are without merit, and we conclude that our Decision and Order of June 27, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, Nicho's petition for reconsideration is dismissed without prior service upon complainant.

The Order of June 27, 1986, is reinstated except that the reparation awarded therein shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this Order.

Copies of this Order shall be served upon the parties.

CORRECTED ORDER

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on October 3, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant in the amount of $13,200.00 plus interest. In that order, the interest rate was stated as being "13% per month." Such rate was misstated. The correct interest rate should have been stated as being "13% per annum." Accordingly, the October 3, 1986, Order is corrected to read as follows:

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $13,200.00 plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from December 1, 1984, until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Respondent shall have thirty days from the date of this corrected order in which to make payment to complainant of the amount noted above.

Copies of this corrected order shall be served upon the parties.

In this proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the respondent failed to file a timely answer. A Default Order was issued on June 18, 1986 awarding reparation to complainant in the amount of $2,327.75. Accordingly, respondent's default in the filing of an answer is set aside and respondent's answer is hereby ordered filed.

The letter was served on August 6, 1986, and complainant has failed to respond thereto.

Accordingly, the complaint is hereby dismissed.

THE TOBI COMPANY, INC., v. UNITED PACKING CO. PACA Docket No. RD-86-306. Decided October 28, 1986.

Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Default Order was issued on July 1, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant in the amount of $3,305.27. Respondent moved that the default be reopened and, on August 15, 1986, a Stay Order was issued, staying the Default Order and providing complainant with an opportunity to respond to the motion to reopen.

Complainant has submitted a letter in which it states that when it "submitted our formal complaint back in January 1986, it appears that it had been entered against the wrong licensee . . . the claim should have been filed against licensee Harkness-Colgate-Bartell d/b/a United Packing Company." Complainant appears to be requesting a dismissal of the complaint against respondent. Therefore, complainant will have 10 days from its receipt of this order to show cause why its complaint should not be dismissed. If a timely response is not made, we will assume complainant acquiesces to dismissal and will issue the appropriate order. Complainant should be aware that the filing of a reparation complaint against Harkness-Colgate-Bartell d/b/a United Packing Company will not be permitted if the filing date is in excess of nine months from when the alleged cause of action accrued. Bianchi & Sons Packing Co. v. Kelvin S. Ng d/b/a Kin Yip Company, 42 Agric. Dec. 292 (1983).

DEFAULT DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended, (PQA) (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged, inter alia, that respondent Jose Jamie Sanchez Reyes violated the PQA and section 319.27 of the regulations, promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.27).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the PQA were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon the respondent.

Jose Jamie Sanchez Reyes was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer either denying, admitting, or explaining the allegations in the complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegation and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since Mr. Reyes was served with the complaint. Mr. Reyes has not filed an answer or any other document to date. This Default Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by Mr. Reyes's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Jose Jamie Sanchez Reyes, respondent herein, in an individual whose mailing address is 885 Given Street, San Diego, California 92154.

2. On or about March 30, 1985, the respondent imported from Mexico into San Diego, California, Mexican limes, in violation of section 319.27 of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.27), because the importation of Mexican limes is prohibited.

3. On or about March 30, 1985, the respondent imported from Mexico into San Diego, California, lemons, in violation of section 319.27 of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.27), because the respondent did not conform to the restrictions, as required.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file any answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By his silence, respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the PQA and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following Order is, therefore, issued.

ORDER

Respondent Jose Jamie Sanchez Reyes, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, Washington, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400.

This Order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Default Decision and Order upon the respondent, unless there is an appeal within 30 days of service to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145)

[The Default Decision and Order became final on September 3, 1986.—Ed.]

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Ardley Ballin Cross, Jr., the respondent herein, is an individual whose mailing address is Route 9, Box 278 K, San Antonio, Texas 78227.

The respondent shall send, payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," a certified check or money order to Clement J. McGovern Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this Order.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a proceeding under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a, 167), the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 150aa et seq.), and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 318.13 et seq.), in which Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. On March 5, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] On August 26, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

Based on a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, except that the effective date of the order is changed in view

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151–164a and 167) and the Federal Plant Pest Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 150aa et seq.) (Acts) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint was filed with the Hearing Clerk on November 25, 1985. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated sections 318.13–10 and 318.13–12(a) of the regulations (7 CFR §§ 318.13–10 and 318.13–12(a)).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Acts were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on December 3, 1985. On December 27, 1985, respondent was sent, by regular mail, a notice that its answer had not been received by the Hearing Clerk in the allotted time.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to deny or otherwise respond to the allegations in the complaint and request an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since respondent was served with the complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Northwest Airlines, Inc., respondent, is a business having its principal place of business at Office of the President, Executive Offices, Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport, St. Paul, Minnesota 55111.

2. On or about June 1, 1985, the respondent violated sections 318.13–10 and 318.13–12(a) of the regulations (7 CFR §§ 318.13–10 and 318.13–12(a)) because respondent failed to present two (2) pieces of passenger baggage, with Northwest Airline baggage claim tag numbers NW 211-845 and NW 211-846, which were in its possession at Honolulu Hawaii International Airport (Flight No. 22) and which were subject to inspection, for said inspection.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts in the finding of fact set forth above, respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days after service of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)-(c), .139):

> § 1.136 Answer.
> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .
>
> (b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or
> (2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or
> (3) State that the respondent admits the jurisidictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.
> (c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a $1,000 civil penalty. The complaint advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, as follows (Complaint at 2):

WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether or not respondent has, in fact, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 380.1 and 7 CFR § 1.136). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.
> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

The return receipt card shows that respondent was served with a copy of the complaint on December 3, 1985. Respondent's answer was, therefore, required to be filed with the Hearing Clerk by December 23, 1985. However, respondent filed nothing until over a month later, when it filed objections to complainant's motion for adoption of the proposed default decision. Since respondent failed to file an answer within the specified time period, the default Decision and Order was properly issued in this case. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[2] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[3]

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 421 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer (who does not have a law clerk) disposed of 45 cases (including one on remand from the Seventh Circuit that required a 529-page decision to justify an 8-month suspension order and a $10,000 civil penalty for 14 separate livestock violations based on circumstantial evidence). In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not file a timely answer and did not contest the allegations of the complaint in its untimely answer.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [4] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

Respondent's principal contention is that the alleged violation was not intentional, and that respondent "has demonstrated over the years a conscientious effort and intent to comply fully with all applicable regulations of the U.S. Department of Agriculture" (Letter of February 27, 1986, at 1). That defense, however, would not result in lessening the civil penalty in this proceeding, which is

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a proceeding under the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-167), in which Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell (ALJ) filed an initial Decision and Order on May 27, 1986, assessing a civil penalty of $250 against respondent for importing plantains from the Philippines into the United States in violation of the Act and regulations.

On July 8, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on August 26, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the importation into the United States of fruits and vegetables from foreign countries and localities (7 CFR §§ 319.56 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 7 CFR §§ 1.130 et seq. and 380.1 et seq.

This proceeding was instituted by a complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on or about April 7, 1985, the respondent imported plantains into the United States at Seattle, Washington, from the Philippines, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)), because the plantains were not imported under permit as required by section 319.56–2(e) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56–2(e)).

On February 21, 1986, the respondent filed an answer responding to and admitting the allegations contained in the complaint. This admission of the allegations contained in the complaint constitutes a waiver of hearing (7 CFR § 1.139).

Accordingly, the material allegations alleged in the complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the Findings of Fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.139).

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Mercedes Capistrano, is an individual whose address is 115 Fairview Avenue, Apt. 26, Jersey City, New Jersey 07304.

2. On or about April 7, 1985, the respondent imported plantains into the United States at Seattle, Washington, from the Philippines, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)), because the plantains were not imported under permit as required by section 319.56–2(e) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56–2(e)).

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

This case is governed by the principles set forth in In re Lopez, 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (Oct. 7, 1985), a copy of which is attached as an appendix.

There is a slight difference between the facts here and the facts in Lopez, viz., in Lopez, the respondent knew that he had one piece of sugarcane in his possession, but did not know that it was unlawful to bring it into the United States, whereas here, respondent's friend placed the prohibited plantains in respondent's luggage, without respondent's knowledge. However, that distinction is not material. As explained in Lopez, in order to achieve the congressional purpose and to prevent the importation into the United States of items that could be disastrous to the United States agricultural community, it is necessary to take a hard-nosed approach and hold violators responsible for any violation irrespective of lack of evil motive or intent to violate the quarantine laws. If that policy were not followed where forbidden items were placed in luggage by relatives or friends of the violator, a loophole would be created that could prove disastrous to American agriculture. Accordingly, the Lopez doctrine will be followed here, just as it was in the case of In re Vallalta, 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (June 17, 1986), in which respondent's relative placed a prohibited cacao pod in his luggage without his knowledge.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

Respondent, Mercedes Capistrano, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $250, which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and it shall be forwarded to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, within 30 days from the service of this order.

Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.
Kris Ikejiri, for complainant.
Ladd Baumann, Agana, Guam, for respondent.

DEFAULT DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended (PQA) (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged, inter alia, that respondent Maharlika Market violated the PQA and section 319.56 of the regulations, promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.56).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the PQA were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon the Maharlika Market. Maharlika Market was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint. It was informed that failure to file an answer either denying, admitting, or explaining the allegations in the complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegation and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since Maharlika Market was served with the complaint. Maharlika Market has not filed an answer, but, through counsel, filed a request for an extension of time to answer.* This Default Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by Maharlika Market's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Maharlika Market, respondent, is a company whose mailing address is P. O. Box 8544, Tamuning, Guam 96911.

2. On or about October 5, 1985, the respondent imported from the Philippines into Guam, approximately 20 pounds of longan fruit, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)), because the importation from the Philippines into Guam of longans is prohibited.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file an answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By its silence, respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the PQA and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following Order is, therefore, issued.

ORDER

Respondent Maharlika Market, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of seven hundred fifty dollars ($750), which shall be payable to

* This was denied. The time for the filing of a timely answer had expired.

"The Treasurer of the United States", by certified or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Kris H. Ikejiri, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250-1400.

This Order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of the Default Decision and Order upon the respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

Edward H. McGrail, Administrative Law Judge.
Clement McGovern, for complainant.
Pro se, for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act, as amended (PQA) (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged, inter alia, that respondent Jesus Hernandez violated the PQA and section 319.56–2(e) of the regulations, promulgated thereunder (7 CFR § 319.56–2(e)).

Jesus Hernandez was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint. Mr. Hernandez has filed an answer, in which he admitted the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which were admitted by Mr. Hernandez in his answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Jesus Hernandez, respondent herein, is an individual whose mailing address is 541 Delas Flores, Calexico, California 92231.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has filed an answer in which he has admitted the material allegations contained in the complaint. The consequences of such an action were explained to the respondent in the Rules of Practice, a copy of which accompanied the complaint and letter of service. The admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint constitutes a waiver of hearing in accordance with § 1.139 of the regulations (9 CFR § 1.139).

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the PQA and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following Order is, therefore, issued.

ORDER

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120), and the Act of August 20, 1912, as amended (7 U.S.C. §§ 151-164a and 167) (Acts), by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that the respondent violated regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR §§ 91.1 et seq. and 7 CFR § 319.27 et seq.). Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed within twenty days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer would constitute an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under 7 CFR § 1.136(c). The respondent was also informed that failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

The respondent filed no answer during the twenty-day period allowed. Respondent's failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint, under section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Respondent's failure to file an answer also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since respondent is deemed to have admitted the material allegations of fact in the complaint, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Jesus Alberto Renteria, respondent, is an individual whose address is 7631 North Loop #290, El Paso, Texas 79915.

2. On or about April 27, 1984, at Ysleta, Texas, the respondent imported twenty pounds of potatoes into the United States from Mexico in violation of 7 CFR §§ 321.4(a) and 319.56–2(e), because the respondent had neither applied for nor obtained a permit, as required.

3. On or about April 27, 1984, at Ysleta, Texas, the respondent imported three avocados into the United States from Mexico in violation of 7 CFR § 319.56–2(e), because the avocados were not accompanied by a permit, as required.

4. On or about April 27, 1984, at Ysleta, Texas, the respondent imported thirty eggs into the United States from Mexico in violation of 9 CFR §§ 92.2(a), 92.5(b)(1), 94.6(g), and 94.6(h), because the eggs were neither accompanied by a certificate, nor had respondent applied to the Deputy Administrator, Veterinary Services, for permission to import the eggs, as required.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file any answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By his silence respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the Acts and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following order is therefore issued.

ORDER

Respondent Jesus Alberto Renteria is hereby assessed a civil penalty of five hundred dollars ($500), which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be forwarded to Fronda C. Woods, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250–1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a proceeding under the United States Warehouse Act, as amended (the Act) (7 U.S.C. 241 et seq.), instituted by a complaint filed by the Acting Administrator, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent willfully violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR 735-743).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served upon respondent by the Hearing Clerk by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as Findings of Fact.

The regulations at 7 CFR 736.6(d) provide that no person may be licensed as a warehouseman unless he has allowable net assets to the extent of at least $25,000 or 20 cents per bushel for the maximum number of bushels of grain storage capacity. The regulations also provide that in case of a deficiency in net assets above the minimum required by 7 CFR 736.6(d), the bond requirement shall be increased (7 CFR 736.14(c)).

4. The Act (7 U.S.C. 247) requires that the warehouseman post a bond in the amount required by the Secretary within the time required by the Secretary and provides for revocation of the warehouseman's license under the Act for failure to do so.

5. On or about April 22, 1985, respondent was requested by mail to increase the sum of the warehouseman's bond by no later than May 21, 1985, from $52,000 to $78,000 to cover a deficiency in allowable net worth. Respondent was again advised on or about June 10, 1985, by certified mail, that he had failed to respond satisfactorily to the letter of April 22, 1985, and did not provide the bond increase by the May 21, 1985 deadline.

6. On or about August 26, 1985, by leased wire, the license was temporarily suspended pending correction of financial conditions and correction of exceptions noted during an examination of the warehouse which occurred on July 29–30, 1985. The warehouseman was also advised that if corrective action was not completed and the licensing authority notified within 30 days of the date of the wire, action would be initiated to revoke the license. The warehouseman has failed to comply within the time allowed.

7. The Act (7 U.S.C. 262) requires the warehouseman to deliver agricultural products upon demand if such demand includes an offer to satisfy the warehouseman's lien and an offer to surrender the receipt.

8. On or about June 24, 1985, CCC issued a Loading Order to the respondent demanding shipment of 32,615.59 bushels of U.S. No. 2 yellow corn. The warehouse receipts were surrendered with the Loading Order along with an offer to pay storage through July 3, 1985, and also included an offer to pay loadout charges.

9. As of July 2, 1986, the warehouse was empty and the respondent had failed to deliver 13,704 bushels of U.S. No. 2 yellow corn and 8,417 bushels of soybeans to CCC.*

CONCLUSIONS

1. On February 6, 1986, the respondent was served a complaint filed by the Acting Administrator, ASCS, to permanently revoke respondent's license which was issued under the Act.

2. Respondent has failed to answer the complaint.

3. The regulations at 7 CFR 736.9 provide that a license issued to a warehouseman may be revoked, after an opportunity for a hearing, if the warehouseman has in any manner violated or failed to comply with any provisions of the Act or the regulations thereunder.

---

* This allegation of Fact was not set forth in the Complaint.

4. Pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 246, the violations alleged in paragraphs 1-9 of the Findings of Fact are grounds for the revocation of the U.S. Warehouse Act license issued to the respondent.

PREFATORY NOTE

It is the purpose of this official publication to make available to the public, in an orderly and accessible form, decisions issued under regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The decisions published herein may be described generally as decisions which are made in proceedings of a quasi-judicial character, and which, under the applicable statutes, can be made by the Secretary of Agriculture, or an officer authorized by law to act in his stead, only after notice and hearing or opportunity for a hearing. These decisions do not include rules and regulations of general applicability which are required to be published in the Federal Register.

The principal statutes concerned are the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.), the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Animal Quarantine and Related Laws (21 U.S.C. 111 et seq.), the Animal Welfare Act (7 U.S.C. 2131 et seq.), the Federal Meat Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), the Grain Standards Act (7 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Horse Protection Act (15 U.S.C. 1821 et seq.), the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.), the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930 (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), the Plant Quarantine Act (7 U.S.C. 151 et seq.), the Poultry Products Inspection Act (21 U.S.C. 451 et seq.), and the Virus-Serum-Toxin Act of 1913 (21 U.S.C. 151–158).

The decisions published herein are arranged alphabetically by statute and within the statute section by date of issue or date the decision became final after expiration of the appeal period. They may be cited by giving the volume and page, for illustration, 1 A.D. 472 (1942). It is unnecessary to cite the docket or decision number. Prior to 1942 the Secretary's decisions were identified by docket and decision numbers, for example, D–578; S. 1150. Such citation of a case in these volumes generally indicates that the decision is not published in Agriculture Decisions.

Current court decisions involving the regulatory laws administered by the Department of Agriculture are published herein.

In re: WHITE PACKING COMPANY, INC. I&G Docket No. 83. Decided December 2, 1986.

Suspension—Removal of "USDA Product Control" device—Consent.
Respondent consented to the issuance of this decision in which they were suspended from receiving federal meat grading and acceptance services for a period of one (1) year.

Kevin B. Thiemann, for complainant.
John J. Sullivan, for respondent.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

STIPULATION AND CONSENT DECISION

This is a proceeding under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 1621 et seq.) (Act), and regulations issued thereunder (7 CFR Part 54) to withdraw and deny the benefits of federal meat grading and acceptance services from White Packing Company, Inc., respondent. This proceeding was commenced by a complaint filed on September 8, 1986, by the Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, which is responsible for the administration of federal meat grading and acceptance services. The parties have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulation:

1. For the purpose of this Stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent admits all of the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint, admits the Findings of Fact contained herein; and waives;

a) Any further proceedings;

b) Any requirements that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof; and

c) All the rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this Decision.

2. This Stipulation and Consent Decision are for purposes of settlement in this proceeding only and do not otherwise constitute an admission or denial by the respondent that it has violated the regulations or statutes involved.

3. The respondent waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. White Packing Company, Inc., respondent, is, and at all times material herein was, a corporation which operates a meat processing establishment, and whose address is P.O. Box 95, King George, Virginia 22485.

2. Respondent is now, and at all times material herein was, receiving federal meat grading and acceptance services provided by the Agricultural Marketing Services (AMS) of the United States Department of Agriculture at its establishment at King George, Virginia.

3. On or about March 5, 1986, respondent offered for acceptance to an AMS grader sliced bacon which was identified as Lot 63 and which was prepared for the United States Department of Defense under contract number DLA 13H-86-C-E 422.

4. Lot 63 was rejected by the AMS grader for being off-conditioned and thus could not be reworked and reoffered for AMS acceptance service.

5. The USDA alleges that on or about March 5, 1986, the respondent reboxed portions of Lot 63 into boxes marked "Lot 64" with the contract number DLA 13H-86-C-E 422.

6. The USDA alleges that on or about March 11, 1986, the respondent removed a "USDA Product Control" device from a box identified as "Lot 64" without the express permission of an authorized representative of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

CONCLUSIONS

Inasmuch as the parties have agreed to the provisions set forth in the following Consent Decision and Order in disposition of this proceeding, such Decision and Order will be issued.

ORDER

1. Federal meat grading and acceptance services provided under the Act and regulations issued thereunder are withdrawn from and denied to the respondent, its officers, directors, partners, affiliates, successors, and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, for a period of one (1) year beginning on December 1, 1986, and ending on November 30, 1987. Four (4) consecutive months of actual suspension will begin on December 1, 1986, and end on March 31, 1987. The remaining eight (8) months of the one (1) year withdrawal period will be held in abeyance and will not become effective:

a. For so long as, within one (1) year from the effective date of this Consent Decision and Order, respondent, or any of its officers, employees, or agents do(es) not violate any section of the Act (7

U.S.C. § 1621 et seq.) or the regulations issued thereunder (7 CFR Part 54); and

b. For so long as, within one (1) year from the effective date of this Consent Decision and Order, respondent:

1. Does not knowingly hire, in any capacity, any individual who has been convicted of any felony; and

2. To the extent permitted by Virginia law, dismisses from its employment any such individual, hired after the effective date of this Consent Decision and Order, when that individual's conviction becomes known.

2. The violation of any provision in paragraph 1 of this Order will result in the immediate withdrawal of federal meat grading and acceptance services under the Act. The Secretary of Agriculture shall have the right to summarily withdraw such services upon finding of a violation by appropriate national headquarters staff. Any summary withdrawal of grading and acceptance services shall be subject to respondent's right to request an expedited hearing on the alleged violation. Moreover, nothing in this Consent Decision shall preclude the referral of any such violation to the Department of Justice for possible criminal or civil proceedings.

3. If any provision of this Order is declared to be invalid, such declaration shall not affect the validity of any other provision herein.

4. This Order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this Order is made upon the respondent.

In re: JOE L. HENSON, D.M.V. AQ Docket No. 264. Decided November 4, 1986.

Civil Penalty—Consent.
The Judicial Officer affirmed the default order issued by Judge Weber assessing a civil penalty of $500 against respondent for moving 1 cow that was not individually identified on an owner's or shipper's statement or other document, as required by the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis. Respondent's answer fails to request a hearing and does not deny the allegations of the complaint. Accordingly, a default decision was properly issued.

Jaru Ruley, for complainant.
Respondent, pro se.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120, 122), for a violation of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis (9 CFR § 78.18). An initial Decision and Order was issued on August 18, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge William J. Weber (ALJ) assessing a civil penalty of $500.

On June 16, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on October 22, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, with trivial changes. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle because of brucellosis (9 CFR § 78.18 et seq.),

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 9 CFR § 70.1 et seq. and 7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.

This proceeding was instituted by a complaint filed on May 8, 1986, by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on or about May 24, 1985, the respondent caused the interstate movement of one cow from Chatom, Alabama, to Mize, Mississippi, in violation of sections 71.18(a)(1) and 71.18(a)(3) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 71.18(a)(1) and 71.18(a)(3)) in that the cow was not individually identified on an owner's or shipper's statement or other document. In his answer, the respondent admitted the material allegations contained in the complaint, thereby waiving a hearing. (See 7 CFR § 1.139).

Accordingly, the material allegations alleged in the Complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (See 7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Joe L. Henson, D.V.M., is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 326, Chatom, Alabama 36518.

2. On or about May 24, 1985, the respondent caused the interstate movement of one cow, twenty-four months of age or older, from Chatom, Alabama, to Mize, Mississippi, in violation of sections 71.18(a)(1) and 71.18(a)(3) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 71.18(a)(1) and 71.18(a)(3)) in that the cow was not individually identified on an owner's or shipper's statement or other document, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated sections 71.18(a)(1) and 71.18(a)(3) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 71.18(a)(1) and 71.18(a)(3)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to deny the allegations of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139, .141(a)):

§ 1.136 Answer.

(a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding . . .

(b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or

(2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.141 Procedure for Hearing.

(a) Request for Hearing. Any party may request a hearing on the facts by including such request in the complaint or answer, or by a separate request, in writing, filed with the Hearing Clerk within the time in which an answer may be filed. Failure to request a hearing within the time allowed for the filing of the answer shall constitute a waiver of such hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a $500 civil penalty. The complaint advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, and that failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation shall constitute an admission of such allegation, as follows (Complaint at 2):

WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether or not the respondent has, in fact, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250–1400, in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice (9 CFR § 70.1 and 7 CFR § 1.136). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint. The letter states:

In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies > of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.

> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Respondent's answer fails to request a hearing and does not deny the allegations of the complaint. Specifically, respondent's answer states:

> The cow that you were referring to belonged to Charles Busby Rt 1, Tippie, Al. 36583. There was one truck load of heifers or about 80 head permitted from his farm to Mise, Mississippi on or about the 24th day of May, 1985. They were all Calfhood Vaccinated against bangs and properly identified as such to the best of my ability. The Mississippi State Veterinarian's Office in Jackson was called and these cattle were issued a permit number. At this time I asked if these cattle were to be individually identified and was instructed to only list the number of vaccinated heifers to be shipped. A certificate of Veterinary Inspection was then issued to Mr. Busby.
> I cannot explain how a 2 year old cow got into this load of heifers, but I can explain what I did to determine the age of these cattle prior to shipment.
>
> There was a lot of time and effort spent trying to determine the correct age and proper procedure for shipping these heifers and if there was a mistake made in shipping one too old it was surely not done intentionally.
> I regret this happened and if I can be of any further assistance on this please let me know.

Accordingly, under the plain provisions of the rules of practice, the default decision was properly issued. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[2] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[3]

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 496 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer disposed of 42 cases. In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk. The Department does not have the time or resources to hold a hearing at this late date for this respondent, who did not contest the allegations of the complaint in his answer.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [4] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

The civil penalty assessed here is modest considering the importance of the Brucellosis Eradication Program. As stated in In re Grady, 45 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 67 (Jan. 31, 1986):

> The brucellosis eradication program is important to the national welfare. To date, the program has cost in excess of $1 billion. It costs about $150 million a year (Tr. 440).

The Brucellosis Eradication Program is described in In re Petty, 43 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 4-5 (Oct. 31, 1984), aff'd, No. 3-84-2200-R (N.D. Tex. June 5, 1986), as follows:

> 4. Brucellosis (also known as Bangs disease or undulant fever) is a contagious, infectious and communicable disease affecting livestock. It is transmittable to humans.[4] (Tr. 32, 95-96, 1056-59, 1160-64, 1177-80). The incubation period of the disease varies from about 10 days to a year, but does not generally exceed several months (Tr. 95, 1180).

products or from the consumption of milk, dairy products, or meat from infected animals" (Webster's Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged (1981), at 285).

For many years the Federal Government has maintained a vigorous and costly program directed to the control and eradication of this disease (Tr. 32-33, 1059-63). For example, in 1980, the Federal Government spent $73,715,667 for brucellosis eradication (1982 Budget Explanatory Notes, USDA, vol. 2, at 8). To control the disease, some entire herds of cattle are destroyed, with some indemnification from the Federal Government (9 CFR § 51.3(a)(2) (1980); Tr. 239-41). Because of the large economic impact of the cattle industry on the nation, the success of the Brucellosis Eradication Program is of national importance.

In carrying out the Brucellosis Eradication Program, the Federal Government, through regulations issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, regulates the interstate movement of cattle. 9 CFR Part 78 (1980).

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

Respondent, Joe L. Henson, D.V.M., is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $500, which shall be paid within 30 days after service of this order. This civil penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States," by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Jaru Ruley, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Officer of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

Decision by William J. Weber, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service alleging that the respondent violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR §§ 71.1 et seq., 78.1 et seq.). The complainant and the respondent, Ronald B. Pitchford, have agreed that this proceeding should be terminated with respect to Ronald B. Pitchford by entry of the Consent Decision set forth below and have agreed to the following stipulations:

1. For the purposes of this stipulation and the provisions of this Consent Decision only, respondent specifically admits that the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction in this matter, neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations in the complaint, admits to the Findings of Fact set forth below, and waives:

(a) Any further procedure;

(b) Any requirement that the final decision in this proceeding contain findings and conclusions with respect to all material issues of fact, law, or discretion, as well as the reasons or bases thereof;

(c) All rights to seek judicial review and otherwise challenge or contest the validity of this decision; and

2. Respondent also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under the Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. § 504 et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by the respondent in connection with this proceeding.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Mr. Ronald B. Pitchford, respondent, is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 683, Hartford, Arkansas 72938.

2. On or about March 29, 1985, the respondent moved interstate approximately twenty-four (24) cattle from Greenwood, Arkansas to Rock Island, Oklahoma.

CONCLUSIONS

The respondent having admitted the jurisdictional facts and having agreed to the provisions set forth in the following order in disposition of this proceeding, such order and decision will be issued.

ORDER

The respondent is assessed a civil penalty of one hundred dollars ($100.00) in four (4) monthly installments of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) each which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and which shall be sent to USDA, APHIS, Field Servicing Office, Accounting Section, Butler Square West, 5th Floor, 100 North 6th Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55403. The first installment is due within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order and the remaining three installments are due within sixty (60), ninety (90) and one hundred and twenty (120) days of the effective date of this order. The certified check or money order should include the docket number of this proceeding.

This order shall become effective on the day upon which service of this order is made upon the respondent.

In re: LEONARD MCDANIEL, JACK STEWART, and LOUISE STEWART, d/b/a L&W CATTLE COMPANY. AQ Docket No. 257. Decided December 8, 1986.

Civil Penalty

The Judicial Officer affirmed Judge Baker's order assessing civil penalties totaling $4,000 ($1,000 per violation) for violations of the Act and regulations governing the interstate movement of cattle to prevent the spread of brucellosis. Respondent's failure to file an answer constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Accordingly, a default decision and order was properly issued. Although respondent's appeal was filed 2 days late, it is the practice of this Department to accept late appeals filed before the initial decision becomes final. Even if respondent had filed a timely answer, it would not have changed the result in this case. Respondent's understanding that the case had been settled (when he incurred financial hardship by having to take his cattle to the sale barn for branding) is not supported by the record and would not signify a "settlement" to an adult person of reasonable understanding. Assessing a civil penalty because respondent failed to have the required certificate and assessing a separate civil penalty because respondent failed to have the required permit for entry, in the same transaction, does not violate the Double Jeopardy Clause. The Clause applies to criminal proceedings. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal or conviction, and against multiple punishments for the same offense. But a single transaction may contain distinct offenses without violating the Clause. Two offenses are not the same for double jeopardy purposes if one requires proof of a fact that the other does not. Respondent's unsupported claim that a $4,000 civil penalty will impose a financial hardship on him is not a circumstance that mitigates the sanction in view of the importance of the Brucellosis Eradication Program.

DECISION AND ORDER WITH RESPECT TO LEONARD McDANIEL

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of civil penalties under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120, and 122) for violations of the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.1 et seq.), governing the interstate movement of cattle without required documents. An initial Default Decision and Order was filed September 12, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge Dorothea A. Baker (ALJ) assessing civil penalties totaling $4,000 ($1,000 per violation).

On October 24, 1986, respondent [1] appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[2] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on November 25, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Default Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case (with minor trivial changes), except that the effective

[1] By order of July 7, 1986, the ALJ dismissed the complaint as to respondents Jack Stewart and Louise Stewart, d/b/a L&W Cattle Co., without prejudice. The complainant had so moved on July 1, 1986, based upon newly discovered evidence.

[2] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

date of the order is changed in view of respondent's appeal. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (Act) (21 U.S.C. §§ 111 and 120) by a complaint filed by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that Leonard McDaniel violated sections 111 and 120 of the Act (21 U.S.C. § 111 and § 120) and section 78.9 of the regulations promulgated thereunder (9 CFR § 78.9). Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon Leonard McDaniel.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) Leonard McDaniel was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer to, or plead specifically to, any allegations in the complaint would constitute an admission of such allegations pursuant to section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). Mr. McDaniel was also informed that the failure to file an answer would constitute a waiver of hearing, as provided in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

Leonard McDaniel filed no answer or any other document during the twenty-day period provided. His failure to file an answer within the time provided constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint, pursuant to section 1.136(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136(c)). His failure to file an answer also constitutes a waiver of hearing under section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Since Mr. McDaniel is deemed to have admitted the material allegations of the facts in the complaint as they applied to him, they are adopted and set forth as the Findings of Fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Leonard McDaniel, respondent herein, is an individual whose address is Route 3, Box 496, Idabel, Oklahoma 74745.

2. On or about January 8, 1985, respondent Leonard McDaniel moved interstate from Nashville, Arkansas, to Antlers, Oklahoma, approximately seven (7) cattle, in violation of section 78.9(d) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)), because the cattle were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

3. On or about January 8, 1985, respondent Leonard McDaniel moved interstate from Nashville, Arkansas, to Antlers, Oklahoma, approximately seven (7) cattle, in violation of section 78.9(d) of the regulations (9 CFR § 78.9(d)), because the cattle were not accompanied by a "Permit for Entry," as required.

4. On or about April 1, 1985, respondent Leonard McDaniel moved interstate from Nashville, Arkansas, to Idabel, Oklahoma, approximately 10 cattle, in violation of section 78.9(d) (9 CFR § 78.9(d)) of the regulations, because the animals were not accompanied by a certificate, as required.

5. On or about April 1, 1985, respondent Leonard McDaniel moved interstate from Nashville, Arkansas, to Idabel, Oklahoma, approximately 10 cattle, in violation of section 78.9(d) (9 CFR § 78.9(d)) of the regulations, because the animals were not accompanied by a "Permit for Entry," as required.

CONCLUSION

The respondent has failed to file an answer to any of the allegations in the complaint. The consequences of such a failure were explained to the respondent in the complaint and in the letter of service that accompanied it. By his silence, respondent has admitted all of the material allegations of fact in the complaint as they applied to him and has waived a hearing.

By reason of the Findings of Fact set forth above, the respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. The following Order is therefore issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file a timely answer or deny the allegations of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139, .141(a)):

> § 1.136 Answer.
> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .
>
> (b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or

(2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.141 Procedure for Hearing.

(a) Request for Hearing. Any party may request a hearing on the facts by including such request in the complaint or answer, or by a separate request, in writing, filed with > the Hearing Clerk within the time in which an answer may be filed. Failure to request a hearing within the time allowed for the filing of the answer shall constitute a waiver of such hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk, and that failure to file an answer "shall constitute an admission of the allegation[s] in this complaint and a waiver of hearing" (Complaint at 3).

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.
> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Respondent failed to answer the complaint. Accordingly, under the plain provisions of the rules of practice, the default decision was properly issued. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[3] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[4]

Continued

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 496 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer disposed of 42 cases. In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [5] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, or raise new issues, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

In fact, Complainant's Response to Respondent's Appeal argues that the appeal was filed late, on October 24, 1986, and thus should not be considered. The appeal was due to be filed 2 days earlier, October 22, 1986, but, in accordance with the practice of this Department, it is accepted late since it was filed before 35 days after service of the initial decision, when it would have become final. In re Machado, 42 Agric. Dec. 1454, 1455 n.3 (1983) (decision as to respondent Cozzi), aff'd, 749 F.2d 36 (9th Cir. 1984) (unpublished); In re Shatkin, 34 Agric. Dec. 296, 315 (1975); and see In re Burton, 40 Agric. Dec. 1534 (order vacating notice of effective date and permitting late appeal), final decision, 40 Agric. Dec. 1738 (1981) (decision as to LeRoy Franks), rev'd on other grounds, 638 F.2d 280 (8th Cir. 1982).

Respondent's appeal sets forth three contentions:

(A) That it was respondent's understanding that the case was settled because respondent was required to take his cattle to the sale barn for "B" branding, resulting in financial hardship;

Agric. Dec. 370, 371 (1980) (default order proper where timely answer not filed); In re Thomaston Beef & Veal, Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 171, 172 (1980) (default order not set aside because of respondent's contentions that they misunderstood the Department's procedural requirements, when there is no basis for the misunderstanding).

[5] Cella v. United States, 208 F.2d 783, 789 (7th Cir. 1953), cert. denied, 347 U.S. 1016 (1954), quoting from FCC v. Pottsville Broadcasting Co., 309 U.S. 134, 143 (1940); accord Swift & Co. v. United States, 308 F.2d 849, 851-52 (7th Cir. 1962).

(B) That the complaint, as reflected in the ALJ's findings numbered 2 and 3, and 4 and 5, respectively, asserts separate violations from facts and circumstances arising on the same days—January 8, 1985, for Findings 2 and 3; and April 1, 1985, for Findings 4 and 5—which constitutes "double jeopardy"; and

(C) That respondent is financially "hard pressed" to pay a $4,000 civil penalty.

As has been painstakingly detailed in the preceding pages, the Department's rules of practice deem it an admission of all material allegations if no answer is filed to the complaint. Therefore, these three contentions would have no effect on the decision below. However, even if these contentions are considered in their best possible circumstances, apart from the respondent's failure to file an answer, they would not change the outcome.

A. Respondent's Understanding that Case Had Been Settled Not Supported by the Record or Any Other Reasonable Interpretation of the Proceeding.

The record as a whole shows no basis for a misunderstanding as to the Department's intent in this case. There is no deception, or attempt to mislead respondent, by the Department anywhere in the record. To the contrary, this has been a straightforward proceeding against an experienced cattleman.

In complainant's reply, complainant's attorney correctly points out that respondent does not allege that there is factual error in the ALJ's Default Decision and Order. Moreover, complainant aruges that there is no connection of relevancy shown between the surrounding facts in the case and respondent's understanding of settlement. I agree with complainant's attorney.

Such a claim of misunderstanding possibly could have been raised in a timely-filed answer, but it is a near certainty that the ALJ would not have accorded it any weight, because the prosecution itself was and is the best notice of the Department's understanding of its position. Loss of cattle and financial hardship to the owner, and nothing more, would not signify a "settlement" to an adult person of reasonable understanding.

B. Separate Violations from the Same Set of Circumstances and Facts Arising on the Same Day Do Not Place Respondent in Double Jeopardy.

First of all, the Double Jeopardy Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution (the Clause) only applies essentially to criminal proceedings.[6] This is an administrative proceeding to assess a civil penalty, is civil in nature, and not subject to the Clause. Nevertheless, even if the Clause were determined to apply here, it would not help respondent, because the facts here do not fit within the protection of the Clause, as construed by the Federal Courts.

The Clause protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal or conviction, and against multiple punishments for the same offense.[7] Respondent was found to have moved seven cattle interstate on January 8, 1985, both without the required certificate (Finding 2) and without the required permit for entry (Finding 3). Additionally, respondent was found to have moved approximately 10 cattle interstate on April 1, 1985, both without the required certificate (Finding 4) and without the required permit for entry (Finding 5). Respondent asserts incorrectly that Findings 2 and 3 are the same offense, and that Findings 4 and 5 are the same offense, respectively. This follows because a single transaction may contain distinct offenses without violating the Clause.[8] The Supreme Court has long held the view [9] that two offenses are not the same for double jeopardy purposes if one requires proof of a fact that the other does not. Findings 2 and 3, and 4 and 5, respectively, each require proof of an additional fact which the other does not. Thus, the Double Jeopardy Clause does not apply in these factual circumstances.

C. Respondent's Financial Situation Has No Bearing on the Civil Penalty Assessed.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to assess a civil penalty of not more than $1,000 per violation of the regulations under the Act (21 U.S.C. § 122). Respondent's failure to answer the complaint deems all material allegations admitted by respondent, and neither the record nor the respondent's appeal shows any reason whatsoever to question the decision below.

Moreover, it has consistently and routinely been held that an unsubstantiated, alleged inability to pay a civil penalty, which is otherwise statutorily proper for the Secretary to assess, is not relevant. In re Crowder, 40 Agric. Dec. 704, 704 (1981) (order denying petition to modify order); In re Wall, 38 Agric. Dec. 1437, 1450–51 (1979), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, No. 79–3714 (6th cir. The civil penalty assessed here is modest considering the importance of the Brucellosis Eradication Program. As stated in In re Grady, 45 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 67 (Jan. 31, 1986):

> The brucellosis eradication program is important to the national welfare. To date, the program has cost in excess of $1 billion. It costs about $150 million a year (Tr. 440).

The Brucellosis Eradication Program is described in In re Petty, 43 Agric. Dec. ____, slip op. at 4–5 (Oct. 31, 1984); aff'd, No. 3–84–2200–R (N.D. Tex. June 5, 1986), as follows:

> 4. Brucellosis (also known as Bangs disease or undulant fever) is a contagious, infectious and communicable disease affecting livestock. It is transmittable to humans.[4] (Tr. 32, 95–96, 1056–59, 1160–64, 1177–80). The incubation period of the disease varies from about 10 days to a year, but does not generally exceed several months (Tr. 95, 1180).
> [4] Brucellosis is "a disease of man of sudden or insidious onset and long duration characterized by great weakness, extreme exhaustion on slight effort, night sweats, chilliness, remittent fever, and generalized aches and pains and acquired through direct contact with infected animals or animal products or from the consumption of mik, dairy products, or meat from infected animals" (Webster's Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged (1981), at 285).
> For many years the Federal Government has maintained a vigorous and costly program directed to the control and eradication of this disease (Tr. 32–33, 1059–63). For example, in 1980, the Federal Government spent $73,715,667 for brucellosis eradication (1982 Budget Explanatory Notes, USDA, vol. 2, at 8). To control the disease, some entire herds of cattle are destroyed, with some indemnification from the Federal Government (9 CFR § 51.3(a)(2) (1980); Tr. 239–41). Because of the large economic impact of the cattle industry on the nation, the success of the Brucellosis Eradication Program is of national importance.

In carrying out the Brucellosis Eradication Program, the Federal Government, through regulations issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, regulates the interstate movement of cattle. 9 CFR Part 78 (1980).

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

2. Respondent Hamilton Livestock Commission Company also waives any action against the United States Department of Agriculture under Equal Access to Justice Act of 1980 (5 U.S.C. 504, et seq.) for fees and other expenses incurred by him in connection with this proceeding.

Complainant agrees that this Consent Decision and Order fully and finally precludes complainant from proceeding in any manner against respondent in connection with alleged violations of 9 CFR § 71.18 with respect to all transactions occurring prior to the date this Consent Decision and Order become effective.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This proceeding was instituted under the Regulations for Accredited Veterinarians (9 CFR 160.1 et seq.) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that respondent violated the Standards for Accredited Veterinarians (9 CFR 161.2).

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served by the Hearing Clerk, by certified mail, upon respondent on May 13, 1986.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.136), respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that his answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer either denying, admitting, or explaining the allegations in the complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since respondent was served with the complaint in question. Respondent has not filed an answer to date. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 nd 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Dr. William J. Hankins, herein referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose address is Box 506, Middleburg, Indiana 46450.

2. Respondent is now, and at all times material herein was, a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine and an Accredited Veterinarian in the State of Indiana under the provisions of the regulations of Title 9, Code of Federal Regulations, Parts 160–162.

3. Respondent signed certificates or reports without ascertaining that they were accurately completed because (1) on or about July 16, 1984, respondent signed Brucellosis Calfhood Vaccination Record Nos. 05173 thru 05175, certifying that the cattle listed thereon of Cleo Lambright of Shipshewana, Indiana, were 5 and 6 months of age; (2) on or about August 16, 1984, respondent signed Brucellosis Calfhood Vaccination Record No. 426599 certifying that the cattle listed thereon of Cleo Lambright of Shipshewana, Indiana, were 4 to 10 months of age; and (3)on or about September 5, 1984, respondent issued Indiana Health Certificate Nos.32–778795 thru 32–778799 for the interstate movement of cattle from Cleo Lambright, Shipshewana, Indiana, to Mike Thor, Lockwood, Missouri, indicating that the cattle listed thereon were 16 to 17 months of age when, in truth and in fact, many of such cattle were the same cattle for which respondent signed and issued the aforementioned Brucellosis Calfhood Vaccination Records.

4. Respondent, on or about September 5, 1984, did not carry out all of his responsibilities under the applicable Federal programs and cooperative programs in accordance with regulations and instructions issued to him by the Veterinarian in Charge or the State Animal Health Official, or both, because respondent, in connection with his signing and issuance of Indiana Health Certificates Nos. 32–778795 thru 32–778799 failed to record the brucellosis vaccination status or the date and results for the brucellosis tests of the cattle listed thereon, as required.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts in the findings of fact set forth above, respondent has violated the Standards for Accredited Veterinarians. Violations such as respondent's go to the heart of the accredited veterinarian program and undermine credibility in the program. Such violations can also cause the spread of animal disease. Therefore, the following order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's veterinary accreditation is hereby revoked. This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Animal Welfare Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C §§ 2131-2156, herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed April 24, 1986, by the Administrator, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondents willfully violated the Act and regulations and standards promulgated thereunder, 9 CFR §§ 1.13–3.142. The case was assigned to this Administrative Law Judge on October 28, 1986.

Copies of the complaint and Rules of practice, 7 CFR §§ 1.130–1.151, governing proceedings under the Act were served May 8, 1986, upon respondents by the Hearing Clerk by certified mail. Respondents were informed in the letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

On May 23, 1986, an Order Granting Extension of Time to Respond to Complaint was filed in the case granting the respondents 20 days after service of the Order to respond. The respondents were served the Order by certified mail on June 10, 1986.

Respondents have failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Order Granting Extension of Time to Respond to Complaint and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondents' failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as Findings of Fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice, 7 CFR § 1.139.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Stanley and Linda Wagner are partners whose address is P. O. Box 420, Baker, Montana.

2. The respondents, at all times material herein, were operating a dog kennel and were dealers within the meaning of the Act. The respondents, at all times material herein, were licensed as required by the Act.

3. APHIS inspected the respondents' facility on September 17, 1985, and found the following willful violations of section 2.100 of the regulations, 9 CFR § 2.100, and the standards specified below:

(a) Supplies of food were stored in facilities which did not provide adequate protection from infestation and contamination by vermin in violation of 9 CFR § 3.1;

(b) Interior surfaces needed resurfacing and repainting and were not substantially impervious to moisture in violation of 9 CFR § 3.2;

(c) Primary enclosures were not being sanitized often enough, allowing debris and other hazardous material to accumulate in violation of 9 CFR § 3.7;

(d) The premises were not being properly cleaned in violation of 9 CFR § 3.7; and

(e) No effective program for the control of insects had been established and maintained in violation of 9 CFR § 3.7.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts set forth in the Findings of Fact above, the respondents have willfully violated section 2.100 of the regulations, 9 CFR § 2.100, and the specified standards.

ORDER

Respondents Stanley and Linda Wagner, their agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from failing to:

1. Provide adequate protection for supplies of food from infestation and contamination by vermin as required by 9 CFR § 3.1;

2. Maintain interior surfaces so that they are substantially impervious to moisture as required by 9 CFR § 3.2;

3. Clean and sanitize primary enclosures often enough to prevent debris and other dangerous materials from accumulating as required by 9 CFR § 3.7; and

4. Establish and maintain an effective program for the control of insects as required by 9 CFR § 3.7.

The respondents Stanley and Linda Wagner are assessed a civil penalty of $200.00 which shall be paid by a certified check or money order made payable to the Treasurer of the United States.

Respondents' license is suspended for thirty (30) days and thereafter until respondents demonstrate to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) that they are in compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards thereunder. When respondents demonstrate that they are in compliance with the Act and the regulations and standards, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding, upon the motion of APHIS, terminating this suspension after the expiration of the thirty-day period.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice, this decision will become final without further proceedings 35 days after service as provided in sections 1.142 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice, 7 CFR §§ 1.130–1.151, unless appealed within 30 days after service.

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

The proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.) by a complaint filed on November 16, 1983, by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, alleging that the financial condition of the corporate respondent, John Clay & Company of Ogden, Utah, failed to meet the financial requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq., "the Act") and that the corporate respondent and the individual respondents who are its principal officers, each willfully violated the Act and the regulations issued thereunder (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.). The complaint was served on each of the respondents, and service on the corporate respondent was accepted on its behalf by respondent Lewis E. Harper, its President, and by respondent Raymond C. Williams, its Vice President and Treasurer. An answer was filed by respondent Williams on January 3, 1984, and separate answer was filed by respondent Harper on December 30, 1983. Neither of these individual respondents filed an answer on behalf of respondent Clay, which had ceased operations after seeking relief under the provisions of the United States Bankruptcy Code in May 1983. These proceedings were then deferred at complainant's request, to allow claims being litigated in other forums to be settled. On February 5, 1986, a consent decision was entered against respondent Harper which suspended him as a registrant under the Act for one year, which became effective, nunc pro tunc, on January 1, 1985.

An oral hearing was held before me on June 3 and 4, 1986, in Phoenix, Arizona. Respondent Williams was represented by attorneys Joseph K. Brinig and Michael V. Mulchay. Complainant was represented by Eric Paul, Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture. No appearance was entered on behalf of respondent Clay and the allegations of the complaint stand admitted by this respondent by reason of its failure to answer and appear [TR 10; 13].

Respondent Williams admitted, in whole and in part, by his answer, certain of the jurisdictional and substantive allegations, including the insolvency of respondent Clay and the failure of respondent Clay to meet the financial requirements of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204) by reason of such insolvency. Briefing was completed on September 15, 1986.

An order is being entered against respondents requiring respondent Clay to cease and desist from various practices pertaining to its failure to pay, in full, livestock sellers; suspending respondent Clay as a registrant under the Act for one year and thereafter until it demonstrates it is no longer insolvent; and suspending respondent Williams as a registrant under the Act for sixty (60) days.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. John Clay & Company of Ogden, Utah, ("John Clay") is a corporation whose principal place of business was located in Ogden, Utah. John Clay's mailing address was P. O. Box 507, 3636 Rear Washington Boulevard, Ogden, Utah 84402.

2. John Clay, at all times material herein, was:

(A) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce on its own account and buying livestock in commerce on a commission basis; and

(B) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce.

3. On May 11, 1983, John Clay filed on Chapter 11 petition in bankruptcy in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Utah, Central Division. On or about May 27, 1983, John Clay converted its Chapter 11 case to a Chapter 7 case in bankruptcy.

4. As a result of John Clay's liquidation in bankruptcy, John Clay's current liabilities presently exceed its current assets and, as of December 31, 1982, current liabilities exceeded current assets in the amount of $49,959.38.

5. By reason of the above facts, the financial condition of John Clay does not meet the requirements of the Act.

6. For approximately 20 years, John Clay purchased and sold livestock, primarily sheep, in commerce. John Clay would buy livestock from producers and resell it either to feeders or packers, assuming in the interim the risks of loss if damage to the animals occurred. Often these transactions were handled on an order buying basis, and therefore involved little speculation on John Clay's part. These transactions always involved a mark-up, usually 50 cents per hundredweight.

7. Raymond C. Williams ("Williams") is an individual whose mailing address is 7840 N. Seventh Street, Phoenix, Arizona 85020.

8. Respondent Williams is, and at all times material herein was:

(A) Vice President, Treasurer and owner of 29% of the stock of John Clay;

(B) A dealer within the meaning of and subject to the Act; and

(C) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce.

9. John Clay officials were responsible for certain specific segments of the corporation's business. Williams and Lewis E. Harper ("Harper") were "field men." Basically, Williams and Harper were out in the country negotiating to buy and sell livestock. Mr. Frank Rynders ("Rynders") was in charge of the office. Rynders coordinated the daily financial business of the corporation, including accounting and various banking transactions.

John Clay had the following officers and shareholders:

Lewis E. Harper—President and a 29% shareholder.

Raymond C. Williams—Vice President/Treasurer and a 29% shareholder.

Roy Shurtz—Vice President/Secretary and a 29% shareholder.

Frank Rynders—A 13% shareholder.

10. Williams and Harper had worked together in one form or another for approximately 25 years. Williams found Harper to be a highly competent livestock dealer who, in 25 years, never gave Williams any reason to distrust him. Williams and Rynders had a business relationship for approximately 20 years. Williams' relationship with Rynders was extremely good. Williams found Rynders' services to be very good; he believed Rynders to be the best in the business and never had reason to doubt business information given him by Rynders.

11. John Clay had dealt with The Commercial Security Bank ("bank") for nearly 20 years. John Clay personnel had individually dealt with the bank (i.e., personal loans, home loans, automobile loans) for nearly 20 years. John Clay was the bank's second largest account. From 1960 through 1983, John Clay sent $600–800 million through the bank. Also, John Clay officials had a close personal relationship with various bank officials.

12. Williams' normal business practice was to contact Rynders every day respecting upcoming purchases and/or sales and the company's financial status regarding these transactions. During the period of time covered by the complainant, Williams continued this practice. Williams was repeatedly assured by Rynders that, based on discussions with the bank officials, the drafts being issued were sufficiently covered.

13. John Clay lost a lawsuit and was adjudged liable for about $300,000 in damages. When it appealed the decision, John Clay entered into a supersedeas bond with Aetna Insurance Company that was secured by the company's funds, and also a personal indemnification executed by various John Clay personnel (including Williams). In April 1983, John Clay lost its appeal.

14. Between May 7, 1983 and May 19, 1983, Williams personally handled the buying of sheep from producers in Arizona for resale to packers and dealers located in Colorado. He accepted delivery from 6 Arizona sheep growers of animals having a combined purchase amount of $581,876.25 and in payment drew drafts on John Clay that were returned "refused" by Commercial Security Bank. In each instance, Williams had agreed to a specific purchase price per pound, with the live weight to be determined on delivery and weighing only after he had obtained a resale commitment. These transactions are set forth in the following table:

Sale Date 1983	Name of Seller	No. of Sheep	Amt. of Purchase
5/7	Wilaha Sheep Co.	42	$2,198.67
5/9-10	Wilaha Sheep Co.	2,150	151,473.06
5/11	Wilaha Sheep Co.	76
		2,268	$162,997.53
5/11	Auza Bros., Inc.	836	$62,582.80
5/16	Auza Bros., Inc.	1,366	93,631.16
5/19	Auza Bros., Inc.	83	5,978.78
		2,285	$162,192.74
5/11	Manterola Sheep Co., Inc.	578	$39,228.64
5/13	Manterola Sheep	1,196	85,037.96
			-246.96
			$124,019.64
5/12	Long Tom Sheep	548	$15,850.00
5/16	Antonio Echandi	390	25,707.68

Sale Date 1983	Name of Seller	No. of Sheep	Amt. of Purchase
		125	1,949.25
		515	$27,656.93
5/16	Jean Arriaga	903	$62,643.56
5/19	Jean Arriaga	561	24,334.30
			2,181.55
		1,464	$89,159.41

15. Williams arranged for trucks to pick up the sheep set forth in the table above and to take them to scales for weighing. The procedure followed involved the prior weighing of the empty trucks; the sorting and loading of animals at the sellers' ranches; and the weighing of the loaded trucks. Upon such weighing, the sheep producers had completed their delivery and the risk of loss passed to John Clay until accepted by John Clay's customer who had agreed to buy the sheep F.O.B. Colorado. Except in one instance involving the purchase of Manterola sheep on May 11, 1983, where Williams was not present at the time the lambs were loaded and weighed, he drew a draft on the spot in the purchase amount that was computed upon completion of the weighing and handed it to the seller.

16. The drafts drawn on the bank account of John Clay were credit instruments in that they contained the following language:

> Payable Through > Commercial Security Bank

They were coded with bank code numbers that enabled them to be processed through banking channels in the same manner as checks, but such instruments do not constitute payment until the date they are honored upon presentation to the drawee's bank. The sheep producers set forth in the table contained in Finding 14 above, had not been asked to sign any agreements authorizing the use of drafts. However, it is the usual course of business in Arizona to use drafts for purchases of sheep.

17. John Clay filed a petition seeking relief pursuant to Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code on May 11, 1983. This filing occurred at 12:56 p.m. Mountain Standard Time (Arizona Time), while Williams was accepting delivery of sheep from Arizona producers. Williams had no knowledge of the actual filing until later that day, although he was aware an attorney had been hired for advice.

18. Williams thereafter was aware of the Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing on behalf of John Clay. Williams' understanding of the Chapter 11 Bankruptcy filing was that it was a vehicle which allowed the company to continue its operations and thus meet its obligations. Williams relied on assurances from Rynder that, even after the Chapter 11 filing, his purchases and the drawing of drafts posed no problem.

19. Ultimately, the producers, as a result of the bankruptcy proceedings, recovered all but approximately ten percent of the money due them.

20. The return of drafts drawn on John Clay by the Commercial Security Bank on or about May 20, 1983, was the direct cause of the conversion of the Chapter 11 proceeding to the Chapter 7 proceeding on May 27, 1983.

21. Williams had no actual advance knowledge that Commercial Security Bank, in spite of the Chapter 11 filing with its attendant automatic stay, would refuse to honor the drafts he issued to producers.

22. Respondent Williams is currently employed on a salaried basis by Jack Taylor, a former employee of respondent Clay who handled the firm's California purchases. Except for a lack of ownership by respondent Williams, the Jack Taylor operation is an admitted successor to the sheep business of respondent Clay. Respondent Williams testified that it did an annual volume of $12 million to $13 million in purchases, that 60% to 70% of this volume was in Arizona just as had been the case with respondent Clay and that, for the most part, Jack Taylor serves the same customers as respondent Clay.

RULINGS ON PROPOSED FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

All proposed findings and conclusions by either party not incorporated and adopted as part of the findings and conclusions, have been rejected as contrary to the relevant, material and substantial evidence of record.

CONCLUSIONS

1. Respondent John Clay violated the Act, and its financial condition requires the indefinite suspension of its registration until such time, after the expiration of a one year period of time, when it can demonstrate it is no longer insolvent.

2. Under controlling policies of the Department of Agriculture, sanctions may be imposed against respondent Williams, Vice President and 29% shareholder of John Clay, for John Clay's violations of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

3. The Arizona sheep transactions handled by respondent Williams for John Clay, were dealer transactions in which John Clay assumed all risk of loss until the sheep were accepted by the ultimate purchaser.

4. The issuance of unauthorized drafts to pay for livestock instead of sufficient fund checks, and the failure to pay for livestock in full, constitutes wilful violations of the Act by John Clay, that were participated in by respondent Williams for which, in accordance with the Department's sanction policy, his personal registration as a dealer should be suspended for sixty (60) days.

DISCUSSION

Complainant has requested the issuance of a cease and desist order, and the suspension of John Clay as a registrant under the Act for a minimum of one year and thereafter until it demonstrates it is no longer insolvent. This Order is fully warranted, is not a matter of controversy and is being entered.

The real controversy concerns what sanctions, if any, should be imposed on respondent Raymond C. Williams. Mr. Williams has impressed me as being a completely credible and truthful witness. His attorneys' brief has likewise impressed me as being comprehensive and most persuasive.

I agree with Mr. Williams' counsel that a one year suspension of Williams' dealer registration, as requested by complainant, would be most inappropriate and contrary to the ends of justice. Complainant's arguments that a sanction of this length is needed because the transactions were those of a market agency having special fiduciary duties to sellers, is contrary to the facts. Williams issued John Clay's drafts on the spot and John Clay thereupon assumed all responsibility for loss or rejection of the sheep until their actual acceptance by ultimate purchasers. Those facts show the transactions to be dealer transactions. See Daugherty v. White, 335 F.2d 94, 95-96 (10th Cir. 1964); and Hines, 35 Agric. Dec. 113, 121 (1976).

On the other hand, under well-established policies of the Department set forth in the various cases advanced by complainant and discussed by respondent, sanctions do lie against a corporate officer's personal registration when the corporation has violated the Act. See MCM Livestock Inc., 39 Agric. Dec. 893, 901 (1980); and Farmers & Ranchers Livestock Auction, Inc., P. & S. Docket No. 6483, 45 Agric. Dec. ____, (2/27/86 slip opinion at pp. 24-25).

Respondent Williams has argued that he cannot be said to have wilfully participated in any violation of the Act since he relied on assurances by Frank Rynders when he issued drafts for livestock after John Clay had filed in bankrupcty. However, as a registrant under the Act, Williams was required to do more. See e.g., Garver, P. & S. Docket No. 6449, 45 Agric. Dec. ____, (6/19/86 slip opinion). He should have consulted Packers and Stockyards officials for an official position or have directly consulted his own attorney for reliable advice. A registrant under the Act is not absolved by his reliance upon erroneous advice. See George Steinberg and Son v. Butz, 491 F.2d 988, 994 (2nd Cir.), cert. denied, 419 U.S. 830 (1974); and Shatkin, 34 Agric. Dec. 296, 298-300 (1975).

Upon reviewing past decisions by the Department, a sixty (60) day suspension of Williams' personal license appears warranted and appropriate in the circumstances.

Accordingly, the following Order is hereby entered.

ORDER

Respondent John Clay & Company of Ogden, Utah, its directors, officers, employees, agents, successors and assigns, and respondent Raymond C. Williams, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from:

1. Issuing drafts in payment for livestock without having and maintaining sufficient funds on deposit and available to pay such drafts when presented;

2. Failing to honor drafts, drawn and issued in payment for livestock, when presented for payment;

3. Issuing drafts which are not checks in payment for livestock purchased on a cash basis;

4. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock purchased.

Respondent John Clay & Company of Ogden, Utah, is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of one year and thereafter until it demonstrates that it is no longer insolvent. When respondent Clay demonstrates it is no longer insolvent, a supplemental order shall be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension, after the expiration of the one-year period.

Respondent Raymond C. Williams is suspended as a registrant under the Act for a period of sixty (60) days.

The provisions of this Order shall become effective 35 days after service of this Order on the respondents, unless appealed within 30 days after service (9 CFR §§ 1.145(a) and 1.142(c)).

Copies of this decision shall be served upon the parties. Service on respondent Clay shall be effected by service on its Vice President and Treasurer, respondent Williams.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Secretary of Agriculture (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were served on the respondent by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) George Watts, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual doing business in Roswell, New Mexico 88201.

(b) The respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(2) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for his own account and as a market agency to buy livestock in commerce on a commission basis.

2. Respondent was notified on various occasions by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of the need to file and maintain a surety bond to secure the performance of his livestock obligations under the Act. Respondent was further notified that if he continued his livestock operations under the Act without providing adequate bond coverge or its equivalent, he would be in violation of section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations. Notwithstanding such notices, respondent has continued to engage in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account without maintaining an adequate bond or its equivalent as required by the Act and the regulations.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent has wilfully violated section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a)), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30).

ORDER

Respondent George Watts, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended and supplemented, and the regulations, without filing and maintaining an adequate bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

When respondent demonstrates that he is in full compliance with such bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty in the amount of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under Title II of the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the Act, instituted by a Complaint filed on October 21, 1985, by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

The Complaint alleges that respondent Circle B Meat Company, Inc., doing business as Florida Boneless Beef and Circle B Portion Meat Co., under the management, direction and control of respondents George E. Mueller, Sr., and Jay A. Mueller, in connection with the operations of Circle B Meat Company, Inc., as a packer subject to the Act, purchased livestock for slaughter and failed to pay, when due, for said livestock; purchased livestock and in purported payment issued checks which were returned unpaid by the bank because the corporate respondent did not have sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account; failed to hold in trust inventories of livestock required to be held in trust for the benefit of all unpaid cash sellers of livestock; and willfully dissipated inventories of meat and meat food products which were required to be held in trust for the benefit of all unpaid cash sellers of livestock. Said practices are alleged to be in wilful violation of sections 202(a), 206(b) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 192(a), 196(b), 228).

On November 18, 1985, Respondent Jay A. Mueller filed a response to the Complaint and Notice of Hearing which admitted the jurisdictional allegations of the Complaint, but denied that he was responsible, with George E. Mueller, Sr., for the management, direction and control of the practices and activities of the corporate respondent, during the period of the alleged violations, and denied the remaining allegations as they related to him.

A default decision was issued against respondents Circle B Meat Co., Inc., and George E. Mueller, Sr., on April 23, 1986, and became final and effective on June 2, 1986. As a result of this final Decision, George E. Mueller, Sr., was assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $25,000.

An oral hearing was held on July 1, 1986, in Tampa, Florida, before Administrative Law Judge Edward H. McGrail, United States Department of Agriculture. Respondent was represented by Robert L. Williams, Esq., Venice, Florida. Complainant was represented by Allan R. Kahan, Esq., Office of the General Counsel, United States Department of Agriculture. Complainant called six witnesses, including Respondent Jay A. Mueller, and offered twenty-one (21) exhibits. Respondent called no witnesses since complainant made Respondent Jay A. Mueller his own witness, and offered no exhibits.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Circle B Meat Co., Inc., hereinafter referred to as the corporate respondent, is a family owned corporation organized and existing in the State of Florida, doing business as Florida Boneless Beef and Circle B Portion Meat Company. It had as its officers Jay A. Mueller, President; George A. Mueller, Sr., Vice-President, and Arthaleen Mueller, Secretary/Treasurer. Its business mailing address is P. O. Drawer 1417, Dade City, Florida 34297. (CX-1, 21, p. 2) [1]

2. The corporate respondent was, at all times material herein:

(a) Engaged in the business of buying livestock in commerce for purposes of slaughter;

(b) Engaged in the business of manufacturing or preparing meats or meat food products for sale or shipment in commerce; and

(c) A packer within the meaning of the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act. (CX-1)

3. Jay A. Mueller, hereinafter referred to as Respondent Jay Mueller, is an individual whose business mailing address is 216 Carey Place, Lakeland, Florida 33803. (Respondent's Answer)

4. Respondent Jay Mueller is, and at all times material herein was:

(a) Listed as President and a director of the corporate respondent and was active in the management of the corporate respondent until approximately August 22, 1983, at which time he, following a serious argument with his father, George E. Mueller, Sr., left the management and control of the business, received no salary from that point forward, turned in the company automobile and found other employment; and

(b) Respondent Jay Mueller did not return to the corporate business until on or about January 24, 1984, at which time the corporate respondent had filed for bankruptcy in the Bankruptcy Court, Tampa, Florida, said filing having been accomplished by his father, George E. Mueller, Sr., on January 3, 1984. (CX-21, p. 2; Tr. 123, 130-131, 134-135)

5. During Respondent Jay Mueller's absence from the day to day operation of the corporate respondent it was understood that his father, George E. Mueller, Sr. was running the corporate business. By date of January 4, 1984, the Regional Office of the Packers and Stockyards Administration (P&S), Atlanta, Georgia, sent a letter, addressed to the corporate respondent, advising that P&S had received information that the corporate respondent had failed to pay for livestock and that the corporate respondent should take immediate steps to comply with the requirements of the Act. The letter explained the requirements of the Act, as well as provided information regarding the packers obligation to establish and maintain the trust account. This letter was signed as being received at the corporate respondent's place of business on January 11, 1984, by Linda Ledford, bookkeeper for the firm. A copy of the letter was also sent to Don Stichter, Esq., who was identified as the attorney representing the corporate respondent in the bankruptcy proceeding filed in the Bankruptcy Court, Tampa, Florida, on January 3, 1984. (CXs-1, 2, pp. 3-4; CXs-11, 12, 21; Tr. 64, 68, 70-71, 114-115, 121, 127, 130-131, 135)

6. On January 5, 1984, after futile attempts by P&S to contact Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. by telephone, Respondent Jay Mueller was contacted at his home in Lakeland, Florida, by a representative of P&S in Atlanta, Georgia. Although Respondent Jay Mueller acknowledged he was still listed as President of respondent's company, he advised he had not been active in the daily operations since the fall of 1983. The bankruptcy filing was also discussed, as well as money owed to sellers of livestock and the responsibility for protecting trust assets. The bankruptcy petition filed in the Bankruptcy Court, Tampa, Florida on January 3, 1984, was signed by George E. Mueller, Sr., as Vice-President of the corporate respondent. (CXs-5, 12, 21; Tr. 127)

7. On several occasions during the period when Respondent Jay Mueller was absent from the corporate respondent, he was requested to make purchases of cattle at the Interstate Livestock Auction Market, Seffner, Florida (Interstate) by his father, George E. Mueller, Sr. Prior to such purchases, personnel of Interstate would clear authority to purchase cattle for the corporate respondent from Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr., who acknowledged he would be responsible for payment of the purchased cattle. On these occasions, Respondent Jay Mueller was not working at corporate respondent, nor receiving any pay for his limited service. Rather, he was employed by a real estate company. (CX-15-20; Tr. pp. 65-70, 98, 100-105, 131-132, 139-143)

8. (a) The corporate respondent, in connection with their operations as a packer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth below and at diverse other times, purchased livestock for slaughter and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock:

1983 Date of Purchase	From Whom Purchased	Amount

(CX-2)

(b) As of August 1, 1985, there remained unpaid by the corporate respondent approximately $130,399.30 for such livestock purchases. (CX-2)

9. Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr., and/or corporate respondent in connection with operations as a packer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth below, purchased livestock and in purported payment therefore issued checks on the corporate respondent's account which were returned unpaid by the bank upon which they were drawn because the corporate respondent did not have sufficient funds on deposit and available in the account upon which such checks were drawn to pay such checks when presented. (CX-3, pp. 6, 22, 30, 34, 44, 49, 58, 63):

10. The corporate respondent and/or George E. Mueller, Sr. failed to hold in trust and willfully dissipated inventories of meat and meat food products which were required to be held in trust for the benefit of all unpaid cash sellers of livestock until such sellers were paid, in that:

(a) On January 6, 1984, corporate respondent and/or George E. Mueller, Sr. shipped 4,860 pounds of 50/50 beef trim to Swift Independent Packing Company, Orlando, Florida, for $1,980.00. Such beef trim had been stored in the Tampa Cold Storage Company, Tampa, Florida. The proceeds from said sale were deposited in The Bank of Pasco County by George E. Mueller, Sr. on January 24, 1984, and were distributed by corporate respondent and/or George E. Mueller, Sr. to Sam Cohen, United Telephone and M&M Cattle. The M&M Cattle Company is wholly owned by George E. Mueller, Sr. The payments constitute dissipations of trust assets. (CX-9, pp. 17, 37; Tr. pp. 92, 133)

(b) On January 19 & 25, 1984, corporate respondent and/or George E. Mueller, Sr. shipped a total of 9,000 pounds of 50/50 beef trim to Swift Independent Packing Company, Orlando, Florida, for $3,960.00. Such beef trim had been stored in the Tampa Cold Storage Company, Tampa, Florida. The proceeds from said sale were deposited in The Bank of Pasco County by George E. Mueller, Sr. on February 28, 1984. Such proceeds from said sale were used to make payments to U.S. Leasing, United Telephone, Sumter Electric, and Grafton and Sons, Inc., to make two loan payments totalling $417.75, and obtain $1,290.66 in currency, the disposition of which is unaccounted for. The loan payments were made on loans the Bank had made to M&M Cattle, a company wholly owned by

George E. Mueller, Sr. The payments constitute dissipations of trust assets. (CX-9, pp. 29–32, 37; Tr. pp. 89, 133)

11. The corporate respondent and/or George E. Mueller, Sr. failed to hold in trust inventories of livestock which were required to be held in trust for the benefit of all unpaid cash sellers of livestock until such sellers were paid, in that, during the period October 24, 1983, through December 12, 1983, corporate respondent and/or George E. Mueller, Sr. purchased a total of 67 head of livestock from Jacksonville Livestock Auction Company, Inc., Whitehouse, Florida, and North Florida Farmers Livestock Market, Inc., Lake City, Florida for $7,847.56. The corporate respondent's records contain no indication of the slaughter or other disposal or disposition of this livestock. Linda Ledford, bookkeeper for corporate respondent, advised that George E. Mueller, Sr. gave her the invoices for these purchases and told her to pay them from corporate respondent's funds. She paid all except those that are still in accounts payable. (CX-10, pp. 1, 5)

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The basic question here is whether Respondent Jay Mueller, listed as President of corporate respondent during the period of the alleged violations should be held accountable for actions taken by his father, Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr., while Respondent Jay Mueller was divorced from the day to day operations of the corporate respondent. I find that he should not, and dismiss the Complaint.

The corporate respondent was a small family owned business with Respondent Jay Mueller as its President, his father George E. Mueller, Sr. as its Vice-President, and Arthaleen Mueller, mother/wife, as its Secretary/Treasurer. The record here shows that in April, 1983, while Respondent Jay Mueller was actually in charge of the day to day operations of the corporate respondent, an audit conducted by P&S personnel showed that the corporate respondent was experiencing a high percentage of slow payment to sellers of livestock. The corporate respondent had also issued several NSF checks. At that time Respondent Jay Mueller was having difficulty controlling the actions of his father, George E. Mueller, Sr., with regard to the day to day operations of the corporate respondent. P&S personnel explained the provisions and requirements of the Act regarding slow payment to Respondent Jay Mueller, but found the trust assets to be more than enough to cover obligations of the corporate respondent. Respondent Jay Mueller made good the NSF checks and obtained extension credit agreements with its sellers of livestock. As a result of this compliance, no action was deemed necessary by P&S. (Tr. pp. 119–125)

Complainant does not dispute the facts showing that during the period on or about August 22, 1983, through on or about January 24, 1984, Respondent Jay Mueller completely divorced himself from the day to day management of the corporate respondent. This was due to a serious irreversible business altercation between father and son which prevented Respondent Jay Mueller from again participating in the actual day to day operations of the company, except on a few occasions during this period on which he did purchase cattle at one market on behalf of his father. However, even on these occasions he was a mere conduit since the purchases had to have the authorization of George E. Mueller, Sr., as well as his personal commitment to be responsible for payment of such livestock purchases. Without this authorization and commitment by George E. Mueller, Sr., the cattle could not have been purchased. I find the testimony of Respondent Jay Mueller to be sincere, creditable and worthy of great weight in this matter.

Complainant also admits that during the period Respondent Jay Mueller relinquished the management of the corporate respondent to his father, and that almost all of the alleged violations committed during this period were perpetrated by Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. Indeed, complainant concedes the evidence shows that Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. ". . . was the active culprit in the alleged violations, not Respondent Jay Mueller." (Complainant's Brief, pp. 6–7) Such admission is not difficult to concede since, as noted earlier, during the period of Jay Mueller's absence his father was responsible for issuing NSF checks (Finding No. 9), was responsible for ordering payment of non-valid invoices from corporate funds (Finding No. 11), expended funds, properly assignable to the trust fund, to pay utility bills and notes owed to The Pasco County Bank by his wholly owned M&M Company and the improper withdrawal of beef from the trust assets. (Finding No. 10) It is noted here also that Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr., exerting his authority over the company, placed the company in bankruptcy by filing a "Debtors Petition" with the Bankruptcy Court, Tampa, Florida on January 3, 1984.

Further buttressing the facts that Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. was in complete charge of the day to day operations of corporate respondent is the fact that P&S personnel acknowledged this when they attempted to contact him as a result of learning of unpaid bills to sellers and the corporate respondent's filing bankruptcy. Only when they were unable to contact Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. did they contact Respondent Jay Mueller at his home in Lakeland, Florida. There is dispute as to whether knowledge of the provisions of, and responsibilities under the Act, were relayed by Respondent Jay Mueller to his father as a result of the P&S telephone call to him on January 5, 1984. Whether he did or not, I infer from the fact that the P&S letter of January 4, 1984, received at the respondent company on January 11, 1984, that Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. had knowledge of the provisions of the Act as well as his responsibilities as a packer.

Finally, there is witness testimony that there had been no problems with corporate respondent until Respondent Jay Mueller left. (CX-2, p. 4; Tr. 69-70) When Respondent Jay Mueller did return, he did so in an attempt to make the corporate respondent a viable business with a saleable value. To this end, he injected his own borrowed money into the business in order to keep the plant open. (Tr. pp. 141-142) Additionally, a trust account was opened at The Bank of Pasco County in January 1984. Although the exact date is not discernable from the "New Account Deposit" slip, it appears that this account was opened with checks from payments made to corporate respondent by Baker Hides ($160.84) and Sun Market ($384.00) (CX-8, p. 1, lines 3 & 4) which were deposited in the trust account on January 19, 1984. (CX-8, p. 1, line 1) Thus, in correlating the two items the trust account was opened on January 19, 1984, after Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. had placed the company in bankruptcy and after Respondent Jay Mueller was reminded by P&S personnel of his obligations and responsibilities under the Act.

Deposits made after Respondent Jay Mueller returned were placed in the trust fund account and reflected no impropriety on the part of Respondent Jay Mueller. (CX-8; Tr. 54 & 79) An amount that was not placed in the trust account fund was a check received by the corporate respondent in the amount of $1,991.39. (CX-5, pp. 1, 4) However, this money was used by Respondent Jay Mueller to pay an electrical bill so that trust fund asset meats in the plant freezer would be protected. As stated by a P&S witness, Respondent Jay Mueller had a duty to protect trust fund assets, and money assignable to the trust fund account could be used to protect such assets. There was no impropriety on the part of Respondent Jay Mueller. (Tr. pp. 73-75)

Thus, during the periods before and after the alleged violations, when Respondent Jay Mueller managed the day to day operations of the corporate respondent, he acknowledged his responsibilities and obligations as a packer under the Act, and performed them in accordance with the regulations. As noted previously, complainant conceded that Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. ". . . was the active culprit in the alleged violations, not Respondent Jay Mueller." As also noted previously, George E. Mueller, Sr., ". . . the active culprit in the alleged violations . . ." has already been assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $25,000. This conforms to the Secretary's policy of deterrence and sends an unmistakable signal to the industry that such practices will not be tolerated. On the other hand, seeking a cease and desist order and imposing a civil penalty of $15,000 on Respondent Jay Mueller would have the opposite effect and defeat the policy of the Secretary. Such order and civil penalty would be imposed on a packer who witnesses concede performed no wilful acts in violation of the Act or the regulations while he was the active manager of the day to day operations of corporate respondent. Rather, he quickly and sincerely complied with them, and upon his return attempted to salvage trust assets and bring the corporate respondent back to the status of a viable business.

Nor is this inopposite to In re MCM Livestock, et al, 39 A.D. 893, 901 (1980) cited by complainant. There, Respondent McAninch, although a non-participating president of a company in which two-thirds of the stock was owned by his wife, had designated another party to be responsible for the management of MCM. Since this designation had been made, it was within his power at anytime to rectify the violations alleged. There is no indication in this record of ownership of the stock of the corporate respondent. However, it is unlikely that Respondent Jay Mueller would walk away from a business in which he held a financial interest, stock. Therefore, I infer that the majority, if not all, of the stock of the corporate respondent was held by Respondent George E. Mueller, Sr. and/or his wife Arthaleen Mueller. Additionally, because of the serious and deep seated nature of the disagreement between father and son over the day to day operations of corporate respondent it was impossible for him to return to its management until after the father had relinquished control of the company and had placed it in bankruptcy. No such set of circumstances existed in MCM, supra. Finally, it is noted in MCM, supra, that only a cease and desist order was sought against McAninch. Since the corporate respondent is in bankruptcy, and Respondent Jay Mueller is engaged in other gainful employment, real estate, imposing a cease and desist order here would be an exercise in futility.

ORDER

IT IS ORDERED, that the Complaint in this matter as pertains to Respondent Jay Mueller be, and hereby is, dismissed with prejudice.

In re: ELMO MAYES. P&S Docket No. 6591. Decided November 24, 1986.

Civil Penalty.

The Judicial Officer affirmed Chief Judge Campbell's default order assessing an $8,000 civil penalty and ordering respondent to cease and desist from failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock. Since respondent failed to file an answer to the complaint, the default decision was properly issued.

Roberta Swartzendruber, for complainant.
Edward M. Dooley, Middlesboro, Kentucky, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.).[1] An initial default Decision and Order was filed on May 7, 1986, by Chief Administrative Law Judge John A. Campbell (ALJ) assessing an $8,000 civil penalty and ordering respondent to cease and desist from failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock.

On October 28, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[2] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on November 21, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, except that the effective date of the order is changed in view of respondent's appeal, and specific provisions are added as to the manner in which the civil penalty shall be paid. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act.

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were personally served on the respondent. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

[2] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program) (December 1962–January 1971).

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Elmo Mayes, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose business mailing address is Route 1, Highway 63, Cumberland Gap, Tennessee 37724.

(b) Respondent is and at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of a dealer, buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account; and

(2) A dealer within the meaning of that term as defined in the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act.

2. Respondent, in connection with his operations as a dealer, on or about the dates and in the transactions set forth in paragraph II of the complaint, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent has wilfully violated sections 312(a) and 409 of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b).

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file a timely answer or deny the allegations of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139, .141(a)):

> § 1.136 Answer.
> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .
>
> (b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or
> (2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or

(3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.

(c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.141 Procedure for Hearing.

(a) Request for Hearing. Any party may request a hearing on the facts by including such request in the complaint or answer, or by a separate request, in writing, filed with the Hearing Clerk within the time in which an answer may be filed. Failure to request a hearing within the time allowed for the filing of the answer shall constitute a waiver of such hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk, and that failure to file an answer "shall constitute an admission of all the material allegations of this complaint" (Complaint at 3).

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and four copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Respondent failed to answer the complaint. Accordingly, under the plain provisions of the rules of practice, the default decision was properly issued. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[3] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[4]

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 496 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer disposed of 42 cases. In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk.

multitudinous duties.' " [5] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, or raise new issues, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

Respondent's appeal is frivolous. As stated by complainant's attorney in the Answer to Respondent's Petition for Appeal of Decision and Order at 1-3:

> The appeal cites 12 issues as basis of appeal which, on closer reading, are in fact only three in number.
> A. Respondent Elmo Mayes (hereinafter respondent) did not receive service of the complaint or the proposed default decision and thus has been denied due process of law;
>
> B. The complainant Packers and Stockyards Administration (hereinafter complainant) has offered no evidence in support of the alleged violations cited against the respondent in its complaint; and
> C. The respondent is not guilty of the alleged violations.
> Complainant has not only served the respondent with all pertinent papers in this proceeding but did so over respondent's consistent and vigorous efforts to avoid such service as evidenced in the following record review:
> The complaint was filed September 4, 1985, and sent to respondent by certified mail. Respondent refused service of the complaint and it was returned to the Hearing Clerk's Office, United States Department of Agriculture on September 12, 1985. (See Exhibit No. 1) Request was made by the Hearing Clerk on September 24, 1985, for personal service of the complaint. (See Exhibit No. 1A). On October 30, 1985, Mr. Kenneth M. Gordon, a supervisory auditor for the complainant personally served a copy of the complaint and the Rules of Practice on respondent at his residence. (See Exhibit No. 1B).

> Respondent Mayes failed to reply to the complaint.

On December 9, 1985, complainant's "Motion for Adoption of Proposed Decision" and "Proposed Decision" was filed and sent to respondent on December 12, 1985 by certified mail. (See Exhibit No. 2) Respondent refused to accept the certified mailed documents and they were returned to the Hearing Clerk's Office on December 23, 1985. (See Exhibit No. 2A) Pursuant to Rule of Practice 1.147(b) the "Motion for Adoption of Proposed Decision" and "Proposed Decision" were then sent by regular mail to respondent. (See Exhibit No. 2B) These documents were not returned and no objections to the "Proposed Decision" pursuant to Rule of Practice 1.139 were ever entered by the respondent.

On May 7, 1986, the "Decision and Order Upon Admission of Facts By Reason of Default" was entered against the respondent. The Default Decision was sent to respondent by certified mail on May 9, 1986. (See Exhibit No. 3) It was returned "unclaimed". (See Exhibit No. 3A) Request was made by the Hearing Clerk's Office for personal service of the "Decision and Order Upon Admission of Facts By Reason of Default" against respondent Mayes on June 2, 1986. (See Exhibit No. 3B)

After attempting for several months to locate respondent Mayes, Robert Grainger, Supervisory Scales and Weighing Specialist of the Packers and Stockyards Administration's Bedford, Virginia, regional office and Hal Crocker of the same office located respondent Mayes in his livestock barn on September 9, 1986, at 8:15 a.m. and made personal service on him of a certified copy of the "Decision and Order Upon Admission of Facts By Reason of Default", as well as a copy of the Packers and Stockyards Act and a copy of the regulations promulgated thereunder. (See Exhibits No. 4 and 4A) Thus, respondent's appeal on the basis of due process is false to the point of being frivolously advanced.

By failing to file an answer to the complaint within the time prescribed in section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice, the respondent has admitted all alleged material facts set forth in the complaint. Such admission on the respondent's part negates any requirement that complainant present evidence to prove the violations. Further, denials on the merits offered by the respondent are also negated by respondent's own admissions in failing to answer the complaint within the allocated time.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

Respondent Elmo Mayes, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with his business operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), respondent Elmo Mayes is assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $8,000, which shall be paid within 90 days after service of this order. This penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Roberta Swartzendruber, Office of the General Counsel, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Room 2438, South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

Decision by Edward H. McGrail, Administative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER UPON ADMISSION OF FACTS BY REASON OF DEFAULT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), herein referred to as the Act, instituted by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, charging that the respondent wilfully violated the Act and the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Secretary of Agriculture (9 CFR § 201.1 et seq.).

Copies of the complaint and Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.130 et seq.) governing proceedings under the Act were personally served on the respondent by certified mail. Respondent was informed in a letter of service that an answer should be filed pursuant to the best copy available

Rules of Practice and that failure to answer would constitute an admission of all the material allegations contained in the complaint.

Respondent has failed to file an answer within the time prescribed in the Rules of Practice, and the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as findings of fact.

This decision and order, therefore, is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. (a) Richard Baldwin, hereinafter referred to as the respondent, is an individual whose mailing address is 2209 Caldwell Boulevard, Nampa, Idaho 83651.

(b) Respondent is, and at all times material herein was:

(1) Engaged in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account and for the accounts of others; and

(2) Registered, along with Myrtle A. Baldwin doing business under the trade name of Y-L Cattle Company, with the Secretary of Agriculture as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce for their own account and as a market agency to buy livestock in commerce on a commission basis. This registration has been inactive since September 6, 1984.

2. The Packers and Stockyards Administration notified respondent on May 25, 1983, that the $35,000.00 surety bond he maintained to secure the performance of his livestock obligations under the Act was being terminated effective June 16, 1983, and that it was necessary to file a bond or bond equivalent in the amount of $35,000.00 before continuing his operations. Respondent was further notified that if he continued his livestock operations without adequate bond coverage or its equivalent, he would be in violation of section 312(a) of the Act and sections 201.19 and 201.30 of the regulations. Notwithstanding such notice, respondent has continued to engage in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for his own account and for the accounts of others, without maintaining bond coverage or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

CONCLUSIONS

By reason of the facts found in Finding of Fact 2 herein, respondent has violated section 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(a), and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30).

ORDER

Respondent Richard Baldwin, his agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, shall cease and desist from engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act, as amended and supplemented, and the regulations, without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required by the Act and the regulations.

Respondent is suspended as a registrant under the Act until such time as he complies fully with the bonding requirements under the Act and the regulations. When respondent demonstrates that he is in full compliance with such bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating this suspension.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), respondent is assessed a civil penalty in the amount of One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty Dollars ($1,750.00).

This decision and order shall become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Judicial Officer within 30 days after service (7 CFR §§ 1.139, 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

[This default decision and order became final November 24, 1986.—Ed.]

In re: GEORGE COUNTY STOCKYARD, INC., and M.H. PITTS. P&S Docket No. 6659. Decided December 4, 1986.

Civil Penalty.

The Judicial Officer affirmed Judge McGrail's order suspending respondent George County Stockyard, Inc., as a registrant for 28 days, prohibiting respondent M. H. Pitts from engaging in business subject to the Act for 28 days, and ordering respondents to cease and desist from various practices, including not properly maintaining a "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds"; failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock; and engaging in business without maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required. Respondents are jointly and severally assessed a $4,000 civil penalty, and are required to keep complete and accurate records. Custodial account violations, failing to maintain the proper bond or bond equivalent, failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock, and failing to maintain accurate records have long been recognized as serious violations of the Act.

Gerald A. Dickerson, Lucedale, Mississippi, for respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.).* An initial Decision and Order was filed on September 30, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge Edward H. McGrail (ALJ) suspending respondent George County Stockyard, Inc., as a registrant for 28 days, prohibiting respondent M. H. Pitts from engaging in business subject to the Act for 28 days, and ordering respondents to cease and desist from various practices, including not properly maintaining a "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds"; failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock; and engaging in business without maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent, as required. Respondents are jointly and severally assessed a $4,000 civil penalty, and are required to keep complete and accurate records.

On November 5, 1986, respondents appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35). On November 28, 1986, the case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the ALJ's initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, with a few changes too minor to itemize. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding brought pursuant to the provisions of the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended and supplemented ("Act"), 7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq., the regulations issued pursuant to the Act, 9 CFR § 201.1 et seq., and the Rules of Practice Governing Formal Adjudicatory Administrative Proceedings Instituted By the Secretary, 7 CFR § 1.130 et seq. ("Rules of Practice").

The proceeding was instituted by a complaint filed on January 8, 1986, by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration. It was alleged in the complaint that the George County Stockyard, Inc., and M. H. Pitts violated the Act and the regulations in the following ways: (1) the corporate respondent, under Pitts' direction, management and control, engaged in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account and as a market agency selling livestock in commerce for the accounts of others without maintaining adequate bond coverage (7 U.S.C. §§ 204, 213(a); 9 CFR §§ 201.29, 201.30); (2) the respondent corporation, under the direction, management and control of respondent Pitts, failed to properly maintain and use its "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds," thereby endangering the faithful and prompt accounting thereof, and payment of the portions thereof, due the owners and consignors of livestock (7 U.S.C. §§ 208, 213(a); 9 CFR §201.42); (3) George County Stockyards, Inc., under Mr. Pitts' direction, management and control, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase prices of such livestock (7 U.S.C. §§ 213(a), 228b); and (4) respondents failed to keep accounts, records, and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in their business as a market agency and dealer under the Act and, in particular, failed to keep and maintain a separate ledger showing their purchases and sales in support of the market (7 U.S.C. § 221, 9 CFR § 201.49).

 The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program) (December 1962–January 1971).

On February 18, 1986, respondents filed an Answer in which they alleged that they satisfied all the Act's bonding requirements, that the complainant failed to consider the existence of $59,637.48 in certificates of deposit in concluding that they failed to properly maintain the corporate respondent's custodial account, and generally denied all of the allegations in the Complaint, except with regard to paragraph I of the Complaint, in which the complainant identified respondents and alleged all of the jurisdictional prerequisite to the bringing of an action against them under the Act, which they admitted.

At the oral hearing, held on June 18, 1986, in Mobile, Alabama, and without objection, complainant's motion to correct arithmetical errors in paragraph III of the Complaint was granted. (Tr. 8–10, 40) [1] Complainant was represented by Edward M. Silverstein, Esq., Packers and Stockyards Division, Office of the General Counsel, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250–1400. Respondent was represented by Gerald A. Dickerson, Esq., 202 Cox-Courthouse Square, Lucedale, Mississippi 39452. Leave was granted to the parties to file briefs, complainant on or before August 1, 1986, respondents by September 1, 1986, and complainant's reply by September 19, 1986. Such briefs have been filed and duly considered. For convenience, the pertinent statutory and regulatory provisions are set forth in Appendices A and B.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. George County Stockyard, Inc., ("George County") is a Mississippi corporation with its principal place of business at Lucedale, Mississippi, whose business mailing address is P.O. Box 105, Lucedale, Mississippi 39452. (Complaint Para. I(a); Answer Para. I; CX-1; Tr. 15-18)

2. At all material times, George County was:

(a) Engaged in the business of conducting and operating the George County Stockyard, Inc., a stockyard posted under the Act, hereinafter referred to as the stockyard;

(b) Engaged in the business of selling livestock on a commission basis at the stockyard;

(c) Engaged in the business of buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account; and

(d) Registered with the Secretary of Agriculture as a market agency to sell livestock on a commission basis in commerce, and as a dealer to buy and sell livestock in commerce. (Complaint Para. I(b); Answer Para. I; CX-1, Tr. 15-18)

3. M. H. Pitts ("Pitts") is an individual whose mailing address is P.O. Box 105, Lucedale, Mississippi 39452. (Complaint Para. I(c); Answer Para. I; CX-1, Tr. 15-18)

4. At all material times, Pitts was:

(a) President of George County;

(b) Owner of George County;

(c) Responsible for the direction, management and control of George County; and

(d) A market agency and dealer within the meaning of those terms as defined in the Act and subject to the provisions of the Act. (Complaint Para. I(d); Answer Para. I; CX-1, Tr. 15-18, 139)

5. By letter, dated July 9, 1985, the Packers and Stockyards Administration (P&S) notified George County that the $10,000.00 surety bond it maintained to secure the performance of its livestock dealer obligations under the Act was inadequate, and that it was necessary to increase such bond to $20,000.00. By letter, dated August 20, 1985, P&S notified George County it had failed to file a new bond increasing bond coverage to $20,000.00 and that punitive action would be taken if the new bond was not filed.

On November 12, 1985, P&S notified George County that the $10,000.00 surety bond it maintained to secure the performance of its livestock dealer obligations under the Act and the $60,000.00 surety bond it maintained to secure the performance of its obligations under the Act as a market agency selling livestock for the accounts of others would terminate on December 12, 1985. George County was further notified that, if it continued its livestock operations without adequate bond coverage or its equivalent, it would be in violation of section 312(a) of the Act and sections 201.29 and 201.30 of the regulations. Notwithstanding such notice, George County, under Pitts' direction, management and control, continued to engage in the business of a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account and as a market agency selling livestock in commerce for the accounts of others, without maintaining adequate bond coverage or its equivalent as required by the Act and the regulations. This unlawful operation continued until January 10, 1986, when an acceptable bond was posted. (CX-2, 3; Tr. 18-25)

6. George County, under Pitts' direction, management and control, during the period April 30, 1985, through at least May 17, 1985, failed to properly maintain and use its "Custodial Accounts for Shippers' Proceeds," hereinafter referred to as the custodial account, thereby endangering the faithful and prompt accounting thereof, and payment of the portions thereof, due the owners and consignors of livestock in that:

(a) As of April 30, 1985, George County had outstanding checks drawn on its custodial account in the amount of $104,983.92 and had, to offset such checks, an overdraft in its custodial account in the amount of $85.06, no deposits in transit, and proceeds receivable in the amount of $89,700.59, resulting in a deficiency of $15,368.39 in funds available to pay shippers' proceeds;

(b) As of May 17, 1985, George County had outstanding checks drawn on its custodial account in the amount of $197,200.06 and had, to offset such checks, cash in its custodial account in the amount of $5,261.38, no deposits in transit and proceeds receivable in the amount of $148,021.14, resulting in a deficiency of $43,917.54 in funds available to pay shippers' proceeds;

(c) The shortages described above were caused, in part, by: (1) the deposit of funds to George County's expense account received from the sale of consigned livestock; and (2) the respondents' failure to deposit to the custodial account, within the time prescribed by the regulations, amounts equal to the proceeds receivable due from the owners, officers and employees of the market agency. (CX-7, 8, 10; Tr. 36-52, 55-61)

7. All persons who have custodial accounts under the Act, and the banks handling such accounts, within the Memphis, Tennessee, Region of the Packers and Stockyards Administration (the States of Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas) were made aware of the requirements of the Department with regard to the handling of the funds in such accounts. The custodial account is a trust account for the consignors of livestock. The auction markets are trustees of these accounts and their obligation is to promptly reimburse the account to provide funds for payment of livestock. All monies collected from the buyers of livestock should be placed directly into this account. It is a conduit through which the buyer of livestock pays the seller. To be considered part of the custodial account, securities must be dedicated to, and in the name of, the custodial account. In such status, funds are protected for each consignor and each is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Whereas assignment of securities to the custodial account does not protect the consignor since such are subject to attachment. (CX-13; Tr. 42-43, 106, 114-117, 127)

8. George County, under Pitts' direction, management and control, in connection with their operations as a dealer, on or about the dates and in the transactions specified below and in various other transactions, purchased livestock and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price of such livestock: (CX-6, 11; Tr. 34-36, 61-64)

DATE OF PURCHASE	NAME OF SELLER	AMOUNT	HEAD
3/06/85	Poplarville Stockyards, Inc.	$1,482.75	7
3/03/85	Poplarville Stockyards, Inc.	4,095.69	65
3/18/85	Robertsdale Livestock Auction, Inc.	6,201.90	32
3/20/85	Poplarville Stockyards, Inc.	2,092.35	9
3/25/85	Robertsdale Livestock Auction, Inc.	24,075.65	92
4/08/85	Robertsdale Livestock Auction, Inc.	35,044.23	129
4/16/85	Poplarville Stockyards, Inc.	7,654.53	27
4/27/85	Poplarville Stockyards, Inc.	$22,565.14	100

9. Respondent failed to keep accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclosed all transactions involved in their business as a market agency and dealer under the Act in that respondents failed to keep and maintain a separate ledger showing their purchases and sales in support of the market. Additionally, respondent failed to keep and maintain complete scale tickets in that (1) scale tickets were not used in numerical sequence; (2) voided scale tickets and those used to balance the scale were discarded; and (3) scale tickets did not show the name or initial of the weighmaster or show the date of the weighing. (CX-12; Tr. 38, 64-68, 76)

10. The improper handling of, and misuse of, funds in a custodial account, shortages in custodial accounts, and failure to pay for purchases of livestock when due, are considered serious violations of the Act. (Tr. 119–120)

11. The payment of a civil penalty in the amount of $4,000 by respondents would not cause them to cease operating. (Tr. 120–121)

12. There are several other markets within the geographical area served by respondents available to farmers and ranchers for sale of livestock. (Tr. 121, 129–132)

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Failure to Maintain Proper Bond

The Act and the regulations issued pursuant to it require market agencies, packers and dealers to maintain a reasonable bond to secure the performance of their livestock obligations (7 U.S.C. § 204; 9 CFR §§ 201.19, 201.30). The bonding provisions were added as a special protection against future losses to the livestock producer (see H. Rep. No. 94-1043, 94th Cong., 2d Sess., p. 5; Sen. Rep. No. 94-932, 94th Cong., 2d Sess., pp. 5–6). Thus, such bonding provisions are considered vital to the effective enforcement of the Packers and Stockyards Act and for the protection of livestock producers.

The record is clear that respondents were notified by P&S letters commencing on July 9, 1985, and again on August 20, 1985, that it would be necessary to increase bond requirements. The latter letter also noted a warning of suspension of registration under the Act if the increased bond requirement was not filed. Additionally, respondents were notified by P&S letter of November 12, 1985, that its surety bond with the Aetna Casualty and Surety Company would terminate on December 12, 1985, and that operation without filing an adequate bond would be in violation of the Act and the regulations. Such notices were admitted to have been received by respondents. However, an acceptable bond was not filed until January 10, 1986. Thus, from the date of receipt of the July 9, 1985, P&S letter until an acceptable bond was filed on January 10, 1986, George County, under the direction, management and control of respondent Pitts, continued to operate as a dealer buying and selling livestock in commerce for its own account and as a market agency selling livestock in commerce for the accounts of others, without maintaining adequate bond coverage.

Such is a willful violation of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 204) and the regulations (9 CFR §§ 201.19, 201.30) issued pursuant to it. In re Donald Hageman, 43 A.D. 531 (1983); In re Molnar Packing Company, 41 A.D. 935 (1982); In re C. J. Edzards, 37 A.D. 1880 (1978). The circumstances portraying respondents' efforts to obtain adequate bonding do not mitigate this violation.

Failure to Properly Maintain and Use Custodial Account

It has long and consistently been held by the Secretary, and the courts, that the improper handling and use of the shippers' proceeds violate the integrity of the Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds and the regulations promulgated to preserve it. Improper handling and use of the custodial account is plainly contrary to the Act and the regulations. In re Farmers and Ranchers Livestock Auction, Inc., 45 A.D. ___ (February 1986); In re Arab Stock Yard, Inc., 37 A.D. 293 (1978) aff'd, 582 F.2d 39 (5th Cir. 1978); W. I. Bowman v. U.S. Department of Agriculture, 363 F.2d 81 (5th Cir. 1966). Further, in In re Harry C. Daniels d/b/a Harry C. Daniels and Co. v. United States, 242 F.2d 39, 41-42 (7th Cir., 1957), cert. denied, 354 U.S. 939, the court held:

> "The argument that there is no evidence of any particular shipper not being paid, is not controlling. It is the duty of a regulatory agency to prevent potential injury by stopping unlawful practices in their incipiency. Proof of a particular injury is not required" (citations omitted).

Although respondents were previously warned by P&S letter of February 25, 1977, of abuse of the custodial account, and advised in P&S letter of January 16, 1985, of the required method of designating the custodial account as a trust account, respondents continued to misuse this account and failed to properly designate it as a trust account. As noted from the record, receipts from sales of consignor's livestock were placed in respondents' expense account, and on two occasions the custodial account was deficient. Further, that these certificates of deposit (CD's) were only assigned to the custodial account as pledged securities, and not titled in the name of the account as required. Additional evidence of record shows that the CD's were not considered by the bank to be part of George County's custodial account. As was previously pointed out, the custodial account is a trust account which is a conduit for funds received for sale of consignor's livestock. When properly designated as required, such funds are protected from attachment by creditors and each consignor is further protected by the insurance coverage of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. It was therefore correct not to include the amount of the CD's in the computation of deficiencies in the custodial account.

Under these circumstances it must be found that respondents violated sections 307 and 312(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. §§ 208, 213(a)) and section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42). See In re Sechrist Sales Company, 36 A.D. 665 (1977); In re L. S. Hansen, 38 A.D. 223 (1979).

Failure to Pay When Due

Unrebutted evidence from records of respondents clearly show that under the direction and control of respondent Pitts, George County made livestock purchases and failed to pay, when due, the full purchase price for such livestock.

Failure to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock is a serious violation of the Act and constitutes an unfair and deceptive practice in willful violation of sections 312(a) and 419 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 213(a), 228b). In re Farmers and Ranchers Livestock Auction, Inc., supra; In re Donald Hageman, supra; In re W. I. Bowman, supra; In re Mid-States Livestock, Inc., 37 A.D. 547 (1977), aff'd sub nom. Van Wyk v. Bergland, 570 F.2d 701 (8th Cir. 1978).

Failure to Properly Keep and Maintain Accounts, Banks and Records

As noted, the Act requires respondents to create, keep and maintain records sufficient to disclose all the details of the business (7 U.S.C. § 221). Complete and accurate records are essential to effective enforcement of the regulatory program. In re Trenton Livestock, Inc., 41 A.D. 1965 (1982); In re Livestock Marketing Development Co., 33 A.D. 784 (1974). The record is clear that respondents failed to keep and maintain a separate ledger showing their purchases and sales in support of the market. Such a ledger is required to be maintained by the Act to show all purchases by the company itself to support the purchase or selling price of livestock. Such record ledger was not maintained. Thus, section 401 of the Act, 7 U.S.C. § 221, has been violated.

As the Act and the regulations reflect, respondents are required to create, keep and maintain scale tickets for livestock transactions (7 U.S.C. § 221; 9 CFR §§ 201.49, 201.55). Respondents' scale tickets were not issued in numerical order, voided scale tickets and those used to balance the scale were discarded, the date of weighing and the name or initials of the weighmaster were not shown. Scale tickets are a basic and important record of livestock transactions and, standing alone failure to keep and maintain such record constitutes a serious violation of the Act. In re Saylor, 44 A.D. ___ (September 20, 1985); In re Elmer A. Kath, 36 A.D. 1707 (1977).

Sanction

The Secretary has long urged a policy to impose severe sanctions where serious violations, as shown here, have been found even when a significant suspension period may have an adverse economic effect on the violator's customers. In re Saylor, supra; In re Espo- sito, 38 A.D. 613, 624–625 (1977); In re Worsley, 33 A.D. 1547, 1556–1571 (1974).

Complainant here seeks a twenty-eight (28) day suspension of George County's registration, a twenty-eight (28) day prohibition forbidding respondent Pitts from operating or otherwise engaging in business subject to the Act, and a civil penalty of $4,000 against respondents, jointly and severally. Both the suspensions and civil penalty are consistent with the statutory criteria for imposing civil penalties, 7 U.S.C. § 213(b), and with the Secretary's sanction policies to effectuate the purposes of the regulatory program.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Respondents contend on appeal that the ALJ's findings and conclusions are not adequately supported by the record, but the record abundantly supports the ALJ's findings and conclusions. In fact, the proof here far surpasses the preponderance of the evidence, which is all that is required.[2] Respondent's argument on appeal, in this respect, merely reargues matters that were fully considered and correctly decided by the ALJ.

Custodial account violations have long been recognized as serious violations of the Packers and Stockyards Act. In addition to the cases cited by the ALJ, see Roseth v. Bergland, 636 F.2d 1224 (8th Cir. 1980); Miller v. Butz, 498 F.2d 1088, 1089 (5th Cir. 1974); Hyatt and Ward v. United States, 276 F.2d 308, 310–13 (10th Cir. 1960); United States v. Donahue Bros., Inc., 59 F.2d 1019, 1020–23 (8th Cir. 1932). Similarly, failing to maintain the proper bond or bond equivalent and failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock have long been recognized as serious violations of the Act.

The serious nature of recordkeeping violations was stated in In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand), quoting from In re Sol Salins, Inc., 37 Agric. Dec. 1699, 1734 (1978), as follows:

> Respondent's recordkeeping violations, which are intertwined with respondent's accounting violations, are also serious violations of the Act inasmuch as accurate records are essential to effective enforcement of a Federal regulatory program. See, e.g., United States v. Ruzicka, 329 U.S. 287, 288–289; United States v. Darby, 312 U.S. 100, 124–125;

It is the policy of this Department to impose severe sanctions for serious violations of any of the regulatory programs administered by the Department to serve as an effective deterrent not only to the respondents, but also to other potential violators. This policy has been followed in all of the Department's disciplinary proceedings in recent years.

The basis for the Department's severe sanction policy is set forth at great length in numerous decisions, e.g., In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238, slip op. at 498-520 (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand),[3] which is set forth as Appendix C to this decision.[4]

[3] The Department's severe sanction policy did not originate with Saylor, but, rather, was mentioned briefly in the first decision issued by the present Judicial Officer, In re Henner, 30 Agric. Dec. 1151, 1263-64 (1971), and was further developed in numerous other decisions before it was finalized in In re Miller, 33 Agric. Dec. 53, 64-80 (1974), aff'd per curiam, 498 F.2d 1088 (5th Cir. 1974).

[4] Severe sanctions issued pursuant to the Department's severe sanction policy were sustained, e.g., in In re Collier, 38 Agric. Respondents contend that any violations of the Act were not intentional, but as stated by the Court in Butz v. Glover Livestock Comm'n Co., 411 U.S. 182, 186–87 (1973), with respect to the Packers and Stockyards Act:

> The Secretary may suspend "for a reasonable specified period" any registrant who has violated any provision of the Act. 7 U.S.C. § 204. Nothing whatever in that provision confines its application to cases of "intentional and flagrant conduct" or denies its application in cases of negligent or careless violations. Rather, the breadth of the grant of authority to impose the sanction strongly implies a congressional purpose to permit the Secretary to impose it to deter repeated violations of the Act, whether intentional or negligent.

The $4,000 civil penalty and 28-day suspension imposed here is not nearly as severe as numerous sanctions that have been issued in recent years under the Packers and Stockyards Act, e.g., In re Welch, 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (Sept. 25, 1986) (decision as to Benson) ($10,000 civil penalty and 1-year prohibition from engaging in business subject to the Act); In re Garver, 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (June 19, 1986), appeal docketed, No. 86-4081 (6th Cir. ___, 1986) (2-year suspension); In re Holiday Food Services, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (May 8, 1986) ($50,000 civil penalty); In re Blackfoot Livestock Commission Co., 45 Agric. Dec. ___ (Mar. 7, 1986) (6-month suspension), appeal docketed, No. 86-7198 (9th Cir. Dec. ___ (Feb. 27, 1986) (decision as to Millspaugh) (5-year suspension, but permitting respondent to be employed as an auctioneer after 1 year); In re Saylor, 44 Agric. Dec. 2238 (Sept. 20, 1985) (decision on remand) (8-month suspension and $10,000 civil penalty); In re ITT Continental Baking Co., 44 Agric. lished); In re Miller, 33 Agric. Dec. 53, 64-80, aff'd per curiam, 498 F.2d 1088, 1089 (5th Cir. 1974).

In In re Garver, supra, 45 Agric. Dec. ____ , slip op. at 17-21 (June 19, 1986), it is explained that 2-to-5 year suspension orders are now issued in the case of serious failures to pay for livestock where 30-to-60 day suspension orders would have been issued in comparable cases a few years ago.

In assessing a civil penalty, the Act requires consideration of the "gravity of the offense, the size of the business involved, and the effect of the penalty on the person's ability to continue in business" (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)). Those factors were fully considered by the ALJ.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

George County Stockyard, Inc., its officers, directors, agents, employees, successors and assigns, directly or through any corporate or other device, and M. H. Pitts, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with their operations subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, shall cease and desist from:

1. Engaging in business in any capacity for which bonding is required under the Packers and Stockyards Act without filing and maintaining a reasonable bond or its equivalent as required by the Act and the regulations;

2. Failing to deposit in their "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds," within the time prescribed by section 201.42(c) of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42(c)), an amount equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock;

3. Using funds received as proceeds receivable from the sale of consigned livestock for purposes of their own or for any purpose other than the payment of the net proceeds to the owners or consignors of such livestock, or for the payment of sums due the respondents as compensation for services rendered or for other lawful marketing charges;

4. Making such use or disposition of funds in their possession or control as will endanger or impair the faithful and prompt accounting therefor and the payment of the portions thereof which may be due the owners or consignors of livestock;

5. Failing to otherwise maintain their "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.42 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.42); and

6. Failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock.

Respondents shall keep and maintain accounts, records and memoranda which fully and correctly disclose the true nature of all transactions involved in their business subject to the Packers and Stockyards Act, including a separate ledger showing their purchases and sales in support of the market and scale tickets which are kept in strict conformity with the provisions of section 201.49 of the regulations (9 CFR § 201.49). Scale tickets shall be used in numerical order and show the date of the weighing and the name or initials of the weighmaster.

George County Stockyard, Inc., is suspended as a registrant under the Act for 28 days and thereafter until (1) it demonstrates that the deficit in its "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds" has been eliminated and (2) until such time as it complies fully with the bonding requirements under the Act and regulations. When the corporate respondent demonstrates the deficit in its custodial account has been eliminated, and that it is in compliance with the bonding requirements, a supplemental order will be issued in this proceeding terminating the suspension after the expiration of the 28-day period.

M. H. Pitts is prohibited for 28 days from engaging in business or operating subject to the Act as a market agency, buying or selling livestock in commerce on a commission basis, or furnishing stockyard services, or as a dealer, buying or selling livestock in commerce either for his own account or as the employee or agent of the vendor or purchaser.

In accordance with section 312(b) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 213(b)), the respondents are jointly and severally assessed a civil penalty in the amount of $4,000. The civil penalty shall be paid by certified check made payable to the Treasurer of the United States, and mailed to the Assistant General Counsel, Packers and Stockyards Division, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2446-South, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400, not later than the 90th day after service of this order on respondents.

The cease and desist and recordkeeping provisions of this order shall become effective on the day after service of this order. The 28-day suspension and prohibition provisions shall become effective on the 30th day after service of this order.

APPENDIX A

Pertinent Statutory Provisions

1. § 307 (7 U.S.C. § 208)

(a) It shall be the duty of every stockyard owner and market agency to establish, observe, and enforce just, reasonable, and nondiscriminatory regulations and practices in respect to the furnishing of stockyard services, and every unjust, reasonable, or discriminatory regulation or practice is prohibited and declared to be unlawful.

(b) It shall be the responsibility and right of every stockyard owner to manage and regulate his stockyard in a just, reasonable, and nondiscriminatory manner, to prescribe rules and regulations and to require those persons engaging in or attempting to engage in the purchase, sale, or solicitation of livestock at such stockyard to conduct their operations in a manner which will foster, preserve, or insure an efficient, competitive public market. Such rules and regulations shall not prevent a registered market agency or dealer from rendering service on other markets or in occasional and incidental off-market transactions.

2. § 312(a) (7 U.S.C. § 213(a))

(a) It shall be unlawful for any stockyard owner, market agency, or dealer to engage in or use any unfair, unjustly discriminatory, or deceptive practice or device in connection with determining whether persons should be authorized to operate at the stockyards, or with the receiving, marketing, buying or selling on a commission basis or otherwise, feeding, watering, holding, delivery, shipment, weighing or handling of livestock.

3. § 401 (7 U.S.C. § 221)

Every packer or any live poultry dealer or handler, stockyard owner, market agency, and dealer shall keep such accounts, records, and memoranda as fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business, including the true ownership of such business by stockholding or otherwise. Whenever the Secretary finds that the accounts, records, and memoranda of any such person do not fully and correctly disclose all transactions involved in his business, the Secretary may prescribe the manner and form in which such accounts, records, and memoranda shall be kept, and thereafter any such person who fails to keep such accounts, records, and memoranda in the manner and form prescribed or approved by the Secretary shall upon conviction be fined not more than $5,000, or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

4. § 409 (7 U.S.C. § 228(b))

(a) Each packer, market agency, or dealer purchasing livestock shall, before the close of the next business day following the purchase of livestock and transfer of possession thereof, deliver to the seller or his duly authorized representative the full amount of the purchase price: Provided, That each packer, market agency, or dealer purchasing livestock for slaughter shall, before the close of the next business day following purchase of livestock and transfer of possession thereof, actually deliver at the point of transfer of possession to the seller or his duly authorized representative a check or shall wire transfer funds to the seller's account for the fully amount of the purchase price; or, in the case of a purchase on a carcass or 'grade and yield' basis, the purchaser shall make payment by check at the point of transfer of possession or shall wire transfer funds to the seller's account for the full amount of the purchase price not later than the close of the first business day following determination of the purchase price: Provided further, That if the seller or his duly authorized representative is not present to receive payment at the point of transfer of possession, as herein provided, the packer, market agency or dealer shall wire transfer funds or place a check in the United States mail for the full amount of the purchase price properly addressed to the seller, within the time limits specified in this subsection, such action being deemed compliance with the requirement for prompt payment.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section and subject to such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe, the parties to the purchase and sale of livestock may expressly agree in writing, before such purchase or sale, to effect payment in a manner other than that required in subsection (a). Any such agreement shall be disclosed in the records of any market agency or dealer selling the livestock, and in the purchaser's records and on the accounts or other documents issued by the purchaser relating to the transaction.

(c) Any delay or attempt to delay by a market agency, dealer, or packer purchasing livestock, the collection of funds as herein provided, or otherwise for the purpose of or resulting in extending the normal period of payment for such livestock shall be considered an 'unfair practice' in violation of this Act. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit the meaning of the term 'unfair practice' as used in this Act.

APPENDIX B

Pertinent Regulations

§ 201.29 Market agencies, packers and dealers required to file and maintain bonds.

(a) Every market agency, packer, and dealer, except as provided in paragraph (d) herein, and except packer buyers registered as dealers to purchase livestock for slaughter only, shall execute and maintain a reasonable bond on forms approved by the Administrator containing the appropriate condition clauses, as set forth in § 201.31 of the regulations, applicable to the activity or activities in which the person or persons propose to engage, to secure the performance of obligations incurred by such market agency, packer, or dealer. No market agency, packer, or dealer required to maintain a bond shall conduct his operations unless there is on file and in effect a bond complying with the regulations in this part.

(b) Every market agency buying on a commission basis and every dealer buying for his own account or for accounts of others shall file and maintain a bond. If a registrant operates as both a market agency buying on a commission basis and as a dealer, only one bond to cover both buying operations need be filed. Any person operating as a market agency selling on a commission basis and as a market agency buying on a commission basis or as a dealer shall file and maintain separate bonds to cover his selling and buying operations.

(c) Each market agency and dealer whose buying operations are cleared by another market agency shall be named as clearee in the bond filed and maintained by the market agency registered to provide clearing services. Each market agency selling livestock on a commission basis shall file and maintain its own bond.

(d) Every packer purchasing livestock, directly or through an affiliate or employee or a wholly-owned subsidiary, except those packers whose annual purchases do not exceed $500,000, shall file and maintain a reasonable bond. In the event a packer maintains a wholly-owned subsidiary or affiliate to conduct its livestock buying, the wholly-owned subsidiary or affiliate shall be registered as a packer buyer for its parent packer firm, and required bond shall be maintained by the parent packer firm.

§ 201.30 Amount of market agency, dealer and packer bonds.

(a) Market agency selling livestock on commission. To compute the required amount of bond coverage, divide the dollar value of livestock sold during the preceding business year, or the substantial part of that business year, in which the market agency did business, by the actual number of days on which livestock was sold. The divisor (the number of days on which livestock was sold) shall not exceed 130. The amount of bond coverage must be the next multiple of $5,000 above the amount so determined. When the computation exceeds $50,000, the amount of bond coverage need not exceed $50,000, plus 10 percent of the excess over $50,000, raised to the next $5,000 multiple. In no case shall the amount of bond coverage for a market agency selling on commission be less than $10,000 or such higher amount as required to comply with any State law.

(b) Market agency buying on commission or dealer. The amount of bond coverage must be based on the average amount of livestock purchased by the dealer or market agency during a period equivalent to 2 business days. To compute the required amount of bond coverage, divide the total dollar value of livestock purchased during the preceding business year, or substantial part of that business year, in which the dealer or market agency or both did business, by one-half the number of days on which business was conducted. The number of days in any business year, for purposes of this regulation, shall not exceed 260. Therefore, the divisor (one-half the number of days on which business was conducted) shall not exceed 130. The amount of the bond coverage must be the next multiple of $5,000 above the amount so determined. When the computation exceeds $75,000, the amount of bond coverage need not exceed $75,000 plus 10 percent of the excess over $75,000, raised to the next $5,000 multiple. In no case shall the amount of bond coverage be less than $10,000 or such higher amount as required to comply with any State law.

(c) Market agency acting as clearing agency. The amount of bond coverage must be based on the average amount of livestock purchased by all persons for whom the marekt agency served as a clearor during a period equivalent to 2 business days. To compute the required amount of bond coverage, divide the total dollar value of livestock purchased by all persons for whom the market agency served as a clearor during the preceding business year, or substantial part of that business year, in which the market agency acting as clearing agency did business, by one-half the number of days on which business was conducted. The number of days in any business year, for purposes of this regulation, shall not exceed 260. Therefore, the divisor (one-half the number of days on which business was conducted) shall not exceed 130. The amount of bond coverage must be the next multiple of $5,000 above the amount so determined. When the computation exceeds $75,000, the amount of bond coverage need not exceed $75,000 plus 10 percent of the excess over $75,000, raised to the next $5,000 multiple. In no case shall the amount of bond coverage be less than $10,000 or such higher amount as required to comply with any State law.

(d) Packer. The amount of bond coverage must be based on the average amount of livestock purchased by the packer during a period equivalent to 2 business days. To compute the required amount of bond coverage, divide the total dollar value of livestock purchased during the preceding business year, or substantial part of that business year, in which the packer did business, by one-half the number of days on which business was conducted. The number of days in any business year, for purposes of this regulation, shall not exceed 260. Therefore, the divisor (one-half the number of days on which business was conducted) shall not exceed 130. The amount of the bond coverage must be the next multiple of $5,000 above the amount so determined. In no case shall the amount of bond coveraage for a packer be less than $10,000.

(e) If a person applying for registration as a market agency or dealer has been engaged in the business of handling livestock before the date of the application, the value of the livestock handled, if representative of future operations, must be used in computing the required amount of bond coverage. If the applicant for registration is a successor in business to a registrant formerly subject to these regulations, the amount of bond coverage of the applicant must be at least that amount required of the prior registrant, unless otherwise determined by the Administrator. If a packer becomes subject to those regulations, the value of livestock purchased, if representative of future operations, must be used in computing the required amount of bond coverage. If a packer is a successor in business to a packer formerly subject to these regulations, the amount of bond coverage of the successor must be at least that amount required of the prior packer, unless otherwise determined by the Administrator.

(f) Whenever the Administrator has reason to believe that a bond is inadequate to secure the performance of the obligations of the market agency, dealer or packer covered thereby, the Administrator shall notify such person to adjust the bond to meet the requirements the Administrator determines to be reasonable.

§ 201.42 Custodial accounts for trust funds.

(a) Payments for livestock are trust funds. Each payment that a livestock buyer makes to a market agency selling on commission is a trust fund. Funds deposited in custodial accounts are also trust funds.

(b) Custodial accounts for shippers' proceeds. Every market agency engaged in selling livestock on a commission or agency basis shall establish and maintain a separate bank account designated as "Custodial Account for Shippers' Proceeds," or some similar identifying designation, to disclose that the depositor is acting as a fiduciary and that the funds in the account are trust funds.

(c) Deposits in custodial accounts. The market agency shall deposit in its custodial account before the close of the next business day (the next day on which banks are customarily open for business whether or not the market agency does business on that day) after livestock is sold (1) the proceeds from the sale of livestock that have been collected, and (2) an amount equal to the proceeds receivable from the sale of livestock that are due from (i) the market agency, (ii) any owner, officer, or employee of the market agency, and (iii) any buyer to whom the market agency has extended credit. The market agency shall thereafter deposit in the custodial account all proceeds collected until the account has been reimbursed in full, and shall, before the close of the seventh day following the sale of livestock, deposit an amount equal to all the remaining proceeds receivable whether or not the proceeds have been collected by the market agency.

(d) Withdrawals from custodial accounts. The custodial account for shippers' proceeds shall be drawn on only for payment of (1) the net proceeds to the consignor or shipper, or to any person that the market agency knows is entitled to payment, (2) to pay lawful charges against the consignment of livestock which the market agency shall, in its capacity as agent, be required to pay, and (3) to obtain any sums due the market agency as compensation for its services.

(e) Accounts and records. Each market agency shall keep such accounts and records as will disclose at all times the handling of funds in such custodial accounts for shippers' proceeds. Accounts and records must at all times disclose the name of the consignors and the amount due and payable to each from funds in the custodial account for shippers' proceeds.

(f) Insured banks. Such custodial accounts for shippers' proceeds must be established and maintained in banks whose deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

(g) Certificates of deposit and/or savings accounts. Funds in a custodial account for shippers' proceeds may be maintained in an interest-bearing savings account and/or invested in one or more certificates of deposit, to the extent that such deposit or investment does not impair the ability of the market agency to meet its obligations to its consignors. The savings account must be properly designated as a part of the custodial account of the market agency in its fiduciary capacity as trustee of the custodial funds and maintained in the same bank as the custodial account. The certificates of deposit, as property of the custodial account, must be issued by the bank in which the custodial account is kept and must be made payable to the market agency in its fiduciary capacity as trustee of the custodial funds.

§ 201.49 Requirements regarding scale tickets evidencing weighing of livestock and live poultry.

(a) Livestock. When livestock is weighed for the purpose of purchase or sale, a scale ticket shall be issued which shall show: (1) The name and location of the agency performing the weighing service; (2) the date of the weighing; (3) the name of the buyer and seller or consignor, or a designation by which they may be readily identified; (4) the number of head; (5) kind; (6) actual weight of each draft of livestock; and (7) the name, initials, or number of the person who weighed the livestock, or if required by State law, the signature of the weigher. Scale tickets issued under this section shall be serially numbered and used in numerical sequence. Sufficient copies shall be executed to provide a copy to all parties to the transaction. In instances where the weight values are automatically recorded directly on the account of purchase, account of sale or other basic record, this record may serve in lieu of a scale ticket. When livestock is purchased on a carcass weight or carcass grade and weight basis, the hot carcass weights shall be accurately recorded, either manually or automatically, and retained as part of the person or firm's business records to substantiate settlement on each transaction.

(b) Poultry. When live poultry is weighed for the purpose of purchase, sale, acquisition, or settlement by a packer or live poultry dealer or handler, a scale ticket shall be issued which shall show: (1) The name of the agency performing the weighing service; (2) the name of the packer or live poultry dealer or handler; (3) the name and address of the grower, purchaser, or seller; (4) the name or initials of the person who weighed the poultry, (5) the location of the scale; (6) the gross weight, tare weight, and net weight; (7) the date and time gross weight and tare weight are determined; (8) the number of poultry weighed; (9) the weather conditions; (10) whether the driver was on or off the truck at the time of weighing; and (11) the license number of the truck or the truck number; Provided, That when live poultry is weighed on a scale other than a vehicle scale, the scale ticket need not show the information specified in (9), (10), and (11) of this paragraph. Scale tickets issued under this paragraph shall be at least in duplicate form and shall be serially numbered and used in numerical sequence. One copy shall be furnished to the grower, purchaser, or seller, and one copy shall be furnished to or retained by the packer or live poultry dealer or handler.

Decision by John A. Campbell, Administrative Law Judge.

CONSENT DECISION

This proceeding was instituted under the Packers and Stockyards Act (7 U.S.C. § 181 et seq.), by a complaint filed by the Administrator, Packers and Stockyards Administration, United States Department of Agriculture alleging that the respondent's financial condition does not meet the requirement of the Act and that the respondent wilfully violated the Act. REPARATIONS DECISIONS

RAYMOND C. ANDREWS, M.D. v. ARTHUR L. MARTELLA. P&S Docket No. 6429. Decided November 10, 1986.

Complainant, pro se.
Robert Dowd, Hanford, California, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) begun by a complaint received on March 30, 1984, alleging in substance market agency failure to obtain fair market value when selling consigned livestock. The amount claimed was $46,290.00.

Copies of the complaint, and of an investigation report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the Rules of Practice, were served on respondent on August 6, 1984. A copy of the investigation report was served on complainant on the same day. An answer and request for oral hearing was received from respondent on September 27 after an extension of time. A copy thereof was served on complainant on October 12.

An oral hearing as requested was held on January 29 and 31, and February 1, 1985, in Visalia, California, before John J. Casey of the Office of the General Counsel of this Department. Complainant was accompanied and assisted by Mr. Peter Ventura, Bakersfield, a member of the Bar, who, however, did not enter appearance as counsel. Respondent was represented by Robert M. Dowd, Esq., Hanford. Complainant, respondent, and three witnesses testified. One exhibit was received. Briefs were filed by both sides.

The case involves a series of transactions in which a total of 108 Holstein heifers of complainant, a few fresh, having just calved, the rest springers, about to calve, were consigned to respondent, and sold by respondent, as follows:

Date 1984	Consigned	Sold	Balance
1/20	28		28
2/22		22	06
2/26	16		22
2/27	03		25
2/28	05		30
2/28	01		31
2/29		19	12
3/05	01		13

Date 1984	Consigned	Sold	Balance
3/07		12	01
3/09	50		51
3/10	03		54
3/14	01		55
3/14		46	09
3/21		05	04
3/28		04	00

The first 28 were culls, shipped to respondent to be fed until they looked better, then sold. The complaint did not allege wrongdoing in the February 22 sale of 22 of those. The contention of wrongdoing referred to the later sales, in that the average price brought by the animals sold later was lower than the average price brought by 22 culls on February 22. Complainant's contention was not established by a preponderance of the evidence as explained hereinafter.

Complainant and Mr. A. Sterling Cole, who pastured complainant's animals on his property and was familiar with them, both testified that, apart from the 28 culls, the animals were of average quality, were range fed, had been lotted with bulls when they weighed about 800 pounds, and had an average weight of about 1,000 pounds at the time of consignment. They described those animals as of a sort which would be expected to bring about average prices for the market for Holstein springer heifers, and higher prices than the 28 culls. Complainant and Mr. Cole were credible when they testified.

Respondent testified in substance that many of those animals were of lower than usual weight for Holstein heifers, springers or fresh, and could not have been sold for higher prices than they brought at the place and respective times of sale. Mr. Richard Iest, who bought 18 of the 28 culls and some of the later animals, and who regularly helps on the farm of his brother, who bought some of the later animals, corroborated this testimony of respondent as to the animals with which he was familiar. Respondent and Mr. Iest were also credible when they testified.

No other witness testified who saw the animals in dispute.

The record shows the weights of a few of the animals according to respondent's scale. Those were sold on a weight basis for slaughter as uneconomic for milking. Those weights were as follows:

Investigation report exhibits	Sale date	Weight in pounds
E-1, 5	2/22	825 *
G-1, 17-20	3/07	950
		775
		865
H-4, 15-16	3/14	745
I-1, 5	3/21	995
J-1, 5	3/28	890

(* one of the 28 culls)

The record contains much discussion of an announcement, made by respondent at the auction, at the time of the sale of 46 of complainant's animals on March 14. The evidence is inconsistent as to the words used, but clearly shows the substance. It was that some of the animals had needed assistance from respondent and employees of his in calving at respondent's market, and that, on the basis of that experience, buyers of the remaining springers had better take precautions to avoid loss of them in calving. A finding of unfairness to complainant in the making of that announcement is not established by the evidence in the record as explained hereinafter.

The account of sale issued to complainant (Investigation report exhibits H-1-4) shows only one fresh animal, tag no. 659. However, other documents in the record show fresh animals of complainant sold on that date as follows:

Investigation report exhibits H-:	Tag nos.
34-39	658
11-12	659
11-12	677
28-29	678
20-23	679
11-12	832
28-30	835-6 (2)
34-39	837
13-16	844
14-16	873
17-19	966
34-39	967
20-22	968
34-39	969
28-31	970

Thus the record shows that 16 were fresh, of the 46 animals of complainant sold that day. This is credible in view of the testimony of Mr. Cole that the basis for selection of such animals for market, other than the 28 culls, was that he, Mr. Cole, did not have a milking operation and those animals were close to freshening.

Respondent testified that some animals of complainant which calved on his property, before that announcement, needed assistance in calving. He was credible when he did so. Also, since the record shows that less than 16 were fresh when shipped to respondent's market, at least some must have calved there. A market agency like respondent, selling consigned animals, has a duty to the consignor to sell at the highest price obtainable at the time and place of sale, but also has a duty to the buyers not to defraud them. This is not to make a finding that some animals of complainant required assistance in calving at the market, that it would have been fraudulent not to make the announcement, or that the announcement was compelled by the Act. Such a finding is not necessary to a decision in this case. What we hold is, as stated above, that unfairness to complainant in the making of the announcement is not established by the evidence in the record.

A few of complainant's animals were bought by dealers who buy and sell on speculation for their own accounts, and resold shortly afterward at higher prices elsewhere. Complainant would draw the conclusion from this that the sales to those dealers were not at the best prices obtainable at respondent's market at the respective times of sale. Such a conclusion does not follow. Such dealers, notwithstanding the names they get called, such as "scalpers," and the understandable fury of persons whose animals are sold to them, perform useful economic functions, sometimes unintentionally, including enforcing an equilibrium in prices in different locations. The fact that such dealers survive in business shows that animals regularly get bought at one place and resold quickly at another at a higher price.

Some of the animals were sold by private treaty, not at auction. Complainant appears to contend that this was unfair to him. It was not. This is entirely customary in the livestock business. It would be unfair only to a consignor of animals who directs the market agency to sell them only at auction.

Respondent showed some confusion of complainant's animals with some of Mr. Cole's animals which were consigned to the market during the same time period, in statements he made some time after the sales in question. Also, one invoice for animals sold to Mr. Iest, some from complainant recorded on one line, and some from Mr. Cole recorded on the adjoining line, has the sellers' names and brands transposed. Complainant would draw a conclusion from this that the animals were mixed at the market, or that respondent must have been thinking of animals of Mr. Cole and not animals of complainant when he made the announcement on March 14. Such a conclusion is not compelled by such facts.

This order is the same as an order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR § 2.35, as authorized by Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. 450c-450g. See also Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 5 U.S.C., 1976 ed., app. p. 764.

ORDER OF DISMISSAL

This is a reparation proceeding under the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921, as amended (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) begun by a complaint received on May 23, 1984 and amended October 1, alleging in substance a mixup of animals shipped to the stockyard and consigned to the commission firm for sale. The amount claimed was $3,720.60.

Copies of the complaint, and of an investigation report prepared by the Packers and Stockyards Administration of this Department and filed in this proceeding pursuant to the Rules of Practice, were served on respondents on November 5, 1984. A copy of the investigation report was served on complainant on the same day. No answer was received from either respondent, but respondent commission firm filed a written request for an oral hearing. Copies of the request were promptly served on each party other than the one filing it.

It is undisputed, particularly in view of the lack of any answer from either respondent, that a mixup took place. However, the allegations of the complaint, which are deemed to be admitted by the failure to file answers, do not include an allegation as to who mixed complainant's animals with others. Thus, notwithstanding the failures to file answers, an oral hearing as requested was held on April 12, 1985 in Greenville, Illinois, before John J. Casey of the Office of the General Counsel of this Department. No party was represented by counsel. Complainant and four witnesses testified. No exhibit was received. No brief was filed.

The following is undisputed. On April 1, 1984, 26 animals were loaded by complainant on a truck of Mr. Leroy Krampe. Complainant did not accompany the animals to the National Stockyards. Twenty six animals were delivered on Mr. Krampe's truck to the National Stockyards with instructions that they were to be consigned to respondent Producers for sale there for complainant's account. Twenty six animals were so consigned. The next morning, 26 animals were so sold.

It is further undisputed that they were not all the same animals. Complainant testified credibly that his animals had an average weight of about 1,250 pounds by his estimate and included at least five herefords. It is undisputed that the animals sold had an average weight of 1,090 pounds and included no more than three herefords.

The record, even with the allegations of the complaint deemed to be admitted, does not contain anything to show who mixed complainant's animals with others before they were sold. There is precedent for shifting the burden to respondents in a case to furnish information to exonerate themselves, and for holding liable any who do not. However, in such a case, the persons who are made respondents must include every person who could have caused the damage. See Graff v. United Stockyards Corp., 37 Ag. Dec. 529 (1978); and Loizzo v. St. Francis Hospital, 121 Ill. App. 3d 172, 76 Ill. Dec. 677, 459 N.E.2d 314 (1984). The trucker having had exclusive custody of the animals for a time between their departure from complainant's farm and their sale, the burden of proof cannot be so shifted without the trucker as a respondent in the case.

This order is the same as an order issued by the Secretary of Agriculture, being issued pursuant to delegated authority, 7 CFR § 2.35, as authorized by Act of April 4, 1940, 54 Stat. 81, 7 U.S.C. 450c–450g. See also Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 5 U.S.C., 1976 ed., app. p. 764.

On a petition to reopen a hearing, to rehear or reargue a proceeding, or to reconsider an order, see Rule 17 of the Rules of Practice, 9 CFR § 202.117.

On a complainant's right to judicial review of such an order, see 5 U.S.C. 702-3 and United States v. I.C.C., 337 U.S. 426.

The complaint herein is hereby dismissed.

Copies hereof shall be served on the parties.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

BEFORE: WALD, CHIEF JUDGE AND EDWARDS AND STARR, CIRCUIT JUDGES.

PETITION FOR REVIEW OF AN ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

This case came to be heard on the record on petition for review from the decision and order of the Secretary of Agriculture and briefs were filed by the parties. The issues have been accorded full consideration by the court and occasion no need for a published opinion. See Local Rule 13(c). On consideration of the issues and for the reasons set forth in the accompanying memorandum, it is ORDERED and ADJUDGED by the court that the decision and order of the Secretary of Agriculture be affirmed.

The Clerk is directed to withhold issuance of the mandate herein until seven days after disposition of any timely petition for rehearing. See Local Rule 14.

Per Curiam

MEMORANDUM

Carl D. Cuttone, doing business as Joseph A. Cuttone Co., is licensed as a merchant and dealer under the Perishable Agricultual Commodities Act ("Act"). See 7 U.S.C. § 499c (1982). On March 18, 1985, the Department of Agriculture ("Department") initiated a disciplinary proceeding against Cuttone alleging that he had failed to make full payment promptly for agricultural commodities. See 7 U.S.C. § 499b(4) (1982). The Department sought revocation of Cuttone's license. At the time, Cuttone's license had been suspended, in an unrelated proceeding, for failure to pay a reparation award.

The Department served a copy of the complaint on Cuttone by certified mail. The complaint was accompanied by a letter advising Cuttone that an answer was due within 20 days of his receipt of the complaint. The complaint and letter were sent to "Carl D. Cuttone d/b/a Joseph A. Cuttone Co." at his business address. The return receipt was signed by "Joesph A. Cuttone".

On April 25, 1985, the Department moved for a decision by the Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") because Cuttone had failed to file a timely answer. This motion was served on Cuttone in the same manner as the complaint, and the return receipt was signed "John J. Cuttone".

Cuttone filed a timely opposition to the motion for a decision and a motion for leave to file an answer. He claimed he had never received a copy of the complaint. The ALJ denied the motion for leave to file an answer stating that it appeared that Cuttone was properly served. The Judicial Officer of the Department adopted the default order of the ALJ. The Judicial Officer stated:

> Respondent claims that he was not properly served with a copy of the complaint. But the record shows that a copy of the complaint was sent by certified mail to respondent at his last business address and the return receipt was signed by "Joesph A. Cuttone" (respondent conducts his business in the name of "Joesph A. Cuttone Co."). That constitutes adequate service under the rules of practice.

Cuttone seeks review of this final agency order in this court.

Cuttone argues that he did not receive actual notice of the revocation proceedings and therefore was not accorded due process. He argues that because he was suspended at the time of service, the Department should at least have sent the notice to his home address. We disagree. The notice given was "reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections." Mullane v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314 (1950) (citations omitted). Due process does not require actual notice in every case. Stateside Machinery Co. v. Alperin, 591 F.2d 234, 240–42 (3d Cir. 1979); NLRB v. Clark, 468 F.2d 459, 464 (5th Cir. 1972); Smith v. Kincaid, 249 F.2d 243, 245 (6th Cir. 1957). The suspension of Cuttone's license did not bar him from his place of business. See 7 CFR § 46.35(c) (1986). Thus, Cuttone's reliance on Robinson v. Hanrahan, 409 U.S. 38 (1972), is misplaced.

Cuttone also argues that the Department failed to comply with the statutory and regulatory requirements for notice. He claims that they require actual notice. We disagree. Section 6(c) of the Act requires that the complaint be "served by registered mail or by certified mail or otherwise on the person concerned . . . " 7 U.S.C. § 499f(c) (1982). Cuttone offers no support for his assertion that the statute requires actual notice. To infer such a requirement would be contrary to a common sense reading of the statute. The regulations provide that the complaint "shall be served upon the parties" in one of three ways. 7 CFR § 1.147(b) (1986). Cuttone argues that these words require actual notice in every case. The Judicial Officer, however, specifically rejected that interpretation, holding that the service in this case was adequate under this regulation. The agency's construction of its regulation is controlling unless it is plainly erroneous or inconsistent with its language. United States v. Larionoff, 431 U.S. 864, 872 (1977). We hold that the Department's construction is not plainly erroneous.

Finally, Cuttone argues that the Department violated its regulations by denying the motion for leave to file an answer and granting the motion for a decision. Whether to grant an extension of time to file an answer or to enter a default is within the discretion of the Judicial Officer and the ALJ. See 7 CFR § 1.139, 1.147(c) (1986). The ALJ did not abuse her discretion by entering the default order. Cuttone has never filed an affidavit that he did not receive the complaint and never adequately explained how he received the motion for a decision but not the complaint.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN

BEFORE: RICHARD A. ENSLEN, U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE

REVIEW OF THE SPECIAL MASTER'S RECOMMENDATION

This case is before the Court for review of the Special Master's Recommendation dated August 1, 1986, together with the Report he entered on May 8, 1986. The pertinent facts are fully stated in the Special Master's Report, St. Joseph Bank and Trust Co. v. DeBruyn Product Co. (In re Prange Foods Corp.), 63 Bankr. 211 (Bankr. W.D. Mich. 1986), and the Court will only briefly summarize them here. This adversary proceeding arises out of a bankruptcy proceeding involving Prange Foods Corporation. Prange Foods was a dealer in fresh vegetables. Plaintiff St. Joseph Bank and Trust Company (d/b/a Capital Credit Company) was Prange Foods' secured lender. Defendants are various warehousemen and growers who were creditors of Prange Foods. Plaintiff initiated this action in bankruptcy court on January 22, 1985, seeking a declaration of its rights in the debtor's inventory and accounts receivables vis-a-vis the defendants. On May 24, 1985 the Court withdrew its reference of this proceeding to the bankruptcy court. See 28 U.S.C. § 157(d). It concurrently appointed Bankruptcy Judge Howard as a Special Master pursuant to rule 53 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to handle the pretrial proceedings and to prepare a report and recommendation on any dispositive motions filed by the parties.

In December of 1985 plaintiff and the grower defendants filed cross-motions for summary judgment. Pursuant to the Order of Reference, the Special Master prepared the Report and Recommendation on such motions referred to above. By this time, the debtor's assets had been liquidated, and the amounts representing proceeds from the sale of perishable agricultural commodities had been placed in escrow. Four grower defendants—Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association, Inc. ("MACMA") (who, as the Special Master noted, is a trade organization that represents a number of individual growers whose claims the Court must consider separately), Dwan's Fruit Farm, Vern Hauch, and Wesley Danneffel—filed timely objections to the Special Master's Report and Recommendation. Pursuant to rule 72 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the Court has reviewed de novo the Report and Recommendation and the parties' motions in light of these defendants' objections. Order of Reference (May 24, 1985); FRCP 72(b); see also FRCP 53(e). I note here that all of the other defendants either have entered into settlements with plaintiff or have had default judgments entered against them.

The Special Master determined that the objecting defendants' claims are subordinate to plaintiff's claims, and hence that they should recover none of the funds in the escrow account. For the reasons discussed below, the Court finds that the Special Master's determinations are correct, and will adopt his Report and Recommendation as modified by this opinion. In this opinion the Court will first review the Special Master's legal conclusions. It will then apply those conclusions to the claims raised by MACMA, Dwan's, Hauch, and Danneffel. The Court assumes that the reader of this opinion has already reviewed the Special Master's Report and Recommendation, which as I indicated has been published.

The Special Master identified eleven (11) issues of law that he felt controlled his recommended disposition of the parties' claims. The Court will briefly discuss each issue.

The first issue is whether the 1984 amendments to the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act ("PACA") became effective when President Reagan signed them into law on May 7, 1984, or when the regulations the Department of Agriculture promulgated pursuant to the amendments took effect, which was on December 20, 1984. Like the Special Master, the Court believes that this issue was correctly resolved in the case of In re Fresh Approach Inc., 48 Bankr. 926 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1985). I believe that the amendments are sufficiently specific to be self-executing, and that Congress intended for them to be effective immediately. The amendments thus cover the produce defendants sold to Prange Foods in the fall of 1984.

The second issue is whether the regulations apply retroactively. Again, the Court agrees with the Special Master that the bankruptcy court correctly analyzed this issue in Fresh Approach. The regulations state that they apply to "all transactions existing as of and entered into on or after the[ir] effective date." 7 CFR § 46.46(a). The Court interprets the phrase existing transactions as encompassing transactions for which the produce grower had not yet received final payment.

The third issue is whether those defendants who had contracts calling for payment more than thirty days from the date of delivery qualify for protection under the amendments. The Court agrees with the Special Master that those growers who had written contracts with Prange Foods can qualify for protection even though such contracts called for payment more than thirty days from the date of delivery. I cannot penalize any grower who complied with the plain language of the statute.

With regard to the fourth issue, which concerns growers who had oral contracts with Prange Foods, the Court notes that the Special Master primarily discussed the arguments of DeBruyn Produce, who has settled its claims with plaintiff. This issue also has significance, however, for those MACMA members who had contracts for the sale of peppers with Prange Foods. MACMA argues that these contracts were written. As the Court discusses below, however, it agrees with the Special Master that these contracts were not written contracts within the meaning of the PACA trust fund provisions. It thus becomes important to determine what kinds of oral contracts, if any, can qualify a grower for protection under the amendments. On this point the Court agrees with the Special Master that the new regulations, which provide that only those oral contracts that provide for payment within ten days of delivery can qualify for protection, control. A claimant on an oral contract thus has forty days after delivery in which to file a written notice of his claim under the amendments.

The Court has nothing to add to the Special Master's discussion of the fifth issue, which concerns whether the date of "receipt and acceptance" of produce may be understood as referring to either the shipment date or the invoice date. I similarly believe that the Special Master fully and correctly analyzed the sixth issue, which is whether the filing of a petition for bankruptcy by the debtor either stayed the filing deadline under the amendments or excused the defendants from the filing requirement. The objecting defendants argue that the filing requirement was stayed or excused when Prange Foods filed for bankruptcy. Although defendants make a good policy argument for their position, the Court agrees with the Special Master's resolution of this issue.

The seventh issue is whether the defendant's notice of intent to preserve their trust fund benefits had to comply fully with the requirements set forth in the regulations. I agree with the Special Master that any notices filed after the regulations were published in the Federal Register, which was on November 20, 1984, had to comply with the regulatory requirements. The Court notes here that this ruling means that the notice MACMA filed on December 5, 1984 was not effective. The Court also agrees with the Special Master's suggested disposition of the eighth issue, which is whether the amended notices filed by MACMA relate back to the filing date of its incomplete December 5th notice. The Special Master correctly held that they do not.

The ninth issue is whether the "filing" of a notice under the amendments occurs upon mailing of the notice to the Secretary or upon the Secretary's receipt of the notice. The Special Master correctly held that "filing" occurs upon receipt of the notice.

The Court is somewhat troubled by the Special Master's resolution of the tenth issue. As I indicated above, I believe that he correctly resolved this issue by ruling that the pepper growers did not have written contracts with Prange Foods within the meaning of the amendments. The payment terms of the "contracts" between the pepper growers and Prange Foods were in writing, i.e., the Salverson letter. The Court does not believe, however, that the growers and Prange Foods "expressly agreed in writing" to their payment terms before "entering into" their transactions. See 7 U.S.C. § 499e(c)(3)(ii). I think that it is clear that Congress meant for section 499e(c)(3)(ii) to cover contracts like the one between Prange Foods and Richard Vanden Heuvel. It did not intend for the section to cover written offers that are accepted by performance. The Court is sympathetic to the pepper growers' argument, but does not believe it is correct under the amendments.

Finally, the Court believes that the Special Master's eleventh issue is inapplicable because Mr. Tidey's claim must be rejected on other grounds. At this point, the Special Master asked the parties to determine how the above legal rulings applied to the diverse factual situations before it. To clarify the record, however, the Court believes it should explicitly apply these rulings to the claims of the objecting defendants.

The first claims the Court will discuss are those of the MACMA defendants. The first MACMA claims the Court will discuss are the zucchini claims filed by Carl Tidey and Greg Tidey. The parties agree that Carl Tidey had a written contract with Prange Foods, but disagree about the status of Greg Tidey's contract. I do not believe that the factual issue regarding Greg Tidey's contract is material, however, because even assuming that this contract was written, the Tideys' notice of their PACA claims was not timely. Specifically, defendants acknowledge that the notice was due on November 17, 1984 if it was not excused by the filing of the bankruptcy petition by Prange. The Court has already ruled that the filing of the petition did not stay or excuse the notice requirement. The Special Master therefore properly concluded that the Tideys are not entitled to prevail on their claims.

The next MACMA claims are those of the pepper growers, who are defendants Ronald Brush, Wesley Danneffel, the Dominion Brothers, Charles Goodrich, A.L. Karnemaat, Robert Kramer, Ed Kretchman, the Marschke Brothers, Joe Scherer, Arthur Whitaker, Dwan's Fruit Farm, and Vern Hauch. Since these growers had oral contracts with Prange Foods, they are covered under the amendments only if they had filed written notice of their claims within forty days—i.e., thirty days after the expiration of the ten day payment period—after their last delivery of peppers to Prange Foods. In each case, the defendant filed an untimely notice of his/its claim. The Court notes that defendants Dwan's and Hauch filed their claims close to the forty day period, but that such claims still were untimely.

The next claimant is Richard Smith, who had sold some snap beans to Prange Foods. In Mr. Smith's case, assuming that he had a written contract with Prange Foods (which is subject to dispute), his written notice of his PACA claim was due, at the latest, on March 1, 1985. The Court determined this filing deadline by giving Mr. Smith the benefit of the Special Master's ruling on issue number three. Mr. Smith failed, however, to meet this deadline as he did not file a notice that conformed with the regulations until sometime after June 27, 1985. The Special Master thus correctly rejected his claim.

The final claim is Mr. Danneffel's claim for payment for cabbage he had sold to Prange Foods. The filing deadline for notice of this claim was either November eighteenth, nineteenth, or twentieth, 1984. Since Mr. Danneffel did not file his notice until December 5, 1984 (even assuming that notice was sufficient), the Special Master correctly rejected his claim.

In summary, the Court agrees with the Special Master's Report and his Recommendation, and adopts them as clarified and/or modified by this opinion. The Court appreciates Judge Howard's assistance on this case. I also complement the attorneys on the excellent quality of their written submissions.

In accordance with the opinion dated December 12, 1986;

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Special Master's Report of May 8, 1986 and his Recommendation of August 1, 1986 are ADOPTED, as clarified and/or modified, as the opinion of the Court;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment is GRANTED with respect to the objecting defendants, and DENIED as moot with respect to the other defendants;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Motion for Summary Judgment filed by defendants Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association, Inc., Dwan's Fruit Farm, Vern Hauch, and Wesley Danneffel is DENIED;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Motions for Summary Judgment filed by defendants Central Michigan Packing, DeBruyn Produce, and S & S Farms, Inc. are DENIED as being moot;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff's Motion to Strike Defendant MACMA's Jury Trial Demand and defendant MACMA's Objection to Report and Recommendation of Special Master re: Jury Trial are DENIED as being moot;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that JUDGMENT is entered for plaintiff and against the objecting defendants.

DISCIPLINARY DECISIONS

In re: MARY FRAN HAMILTON and M. F. HAMILTON, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-7166. Decided October 9, 1986.

Failure to pay promptly—Revocation of license—Application for license denied. Respondent purchased and received fruits and vegetables in interstate commerce but failed to pay promptly for these purchases. Respondent's license was revoked and her application of a license was denied.

Kenneth Vail, for complainant.
Ian MacDonald, Honolulu, Hawaii, for respondent.

Decision by Victor W. Palmer, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a Notice to Show Cause and Complaint proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "Act," instituted by a complaint filed on April 30, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period May 1985 through August 1985, M. F. Hamilton, Inc., purchased, received and accepted, in interstate commerce, from two sellers, seven lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices on balances thereof in the total amount of $218,255.62. It is further alleged in the Notice to Show Cause and Complaint that during the period of the violations, Mary Fran Hamilton was the president, secretary, director and 100% stockholder of M. F. Hamilton, Inc.

A copy of the Notice to Show Cause and Complaint was served upon the respondents. The respondents filed a timely answer thereto in which they admit all of the material allegations but claim that the amount remaining unpaid is $20,000 less than the amount alleged. For purposes of this decision, complainant does not dispute respondents' statement in this regard. Respondents have further agreed that the issues should be determined on the pleadings. Each party has filed a motion for decision, a proposed decision and order and a supporting memorandum. Upon consideration of those documents, the arguments of the parties, and what constitutes the evidence of record in this proceeding, complainant's motion is hereby granted and the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.139). Attached to this Decision and Order is a copy of the Memorandum filed by complainant in support of its motion for decision, which has been found to correctly state controlling law and existing Departmental policy and is incorporated herewith and adopted as part of this Decision.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent M. F. Hamilton, Inc., is a Hawaiian corporation whose address is 4620 Kalaniiki Place, Honolulu, Hawaii 96821.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 820713 was issued to respondent M. F. Hamilton, Inc., on March 16, 1982. This license was renewed annually, but terminated on March 16, 1986, pursuant to section 4(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499d(a)) when it failed to pay the required annual license fee.

3. Mary Fran Hamilton is, or was, the president, secretary, director, and 100% stockholder of M. F. Hamilton, Inc., during the period of violations alleged herein.

4. As more fully set forth in paragraph 7 of the Notice to Show Cause and Complaint, during the period May 1985 through August 1985, respondent M. F. Hamilton, Inc., purchased, received and accepted in interstate commerce, from two different sellers, seven lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices. The total amount past due and unpaid to these sellers is $198,255.62.

5. Mary Fran Hamilton was responsible for the violations set forth in paragraph 4 above.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the seven transactions set forth in Finding of Fact 4 constitutes wilful, repeated and flagrant violations of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

Mary Fran Hamilton was responsible for such violations and has engaged in practices of the character prohibited by the Act prior to the submission of the application.

ORDER

Respondent M. F. Hamilton, Inc.'s license is revoked.

Respondent Mary Fran Hamilton's application for a license is denied.

In re: MARY FRAN HAMILTON and M.F. HAMILTON, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-7166. Decided November 20, 1986.

The Judicial Officer denied a late appeal filed on the day the initial decision had become final. However, even if respondents' appeal had been timely filed, it would have been to no avail because respondents' argument that an expired license cannot be revoked is without merit. Furthermore, if a timely appeal had been filed, the Judicial Officer would have included a finding that respondents have committed repeated and flagrant violations of § 2(4) of the Act, which would have the same effect on respondents and all persons responsibly connected with respondents as a revocation order.

Kenneth Vail, for complainant.
Ian MacDonald, Honolulu, Hawaii, for respondent.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER DENYING LATE APPEAL

Respondent M. F. Hamilton, Inc., filed an appeal with the Hearing Clerk on November 18, 1986, which is the day the initial decision had become final and effective. Accordingly, respondent's appeal must be dismissed because it was not timely filed. See In re Bushelle Cattle Co., 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (May 14, 1986); In re Hulings, 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (Jan. 15, 1985), appeal dismissed, No. 85-1220 (10th Cir. Aug. 16, 1985); In re PowellT1, 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (May 28, 1985), the latter of which is attached as Appendix A.

Even if respondent's appeal had been timely filed, it would have been to no avail. Respondent contends that an expired license cannot be revoked. However, it has been held that an expired license under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act can be suspended or revoked. See Campbell, The Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act Regulatory Program, in 1 Davidson, Agricultural Law, § 419 (1981 and 1986 Cum. Supp.), attached as Appendix B. Nonetheless, in order to avoid any doubt with respect to the matter, if respondent had filed a timely appeal, the Judicial Officer would have included in the order, in addition to the revocation provisions, an additional statement that respondents have committed repeated and flagrant violations of § 2(4) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499b(4)). See, e.g., In re Top Quality Fruit & Produce Distributors, Inc., 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (Jan. 27, 1986), attached as Appendix C. That would have the same effect on respondents and all persons responsibly connected with respondents as a revocation order. As stated in In re Melvin Beene Produce Co., 41 Agric. Dec. 2422, 2440-

41 (1982) (order revoked respondent's license and also found that respondent has committed repeated and flagrant violations of § 2(4)), aff'd, 728 F.2d 347 (6th Cir. 1984):

> Although respondent's license is not presently in effect, it has been held that a terminated license can be suspended or revoked. [Footnote omitted.] But it is of no practical consequence whether respondent's license is revoked since it has been found that respondent has committed flagrant and repeated violations of the Act, and, as a result of that finding, the same consequences flow to the respondent and those responsibly connected with respondent as flow from a revocation order (see note 9, supra).
> Specifically, as a result of the finding that respondent has committed flagrant and repeated violations of the Act, respondent cannot again become licensed under the Act for two years after the effective date of the Order issued in this case (7 U.S.C. § 499d(b); see, also, 7 U.S.C. § 499d(c)). Similarly, the persons "responsibly connected" with respondent cannot be licensed under the Act for two years (7 U.S.C § 499d(b); see, also, 7 U.S.C. § 499d(c)); and they cannot work for another licensee under the Act for one year (7 U.S.C. § 499d(b)). After one year, the Secretary may approve their employment by another licensee if the licensee furnishes a satisfactory bond; after two years, the Secretary may approve their employment by another licensee without a bond (7 U.S.C. § 499h(b)).

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued in this proceeding.

ORDER

Respondent's appeal is denied since it was not timely filed.

§ 4.19 Disciplinary Orders Issued in Formal Cases

Disciplinary orders issued in formal cases are of three types: suspending a license,[165] revoking a license[166] or simply finding that a person has committed a flagrant or repeated violation of § 2 of the act.[167] The act does not provide authority for issuing cease and desist orders.

As discussed in §§ 4.04 and 4.06, a suspension or revocation order has consequences affecting licensing and employment involving the violator or anyone "responsibly connected"[168] with the violator. In view of these collateral effects, a suspension or revocation order is meaningful even if the license of the violator terminates (e.g., for nonpayment of the annual fee) before issuance of the final order. It has been held that such an order can be issued notwithstanding the termination of the license prior to the issuance of the order.[169]

As a practical matter, however, the PACA Regulatory Branch generally does not request a suspension or revocation order where the license is no longer in effect, but requests, instead, that a finding be made that the respondent

[167] See § 4.12. In addition, an order may be issued denying an applicant's request for a license, but this is regarded as a licensing action rather than a disciplinary action, see § 4.04.

[168] The definition of "responsibly connected" and the procedure for determining responsibly connected persons are discussed in § 4.21.

The legislative history of the act suggests that suspension or revocation orders cannot be issued as to nonactive licenses, HR Rep No 1546, 87th Cong, 2d Sess 8 (1962); S Rep No 750, 87th Cong, 1st Sess 7 (1961); S Rep No 554, 73d Cong, 2d Sess 2 (1934); HR Rep No 489, 73d Cong, 2d Sess 2 (1934); and see Marvin Tragash Co v USDA, 524 F2d 1255, 1258 (5th Cir 1975), but the matter is of no practical consequence, at least as far as revocation is concerned, since a finding that a violation was flagrant or repeated has the same effect as a revocation order, see note 170 and related text. However, if a suspension order could not be issued as to a nonactive license, the much more severe order finding that a violation was flagrant or repeated would have to be issued, where appropriate. The suspension of a terminated license was upheld, without discussing the authority to take such action, in Mandell, Spector, Rudolph Co v United States, 364 F2d 889, 893–94 (3d Cir 1966), cert denied, 385 US 1008 (1967).

has committed a flagrant or repeated violation of § 2 of the act. Such a finding has the same licensing and employment consequences as to the respondent and those "responsibly connected" with the respondent as an order revoking the respondent's license.[170] Nonetheless, it can be made without first sending a warning letter,[171] irrespective of whether the violation is wilful [172] or the license has terminated.[173]

About 45 percent of the disciplinary proceedings instituted under the act are disposed of by consent orders, usually suspending the respondent's license. A few consent orders revoke the respondent's license. The Regulatory Branch requires the respondent to admit the violations in any consent settlement.

DECISION AND ORDER (DEFAULT)

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on July 21, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period December 1984 through December 1985, respondent purchased, received, and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 25 sellers, 95 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, in the total amount of $228,511.43.

A copy of the complaint was served upon respondent which complaint has not been answered. The time for filing an answer having run, and upon the motion of the complainant for the issuance of a Default Order, the following Decision and Order is issued without further investigation or hearing pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent E. M. Oates & Company, Inc. is a corporation, whose address is Unit No. 33, Produce Row, St. Louis, Missouri 63131.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 830733 was issued to respondent on March 25, 1983. This license was renewed annually, but terminated on March 25, 1986, pursuant to Section 4(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499d(a)) when respondent failed to pay the required annual license fee.

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period December 1984 through December 1985, respondent purchased, received, and accepted in interstate and foreign commerce, from 25 sellers, 95 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices, in the total amount of $228,511.43.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 95 transactions set forth in Finding of Fact No. 3, above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

A finding is made that respondent has committed willful, flagrant and repeated violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), and the facts and circumstances set forth above shall be published.

This order shall take effect on the 11th day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings 35 days after service hereof unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within 30 days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a disciplinary proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.) hereinafter referred to as the "Act", instituted by a complaint filed on January 21, 1986, by the Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is alleged in the complaint that during the period February through May, 1985, respondent received and accepted on consignment, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 16 sellers, 70 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the net proceeds or balances thereof in the total amount of $142,580.94. The complaint also alleges that during the period February through May, 1985, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 15 sellers, 130 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the amount of $692,293.89.

Respondent filed an answer, denying liability, and requesting an oral hearing. Complainant also filed a motion for hearing. An oral hearing was set for September 22, 1986. Respondent subsequently moved for a postponement of the hearing date, to which complainant objected, alleging that respondent was incurring additional produce debts. Respondent's motion was granted and the hearing was rescheduled for November 20, 1986. Prior to the hearing, respondent's counsel indicated that neither respondent nor counsel would be attending the hearing, and, by hand delivered letter of November 18, 1986, advised:

> "By letter this date, I have transmitted to Mr. James Frazier, Director of the Fruit and Vegetable Division of PACA, the license certificate of Al Nagelberg & Co., Inc.
> With the transmission of this license certificate, I trust there will be no need for further proceedings."

Complainant acknowledged receipt of said license. Both parties were aware that the oral hearing would be held as scheduled.

An oral hearing was held on November 20, 1986. At the hearing, two witnesses testified on behalf of complainant. No one appeared on behalf of respondent. After the introduction of evidence by complainant, complainant moved for the immediate issuance of a decision and order under 7 CFR § 1.141(e). Complainant's motion is hereby granted and the following Decision and Order is issued.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Al Nagelberg & Co., Inc., is a corporation, whose address is Hunts Point Terminal Market, Row B, Room 216, Bronx, New York 10474.

2. Pursuant to the licensing provisions of the Act, license number 176559 was issued to respondent on June 20, 1958, was renewed annually, presently is in effect, and is next subject to renewal on or before June 20, 1987.

3. As more fully set forth in paragraph 5 of the complaint, during the period February through May, 1985, respondent received and accepted on consignment in interstate and foreign commerce, from 16 sellers, 70 lots of fruits and vegetables, all being perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the net proceeds or balances thereof, in the total amount of $142,580.94.

4. As more fully set forth in paragraph 6 of the complaint, during the period February through May, 1985, respondent purchased, received and accepted, in interstate and foreign commerce, from 15 sellers, 130 lots of perishable agricultural commodities, but failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the amount of $692,293.89.

5. Since the filing of the complaint, respondent has made numerous additional purchases of perishable agricultural commodities from many different sellers, in interstate and foreign commerce, but has failed to make full payment promptly of the agreed purchase prices or balances thereof in the amount of approximately $800,000.00.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's failure to make full payment promptly with respect to the 200 transactions set forth in Findings of Fact 3 and 4 above, and the additional transactions set forth in Finding of Fact 5 above, constitutes willful, repeated and flagrant violations of Section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b), for which the Order below is issued.

ORDER

Respondent's license is revoked.

This Order shall take effect on the eleventh day after this Decision becomes final.

Pursuant to the Rules of Practice governing procedures under the Act, this Decision will become final without further proceedings thirty-five days after service hereof, unless appealed to the Secretary by a party to the proceeding within thirty days after service as provided in sections 1.139 and 1.145 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 1.139 and 1.145).

Copies hereof shall be served upon the parties.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served on each of the parties, and respondent was served with a copy of the complaint. Respondent filed an answer to the complaint denying any liability thereunder, claiming payment of some of the invoices, as well as set-offs equal to or exceeding the amount complainant claimed.

Complainant requested an oral hearing and such hearing was held on January 27, 1986, in Fort Pierce, Florida. Three witnesses testified for complainant, and two witnesses testified on behalf of respondent. Complainant introduced six (6) exhibits, which will hereafter be designated by the prefix CX. CONCLUSIONS

Complainant seeks to recover the full invoice price of the subject oranges and grapefruit less the amount respondent has paid to complainant. Respondent interposes as his defense to complainant's action that although he admits he owes $26,930.50 to complainant, respondent has certain set-offs against said sum, which include a 25¢ commission on each box sold by respondent, a spoilage allowance, an advertising allowance, and a breach by complainant, which resulted in respondent having to go out and "cover" to meet his obligations, at a price greater than contracted for with complainant.

THE TERMS OF THE SALE

The evidence discloses that the terms of the sale were that respondent purchased the citrus in an f.o.b. sale, with ownership passing at the loading dock of complainant's packing house, where the citrus was loaded by respondent onto trucks procured by respondent, with payment to be made thirty (30) days after shipment. The parties agreed to a one percent (1%) spoilage "allowance" in which complainant would make some form of compensation to respondent if the product arrived at its destination point with greater than one percent spoilage provided prompt notice was given to complainant and some sort of verification could be made. This "spoilage allowance" was neither a credit to respondent, nor a rebate, set-off or reduction in price. It was a mutually agreed figure below which respondent would accept spoilage loss and above which complainant would make compensation to respondent.

Respondent's attempt to incorporate terms of other contracts which complainant may have agreed to with other parties (Tr. 218–233) by inference because of their similarity with the contract respondent had with complainant, is unsuccessful. The terms contained in other contracts complainant negotiated with other parties are irrelevant to the terms agreed to by these two parties in their contract for the 1984–85 season.

A. The Purported Spoilage

An examination of the spoilage claims made by respondent, conveniently set forth at Exhibit 1B of the investigative report, indicates that respondent made seven deductions for alleged spoilage in the transactions at issue. The evidence discloses that only two out of the eleven lots had less than 1% spoilage. The remaining lots hd 2.27, 3.09, 4.1, 5.52, and 15% spoilage. Yet in no case did respondent promptly inform complainant or request federal inspection. If such degree of spoilage did, in fact, exist, the cost of inspection would have been money well spent by respondent.

The contract provided for ownership passing at the point of shipment. Even if the sales to respondent had been "delivered" sales, the absence of a valid inspection is a fatal flaw in respondent's proof. In addition, the alleged documentation of such spoilage, is unpersuasive. One purported letter was undated (RX 2 p. 12) and the other letter was dated almost six months after the citrus was delivered. Both read as if they were requested by respondent long after the events, and the knowledge of the parties to the events in question, had passed. In addition, respondent presented no credible evidence that he gave complainant prompt or any other notice of the spoilage he eventually claimed. Testimonial evidence has often been discounted where a neutral inspection could have been obtained. Mutual Vegetable Sales v. Select Distributors, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 1359 (1979); S.J. Albert, Inc. v. Salvo, 36 A.D. 240 (1977); Edgar H. Graff, Jr. v. Chandler-Topic Co., 41 A.D. 1787 (1982). Therefore, the letters cannot receive any weight in this proceeding.

Complainant had the citrus inspected prior to releasing it to respondent for shipment. The inspection certificates were submitted with the complaint, are a part of the investigative report, and were introduced by complainant as exhibits at the hearing. At the point of the sale, the citrus met the grade and quality standards. Respondent presented no persuasive or credible evidence to show that the fruit's condition was otherwise on arrival. Respondent's deductions from the invoice price due to spoilage are disallowed.

B. The Purported Rebate

The largest amount claimed by respondent as set-off relates to the purported written contract giving respondent a twenty-five cents (25¢) per box commission. At issue is whether the alleged signature of complainant, Mr. Henry R. Clements, Jr., contained on this document, is the actual signature of Mr. Clements. Both parties presented their expert handwriting analysts. Both experts supported their analyses with reasoned explanations of their examination of the purported signature. After careful analysis of the testimony of both expert witnesses, as well as review of the questioned signature with the numerous examples of known signatures which were introduced into the record, we find that the questioned signature of "Henry T. Clements, Jr.", contained on the purported contract for a 25¢ per box rebate, was not proved to have been made by Mr. Clements. We come to this conclusion for the reasons which follow.

Initially, the language of the document is suspicious in nature. What purports to be an agreement or contract which, as the circumstances indicated, would have a value of in excess of $13,000.00, was poorly drafted. Rather than "Clements Citrus Sales of Florida" hereby agrees to pay Greg Reeves 25¢ per box for fruit Greg Reeves Fund Raising Co. purchases and Clements Citrus ships for the 1984–85 season," the purported contract, just refers to "Clements", does not define the size of the box, and does not refer to the period involved. In addition, the purported contract was handwritten on stationary of one of respondent's company's "R Distribution Co." and ostensibly signed by the parties at the offices of complainant, rather than typed up by one of complainant's clerical employees. (Tr. 118)

As to the questioned signature itself, both handwriting experts raised relevant considerations regarding both the validity and invalidity of the signature. If one were to consider the testimony of just the handwriting experts, the decision would be a toss-up. However, having seen and heard the testimony of both Henry Clements and Greg Reeves, we find the testimony of Mr. Clements more credible, believable and persuasive. Therefore, for the reasons enumerated above, we find the signature to be a forgery. That being so, no contract existed between the parties regarding a 25¢ per box rebate, and such amount is not a set-off from the amount respondent owes complainant.

C. Respondent's Claim to Having Paid Various Invoices

Respondent claimed to have paid many of the invoices in dispute, and presented documentary evidence claiming payment for particular invoices. Although complinant was initially at a loss as to why his records and respondent's did not agree, the discrepancy disappeared when Ms. Carrera, complainant's office manager, testified to the procedure used in crediting payments made by Mr. Reeves, Ms. Carrera's testimony is most credible, and her explanation was most persuasive.

Ms. Carrera testified to the usual procedure followed by complainant's office upon the receipt of Mr. Reeve's check. Respondent usually paid a number of invoices with each check. When she received the check, the invoices the check was in payment for were attached to the check; she would credit respondent with the payment for the appropriate invoices, make a photocopy of the check and write the invoice number(s) and amount(s) of the invoice(s) that the check was in payment for on the sheet of paper containing the photocopy of the check. (CX 4, 5, and 6, p. 1). A comparison of these exhibits, with the check and invoice exhibits introduced by respondent, RX 1-3, indicates why the discrepancy regarding payment exists between the parties. A comparison of CX 4 with RX 1 shows that complainant's claim regarding the invoices for which the check was in payment, is reconciled with the total amount of the check without making a deduction for spoilage, while respondent's claim requires a reduction in price of one invoice, for alleged spoilage, to reconcile the check amount with the invoices. A similar comparison of CX 6 with RX 3 shows that the invoices respondent claims the check is in payment for do not even add up to the amount of the check. There is a difference of $71.25.

Respondent explained the $71.25 difference on the basis of a delivery of citrus products respondent purportedly made to a customer of complainant's "Youth Opportunity United", purported by respondent to be complainant's customer. (RX 5; Tr. 121-125). Such "explanation" is not credible. To begin with, the transaction occurred on or about December 16, 1984, but respondent didn't "deduct" it from his payment to complainant until his payment of February 6, 1985, more than 45 days later. In addition, the amount claimed for mileage, which equalled the $71.25 amount, is suspect. Respondent's invoice and exhibit charges complainant for 57 miles of delivery at $1.25 per mile. Yet the approximate mileage from Cincinnati to Dayton is 56 miles; from Dayton to Vandalia is 11 miles; and from Cincinnati to Florence, KY is approximately 12 miles, or a total of 79 miles. Respondent's invoice is off by 22 miles, or almost 50%. It is noted that no other combination of miles and price per mile will work. In addition, respondent's exhibits or proof of the $71.25 was not contained in the documentation previously submitted as an attachment to this Answer or in the investigative report. No evidence, other than the invoice prepared by respondent and respondent's testimony, indicates that "Youth Opportunity United" is complainant's customer. Respondent's Exhibit 5 appears to be fabricated evidence, to permit the respondent's check #1197 to reconcile with the invoices, in amount, with the invoices respondent claims it is for. It is interesting to note that all four of the invoices respondent claims check No. 1197 (RX 3 p. 1) was in payment for, are shown as unpaid by complainant. The failure to reconcile these amounts raises serious questions as to whether that check was in payment of those invoices. Respondent's testimony and evidence on this question is not credible. The testimony and evidence of Ms. Carrera, complainant's bookkeeper is. Respondent did not pay the invoices in dispute.

D. Respondent's Reductions in Price for Fruit Size

Respondent alleged that part of his reduction in price related to fruit not complying with size requirements. A comparison of the size information contained on the invoice, as well as an examination of the "Manifest Inspection Certificates and Bills of Ladings" or pack-out records, contained in CX 1 clearly indicates that the respondent's reductions in price as a result of size problems were unjustified. Although the signature of the authorized USDA inspector is not contained on the copies of such "Manifest Inspection Certificates" which are part of the record, [neither those attached to the Complaint, those of the report of investigation, nor those introduced at the hearing have them], the shipper's representative certified that the fruit had been inspected and no challenge to their accuracy was made. Such being the case, the validity and integrity of the information contained thereon is high. Respondent's reduction in price due to fruit size was unjustified.

E. Respondent's Claim that the Agreement Required Only Indian River Fruit

Respondent claimed that complainant agreed to supply only Indian River fruit. Complainant denied such claim, stating that the brand which was shipped to respondent, River Mist, was not an exclusive Indian River product. At the hearing Complainant's attorney graphically displayed the box the fruit was packed in, and no reference to the contents being Indian River fruit was contained thereon. This must be compared with respondent's testimony as well as with the statement contained on complainant's stationary that it was a "Fund Raising Development Specialists Serving Schools, Churches and Civic Organizations with Quality Indian River Citrus," (emphasis added) Complainant admitted in his testimony, that the negotiations with respondent were for the purchase and sale of Indian River Fruit (Tr. 43). Complainant's own stationary supports respondent's claim. Had respondent presented evidence to substantiate the difference in cost between Indian River and Interior citrus fruit for this period, such award of a set-off could have been granted to the extent that complainant shipped interior fruit rather than the contracted Indian River fruit.

The only evidence on the issue of the price differential between Indian River and Interior citrus was the testimony of complainant, who stated that there was no difference on price (Tr. 45). Mr. Gallo, testifying on behalf of respondent, stated that interior oranges are cheaper than Indian River (Tr. 233), but provided no price difference for the period and varieties in question. The failure of respondent to present such evidence and prove the amount of damages, precludes the respondent from asserting his right to recover such damages. In addition, the Manifest Inspection Certificates, referred to above, were of two types, one that clearly indicated that Indian River citrus was involved by such designation being printed on the invoice, and one that had no indication of Indian River fruit printed thereon. Examination of the information contained on the bottom of the non "Indian River" manifest discloses the total number of standard boxes involved in the manifest, broken down by type; i.e. grapefruit, oranges and tangerines. Immediately above those figures is an entry of designation of "Area 1—Area 2", and the numbers set forth to either side of those areas equals the total number of "standard boxes" involved. All the "Indian River" manifests indicate that the fruit involved therein came from Area 2. Mr. Clements testified that Area 1 meant Interior fruit and Area 2 was Indian River fruit (Tr. 45). However, there was no evidence that respondent received a copy of the invoice. The record indicates, by an examination of those manifests, that the substantial majority of the fruit purchased by respondent from complainant was Indian River Fruit.

F. The Advertising Allowance

Respondent claims as a further set-off a $1500.00 advertising allowance which complainant agreed to. The evidence presented by both parties was self-serving and contradictory. Respondent did not prove such advertising allowance being agreed upon by a preponderance of the evidence. Evidence of neither side is of greater weight. Therefore, the claim for a set-off of the amount of the advertising allowance, $1500.00, is denied.

G. Respondent's Other Claims and Setoffs

In respondent's answer, respondent alleged the complainant had agreed to provide gift boxes to respondent for an agreed price; that complainant failed to provide the necessary citrus for such boxes which caused respondent to locate said citrus from other sources and "cover" at a higher price; and that such action by complainant caused an additional loss to respondent of approximately $9,000.00. Respondent presented no evidence regarding this matter, so it is hereby denied.

Respondent did, however, present evidence that citrus purchased by respondent was sent to fill an order of complainant's, for a customer complainant had in Ohio. (RX 5; Tr. 121) As discussed in Section A of this Decision, such explanation is not credible. That respondent did not raise this fact previously in his answer, nor at the time of the investigation, since it is not in the investigative report, makes the claim unpersuasive, and is herby denied.

Having raised several set-offs to the amount owing to complainant respondent has the burden of proving them by a preponderance of the evidence. The Grower-Shipper Potatoe Company v. Southwestern Potato Co., 28 A.D. 511 (1969); Branix Trucking v. Cumberland Produce Co., Inc., 41 A.D. 1814 (1982); Harry Wolfe v. Mendelson-Zeller Co., 34 A.D. 690 (1975)

The preponderance of the evidence is not necessarily controlled by the number of witnesses or the number of exhibits. Rather the preponderance or weight of the evidence is governed by the credibility of the witnesses. Richardson on Evidence Fourth Edition, Section 179. At the hearing, the Presiding Officer had an opportunity to observe the demeanor, under oath, of all the witnesses, including the complainant and respondent, on direct and cross examination. He is of the opinion that the greater weight should be attached to the testimony of the complainant and his witnesses. In the circumstances, it is concluded that respondent has not sustained his burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence. Great Western Food Distributors v. Brannan, 201 F.2d 476 (7th Cir. 1953); United States ex rel Ohm v. Perkins, 79 F.2d 533 (2d Cir. 1935).

Therefore, as a result of respondent's failure to pay for the invoices at issue, as well as respondent's failure to prove the setoffs claimed, respondent is liable for the contract price remaining unpaid of $43,783.45. Respondent's failure to pay this sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be rewarded, with interest. Since neither party has submitted a request for fees and expenses, such right to the award is hereby waived.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant requested an award of reparation against respondents in the amount of $53,166.40 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of eight truckloads of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondents which filed a joint answer thereto, in which respondent John Livacich Produce, Inc. denied any liability to complainant, and respondent Larry Elmer, Inc., admitted liability to complainant in the amount of $30,733.40, and denied liability for the balance claimed. On March 2, 1984, an order requiring payment of the undisputed amount was issued against respondent Larry Elmer Inc. On April 27, 1984, after being advised that respondent Larry Elmer Inc. had filed a voluntary petition for reorganization pursuant to Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act (11

U.S.C. §§ 1101–1174), and in view of the automatic stay provisions of 11 U.S.C. § 362, an order was issued holding this proceeding in abeyance as against Larry Elmer, Inc., until receipt by this Department of proper notification that the Chapter XI proceeding has been closed, dismissed, or converted to straight bankruptcy, or that the debts have been discharged through confirmation of a Plan of Arrangement.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, and an oral hearing was requested in the answer. An oral hearing was held August 15 and 16, 1985, in San Bernardino, California. Two witnesses testified on behalf of complainant, and four witnesses testified on behalf of respondent. In addition four depositions previously taken were received in evidence following the hearing. Both parties filed briefs and claims for fees and expenses.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Ritclo Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 794, Nogales, Arizona.

2. Respondent, John Livacich Produce, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 5519, San Bernardino, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein this respondent was licensed under the Act. Respondent Larry Elmer, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 45586, Los Angeles, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein this respondent was licensed under the Act. This proceeding has been stayed as against respondent Larry Elmer, Inc.

3. In the latter part of February, 1983, Edward Stoller, Jr., general manager of Ritclo Produce (hereafter Ritclo), received a telephone call from Joe Saccamano, a partner of Larry Elmer, Inc. (hereafter Elmer) in the purchase and sale of (principally) tomatoes. Mr. Saccamano proposed that Elmer purchase tomatoes from Ritclo. Edward Stoller, Jr., after running a credit check on Elmer, informed Mr. Saccamano that, although he would like to sell produce to Elmer, he could not extend Elmer any credit. Saccamano informed Stoller, Jr., that he would have Larry Elmer contact Stoller, Jr., about the possibility of working together with John Livacich Produce, Inc. (hereinafter Livacich) on the purchase and sale of produce. On the same day Stoller Jr., received a call from Larry Elmer, who asked whether complainant would sell to Elmer if Livacich could be involved. Stoller Jr., responded that he would have no problems with such an arrangement. Later that day Stoller Jr. and John Livacich, president of respondent Livacich, talked by phone, and agreed that Livacich would guarantee payment on merchandise sold by Ritclo to Elmer, and would take invoicing on such merchandise.

4. Between March 14, 1983, and April 24, 1983, complainant sold and shipped to Elmer or Elmer's customers eight truckloads of tomatoes, and invoiced Livacich on each of the eight truckloads. John Livacich received each of the invoices and forwarded each of them unopened to Elmer. The total agreed invoice cost of the eight truckloads of tomatoes was $53,166.40. Stoller, Jr., made several contacts with Livacich by telephone during the month of May requesting payment on the eight tomato invoices. Edward Stoller III, salesman with complainant, talked by telephone with Teddy D. Elmer, office controller for Elmer, during the latter part of May, and requested payment on the invoices. On June 8, 1983, Stoller Jr., wrote to Livacich reviewing their agreement and requesting payment of the entire balance of $53,166.40. In the latter part of June, Stoller III talked by telephone with Ted Elmer and Al Brasile, salesmen for Elmer, at which time the parties went over each of the invoices. Ted Elmer and Al Brasile admitted full liability on the first six invoices, but stated that there were quality problems with the tomatoes in the last two invoices. Stoller III, asked if federal inspections had been made on the two loads of tomatoes in question, and was told that no inspections were made. Stoller III, then informed Ted Elmer and Al Brasile that without federal inspections, and without notifying complainant much sooner, he had no authority to grant any kind of adjustment. Ted Elmer indicated a willingness to pay only $954.10 on the next to the last invoice (original amount $11,214.30), and $1,081.00 on the last invoice (original amount of $12,142.55). Ted Elmer also indicated that they had a "dump certificate" on the two loads. Stoller III, ended the conversation by telling Ted Elmer that he had no authority to grant any kind of adjustment, and that Ted Elmer should send the money owed on the first six invoices, and the paper work on the remaining two.

5. On July 15, 1983, Ted Elmer wrote the following letter to Ritclo Produce:

6. On July 19, 1983, Edward Stoller Jr., wrote the following letter to John Livacich Produce, Inc.:

Mr. John Livacich:

This deal with Larry Elmer has really been a nightmare. John. I have never consented for Joe Saccamano to handle anything for our account. He did call me a couple of times that he was having a hard time moving the merchandise. . .

John, both of you and I have not been unfair in our trading practices, for either you or I would not be trading members, or have been in Business Character Awards Listings.

John, once more I am asking for you to honor your commitment to us, as was first agreed. You took the billing and what arrangements you had with Larry Elmer is your business. The amount owed is $53,166.40, Larry Elmer did send a check for $31,844.65 but stated in writing, that payment was in full, which we will not accept. I will send you Mr. Elmer's check so that you can make other arrangements. Please call us where to send check and please mail yours by return mail.

Sincerely yours,

Edward Stoller, Jr.

7. The formal complaint was filed on August 25, 1983, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Livacich asserts that complainant agreed to a settlement on the last two loads of tomatoes following arrival of such tomatoes. This respondent contends that since a check was tendered in the amount of $31,844.65 based upon the alleged settlement agreement, and such check was rejected by complainant, the liability of Livacich ended at that point. Livacich also contends that "because there was no clear understanding between Livacich and Ritclo with respect to the number of shipments involved and the duration of the credit obligation, no contract existed between the parties" and that "complainant's failure to mitigate the loss makes imposition of an award against Livachich inequitable".

In an effort to show that there was an agreement between the parties following delivery of the tomatoes for a settlement on the last two loads, respondent Livacich offered the testimony of Teddy D. Elmer, Larry Elmer, and Al Brasile, all of whom claimed to have been involved in some phase of the alleged settlement negotiations. However, complainant did not submit any testimony from Joe Saccamano, the person who allegedly first elicited an agreement from Ritclo to settle on the last two loads. Complainant's testimony consisted of that of Edward Stoller Jr., and Edward Stoller III, the only two parties who entered into any negotiations on behalf of complainant. Complainant asserted that it was the policy of their company to require federal inspections whenever there was an adjustment for quality. Both Stollers testified that at no point did they ever agree to any adjustment in price on the last two loads of tomatoes, nor did they agree to such loads being handled on an "open" basis. Respondent urges that a transaction in regard to bell peppers, which occurred between complainant and Elmer prior to the sale of the eight loads of tomatoes, demonstrates that complainant would agree to adjustments without a federal inspection having been made. However, complainant maintained that the adjustment which was admittedly made in regard to the bell pepper shipment was an adjustment for market decline. We also note that an important distinction between the bell pepper transaction and the disputed tomato transactions exists in the fact that complainant issued a prompt credit memo following its making of an adjustment in regard to the bell peppers, but issued no credit memo in regard to the disputed tomato transactions. In fact, the record is devoid of any prompt documentation indicating in any way that there was an adjustment in regard to the last two loads of tomatoes. The earliest written reference to any such adjustment in the record is contained in the July 15, 1983, letter from Ted Elmer which states that the two loads were "sold on open account as agreed between Eddie and Joe Saccamano".

In looking at the specific testimony of Livacich's three principal witnesses we find that the actual words which these witnesses said were used in regard to the alleged settlement negotiations fall short of indicating an agreement on the part of Ritclo to an adjustment, or to the two loads being handled on an open basis. For instance Al Brasile, who was directly associated with Joe Saccamano in the tomato transactions, stated that following the arrival of the next to the last truck Joe Saccamano called and talked with one of the Eddies, had a heated argument, and that both parties hung up. Brasile states that shortly thereafter there was a second conversation to which Brasile was a party "and, to my best recollection, Eddie told Joe, he said, do the best you can to move these. I know what the merchandise is supposed to be. Get the best price you can." Later Brasile again stated as follows:

Q. And were you on the telephone the second time?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And what was said during that conversation?

A. We were told to get the best price we could and to move the product, keep it moving.

We have held many times that such phrases as "do the best you can", "the buyer should work it out", "handle best possible", and "handle to best advantage", do not amount to authorization to handle a load on an open basis or on account. See Relan Produce Farms v. Rushton & Co., Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 1636 (1979); Barkley v. Ifsco, Inc., 31 Agric. Dec. 279 (1972); Frank Gaglione & Son v.

Theron Hooker Co., 30 Agric. Dec. 528 (1971); and Ralph Samsel v. L Gillarde Sons Co., 19 Agric. Dec. 374 (1960).

All three of respondent's principal witnesses testified concerning a conversation that was had with one of the Eddie Stollers during the middle or latter part of June at the place of business of Elmer in Los Angeles. Each of respondent's principal witnesses stated that they were present for the conversation, and were on the line together at least during parts of the conversation. Mr. Brasile stated that although there was no inspection on either of the two disputed invoices, nor was any confirming memo ever sent concerning the two invoices, notations were made on respondent's copy of one of the invoices indicating a settlement figure. Mr. Brasile's testimony was as follows:

Q. The notation where it starts with return average $2.35 per Al Brasile, do you know whose notation that is?

A. I believe that is Larry Elmer's.

Q. Do you recall when that was placed on there?

A. I believe this was placed on there the time that we had a conversation and I went down to Los Angeles. I believe that is when it was done.

Q. It is your recollection, then, that that notation was placed on the invoice at that meeting in Los Angeles?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the same time the phone call occurred with the elder Eddie at Ritclo?

A. Yes.

Q. The same day?

A. The same day.

Q. Were these notations placed there during the course of the conversation or prior to the conversation?

A. During the conversation.

Q. Looking up above there there are some numbers that are written in, do you know—first of all, do you know who placed those numbers on there?

A. I believe Larry Elmer did. He had the invoice.

Q. Do you know when those numbers were placed on there?

A. That day.

Q. Was that also during this conversation with elder Eddie?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And you were on the line when this conversation was taking place?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. What do those numbers mean?

A. That means an adjusted price.

Q. Were those the adjusted prices per box?

A. Yes.

Q. Of each item?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And that is what was agreed upon on that date?

A. Yes, it was.

During the course of this testimony the Presiding Officer interrupted, and asked the witness "could you tell us again how you know it was the elder Eddie?" To this the witness responded: "It sounded like him. I have had numerous conversations with him over the phone." Later Mr. Brasile, while continuing his testimony on the same subject stated as follows:

Q. Why don't you tell me exactly what you recall being said during that conversation?

A. I recall, to the best of my ability I can think of, I got Eddie on the phone, elder Eddie. We specifically started with invoice No. 2139. I said we want to get this straightened out with you, as Joe had prior to this. Larry jumped in on the line and we started going down and making deductions.

Q. And Eddie agreed to all of these deductions?

A. Well, they were back and forth on the deductions.

Q. There was some negotiation that went on to arrive at these figures?

A. Yes.

Q. What else was said, that you recall?

A. Well, on both invoices they had done the same thing and they come to an agreement on payment.

Q. At that time Larry Elmer, yourself and elder Eddie were on the phone?

A. Yes. And then—I take that back. I believe I got off the phone and Ted Elmer got on and I think Larry hung up too, with Eddie and Ted Elmer got on the phone. I believe that's what happened, later.

Q. Do you know what was said between Ted Elmer and Eddie?

A. No, I do not. I was not in that room.

Q. And basically it is your understanding that what was agreed to was that the Invoice No. 2139 in the original amount of $11,214.30 was adjusted down to $954.10?

A. I don't know. That I don't know.

Q. Weren't you on the telephone when——

A. (Interrupting) I was on the telephone, but they were reading, they were going by the 11.85 down to 2.35, that's what I recall the most. I don't recall the end figure. I believe that was done with Ted.

Q. And the same thing was done on Invoice No. 2176?

A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you say that you heard them agree to this?

A. These prices on the side.

Q. You didn't hear them agree to the 954, just the prices on the side?

A. Right.

Later Larry Elmer testified concerning the same conversation as follows:

Q. All right, now, do you know when your brother wrote on these invoices?

A. Yes, it was sometime in June. This was when we closed out the files. I had Al fly down because John had called me and requested that I make the payment.

Q. That is John Livacich?

A. Yes. . .

* * * * * * *

I called Al and told him to bring all his files and paper work down, to fly down. And we closed out the files, and I put Al on because I didn't want to have any problem. I said, O.K., lets call up and settle the open invoices, as were agreed upon, and he says, O.K. So, we called up Ritclo, asked for Eddie, Sr., and he wasn't there. I talked to, I guess, his son. . .

* * * * * * *

Q. How many loads did you discuss with Ritclo, do you recall?

A. Well, it was basically the eight open invoices. You know, we agreed on all the invoices except for the last two.

Q. So, you went through, invoice by invoice, over the telephone, did you on this day?

A. Yes.

Q. The eight invoices?

A. Eddie did not agree with the way that the last two invoices were, because he asked for an inspection. I said we didn't have an inspection because Joe and Eddie had worked it out and there was no inspection needed. It was an open invoice—it was an open load.

Q. And did he respond?

A. He said, "Well, if that's the agreement, then, get off the payment". And he asked for dumping certificates because he was astonished at the amounts that were dumped. . .

Teddy Elmer also testified in the regard to this conversation that it was initiated by Al Brasile and that after negotiations between Brasile and the representative of Ritclo he was asked to get on the telephone to verify the figures:

> . . . He asked me to pick up the phone. I picked up the phone and I verified the adjustments that we had made on their invoices with Eddie, and he said to send the paper work and that along with the check.

> A. He, basically, was telling them of the problem on these particular invoices and of the problem that the majority of the produce had to be dumped and of the return, that the quality, you know, was very bad, and that these are the adjustments and this would be the payment that would be made. I got on the phone to verify it and I went over it exactly with what these figures were and we agreed to $31,844.65, which was, as far as I knew, Eddie had agreed of the new balance, and that was the amount that we were to pay to completely liquidate the tomatoes with Ritclo, completely pay them off.

Taking this testimony as a whole it can be interpreted in the following manner: First, it is claimed that immediately following the arrival of the tomatoes a protest was made to Ritclo, and Ritclo responded that Elmer was to move the produce as quickly as possible, and do the best they could with it. This may have been taken to mean that the two tomato invoices were to be viewed henceforth as "open." Later in June when the younger Eddie was called to reach a final settlement he was told that there had been a prior agreement that the two loads were to be handled on an open account, and he responded "well, if that's the agreement, then, get off the payment". This was interpreted by Teddy Elmer to mean that the amount for which payment was then to be made was a settlement figure. However, the testimony of Larry Elmer indicates that the younger Eddie was not in agreement that there should be a settlement at that point, but was merely stating that if there had been a prior agreement Elmer should pay on that basis. Whether this is the correct interpretation to be put on the testimony of respondent's principal witnesses, we do not know. However, the resolution of this issue is to be found in the very basic proposition that it was respondent's responsibility to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that a settlement in regard to the two loads was in fact entered into. As we have stated before, there was no documentation confirming such a settlement, and we conclude that respondent has not proven by a preponderance of the evidence that there was such a settlement.

Respondent Livacich's contention that because there was no clear understanding between Livacich and Ritclo with respect to the number of shipments involved and the duration of the credit obligation, no contract existed between the parties, is without merit. Mr. Livacich testified at the hearing that at the time the agreement was entered into there was no discussion regarding how many shipments were to be involved, and that he did not have any approximate idea of the number of shipments that would be shipped subject to his guarantee. Mr. Livacich received invoices on all of the eight shipments in question and chose of his own violation not to open the letters containing the invoices but to send them on to Elmer. The fact that these letters were sent to Elmer shows that Mr. Livacich knew what they contained and indeed, there is no contention to the contrary. There was obviously an ongoing guarantee as to each of the invoices, and Mr. Livacich's consent to the continuation of such guarantee is obvious.

Respondent Livacich's contention that "complainant's failure to mitigate the loss makes imposition of an award against Livacich inequitable" is also without merit. Respondent states, first, that Ritclo failed to communicate with Livacich on a regular basis concerning Elmer's payment practices, adjustments or other problems with the condition of the commodities sold. However, the record shows that complainant did communicate with Livacich promptly when it became evident that Elmer was having problems in paying. In further support of its contention respondent states that "when Ritclo received payment of $31,844.65 from Elmer in July of 1983, Ritclo failed to seek an agreement from Livacich to guarantee the disputed balance it claimed was due from Elmer. However, the payment was explicitly made conditional upon it being accepted as payment in full. Since it was not in fact payment in full it amounted to no payment at all as far as complainant was concerned, and complainant was fully justified in rejecting the check. We know of no requirement that it "seek an agreement from Livacich to guarantee the disputed balance" claimed due from Elmer. Further, we do not comprehend how any such guarantee would have negated the conditional tender of the check. Livacich further complains that after return of the check Elmer's attorney "offered to pay $30,733.40 on a 'without prejudice' basis in a letter dated October 12, 1983." Livacich states that this offer should have been accepted. It should be noted that this "offer" was made in a letter to the Department of Agriculture approximately 2½ months following the filing of the formal complaint. The "offer" was phrased as follows:

> Ritclo may retain the check in the amount of $31,844.65 only if it will accept that check in full settlement of the amounts due as previously agreed, and dismiss the complaint with you. Otherwise, Elmer makes claim against Ritclo for the additional charges totaling $1,111.25, and the only amount Elmer is prepared to pay on a "without prejudice" basis is $30,733.40, rather than $34,844.65.

A copy of the letter was sent to Larry Elmer, Inc., but there is no indication that a copy went to complainant. Furthermore the letter was not accompanied by a check in the amount of $30,733.40 made out to complainant. On January 13, 1984, the previously filed complaint was served on Elmer and Livacich along with the Department's report of investigation. A copy of the report of investigation, which contained the letter from Elmer's attorney, was also served upon complainant's attorney at this time. This apparently was the first notice which complainant had of the "offer" in the letter. The answer, filed on behalf of both respondents, was filed on February 8, 1984, and contained an admission of liability in the amount of $30,733.40. The Department, following its usual procedures, issued an order for payment of such amount as an undisputed amount on March 2, 1984. The Department was not aware when this order was issued that respondent Elmer had already filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act. We do not see in any of this a failure on complainant's part to mitigate damages.

Since respondent Elmer was primarily liable to complainant for the full amount of $53,166.40, and since none of such amount has been paid, respondent Livacich is liable to complainant for such amount under its guarantee agreement.

Our finding herein of primary liability on the part of Elmer is purely for the purpose of determining the liability of Livacich. The action of complainant against Elmer has been stayed, Elmer was not a party at the hearing, and our statement in regard to Elmer's liability is not to be regarded as res judicata in any further litigation that might take place in this forum, or in any other forum.

We find that respondent Livacich's failure to pay complainant the sum of $53,166.40 is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

Complainant filed a claim for attorney fees and expenses in the total amount of $5,948.55. Reasonable fees and expenses incurred in connection with an oral hearing may be awarded pursuant to section 7 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499g) and section 47.19(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.19(d)). We have examined complainant's claim, and find that the expenses and the attorney fees requested therein are reasonable and were incurred in connection with the oral hearing. Additional reparation in the sum of $5,948.55 should be awarded to complainant against respondent Livacich.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent Livacich shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $53,166.40, with interest thereon at the rate of thirteen percent per annum from June 1, 1983, until paid.

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent Livacich shall pay to complainant, as additional reparation for fees and expenses incurred in connection with the oral hearing, the sum of $5,948.55 with interest thereon at the rate of thirteen percent per annum from the date of this order, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $2,808.40 in connection with the shipment of four loads of produce in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. In addition, respondent was served with a copy of the formal complaint, filed an answer thereto in which it denied any further liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complainant does not exceed $15,000.00. Therefore, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Neither party filed one. Also, neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, U.S. Gateways, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 531 Chestnut Street, Cedarhurst, New York 11516.

2. Respondent, Finest Fruit, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 260-265 New York City Terminal Market, Bronx, New York 10474. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. During the period March 23, 1984 through April 9, 1984, respondent received, on consignment, from complainant, four loads of produce, to wit; on March 23, 1984—258 cartons of peppers and 232 cartons of okra which were identified as lot number 320; on March 31, 1984—800 Galia melons which were assigned lot number 361; on April 3, 1984—1,733 Galia melons which were assigned lot number 373; and on April 9, 1984—1,328 Galia melons which were assigned lot number 418. In addition, respondent's receiving records disclosed that it had other lots of okra, peppers, and melons on hand during the same period of time as that in which it was selling complainant's commodities.

4. On or about April 12, 1984, the respondent remitted to the complainant for these commodities submitting checks to it totalling $7,587.02. At the same time, it provided complainant with accounts of sales for these items which may be summarized as follows:

5. An informal complaint was received by the Department on May 7, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

6. During the period February 19, 1985 through March 1, 1985, the matter was the subject of a personal investigation by Mr. James E. Bright, an investigator employed by the PACA branch of the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Bright's investigation indicated that respondent received the produce as indicated above, and that it accounted for the produce also as indicated above. The investigation further indicated that respondent's sales tickets were sequentially numbered and filed by date with charge and cash tickets filed separately within each date. However, the investigation also disclosed that respondent did not record identifying lot numbers on the sales tickets. Therefore, in order to complete his investigation, Mr. Bright had to locate sales of all peppers and okra between March 23, 1984, and April 2, 1984, and sales of all Galia melons between April 2, 1984, and April 10, 1984 i.e., during the time periods when the lots of produce at issue would have been for sale. A review of those records by Mr. Bright did not indicate the complete disposition of all of the produce. That is, although the respondent reported to the complainant that 1,090 cartons of melons had been dumped, Mr. Bright was not able to locate any documentation supporting this claim in the respondent's files. Therefore, Mr. Bright included the value of the missing cartons at the average sales price in the account of sales which he compiled from the respondent's records with regard to the Galia melons. In this regard,it should be noted that Mr. Bright's review of respondent's records indicated that respondent sold 2,964 cartons of melons rather than 2,771 as it reported to complainant. Additionally, Mr. Bright's review of respondent's sales records reflected sales of more peppers and okra than were contained in the subject shipments. These extra cartons were deducted from his accounts of sales at the average sales price. The audit accounts of sales compiled by Mr. Bright is as follows:

7. As respondent denied being obligated to the complainant as indicated by the Department's audit of its records, on May 31, 1985, the complainant filed its formal complaint.

CONCLUSIONS

The focus for decision in this matter is upon the respondent's failure to provide any evidence that it dumped 1,090 cartons of Galia melons. The regulations issued by the Department have, for about the last 30 years, required that a consignee, before dumping in excess of 5% percent of a consignment, must obtain documentation supporting its claim that the produce needed to be dumped, i.e., a federal inspection certificate, before dumping the produce unless it has written permission from the consignor prior to sending out its account of sales permitting it to avoid the necessity of having such an inspection done. See 7 CFR §§ 46.22, 46.23. In the instant case, it appears as if the respondent did not obtain any written permission from the complainant to enable it to avoid the necessity of having the produce federally inspected and, apparently, it did not obtain such an inspection. Moreover, despite the regulations' requirement that a consignee maintain some sort of evidence that the produce was actually dumped, the respondent has provided no documentation showing that the melons were in fact dumped. Furthermore, while the respondent claimed that 1,090 cartons were dumped, the department's investigator was able to locate sales tickets reflecting the sale of some of these cartons and only was unable to document sales of 897 cartons, a difference of 193 cartons. Because of the failure of respondent's records to actually reflect that these items were dumped and because of the discrepancy between respondent's claim that it dumped 1,090 cartons of melons while the investigator found that its records reflected sales of 193 of these cartons, we find that the investigator's audit correctly reflects respondent's obligation to complainant, and that the respondent failed to truly and correctly account to the complainant in the amount of $2,808.40 with regard to the subject shipment of produce. Respondent's failure to truly and correctly account and remit to the complainant in this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,808.40 plus interest in the amount of 13% percent per annum from May 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). The complainant filed a timely complaint in which it sought an award of reparation against respondents in the amount of $40,007.75 in connection with two transactions of grapes in interstate commerce.

Copies of the Report of Investigation made by the Department were served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served on each respondent. Respondent Central Produce El Jibarito, Inc., filed an answer thereto, denying liability. Respondent National Produce Distributors, Inc., did not file an answer to the formal complaint and therefore is in default under section 47.8(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.8(c)).

Although, the amount of damages claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000, the parties waived oral hearing. Accordingly, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable herein. Pursuant to such procedure, the parties had the opportunity to submit additional evidence in support of their respective positions by means of verified statements. Complainant did not file an opening statement and neither of the respondents filed an answering statement. None of the parties filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Dovex Imports, Inc., doing business as Unifrutti of America, hereinafter Dovex, is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 2300, Wenatchee, Washington 98801.

2. Respondent National Produce Distributors, Inc., hereinafter respondent National, is a corporation whose mailing address is 439 New York City Terminal Market, Bronx, New York 10474. At the time of the transactions involved in this proceeding, respondent National operated subject to license under the Act.

3. Respondent Central Produce El Jibarito, Inc., hereinafter El Jibarito, is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box ZZ, Caparra Heights, Kennedy Avenue, Room 3.9, Monterey Dev., Puerto Nuevo, Puerto Rico 00922. At the time of the transactions involved in this proceeding, El Jibarito was not licensed under the Act.

4. On or about May 9, 1985, in the course of interstate commerce, Dovex sold and shipped to National and a corporation known as Central Produce, Inc., Bronx, New York, hereinafter Central-New York, 2112 lugs of grapes, at a total f.o.b. price of $20,592.00

5. On or about May 20, 1985, in the course of interstate commerce, Dovex sold and shipped to National and Central-New York, 2099 lugs of grapes at a total f.o.b. price of $19,415.75.

6. Respondent National and Central-New York received and accepted both shipments of grapes in Bronx, New York.

7. Respondent National and Central-New York have yet to pay Dovex for the two shipments of grapes.

8. Dovex filed a formal complaint on October 9, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This proceeding involves the purchase of two shipments of grapes from Dovex by at least one of the respondents. Dovex alleges that National and El Jibarito, jointly and severally, purchased two shipments of grapes on or about May 9 and 20, 1985, for which the total purchase price, $40,007.75, remains due. First, we will discuss the allegations against El Jibarito.

As the moving party, the complainant has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence the affirmative allegations of its complaint. New York v. Sandler, 32 Agric. Dec. 702, 705 (1973). The first issue is jurisdiction. Dovex alleges that El Jibarito was not licensed under the Act but operated subject to the licensing requirements of the Act. (7 U.S.C. § 499d(a)). In this regard, Dovex must establish the interstate character of the transactions, i.e., that El Jibarito of Puerto Rico purchased, received and accepted two shipments of grapes in New York, shipped by Dovex from Washington. Jebavy-Sorenson v. Lynn Foods, 32 Agric. Dec. 529, 531 (1973); See Kellam v. Virginia Tomato Corp., 29 Agric. Dec. 835, 837 (1970).

The documents proffered by Dovex do not constitute sufficient evidence to establish that El Jibarito accepted the grapes in New York. Dovex proffers only an invoice and a bill of lading for each shipment. Each invoice is addressed to Central-New York. The bill of lading for the 2099 lug shipment contains two signatures of persons who received the shipment in New York. The bill of lading for the 2112 lug shipment contains a signature without further explanation. The invoices and the bills of lading are sufficient evidence to show the interstate character of the transaction but not that El Jibarito accepted the grapes in Dovex. First, the invoices are not addressed to El Jibarito. Second, the invoices do not indicate whether the addressee, Central-New York, was an authorized agent of El Jibarito in New York through which El Jibarito purchased, received, or accepted the grape shipments from Washington. Third, neither the invoices nor the bills of lading establish a legal relationship between El Jibarito and the individuals who signed the bills of lading. Thus, there is insufficient evidence of interstate operations by El Jibarito in this case. Therefore, we conclude that Dovex did not meet its burden of proving that El Jibarito operated subject to the Act and that the Secretary had jurisdiction over El Jibarito. The complaint against El Jibarito must be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

The second issue is the default of respondent National. The failure of respondent National to file an answer to the formal complaint constitutes an admission of the facts alleged in the complaint as provided in section 47.8(c) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.8(c)). Respondent National's failure to pay to Dovex the purchase price of the two shipments of grapes is in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b). Accordingly, Dovex must be awarded reparation in the amount of $40,007.75, with interest.

ORDER

The complaint against Central Produce El Jibarito, Inc., is dismissed.

Within 30 days from the date of this Order, respondent National Produce Distributors, Inc., shall pay to Dovex, as reparation, $40,007.75, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from June 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this Order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $6,234.64 in connection with a transaction involving melons in interstate commerce.

Copies of the Report of Investigation made by the Department were served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer thereto admitting liability for $3,340.50 of the purchase price and denying liability to the complainant for the remainder.

Because the amount claimed as damages was less than $15,000, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's Report of Investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file evidence in the form of verified statements. Neither party did so. Although both parties were given an opportunity to file a brief, neither party did so.

FINDING OF FACT

1. Complainant, International A. G., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1930 N.W. 23rd Street, Miami, Florida 33142.

2. Respondent, Mack C. Dempsey is an individual doing business as Mack Dempsey Co., whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1229, 758 Main Street, Gardenville, Alabama 35071. At the time of the transaction involved in this proceeding, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On January 17, 1985, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant sold and shipped to respondent, from Miami, Florida to Gardenville, Alabama, one truckload of melons consisting of cantaloupes, honeydews and watermelons, pursuant to an oral contract negotiated by A.J. Regoli, Jr., for the complainant and Gary Syracuse for the respondent, at a total agreed f.o.b. price of $6,234.64.

4. Respondent received and accepted the truckload of melons at Gardenville, Alabama.

5. Payment for the truckload of melons was due within 10 days from January 17, 1985, the date of the invoice. Respondent received the invoice without complaint.

6. On March 12, 1986, an order requiring payment of the undisputed amount of the purchase price, $3,340.50, was issued and served on both parties.

7. Complainant filed a formal complaint on November 7, 1985. It also filed an informal complaint on September 25, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This proceeding involves respondent's purchase of one truckload of mixed melons from complainant. The only issue for discussion concerns the agreed upon total purchase price for the load of melons.

Complainant alleges that the parties agreed to a total purchase price of $6,234.64 for the load, while respondent submits that the agreed upon total price is only $3,340.50. Complainant, as the moving party, has the burden of proving the essential elements of the allegations in his complaint by a preponderance of the evidence. New York v. Sandler, 32 Agric. Dec. 702, 705 (1973). The evidence submitted by the complainant consists of an invoice indicating that the total purchase price of the mixed melons was $6,234.64. The invoice does not represent the contract between the parties but is evidence of the agreed upon terms of the oral contract between the parties when, as here, it is received without objection by the buyer. Casey v. Albanese, 31 Agric. Dec. 311, 317 (1972).

The respondent claims that the total price which appears on the invoice is incorrect. Yet, respondent has submitted no substantive evidence whatsoever to support his assertion. Rather, respondent proffers a copy of the complainant's invoice which contains handwritten alterations to the prices per crate and the total purchase price. The respondent does not proffer evidence to indicate 1) who made the changes on his copy of the invoice, 2) when the price changes were made, 3) whether respondent communicated with the complainant, or attempted to communicate, that he did not agree with the prices indicated on the invoice, 4) whether the complainant agreed to any changes in the price, or 5) whether respondent took any steps to reject the truckload because of a conflict with the prices on the invoice. Therefore, we hold that the complainant, by submission of its copy of the invoice, has carried its burden of proving that the purchase price for the truckload of melons was $6,234.64.

The respondent here, having accepted the truckload of melons, is liable to the complainant for the contract purchase price as indicated by the invoice provided by the complainant. J.R. Simplot Co. v. Red L. Foods Corp., 17 Agric. Dec. 384, 390 (1958).

The order requiring payment of the undisputed amount of the purchase price, $3,340.50, issued on March 12, 1986, remains in effect. In addition, respondent is liable to the complainant for the remaining $2,894.14 of the purchase price.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this Order respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,894.14, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from February 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this Order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $4,706.75 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of six trucklots of fresh mushrooms.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant in part, but admitting liability in the total amount of $2,683.51. On September 27, 1985, an order requiring payment of the undisputed amount was issued in complainant's favor against respondent. Respondent's liability for the remaining disputed amount was left for determination in the same manner and under the same procedure as if no order for the payment of the undisputed amount had issued. See 7 U.S.C. 499g(a).

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, West Foods, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 3500, Salinas, California.

2. Respondent, Weinstein Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 7364, Boise, Idaho. At the time of the transactions involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about the following dates complainant sold and shipped to respondent five trucklots of fresh mushrooms as follows:

Date	Invoice No.	Amount
10-03-84	29827	$946.50
10-16-84	30991	1,095.50
10-26-84	32047	1,143.50
11-08-84	33291	749.75
11-21-84	34488	582.75
	TOTAL	$4,518.00

4. After receipt of each of four of the shipments of mushrooms respondent contacted complainant, and complained of poor condition in the mushrooms. Complainant told respondent no inspection was necessary, and authorized respondent to rework the mushrooms. Respondent reworked each lot of mushrooms, dumped a portion of each, and accounted to complainant for the remainder on the basis of original contract price less a $1.00 per carton charge for repacking, and less freight on the cartons dumped. Respondent paid for the shipment of October 16, 1984, in the original contract amount. The total amount which respondent has paid on all five transactions is $2,683.51.

5. The formal complaint was filed on February 25, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant brings this action to recover the balance of the purchase prices alleged to be due on six trucklots of fresh mushrooms allegedly sold by complainant to respondent. Respondent admits the purchase and receipt of five of the trucklots, but denies that a trucklot allegedly shipped on October 4, 1984, having a total invoice price of $188.75, was ordered or received by respondent. This denial by respondent was made during the informal stages of this proceeding, and was again repeated in respondent's answer. Complainant has not rebutted or in any way commented on respondent's denial. We conclude that complainant has not adequately proved that respondent purchased and received the alleged shipment of October 4, 1984.

Respondent has admitted purchase and receipt of the remaining five trucklots of fresh mushrooms, and has admitted liability to complainant for the full contract amount in regard to the shipment of October 16, 1984, having a total invoice price of $1,095.50. As to the remaining four shipments respondent maintains that it notified complainant immediately upon receipt of each such shipment, complained about the condition of the mushrooms and was granted authority by an employee of complainant named "Steve" to rework the mushrooms, and account to complainant without securing a federal inspection. Complainant has not replied to these allegations by respondent although it had ample opportunity to do so. Respondent accounted to complainant for the full purchase price of all cartons of mushrooms not dumped, less freight on the cartons dumped, and a modest fee for resorting. Complainant did not take issue with the method in which these accountings were done. We conclude from all of the evidence that respondent was authorized by a representative of complainant to deal with the mushrooms in the manner reflected by its accountings. We also conclude that no amount remains due from respondent to complainant. The complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $25,023.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of nine truck lots of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto admitting liability in the amount of $23,970.00, and denying liability to complainant for the remaining amount. On November 20, 1985, an order was issued on the basis of respondent's admission requiring that respondent pay complainant $23,970.00 as an undisputed amount.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, however, the parties have waived oral hearing, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent did not file an answering statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Mendelson-Zeller Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 450 Sansome Street, San Francisco, California.

2. Respondent, Otay Packing Co., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 3247, Chula Vista, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. Between October 4, and October 16, 1984, complainant sold and shipped to respondent 9 trucklots of fresh tomatoes, of various sizes and prices, having a total invoice cost of $25,023.00, f.o.b.

4. Respondent received and accepted all of the tomatoes on arrival. Respondent has paid complainant the full f.o.b. invoice cost in the amount of $1,053.00 for the load of tomatoes sold and shipped on October 4, 1984. Respondent has been ordered to pay complainant as an undisputed amount the full purchase price of the remaining 8 loads of tomatoes in the amount of $23,970.00.

5. An informal complaint was filed on February 13, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent admitted liability to complainant in its answer for the full purchase price of the 8 trucklots of tomatoes shipped October 6, through October 16, 1984, and a total f.o.b. invoice price of $23,970.00. Respondent was ordered to pay complainant this amount on November 20, 1985.

In its answer respondent denied owing complainant any amount on the first lot of tomatoes shipped October 4, 1984, and having a total invoice value of $1,053.00. Respondent stated that this amount had already been paid, and submitted a copy of a cancelled check dated May 17, 1985, made out to complainant in the amount $1,053.00. The copy of the stub relative to this check references the invoice number applicable to the October 4, 1984, shipment of tomatoes. Complainant, in its opening statement admits that respondent has paid in full for the October 4, 1984, shipment of tomatoes. The complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.

ORDER REQUIRING PAYMENT OF UNDISPUTED AMOUNT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed on April 28, 1986. Complainant seeks to recover $4,550.10, which amount is alleged to be the purchase price for cantaloupes sold to and accepted by respondent on or about August 2, 1985. Respondent filed an answer to the complaint on August 18, 1986. In this answer, respondent admitted owing complainant $3,211.10 of the $4,550.10 claimed by complainant.

Section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499g(a)) provides, in part:

> If after the respondent has filed his answer to the complaint, it appears therein that the respondent has admitted liability for a portion of the amount claimed in the complaint as damages, the Secretary . . . may issue an order directing the respondent to pay the complainant the undisputed amount . . . leaving the respondent's liability for the undisputed amount for subsequent determination.

Accordingly, under the authority of the above quoted section, respondent shall pay to complainant, as an undisputed amount, $3,211.10. Payment of this amount shall be made within 30 days from the date of this order with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1985, until paid. A failure to pay this amount within 30 days will constitute a violation of section 2 of the Act, 7 U.S.C. § 499b.

Respondent's liability for payment of the disputed amount is left for subsequent determination in the same manner and under the same procedure as if no order for the payment of the undisputed amount had been issued.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $4,720.50 in connection with the sale and shipment of a trucklot of mixed produce to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability, and asserted a counterclaim for $1,354.79. Complainant filed a reply, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be a part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement and respondent submitted an answering statement. Complainant also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Phoenix Vegetable Distributors, is a corporation whose address is 1932 West McDowell Road, Phoenix, Arizona. At the time of the transaction alleged in the counterclaim, complainant was licensed under the Act.

2. Respondent, Faro Vitale & Sons, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 2820 Rivard Street, Detroit, Michigan. At the time of the transaction involved in the complaint, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately March 23, 1985, complainant sold to respondent a trucklot of mixed produce consisting of 360 cartons of mustard greens at $4.15 per carton, 220 cartons of turnip greens at $4.15 per carton, 433 cartons of collard greens at $4.15 per carton, 50 sacks of turnips at $5.00 per sack, and 47 cartons of spinach at $4.65 per carton, plus $48.00 for top ice, for a total of $4,720.50, f.o.b., payment within 30 days from the date of acceptance. The contract was negotiated by a broker, Ralph Jarson, Phoenix, Arizona, with whom both parties exclusively communicated. The broker issued a confirmation of sale on March 26, 1985, which contained the agreed upon contract terms, and sent a copy to each party.

4. The mixed produce was loaded onto a truck operated by D. C. F & B, Inc., provided by a truck broker, Agra Transport Service, Inc., Phoenix, Arizona, and on March 23, 1985, was shipped in interstate commerce to respondent's place of business. Upon arrival, on or before March 28, 1985, the mixed produce was unloaded and accepted.

5. On March 28, 1985, at 11:55 a.m. respondent had the mustard, turnip and collard greens federally inspected, resulting in the following, in relevant part:

WHERE INSPECTED	Applicant's Warehouse Floor
Products Inspected:	Bunched MUSTARD, TURNIP OR COLLARD Greens in separate cartons printed "Garnish brand, Phoenix Vegetable Distributors, Phoenix, Arizona, 2 dozen." Applicant States: 360 cartons Mustard Greens, 220 cartons of Turnip Greens, 433 cartons of Collard Greens.
Condition of Load:	Stacked on pallets at above location.
Condition of Pack:	Fairly well filled, good amount of pack ice.
Temperature of Product:	In various cartons: 37°F to 38°F

Condition: Mustard Greens: Fresh and green color. No decay. Turnip Greens: Fresh and mostly green color. Damage by yellow leaves from 4 to 9 bunches per carton, average 24%. No decay. Collard Greens: Fresh and mostly green color. Damage by numerous dark brown to black spots affecting 3 to 6 leaves from 1 to 6 bunches per crate, average 14%. No decay.

6. Upon receiving the inspection results, respondent's employee, Sam Pizzo, contacted the broker, who notified complainant's employee, Eric Soper. Mr. Soper authorized respondent to handle the turnip and collard greens on consignment for complainant's account. The broker conveyed this information to respondent.

7. Respondent sold a portion of the turnip and collard greens and prepared accounts of sales, which it sent to complainant. The account of sales for the turnip greens showed 12 cartons sold on March 29, 1985, for $3.00 per carton, two on April 1, 1985 for $4.00 per carton, and 30 on April 2, 1985, for $3.00 per carton, for a total of $134.00 for the 35 cartons sold. The remaining 176 cartons were shown as dumped. Regarding the collard greens, the account of sales showed five cartons sold on March 29, 1985, at $5.00 per carton, two on April 1, 1985, at $2.00 per carton, one on April 2, 1985, for $6.50 per carton, 20 on April 2, 1985, for $3.00 per carton, and 14 on April 6, 1985, for $7.00 per carton, for a total of $187.50 for the 42 cartons sold. The remaining 391 cartons were shown as dumped.

8. On March 28, 1985, respondent paid freight to D. C. F. and B. Inc., in the amount of $1,810.85 and commission to Agra Transport Service, Inc., in the amount of $162.90, for a total of $1,973.75.

9. On August 12, 1985, the broker wrote a letter to the Department which reads as follows, in relevant part:

> Upon arrival at Faro Vitale, inspection were [sic] taken and reported to Eric Soper of Phoenix Vegetable Distributors. Sam Pizzo of Vitale were very distressed over the quality of the Collards and Turnip Greens which failed inspection. Eric Soper told me to have Vitale handle these rejected greens on consignment and to remit a full accounting of sales. To my knowledge this was done.

10. A formal complaint was filed on July 26, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

A timely counterclaim dealing with the subject matter of the complaint was filed on October 16, 1985.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent contends that after receiving the trucklot of mixed produce shipped by complainant, it obtained a federal inspection which disclosed poor condition. Respondent alleges having been told by the broker that it had consulted with complainant, who had authorized respondent to sell the merchandise on consignment for complainant's account. Respondent claims that after deducting from the proceeds of its sales the costs of freight, inspection, commission, storage and dumping, complainant is liable for $1,354.79, which respondent asserts as a counterclaim.

It is clear that respondent accepted the turnips and spinach, as respondent admits receiving them but does not allege having given notice of rejection to the broker or complainant. Farm Market Service, Inc. v. Albertson's Inc. a/t/a Southco Division, 42 Agric. Dec. 429 (1983). It is also evident that respondent accepted the greens, as the March 28, 1985, inspection report states that the products inspected, the mustard, turnip, and collard greens, were located on the warehouse floor (Finding of Fact 5). We have held that the unloading of a commodity is an exercise of dominion over it, and constitutes acceptance. Mario Saikhon v. Russell-Ward Company, Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 1940 (1975). Having accepted the produce, respondent became liable for the contract price, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty. Respondent has the burden of proving the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Farm Market Service, Inc. v. Albertson's Inc. a/t/a Southco Division, supra. Respondent also has the burden of proving its claim that the contract terms were changed to a consignment. Joe Phillips, Inc. v. G & T Terminal Packaging Co., Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 1199 (1983).

The report of investigation contains a letter, dated August 12, 1985, from the broker to the Department which states that complainant authorized a change in the contract terms to a consignment for only the turnip and collard greens. Respondent has thus sustained its burden of proving a change in the contract terms with respect to these commodities. There is no evidence in the record of any change in contract terms for the mustard greens, turnips, or spinach, nor is there any evidence that these commodities were in breach of warranty. Therefore, respondent is liable for the full contract price of $1,494.00 for the mustard greens, $250.00 for the turnips, and $218.55 for the spinach, for a total of $1,962.55.

Complainant argues that respondent mishandled the consignment sales of the turnip and collard greens, as respondent's accounts of sale show that on April 25, 1985, respondent had sold only 44 cartons of turnip greens for $134.00, while dumping the remaining 176 cartons, and sold only 42 cartons of collard greens for $187.50, while dumping the remaining 391 cartons. Respondent contends that the greens were very difficult to move because of their poor condition and the presence of competing product in the Detroit area. However, the March 28, 1985, federal inspection shows that neither commodity was greatly damaged. There was no decay, and the turnip greens exhibited only an average of 24% yellow leaves and the collard greens only an average of 14% black spots. The extent of the damage found by the inspection is not sufficient to justify the large percentage of cartons dumped. If the greens were as difficult to move as respondent asserts, respondent should have kept complainant fully informed of the situation to enable complainant to reconsign the greens or sell them itself. Jobb Packing Co., Inc. v. Peter Condakes Company, 30 Agric. Dec. 1076 (1971). However, there is no evidence that respondent made any attempt to do so. It is our conclusion that based on the evidence in the record, there is justification for dumping at most one-third of the turnip greens and none of the collard greens. Respondent is therefore liable for the value of the cartons which should not have been dumped based on the average sales price of the cartons which were sold. For the turnip greens, 44 cartons sold for $134.00, resulting in an average sales price of $3.05 per carton. Out of the 196 cartons dumped, two thirds, or 147 cartons, should have been sold, which should have brought proceeds of $448.35. For the collard greens, 42 cartons sold for $187.50, resulting in an average sales price of $4.46. Therefore, all 433 cartons in the load should have sold for $1,931.18. The 653 cartons of consigned greens should thus have brought gross proceeds of $2,379.53. Respondent is entitled to deduct commission of 15%, or $356.93. Respondent may also deduct the portion of its freight payment attributable to the 653 consigned cartons. Respondent has provided evidence that it paid shipping charges of $1,973.75 for all 1,110 cartons originally purchased from complainant. The portion of these charges which respondent may deduct is $1,161.13. An additional cost of shipping for which respondent is liable is the portion of the $48.00 for top ice provided by complainant which can be attributed to the 457 cartons sold, or $19.76. None of the other deductions alleged by respondent for dumping and storage are supported by the evidence, and the cost of inspection is not a permissable deduction.

In summary, respondent is liable to complainant for $1,962.55 for the mustard greens, turnips and spinach, $2,379.53 for the consigned turnips and collard greens, and $19.76 for top ice, totalling $4,361.84. Respondent is entitled to deduct from this sum the $1,161.13 which it paid for freight for the consigned greens, and $356.93 in commission, resulting in $2,843.78. There is no merit to respondent's counterclaim, and it must be dismissed. Respondent is liable to complainant for $2,843.78, and its failure to pay such sum is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,843.78, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from May 1, 1985, until paid.

Respondent's counterclaim is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $6,292.00 in connection with a shipment of mixed vegetables in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto. Such answer did not admit or deny its indebtedness to complainant. Respondent was therefore sent a letter advising it to show cause why an appropriate order should not be entered against it. Respondent was further advised in such letter that a failure to respond would result in the issuance of an order on admission of liability. Respondent has failed to respond. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Seaboard Produce Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 486, Camarillo, California 93011. Respondent, International A.G., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1930 N.W. 23rd Street, Miami, Florida. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $6,292.00. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $6,292.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from February 1, 1986, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

FOB Sale—Inspection—Accounting—Protection agreement—Reparation awarded. Complainant sold five lots of mangoes to respondent and such mangoes were accepted on arrival. As to four of the lots, respondent failed to subject mangoes to inspection by a neutral party and therefore failed to establish breach on the part of the complainant. Respondent also failed to submit proof of damages. As to the remaining lot of mangoes, respondent failed to prove that it was granted full protection. Adjustment in price was allowed on basis of protection for market decline which complainant admittedly granted to respondent.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $17,497.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of five lots of mangoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which defaulted in the filing of an answer. Prior to the issuance of a default order, respondent filed a motion to reopen the proceeding after default and allow the filing of an answer pursuant to section 47.25 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.25(e)). On May 6, 1985, respondent's motion was granted, respondent's default was set aside, and a proposed answer previously submitted by respondent was ordered filed and served upon complainant. Respondent's answer denied liability to complainant in the amounts claimed, and admitted liability in the amount of $6,450.00 in connection with the last shipment of mangoes. On July 2, 1985, an order was issued requiring payment of the $6,450.00 as an undisputed amount.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, the parties waived oral hearing, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, respondent filed an answering statement, and complainant filed a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Border Fruit Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1229, Hidalgo, Texas.

2. Respondent, Fruit Distributing Corp., is a corporation whose address is 746 South Central Avenue, Room 230, Los Angeles, California. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about April 30, 1984, complainant sold and shipped to respondent's customer 300 cartons of mangoes at a total price of $2,325.00, f.o.b. Respondent has paid complainant $1,425.00 in connection with this shipment of mangoes which leaves a balance still due and owing of $900.00.

4. On or about May 3, 1984, complainant shipped on one truck, to three of respondent's customers in Los Angeles, California, three lots of mangoes under separate invoices as follows: Invoice No. 6297, 1,000 cartons at a total price of $6,350.00 f.o.b.; Invoice No. 6298, 400 cartons at a total price of $2,869.00 f.o.b.; Invoice No. 6299, 507 cartons at a total price of $3,429.75 f.o.b. Complainant has paid respondent a total of $8,276.75 toward the purchase price of this truckload of mangoes.

5. On or about May 11, 1984, complainant sold and shipped to respondent one truckload containing 2,300 cartons of mangoes at a total price for the truckload of $12,225.00 f.o.b. Complainant granted respondent protection for market decline as to this load. Respondent's admission of liability in the amount of $6,450.00 related to this truckload of mangoes.

6. The formal complaint was filed on September 27, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In regard to the first two shipments of mangoes (Findings of Fact 3 and 4) respondent admits that such mangoes were sold on a f.o.b. basis. However, respondent alleges that when the mangoes arrived at the places of business of respondent's customers in Los Angeles, some of the cartons were crushed due to faulty carton construction and the mangoes were green and immature. In consequence of these alleged problems respondent has paid complainant less than the original f.o.b. purchase price for these mangoes. There are two problems with respondent's defense in regard to complainant's claim for the balance of the purchase price as to the mangoes covered by Findings of Fact 3 and 4. First, respondent did not have any inspection made of these mangoes by a neutral third party. Such inspections are necessary to establish both the fact and the percentage of defects claimed in perishable produce. See Mutual Vegetable Sales v. Select Distributors, 38 Agric. Dec. 1359 (1979). While we infer that respondent claims that all of the mangoes were immature, there is no allegation in the record as to what percentage of the mangoes are claimed to have been damaged by crushed containers. The second problem with respondent's defense in regard to the mangoes covered by Findings of Fact 3 and 4 is that respondent has furnished us with no accountings covering the resale of such mangoes. Without such accountings we would be unable to award damages to respondent even had we been able to find a breach of contract on the part of complainant. See Genbroker Corp. v. Super Food Services, 38 Agric. Dec. 83 (1979).

In regard to the last shipment of mangoes respondent claims that it was granted full protection by complainant and then it equates this with a consignment sale. However, a protection agreement is not the same thing as a consignment. See Dave Walsh Co., Inc. v. Liberty Fruit Co., Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 533 (1979). A protection agreement has reference to a base price, and concerns goods that are sold, whereas in the case of a consignment there is no sale of the produce, and the shipper at all times retains title to the produce. In this case complainant strongly maintains that this produce was sold on a f.o.b. basis, and that protection was granted to respondent only for market decline. We find on the basis of all of the evidence of record that respondent has not shown that it was granted full protection relative to the load of produce shipped on May 11, 1984, and that the protection granted was only for market decline.

A personal investigation was conducted by an employee of this Department relative to the transactions which are the subject of the dispute between complainant and respondent. This investigation revealed, on the basis of applicable Market News Service reports, that there was no market decline relative to the 1,500 size 16 or the 200 size 18 mangoes included in the shipment of May 11. However such investigation disclosed that there was a decline relative to the 200 size 12 and 400 size 14 mangoes, and that such market decline justified a protection allowance in the total amount of $550.00. We conclude that respondent should be allowed $550.00 as an adjustment to the original $12,225.00 purchase price of the mangoes shipped on May 11, 1984.

The load of mangoes shipped on April 4, 1984, had a total purchase price of $2,325.00. Respondent has paid complainant $1,425.00 of this amount which leaves a balance still due and owing of $900.00. The total f.o.b. prices of the three lots of mangoes shipped on May 3, 1984, was $12,648.75. Of this amount respondent has already paid complainant $8,276.75, which leaves a balance still due and owing of $4,372.00. The original purchase price of the mangoes shipped on May 11, 1984, was $12,255.00. We have previously found that an adjustment to this price in the amount of $550.00 should be allowed to respondent leaving a balance of $11,675.00. Of this amount respondent has already been ordered to pay $6,450.00, which leaves a balance still due as to this shipment of $5,225.00. The total which we have found to be still due and owing from respondent to complainant in this proceeding is $10,497.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $10,497.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $1,512.00 in connection with one transaction in foreign commerce involving broccoli, a perishable agricultural commodity.

Both parties were served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant. In addition, respondent filed a counterclaim against complainant seeking payment of brokerage in the amount of $201.60 in connection with the same transaction made the subject of the complaint.

As the amount in dispute is less than $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was followed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. Also, the parties were given the opportunity to file further evidence by way of verified statements. Complainant filed a verified opening statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDING OF FACT

1. Complainant, Byrd Produce Company, is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 965, Guadalupe, California 93434.

2. Respondent, Lowell V. Schy is an individual, doing business as Lowell Schy Brokerage, whose mailing address is 7568 North Valentine, Fresno, California 93711.

3. At all material times complainant and respondent were licensed under the Act.

4. On January 6, 1985, respondent contacted complainant seeking to purchase 1008 cartons of broccoli, size 18, on behalf of his client, Lenson Celery, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. The parties agreed that complainant would ship such a lot of broccoli to Lenson Celery with the latter to pay complainant $5.50 per carton ($5,544.00), plus 85¢ per carton for cooling and palletizing ($856.80), 20¢ per carton for brokerage ($201.60), $77.50 for top ice, and $22.50 for a Ryan recording thermometer, for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $6,702.40.

Complainant was to pay respondent $201.60 as brokerage. Later that same day, complainant discovered that it was not able to harvest enough broccoli from its own fields to satisfy the contractual agreement. Mr. Chad Smith, complainant's General Manager and Sales Manager, telephoned respondent with that information, and was informed by respondent that he did not care whose broccoli complainant shipped. Complainant, therefore, purchased the broccoli from another shipper whose brand name was "Uncle Miltie," and, after notification to respondent of this purchase, shipped the broccoli to Lenson Celery on January 7, 1986. Respondent issued a broker's memorandum of sale also on January 7, 1986, indicating that the complainant agreed to ship "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli to Lenson Celery. Presumably, the memorandum was sent to, and received by, both complainant and Lenson Celery.

5. Lenson Celery received and accepted the "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli shipped by complainant. No inspection was made of the broccoli after it was received and, as there was no complaint as to its quality by Lenson Celery or respondent, it appears to have arrived in good order. However, Lenson Celery has paid complainant only $5,190.40, or $1.50 per carton less than was agreed upon between complainant and respondent. Lenson Celery refused to pay the full agreed purchase price because it allegedly was not satisfied with the brand of broccoli shipped by complainant. Respondent was aware, before the broccoli was shipped, that complainant was shipping "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli and expressed no concern regarding its shipment.

6. Complainant has not paid respondent the $201.60 brokerage owed the latter for this transaction.

7. The informal complaint was filed on June 14, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In this reparation proceeding the sole issue is whether the respondent, a broker, negotiated a binding contract between complainant and Lenson Celery for the 1008 cartons of broccoli. It appears from the record that Lenson Celery had a strong dislike for "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli. The record does not reflect any cause for such dislike. However, the record is clear that Lenson Celery refused to pay the full $5.50 contract price, despite the good arrival of the broccoli, solely because of the brand of broccoli shipped rather than because of any grade or condition defect in existence. Were Lenson Celery subject to the Act and were it the respondent, under these facts, we would have no qualms about ordering it to pay the complainant the balance due. Van Buren County

Fruit Exch. v. B. F. Roberts Farms, 28 Agric. Dec. 1365 (1969). As it is not, we must decide whether respondent has any liability for the failure of Lenson Celery to pay the full contract price for the broccoli. Respondent knew that complainant was shipping "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli. He should have known that Lenson Celery would not accept this brand at the contract price.[1] His failure, under these circumstances to notify complainant not to ship the "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli was therefore a failure to perform the specifications and duties of a broker in violation of section 2 of the Act, and caused complainant to be damaged in the amount of $1,512.00. Salinas v. Wholesale, et al., 31 Agric. Dec. 1453 (1972).

Respondent claims that complainant has not paid it the $210.60 brokerage due for this shipment. Complainant does not deny this. Accordingly, we hold that complainant is obligated to respondent in this amount.

On the basis of the record contained herein, we find that respondent is obligated to complainant in the amount of $1,310.40 ($1,512.00 −$201.60), and that his failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of the Act for which reparation plus interest ought to be awarded.

In view of the above, the respondent's counterclaim ought to be dismissed.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay complainant, as reparation, $1,310.40 plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from February 1, 1985, until paid.

The counterclaim is dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

---

[1] If he did not know whether or not Lenson Celery would accept an alternative brand, under the circumstances, respondent should have checked with Lenson Celery to determine whether the "Uncle Miltie" brand broccoli complainant proposed to ship was acceptable or whether any broccoli other than that grown by complainant was acceptable before agreeing to allow complainant to ship any alternative brand. Had he done so, perhaps the filing of this action could have been avoided.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $7,720.20 in connection with a shipment of produce in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, apparently admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. On September 18, 1986, the Department sent a letter to respondent giving respondent 10 days from its receipt thereof to show cause why a reparation order should not immediately be issued against it, based on respondent's apparent admission of liability. Respondent has submitted a letter, but it does not deal with the issue of the apparent admission of liability, and thus is insufficient to prevent the immediate issuance of a reparation order against respondent. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Sun World International, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 9110, Bakersfield, California. Respondent, International A.G., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1930 N.W. 23rd Street, Miami, Florida. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $7,720.20. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $7,720.20, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from May 1, 1986, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

ORDER REQUIRING PAYMENT OF UNDISPUTED AMOUNT

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed on May 5, 1986. Complainant seeks to recover $28,965.80, which amount is alleged to be the purchase price for tomatoes sold to and accepted by respondent between October 21 and December 8, 1985. Respondent filed an answer to the complaint on August 22, 1986. In this answer, respondent admitted owing complainant $23,290.00 of the $28,965.70 claimed by complainant.

Section 7(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499g(a)) provides, in part:

> If after the respondent has filed his answer to the complaint, it appears therein that the respondent has admitted liability for a portion of the amount claimed in the complaint as damages, the Secretary . . . may issue an order directing the respondent to pay the complainant the undisputed amount . . . leaving the respondent's liability for the undisputed amount for subsequent determination.

Accordingly, under the authority of the above quoted section, respondent shall pay to complainant, as an undisputed amount, $23,290.00. Payment of this amount shall be made within 30 days from the date of this order with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from January 1, 1986, until paid. A failure to pay this amount within 30 days will constitute a violation of section 2 of the Act, 7 U.S.C. § 499b.

Respondent's liability for payment of the disputed amount is left for subsequent determination in the same manner and under the same procedure as if no order for the payment of the undisputed amount had been issued.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). Three timely complaints were filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the total amount of $3,864.00, in connection with the shipment of three loads of produce in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. In addition, respondent was served with a copy of each of the three individual complaints filed by complainant, and filed an answer to each of them in each of which it denied any further liability to complainant.

As the total amount claimed in the three formal complaints did not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, but neither party did so. Also, neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Harry Shaffer, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1272, Parkersburg, West Virginia 26102.

2. Respondent, Van Solkema Farms, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 308, Byron Center, Michigan 49315. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about July 31, 1984, respondent was contacted by Mr. John Mankin, an employee of complainant, and asked to handle 324 cartons of cantaloupes which had been rejected by complainant's original customer, Tony-Lin Produce, Inc., 2701 Russel Street, Detroit, Michigan 48207, on a price after sale basis. Respondent arranged for the cantaloupes to be handled by J. A. Besteman Co. of Grand Rapids, Michigan. On or about August 28, 1984, the parties agreed on a price of $7.00 per carton, or a total of $2,268. Respondent, claiming that 127 of the 324 cartons were unmerchantable, paid complainant for only 197 cartons at $7.00 per carton ($1,379.00). The disposition of the remaining 127 cartons of cantaloupes is unknown.

4. On or about August 2, 1984, repsondent was again contacted by complainant's employee, Mr. John Mankin. This time, respondent was asked to unload 175 cartons, which previously had been rejected by at least one of complainant's customers, from a truck and to "dispose of them even if they have to be dumped." After looking at the shipment, respondent concluded that the cantaloupes were not salable and, with complainant's permission, had it dumped. At no time did respondent accept this lot of cantaloupe.

5. On or about August 5, 1984, respondent purchased 500 cartons of eggplant from complainant at a total agreed f.o.b. price of $5,250.00, or $10.50 per carton. Complainant had paid $8.50 per carton for the eggplant, or $4,250.00. Respondent has remitted to complainant at a rate of $7.00 per carton, or $3,500.00.

6. Each of the three complaints involved herein was filed on April 11, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action therein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

In reparation matters under the Act, complainants have the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, the terms of the contract, respondent's breach of such contract, and the resulting damages, if any, sustained by it. New York v. Sandler, 32 Agric. Dec. 702 (1973). In a case involving a shipper as a complainant, once the complainant has proven that a respondent has received and accepted a load of produce and has not paid for it, the complainant has satisfied his burden. Then, the burden of proof shifts to the respondent who has to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that it was damaged by a breach of contract committed by complainant and the amount of those damages. Rocky Ford Dist. Co. v. Angel Produce, 29 Agric. Dec. 93 (1970); The Grower-Shopper Pot. Co. v. Southw. Pro. Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 511 (1969).

Each of the three subject shipments must be viewed independently. As to the July 31, 1984, shipment of 324 cartons of cantaloupes, the only dispute surrounds the disposition of 127 cartons of cantaloupes. Respondent, which admits receiving and accepting all 324 cartons, has failed to adduce any evidence regarding the disposition of the missing 127 cartons. It could have, but it did not, provide documentation showing that its customer, J. A. Besteman Co., dumped or lost the 127 cartons. Respondent's self-serving assertion in its answer that this occurred is not sufficient for it to carry its burden of proof.[1] Leo Young, Inc. v. J. Schlanger & Sons, 16 Agric. Dec. 716 (1957). Accordingly, we must hold respondent liable to complainant for the full contract price for the 324 cartons of cantaloupes ($2,268.00). As it has paid complainant $1,379.00 for this lot, it remains obligated to complainant in the amount of $889.00 and its failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded. In so ruling, we are not unmindful of the fact that the cantaloupes had previously been rejected by the original purchaser. However, we are constrained by respondent's failure to submit proof as to the disposition of the 127 cartons for which it has failed to pay complainant to rule in complainant's favor.

As to the August 2, 1984, shipment of 175 cartons of cantaloupes, complainant has failed to prove that respondent had entered into any kind of contractual arrangement with it which would have obligated respondent to pay it for the cantaloupes. The record indicates that this lot of cantaloupes, which had earlier been rejected by complainant's customer, arrived at respondent's location in an unsalable condition, and that all respondent agreed to do was to unload the cantaloupes from the truck for the purpose of dumping them. Accordingly, the complaint as to this lot of cantaloupes must be dismissed.

The dispute as to the August 5, 1984, shipment of 500 cartons of eggplant solely focuses on the price agreed upon between the parties. Complainant asserts that the price was $10.50 per case. In support of its position, complainant has shown that its cost for the eggplant was $8.50 per carton. On the other hand, respondent asserts that the price agreed upon was $7.00 per carton, but has offered no evidence in support thereof. As respondent has failed to adduce any evidence in support of its position, and as it is illogical to assume that, barring any evidence that the condition of the eggplant had deteriorated, a shipper would sell produce for $1.50 per carton less than its cost, we must hold that the parties agreed upon a price of $10.50 per carton. The total price agreed upon by the parties was $5,250.00. Respondent has already paid complainant $3,500.00. It, therefore, remains obligated to complainant in the amount of $1,750.00, and its failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

[1] Had respondent submitted a sworn affidavit from J. A. Besteman Co., we might have ruled otherwise. However, it is now too late to reopen the record for admission of such a document. See 7 CFR § 47.24(b).

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay complainant, as reparation, $2,639.00 ($889 + $1,750) plus interest at the rate of 13 percent per annum from September 1, 1984, until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.), hereinafter, "the Act." A timely complaint was filed in which complainant now seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the total amount of $13,920.00, in connection with the sale of 2,320 flats of avocados in interstate commerce. A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent. Respondent filed an Answer on August 21, 1985.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000, the shortened method of procedure set forth in the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence herein, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file evidence in the form of additional sworn statements. Complainant availed itself of this opportunity, but respondent failed to file its statement in a timely manner. No further statements were filed by the parties. Complainant filed a brief while respondent chose not to do so.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. J. R. Brooks & Son, Inc. is a corporation whose business mailing address is P.O. Box Drawer 9, Homestead, Florida 33090.

2. Atlantic Tropical Marketing Corp. is a corporation whose business address is 729 Clinton Street, Hoboken, New Jersey 07030. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about July 16, 1984 by oral agreement, complainant sold to respondent 2,320 flats of avocados at the agreed price of $6.00 per flat for a total cost of $13,920.00, delivered.

4. Pursuant to this contract, on July 17, 1984, complainant shipped the 2,320 flats of avocados from its place of business to the respondent by truck. Immediately prior to this shipment the avocados were inspected and found to be in suitable shipping condition.

5. The shipment of avocados was delivered to the respondent and signed for by an employee of respondent on July 20, 1984. The truck carrying this shipment had a refrigeration unit which maintained the temperature at 42 degrees Fahrenheit during the entire trip. I116. Complainant billed respondent $13,920.00 for this shipment which respondent has failed to pay.

7. An informal complaint in this proceeding was filed on January 21, 1985, which was within the nine months after the cause of action accrued. The formal complaint was then filed on May 24, 1985.

CONCLUSIONS

The record in this proceeding clearly supports an order requiring respondent to pay complainant the full amount billed for the avocados which were delivered to respondent. The evidence demonstrates that during the period from at least July 17, 1984, through December 11, 1984, the parties entered into numerous oral contracts for the sale of both avocados and limes by complainant to respondent. With respect to the shipment in question, complainant's sworn statements and documentation support the conclusion that the avocados were shipped to respondent pursuant to an oral contract at an agreed invoice amount of $13,920.00. Complainant's evidence further supports the conclusion that the avocados were signed for and accepted by an employee of respondent and were delivered in suitable condition.

Respondent claims in its Answer that it never contracted for the produce in question and that it duly rejected the goods on arrival, such rejection having been accepted by complainant. However, since respondent has not provided any evidence to support the allegations in its answer, it is concluded that respondent contracted for and accepted the avocados, as supported by complainant's evidence. Gafford v. Bananas, Inc.., 17 Agric. Dec. 360 (1958); See Harland W. Chidsey Farms v. Geurin, 27 Agric. Dec. 384 (1968).

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $13,920.00 with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from September 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). The complainant timely filed an informal complaint in which the complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $14,241.60 in connection with two shipments of grapes in interstate commerce.

Copies of the Report of Investigation made by the Department were served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer thereto denying liability.

Because the amount claimed as damages was less than $15,000, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's Report of Investigation. In addition, the parties had the opportunity to file evidence in the form of verified statements. Complainant filed an opening statement and affidavits from its employees, Rick Eastes and William Karney. The respondent filed affidavits from Fred Durante, president of respondent company, and Ralph Jarson, a broker for the respondent. Both parties filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Granada Marketing, Inc., hereinafter referred to as Granada, is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 3006, Visalia, California 93278.

2. Respondent, Durante and Termini, Inc., hereinafter referred to as Durante, is a corporation whose mailing address is 39–41 South Water Market, Chicago, Illinois 60608. At the time of the transactions involved herein, Durante was licensed under the Act.

3. On September 7, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, Granada sold and shipped to Durante, from Visalia, California to Chicago, Illinois, 1680 lugs of Thompson Seedless Grapes pursuant to an oral contract negotiated by William Karney, a salesman employed by Granada and Ralph Jarson, a broker for Durante, at a f.o.b. price of $12,958.50, invoice #19774.

4. Durante received and accepted the September 7, 1984 shipment.

5. Granada acknowledged that there was full payment for the September 7, 1984 shipment after submission of the formal complaint, due to a price adjustment.

6. On October 9, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, Granada sold and shipped to Durante, from Strathmore, California to Chicago, Illinois, 1380 lugs of U.S. No. 1 table grapes, 930 lugs Thompson Seedless @$12.00 per lug, 180 lugs Emperor @$9.00, and 270 lugs Ruby Seedless @$12.00, pursuant to an oral contract negotiated by William Karney for Granada and Ralph Jarson for Durante, total f.o.b. price of $17,008.50, invoice #19838.

7. Durante received the 1380 lugs of grapes on October 12, 1984.

8. Durante obtained a federal inspection of the grapes at 11:30 a.m. on October 12, 1984 which rated the condition of the grapes, in pertinent part, as follows:

> Each lot: Berries generally firm and firmly attached to capstems.
>
> Ruby Seedless lot: Stems mostly green, some turning brown and pliable. Average 3% shattered. Decay in most lugs none, in some 3 berries.
> Thompson Seedless lot: Stems generally turning brown and pliable. From 3 to 12% per lug, average 7% shattered. Average less than 1% decay.

Emperor lot: Stems generally green. Average 1% shattered. Decay in most lugs none, in many 3 berries.

9. The condition of the 1380 lugs of table grapes was within the range of tolerance of grade U.S. No. 1 Table as prescribed in 7 CFR 51.880 et seq.

10. Durante paid Granada $9,486.90 for the October 9, 1984 shipment of 1380 lugs of grapes.

11. Granada filed a formal complaint on June 24, 1985, and an informal complaint on March 29, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein acccrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This reparation proceeding involves only the October 9, 1984 transaction, i.e. the purchase of 1380 lugs of assorted grapes by Durante, since complainant acknowledged full payment with respect to the September 7, 1984 transaction. Granada alleges that Durante purchased the grapes on October 9, 1984, but has yet to remit the balance of the purchase price, $7,521.60. In this case, rejection and misrepresentation are the two issues which dictate the necessity of an order in favor of Granada.

As the moving party, the complainant has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence the affirmative allegations of this complaint. New York v. Sandler, 32 Agric. Dec. 702, 705 (1973). Granada met its burden in this case. The invoice #19838, bill of lading, and confirmation of sale letter from Durante's broker, Mr. Jarson, proffered by Granada, show the existence of a contract for 1380 lugs of assorted U.S. No. 1 Table grapes between Granada and Durante and the agreed upon price terms. Durante claims that the parties agreed to change the price terms becuse of the poor condition of the grapes upon arrival in Chicago on October 12, 1984. Durante proffers verified statements from Mr. Durante and Mr. Jarson which state that on October 12, 1984, Mr. Durante and Mr. Jarson called Granada to complain about the quality of the grapes and to negotiate a change in the price per lug term to a price after sale agreement. During the telephone call, Mr. Jarson orally communicated his understanding of the federal inspection results to Mr. Karney. It seems that Mr. Durante intended his telephone complaint to serve as a notice of rejection and his oral report of the federal inspection results to be sufficient proof of the poor condition of the grapes to persuade Granada to alter the price per lug term of the original contract.

The October 12, 1984 telephone complaint was not sufficient to constitute rejection. Notice of rejection must be in clear and unmistakable terms, such that a mere complaint is not sufficient. Mario Saikhon v. Russel-Ward Co., Inc., 34 Agric. Dec. 1940 (1975); Jarson & Zerilla Co., Inc. v. P. Tavilla Co., Inc., 30 Agric. Dec. 1360 (1971); Schley v. Mercurio, 23 Agric. Dec. 862 (1964). Therefore, Durante is deemed to have accepted the 1380 lugs of assorted grapes and is liable for the full purchase price as of October 12, 1984.

The second issue is misrepresentation. We find that Mr. Durante misrepresented the condition of the grapes to Granada. Mr. Durante's state of mind is shown by his statement that he knew the grapes were in poorer condition than the inspection report showed. However, by law, the federal inspection report is prima facie evidence of the facts set forth therein. Commonwealth Fruit & Produce Co., Inc. v. Idaho Falls Bonded Produce & Supply Co., 32 Agric. Dec. 1734, 1738 (1978). Because Mr. Durante failed to inform Granada's representative Mr. Karney accurately of the true inspection results, Granada is permitted to rescind the price after sale novation. Mendelson-Zeller Co. v. W.M. Turino Co., 32 Agric. Dec. 1972, 1981 (1973); Tom Bengard Ranch Inc. v. Tomatoes, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1637, 1639 (1982). On October 12, 1984, the federal inspector orally reported to Durante the condition of the grapes which eventually would appear on the written certificate. Mr. Durante states that he did not agree with the federal inspector's quality evaluation and communicated his personal evaluation, as well as the results of the federal inspection, to Mr. Jarson. On the same day, Mr. Jarson called Mr. Karney at Granada to complain about the quality of the grapes and read the results of the inspection, given to him by phone, to Mr. Karney. Mr. Karney recorded Mr. Jarson's communication on Granada's notice of complaint form and cited the condition of the grapes as follows:

> Ruby Lot—3% Shatter, Decay in Most, Some none, Avg. 3% decay. Thompson Lot—1% Shatter, 3-12 Avg. 7% Serious damage by wet crushed and split. 1% damage by Brown discoloration, 1% decay.

Grapes of this quality would not qualify for a grade U.S. No. 1 Table as prescribed in 7 CFR § 51.880 et seq., and thus there would be a breach of the contract between the parties. As the result of Mr. Durante's and Mr. Jarson's inducement and the degree of damage reported by Mr. Jarson, Mr. Karney agreed to change the price per lug terms to a price after sale agreement, which Mr. Jarson confirmed on October 17, 1984. Durante then sold the 1380 lugs for $9,486.90 on or before November 15, 1984, and remitted the same to Granada. Shortly thereafter, Granada received the written federal inspection certificate. The certificate revealed that the condition of the grapes was within the range of tolerance for grade

U.S. No. 1 Table, and therefore, not a breach of the contract. Mr. Karney stated that he would not have agreed to the price after sale arrangement if he had known of the true results of the federal inspection. The totality of the evidence submitted is dispositive of the truth in Mr. Karney's statement. Durante misrepresented the true condition of the grapes received by Granada. Granada relied on this misrepresentation when it agreed to the price after sale novation. Accordingly, the novation must be declared as void and the original terms of the contract remain in force. Durante is liable for the full purchase price of $17,008.50 less the amount already remitted, $9,486.90. Granada must be awarded reparation in the amount of $7,521.60.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this Order, respondent Durante and Termini, Inc., shall pay to Granada, as reparation, $7,521.60, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from November 1, 1984, until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $4,000.00 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement and respondent filed an answering statement. Complainant also filed a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Bonita Packing Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 309, Bonita Springs, Florida.

2. Respondent, Pete Pappas & Sons, is a partnership composed of Peter G. Pappas and Philip G. Pappas whose address is P.O. Box 1292, Washington, D.C. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 20, 1985, complainant sold to respondent one truckload of tomatoes containing 400 size 6×6, 800 size 6×7, and 400 size 7×7, f.o.b., "to be priced on next week's market."

4. Complainant shipped the tomatoes to respondent on January 20, 1985, and the tomatoes were received and accepted by respondent on arrival. Respondent has paid complainant $13,040.00 for the tomatoes.

5. The formal complaint was filed on May 10, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant states in its informal complaint that the tomatoes were sold "with the agreement, with the broker, that they would be billed out Tuesday, the 22nd, or Wednesday, the 23rd, when the market was established." Respondent states in its answer that the agreement was that the tomatoes "would be priced on 'next week's market' ". The record shows that the contract was negotiated through a broker, Frank DeTrani, who both parties admit was acting as an agent for respondent. This broker issued a broker's memorandum of sale which clearly stated on the face thereof "to be priced on next week's market".

Respondent takes the position that the term "next week's market" is not a specific contractual understanding and that the term must be interpreted to mean "market protection or open basis". It is true that the term generically falls into the category of an "open price term" as those words are used in UCC § 2-305, i.e. "The parties if they so intend can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled". However, the succeeding sentence providing for a reasonable price at time of delivery does not apply since none of the three prescribed conditions is applicable. See A. Duda & Sons, Inc. v. Pete Pappas & Sons, PACA Docket No. 2-6940, 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (1986). The term "to be priced on next week's market" should be given its plain and simple meaning, that is, the average prices for the following week. See Id.

Federal-State Market News reports issued out of the Jessup, Maryland office show shipping point tomato prices from South ahd Central Florida beginning with Wednesday, January 23, 1985. (The reports for Monday and Tuesday show that the market was unsettled with practically all sale prices to be established later). The Wednesday report shows that 85% or better U.S. No. 1 quality tomatoes were selling for $18.00 per carton for size 6×6, $16.00 per carton for size 6×7 and $12.00 per carton for size 7×7. The reports for Thursday and Friday of that week show the same prices.

Complainant voluntarily reduced the amounts claimed on this load to $13.00 for the size 6×6, $11.00 for the size 6×7, and $7.00 for the size 7×7, plus $.15 per carton for palletizing, or a total of $17,040.00. Under the circumstances of this case we consider this to be a reasonable price, and in conformity with the contract between the parties. Respondent has already paid complainant $13,040.00 of this amount leaving a balance still due and owing of $4,000.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $4,000.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from February 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation from respondent in the amount of $1,352.00 in connection with a transaction in interstate commerce involving lettuce, a perishable agricultural commodity.

Both parties were served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint and filed an answer thereto in which it denied any further liability to complainant.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was followed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered part of the evidence of the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to file further evidence by way of verified statements. Complainant filed a certified opening statement, and respondent filed a verified answering statement. Complainant also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Richard S. Brown, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 4729, Salinas, California 93912.

2. Respondent, Post & Taback, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 253-256 N.Y.C. Terminal Market, Bronx, New York 10474. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On April 11, 1985, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant sold, by oral contract, 410 cartons of lettuce, a perishable agricultural commodity, to respondent at an agreed f.o.b. price of $3.50 per carton ($1,435.00) plus 65 cents per carton for cooling ($266.50) for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $1,701.50. The contract was negotiated through Tom Lange Co., Inc., Salinas, California, acting as the broker.

4. The lettuce was shipped by complainant on April 11, 1985, and arrived at respondent's location late on April 15, 1985. It was the subject of a federal inspection on April 16, 1985, at respondent's business location after it had been unloaded from the truck. The lettuce had been unloaded to enable respondent to reach a lot of asparagus, shipped by someone other than complainant, which was loaded in the nose of the truck. The inspector noted the condition of the lettuce as follows: "Generally fresh and crisp wrapper leaves no decay. Head leaves 2 to 6 heads per carton average 17% damage by Tipburn 1 to 4 heads per carton average 10% Bacterial Soft Rot in various stages affecting 1 to 2 leaves."

5. Respondent reported the condition of the lettuce to the Tom Lange Co., Inc., which, in turn, reported it to complainant. The broker, however, erroneously reported to complainant that the lettuce had not been unloaded from the truck. Complainant, based on the information that the lettuce had not been unloaded and its condition, agreed to have respondent handle the lettuce on consignment. Tom Lange Co., Inc., issued a broker's confirmation as to this agreement.

6. On or about April 15, 1985, respondent accounted to complainant for the lettuce as follows:

Units	Price	Total
15	$6.00	90.00
180	5.50	990.00
195	5.00	975.00
20	4.00	80.00
410			$2,135.00
Less: Freight			$1400.00
Term. Chg.			6.15
Inspection			40.30
Unloading @15¢/carton			61.50
Commission (13%)			277.55
			$1,785.50
			$349.50

7. Respondent sent complainant a check in the amount of $349.00 which complainant refused to negotiate until respondent released it as an undisputed amount. The check has now been paid.

8. The complaint was filed on October 7, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

There is no dispute in this case as to whether the lettuce failed to make good delivery. Complainant concedes this point. See also 7 CFR § 46.44(a). Rather, the dispute focuses first on whether the complainant's agreement to have respondent handle the lettuce on consignment was obtained through misrepresentation and consequently is voidable, and secondly on the amount which the complainant should have realized from the sale of the damaged lettuce. The facts related to the first issue, whether complainant was made fully aware of all material matters prior to agreeing to allow the respondent to handle the lettuce on consignment must be decided in complainant's favor. The broker, in contacting complainant on respondent's behalf in order to notify the former as to the condition of the lettuce and to make an offer to allow respondent to handle the lettuce on consignment, was operating as an agent for respondent. PACA Docket No. 5562, 13 Agric. Dec. 89 (1954). Thus, when the broker incorrectly informed the complainant that the lettuce had not been unloaded off the truck, the broker was acting as an agent for respondent and the giving of this misinformation is attributable to it. Complainant states that, had it known the lettuce had been unloaded off the truck at the time it received the broker's phone call, it would have taken the position that respondent had accepted the lettuce and would not have given it permission to handle the lettuce on consignment. That complainant's permission was obtained through use of this misinformation is undisputed. Consequently, we must conclude that the agreement permitting respondent to handle the lot of lettuce on consignment is void, and that the rights and liabilities of the parties should be determined by the terms of the original f.o.b. sales contract. Mendelson-Zeller v. Wm. Turino Co., 32 Agric. Dec. 1972 (1973).

It is clear that, under the Act, the respondent accepted the lettuce by unloading it from the truck. Barkley Co. of Ariz. v. Phil Dattilo & Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 537 (1969). Accordingly, it became liable for the agreed contract price less provable damages resulting from any breach of contract committed by complainant. Edward Hiller, Jr. v. Mickelian Sales, 29 Agric. Dec. 82 (1970). As noted above, it is clear that complainant breached the parties' contract. See Ritter-Robinson v. C. L. Fain Co., Inc., 29 Agric. Dec. 1416 (1970). Accordingly, respondent is entitled to deduct its damages from the parties' agreed contract price. It is noted that, although it claimed it was entitled to the full contract price when it filed its formal complaint, in its opening statement and in its brief, complainant conceded that, at best, it is entitled to $1,232.00 which it computes as follows: the parties' contract price ($1,701.50) less respondent's damages of $120 (or the Market News price of the lettuce ($2,255.00 or $5.50 ×410) less the gross sales received by respondent ($2,135.00)) less the amount already paid by respondent ($349.00). Respondent claims that complainant has received all to which it is entitled. Neither position is correct.

Respondent's damages are computed by subtracting the actual value of the lettuce received from the value it would have had had it been as called for under the contract. The value of the lettuce had it met contract requirements is the f.o.b. price ($1,701.50) plus freight ($1,400.00), or $3,101.50. The value of the lettuce actually received by respondent is the total of the gross sales received by respondent from its prompt resale of it, or $2,135.00. Respondent's damages, therefore, are $966.50 ($3,101.50 −$2,135.00). Subtracting this amount from the agreed contract price ($1,701.50) leaves a balance due complainant of $735.00. Respondent should have paid complainant this amount. Babijuice Corp. of Florida v. J. L. Lustig & Son, 17 Agric. Dec. 32 (1958). However, it only paid complainant $349.50. Accordingly, respondent remains liable to complainant in the amount of $385.50. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay complainant $385.50, as reparation, plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from May 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation against respondent in the amount of $3,603.30 in connection with one transaction, in interstate and foreign commerce, involving mixed melons, each being a perishable agricultural commodity.

Each party was served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Also respondent was served with a copy of the formal complaint and filed an answer thereto denying any further liability to complainant with respect to the subject shipment. In addition, respondent filed a counterclaim against complainant seeking reparation in the amount of $12,500.00 in connection with the same transaction as was made the subject of the complaint.

As neither the amount involved in the complaint nor in the counterclaim exceeds $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was applicable. Under this procedure, the Department's report of investigation, as well as the verified pleadings of the parties, are made part of the evidence of the case. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to submit further evidence by way of verified statements, however, neither party did so. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Cal-Mex Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1717, Chula Vista, California 92012.

2. Respondent, Jos. Notarianni & Company, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 301 Genet Street, Scranton, Pennsylvania 18505.

3. At all material times, both complainant and respondent were licensed under the Act.

4. On June 6, 1985, in the course of interstate and foreign commerce, complainant sold to respondent, by oral contract, through H&M Brokerage Co., P.O. Box 1781, Oxnard, California 93032, acting as a broker, a truck load of mixed Mexican melons consisting of 840 cartons of honeydews at $4.65 per carton ($3,906.00) and 500 cartons of cantaloupes at $4.80 per carton ($2,400.00) plus $22.50 for a Ryan recording thermometer for a total agreed f.o.b.

price of $6,328.50. The shipment was picked up on that same date, at 2:00 p.m., and the trucker was instructed to maintain the temperature at 36° F. en route.

5. The truck arrived at respondent's location on June 11, 1985, where it was unloaded and, at 8:45 a.m. of that day, was the subject of a federal inspection. The inspector noted that the temperature of the melons ranged from 41° F. to 44° F. He noted the condition of the melons as follows:

> Cantaloupe lot: Generally hard. Ground color mostly green, some turning. Decay ranges 1 to 3 melons in most cartons, none in some, averages 7% Fusarium Rot various stages mostly early. Select Melon Honeydew lot: Generally hard. Ground color greenish white to white. In most cartons no decay. 1 melon in some averages 4% Cladosporium Rot in various stages. Melon Honeydew lot: Mostly ripe and Firm, some firm. Ground color mostly cream color, some white. Decay ranges 2 to 4 melons in most cartons, none in some, averages 11% Cladosporium Rot in various stages.

6. Respondent notified the broker as to the results of the Federal inspection. The broker contacted Mr. George Ellis, an employee of complainant's, who agreed to have the melons transshipped to Shapiro and Cohen, Inc., 153-155 New York City Terminal Market, Hunts Point, New York 10474, for handling on consignment. Subsequently, on or about June 25, 1985, Shapiro and Cohen returned $2,725.20 to complainant.

7. A formal complaint was filed on July 29, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The dispositive issue in this case is whether complainant's employee, Mr. George Ellis, agreed to the novation of the parties' original contract and to the broker's suggestion that the melons be handled for complainant's account by Shapiro and Cohen. While the Department's report of investigation contains a statement from the broker to that effect, the complainant has not submitted any statement from Mr. Ellis contradicting it. Complainant's president, Mr. Robert Villalobos, did state, in his verified reply to respondent's counterclaim, that Mr. Ellis did not enter into any such agreement. However, Mr. Villalobos did not explain how he had such knowledge and we cannot, therefore, attribute very much weight to it. In view of this, we hold that the preponderance of the evidence supports a conclusion that complainant, through its agent

Mr. Ellis, agreed that the truck load of melons could be transferred from respondent's location to that of Shapiro and Cohen in order for the latter to handle the melons for complainant's account. Baldwin v. Harrisburg Daily Market, 10 Agric. Dec. 589 (1951); PACA Docket No. 5337, 10 Agric. Dec. 1468 (1951). Accordingly, the complaint should be dismissed.[1]

We next must deal with respondent's counterclaim. As respondent has not adduced any proof of its claimed damages, such counterclaim must be dismissed. Carol-Ann Produce v. C&J Farms, 32 Agric. Dec. 1869 (1973). Moreover, respondent's claims for lost profits, and for punitive damages appear to be frivolous and would not have been granted in any event. S. P. Lipoma v. C.H. Robinson, 29 Agric. Dec. 499 (1970); Corley Produce Co. v. Gar Produce Co., 19 Agric. Dec. 33 (1960).

ORDER

The complaint is dismissed.
The counterclaim is dismissed.
Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Lack of personal knowledge—Burden of proof—Reasonable value—Reparation awarded.

Respondent failed to submit verified answers and there was no showing that person making answering statement had personal knowledge of facts. Consequently, it was found that sale was FOB as alleged by complainant. In addition, the accounting and federal inspection report submitted by respondent were not used. Nevertheless, admissions by complainant were held to show that the sale was of U.S. No. 1 product and that there was a prompt rejection by respondent. Complainant, as a consequence of the effective rejection, had the burden of proving that it complied with the contract and failed to meet such burden. Respondent disposed of the produce and was therefore liable to the complainant for their reasonable value, which in the absence of an accounting, was shown by market reports.

[1] It is noted that complainant has received payment from Shapiro and Cohen. However, the record does not reflect whether complainant has negotiated that check. In view of our holding, if complainant has not already done so, it is suggested that it immediately deposit the Shapiro and Cohen check into its account.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $3,308.00 in connection with the shipment in foreign commerce of a truckload of bell peppers.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, and respondent failed to file an answer thereto. On June 7, 1985, a Default Order was issued against respondent. On June 12, 1985, respondent petitioned for reopening after Default and on July 5, 1985, the Default Order was stayed. After service of respondent's petition upon complainant, and consideration of complainant's views, an order was issued on September 18, 1985, reopening after Default and giving respondent opportunity to file a verified answer. On October 3, 1985, respondent filed an answer denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified complaint is considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. Respondent's answer, since it was not properly verified, is not a part of the evidence in this proceeding. However, such answer does serve the purpose of framing the issues between the parties. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, and respondent filed an answering statement. Complainant filed a statement in reply which was not properly verified, and was therefore returned to complainant, and will not be considered in this proceeding. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Pacific Gamble Robinson Co., d/b/a Pacific Fruit & Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 425, Kingsburg, California.

2. Respondent, Produce Products, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 231 E. Imperial Highway, Suite 230, Fullerton, California.

At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about April 30, 1984, complainant sold and shipped from loading point in California, to respondent's customer in Los Angeles, California, one truckload of sweet peppers received by complainant from Mexico. The load contained 288 cartons of extra large bell peppers at $8.50 per carton; 324 cartons of large bell peppers at $8.50 per carton; and 324 cartons of medium bell peppers at $6.50 per carton; or a total price for the truckload of $7,308.00. The peppers were sold to respondent as U.S. No. 1 on a f.o.b. basis.

4. Following arrival of the peppers at the place of business of respondent's customer, such customer rejected the peppers to respondent and respondent notified complainant of such rejection. The peppers were dealt with by respondent, or respondent's customer, on a consignment basis, and respondent remitted $4,143.00 to complainant.

5. An informal complaint was filed on July 16, 1984, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent's petition to reopen after Default included a detailed answer by Scott Triolo who claimed to be the salesman who entered into all negotiations regarding the load of bell peppers with complainant's Marvin Farris. This proposed answer, however, was not verified, and when the order was issued September 18, 1985, reopening after Default, respondent was granted ten days in which to submit a verified answer, and was specifically instructed that if a verified answer was not submitted the original unverified statement in respondent's petition to reopen after Default would be considered the answer in the case. Respondent again submitted the same answer as was submitted in connection with its petition to reopen after Default, and such answer was again not verified. Beside Mr. Triolo's signature on the second submission was a stamp which stated "signature guaranteed Lloyds Bank California" with the signature of the assistant cashier/manager. At the bottom of the page respondent had written in ink "our notary was out at the time". It is well settled that an administrative agency is bound to follow its own rules. Section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) specifically provides that under the shortened method of procedure the pleadings of the parties will be considered as evidence in the proceeding only if verified in accordance with paragraph h of the section. Paragraph h of section 47.20 states "verification shall be made under oath of any fact set forth in the pleadings or statement by the person who signs the pleading or statement". There is then set forth a suggested form of verification. The guarantee of a signature by a bank cashier, of course, does not qualify as a verification. Consequently, neither respondent's answer, nor the exhibits attached thereto, can be considered as evidence in this proceeding.

The answering statement submitted by respondent was signed by George Haddad, Vice President and General Manager of respondent, and there is nothing in such answering statement to show that Mr. Haddad had personal knowledge of the matters related in the statement. Consequently this statement is of negligible value as evidence.

Briefly, respondent claims that the peppers were sold on a delivered basis, that upon arrival the peppers were rejected by its customer, and that respondent gave notice of such rejection to complainant who requested a federal inspection. Respondent states that he could not get a federal inspection that day, and that an inspection was secured on May 2, 1984. Respondent further alleges that when complainant was informed of the results of the inspection complainant agreed to the peppers being handled on consignment. Respondent claims to have paid complainant the net proceeds for the peppers.

Complainant's Marvin Farris claimed in the opening statement that the peppers "were not sold as U.S. No. 1". However, paragraph 4 of complainant's formal complaint describes the peppers as U.S. No. 1. Complainant's Marvin Farris also stated in the opening statement that "on information and belief, the shipment was rejected at the original delivery point, but complainant was not notified of the rejection." However, the same Marvin Farris stated in the informal complaint as follows:

> ON APRIL 30TH 1984, A LOAD OF BELL PEPPERS WERE SENT TO WEST COAST FRUIT OF LOS ANGELES, CA. WITH PRODUCE PRODUCTS OF FULLERTON ACCEPTING BILLING ON THE PRODUCT.
> WEST COAST REJECTED THE LOAD OF BELL PEPPERS. I WAS INFORMED OF THIS AND AT THAT TIME AN INSPECTION WAS REQUESTED. THE INSPECTION WAS NOT TAKEN UNTIL THE FOLLOWING DAY.

Complainant claimed in the formal complaint that the peppers were sold on a f.o.b. basis. However, the copy of the invoice attached to the complaint nowhere indicates the terms of sale. Had respondent's allegation that the sale was on a delivered basis been in evidence we would have so found. Since it is not in evidence we have no alternative, on the basis of the evidence of record, but to find that the sale was f.o.b. We also find that the peppers were sold as U.S. No. 1 grade, and that respondent made a prompt rejection of the peppers.

The inspection report submitted by respondent shows delivery of a fairly good load of bell peppers which clearly did not deliver as U.S. No. 1, and would just barely fail to make good delivery for peppers sold as U.S. No. 1 on a f.o.b. basis. However, the only copy of the inspection submitted in this proceeding was submitted in connection with respondent's answer, and consequently the inspection report is not in evidence.

Where a load of produce is rejected and proper notice is given, the seller has the burden of proving that it complied with the contract. Bud Antle, Inc. v. J. M. Fields, Inc. a/t/a Worldwide Produce, 38 Agric. Dec. 844 (1979); Heggeblade-Marguleas-Tenneco v. Fisher Foods, 33 Agric. Dec. 1443 (1974); Bud Antle, Inc. v. Bolrack, 32 Agric. Dec. 1589 (1973). Since no inspection report is in evidence in this proceeding complainant has failed to meet this burden and we conclude, therefore, that respondent's rejection was rightful. Following this rightful rejection the peppers became the responsibility of complainant. Yokoyama Bros. v. Cal-Veg. Sales, 41 Agric. Dec. 535 (1982). However, it is apparent that respondent disposed of the peppers. Accordingly, respondent is liable to complainant for their reasonable value. See Sunrise Fruit v. Great Bridge Foods, 33 Agric. Dec. 1342 (1974). Unfortunately respondent's accounting is not in evidence. Under these circumstances reasonable value is deemed to be market value at destination as shown by applicable Market News Service quotations. Id. Since complainant failed to show a wrongful rejection we feel justified in using the lower of the fair quality and condition quotations where possible. The Los Angeles Wholesale Market Reports for May 2–4, 1984, show the lowest price for fair quality or condition extra large peppers from Mexico as being $10, and the lowest price for fair quality or condition large and medium peppers from Mexico as being $8. The 288 cartons of extra large peppers would, therefore, have had a value of $2,880, and the 648 cartons of large and medium peppers would have had a value of $5,184. The total value for the load would be $8,064. The record does not disclose who paid freight, nor the amount of freight incurred. However, we deem it appropriate to allow a 15% selling commission to respondent, or $1,209.60. This leaves respondent's net liability to complainant as $6,854.40. Respondent has already paid complainant $4,143.00, which leaves a balance still due of $2,711.40. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,711.40, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from June 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,302.50 in connection with a quantity of tomatoes sold to respondent in the course of interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Complainant submitted an opening statement and respondent submitted an answering statement. Complainant also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, R. M. Allred and Ronald D. Allred d/b/a Allred's Produce, is a partnership whose address is 4115 Michael Boulevard, McAllen, Texas.

2. Respondent, Richard C. Shelton d/b/a Mid-Valley Brokerage Co., is an individual whose address is P.O. Box 5546, McAllen, Texas. At the time of transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately January 24, 1985, complainant sold to respondent a quantity of tomatoes consisting of 201 cases of 5×6 tomatoes at $8.50 per case and 66 cases of 5×5 tomatoes at $9.00 per case, for a total contract price of $2,302.50, f.o.b. A contract destination was not agreed to at the time of the sale.

4. Respondent shipped the tomatoes to its customer, Kaleck Bros., in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where they arrived on January 28, 1985, and were federally inspected. The inspection found temperatures of 43 to 47°F. and an average of 3% decay and 41% soft. Respondent notified complainant of the inspection results.

5. Kaleck Bros. obtained gross proceeds of $537.50, from which it deducted $66.00 for inspections, $267.00 for freight, $13.35 for drayage, and $75.25 for commission, for net proceeds of $115.90. Respondent offered this sum to complainant as payment in full, but complainant refused to accept the payment under the conditions offered.

6. A formal complaint was filed on August 8, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent does not deny purchasing, receiving and accepting the tomatoes, and thus became liable for the agreed upon contract price, less damages resulting from any breach of warranty by complainant. Respondent bears the burden of proving the breach and damages by a preponderance of the evidence. Growers Exchange, Inc. v. Central Carolina Grocers, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 666 (1983).

Respondent claims there was a breach of warranty by complainant, as the tomatoes were severely deteriorated when they arrived at the place of business of respondent's customer, Kaleck Bros., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on January 28, 1985. Respondent has submitted into evidence a federal inspection which confirms his claim of severe deterioration. Complainant argues that the warranty is inapplicable as there was no contract destination agreed upon between the parties. In his sworn answer and answering statement, respondent insists that there was no contract destination agreed to by the parties when he purchased the tomatoes. Complainant, in its complaint and opening statement, claims that it thought respondent had indicated that the tomatoes were going to be shipped to Baton Rouge, Louisiana, but in its brief admits that no contract destination was agreed upon. We can only conclude from the evidence in the record that at the time of sale, the parties had not agreed to any particular destination other than respondent's place of business in McAllen, Texas, which was also the shipping point. Accordingly, complainant's suitable shipping condition warranty would not be applicable to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the ultimate destination, where the tomatoes were found to be decayed on January 28, 1985. See Joseph F. Byrnes Produce, Inc. v. Kaleck Distributing Co., 40 Agric. Dec. 997 (1981). However, the condition of the tomatoes on January 28, 1985, an average of 41% soft and 3% decay, was so poor that it can readily be assumed that the tomatoes would have been in breach of warranty at the agreed upon contract destination, which we presume to have been respondent's place of business in McAllen, Texas, when the load would have arrived there on January 24, 1985, the same day it was shipped. Further, the pulp temperatures found by the inspection, 43 to 47°F., clearly indicate normal transportation conditions. Accordingly, we conclude that respondent has sustained his burden of proving a breach of the suitable shipping condition warranty by complainant.

As damages from complainant's breach of warranty, respondent is entitled to the difference between the actual value of the tomatoes, as determined by a prompt and proper resale, and their value if they had been as warranted. Tom Bengard Ranch, Inc. a/t/a Kleen Harvest v. Garden State Farms, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 922 (1983). Complainant questions whether the resale to Kaleck Bros. was prompt and proper. Kaleck Bros., which dumped 200 out of the 267 cases and remitted only $115.90, accepted the tomatoes on January 28, 1985, four days after they should have arrived at the contract destination, respondent's place of business in McAllen, Texas. Further, the location of Kaleck Bros., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is over 1500 miles from respondent. Under these circumstances, we cannot hold that the resale to Kaleck Bros., was prompt and proper and thus an adequate reflection of the actual value of the tomatoes. In the absence of a prompt and proper resale, no damages can be awarded respondent.

Respondent is therefore liable for the contract price of $2,302.50, and his failure to pay such sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the day of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $2,302.50, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from March 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

MERRILL FARMS v. TOM LANGE COMPANY, INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6894. Decided December 5, 1986.

Protection agreement—Consignment agreement—Accounts of sale—Reparation awarded.

The parties agreed after arrival of two truckloads of lettuce, to modifications of the original contracts of sale whereby respondent would be granted full protection as to one load, and allowed to handle the other load on a consignment basis. Respondent, however, did not render an accounting as to either load and it was held that both the protection and consignment agreements were voided and respondent was liable to complainant on the basis of the original contracts.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $8,788.50 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of two truckloads of lettuce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant and asserting a setoff. Complainant filed a reply to respondent's answer and setoff.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant did not file an opening statement. Respondent filed an answering statement and complainant filed a statement in reply. Both parties filed briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Merrill Farms, is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 659, Salinas, California.

2. Respondent, Tom Lange Company, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 4701, Springfield, Illinois. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about May 20, 1983, complainant sold to respondent and shipped from loading point in the State of California to respondent in Atlanta, Georgia one truckload containing 870 cartons of size 24 lettuce at $10.00 per carton, plus 65 cents per carton for vacuum cooling, f.o.b. Complainant informed respondent at the time of sale that the lettuce would weigh approximately 50 pounds per carton.

4. The lettuce arrived at the place of business of respondent's customer in Columbus, Georgia on the morning of May 25, 1983. At that time respondent's manager, Eric R. Hoffman, called respondent's salesman, Bill Gheen, and informed him that the lettuce was light in weight. The parties agreed that 500 cartons of the lettuce should be unloaded at the place of business of respondent's customer in Columbus, Georgia and the remaining 370 cartons should be transported to Atlanta for federal inspection.

5. The 370 remaining cartons of lettuce were federally inspected for weight only at 7:35 a.m. on May 25, 1983, at the place of business of Burnett Produce Co. in Forest Park, Georgia. The inspection revealed a net weight per carton range from 37 to 45½ pounds with an average weight of 41.84 pounds. This information was conveyed by Mr. Hoffman to Mr. Gheen, and it was agreed that respondent would be granted a price reduction of $2.00 per carton for market decline, and full protection on the lettuce due to the light weight.

6. The firm in Columbus, Georgia which received the 500 cartons of lettuce paid respondent $8.90 delivered net for the 500 cartons, and Burnett Produce Company paid respondent $6.95 delivered net for the 370 cartons received by such company. Respondent deducted $2.25 per carton for freight, and remitted the balance of $5,064.00 to complainant by check on June 21, 1983. The check was not cashed by complainant until release was obtained through this Department in October of 1983 for the check to be negotiated as an undisputed amount.

7. On May 23, 1983, complainant sold to respondent, and shipped from loading point in the state of California to respondent in Atlanta, Georgia, one truckload containing 900 cartons of size 24 lettuce at $6.00 per carton, plus 65 cents per carton for vacuum cooling, or a total of $5,985.00, f.o.b.

8. On May 27, 1983, at 9:15 a.m., the lettuce was federally inspected at the place of business of Packaging Unlimited in Forest Park, Georgia on application of respondent. The lettuce was inspected while still on board the truck, and temperatures were stated to be "Top 39°F; Bottom 46°F.". Condition of the lettuce was stated to be as follows:

> Heads or portions of heads not affected by condition factors are fresh and crisp. Wrapper leaves: Serious damage by small tan to brown spotted discolored areas averages 5%. Decay averages 3%. Head leaves: Decay ranges 1 to 3 heads in ½ of cartons, remainder none, average 4%, Bacterial Soft Rot in mostly early, and some advanced stages.

Respondent's Mr. Hoffman reported the results of this inspection to complainant's Ken Wolf on May 27, 1983, and was granted permission to handle the lettuce on a consignment basis through F. C. Davis Inc. in Atlanta, Georgia.

9. Respondent was paid for the lettuce on the basis of $4.25 per carton delivered. This amount was accepted by respondent, and respondent deducted $42.00 for a U.S.D.A. inspection, $2,250.00 for freight, and $135.00 brokerage, and remitted the sum of $1,398.00 to complainant on June 17, 1983. Complainant did not cash the check from respondent until October of 1983 after securing its release as an undisputed amount through this Department.

10. An informal complaint was filed on August 5, 1983, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant seeks to recover the full purchase price of the two truckloads of lettuce less the amounts already paid by respondent. When the formal complaint was filed complainant requested the original full price on the first load of lettuce, but later reduced the amount claimed by $2.00 per carton on the basis of the allowance for market decline. Complainant denied in its reply to respondent's setoff and answer that it agreed to granting full protection on the first load of lettuce or that the second load of lettuce could be handled on consignment. We have carefully reviewed all of the evidence of record and have concluded that respondent has met its burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that full protection was granted on the first load, and that the parties did agree to the second load being handled on a consignment basis.

Respondent additionally alleges that as to the first load of lettuce its Eric Hoffman called Bill Gheen on June 17, 1983, and secured his agreement to the prices at which the cartons of lettuce were sold by respondent's customers. In view of complainant's failure to accept the check sent by respondent on June 17, we find it difficult to credit this allegation, and find on the basis of all of the evidence of record that complainant did not enter into this alleged agreement.

We have held many times that a protection agreement is voided by failure to keep proper records which substantiate the prices received on resale of produce. See Demarco Produce Co., Inc. v. J. R. Cortes & Co., 39 Agric. Dec. 1256 (1980); Dave Walsh Co., Inc. v. Liberty Fruit Co., Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 533 (1979); Genbroker Corp. v. Super Food Services, 38 Agric. Dec. 83 (1979); Northwest Arkansas Produce v. Creasey Co., 27 Agric. Dec. 760 (1968); and Vener Co. v. McCaffrey Bros. Co., 15 Agric. Dec. 405 (1956). Since respondent did not furnish complainant with any accounting of the resale of the lettuce contained on the first load the protection agreement is voided, and respondent is liable to complainant for the full original contract price of the lettuce.

The agreement between the parties that the second load of lettuce should be handled on a consignment basis also entails a duty on respondent's part to render an accounting to complainant. Respondent's customer failed to render an accounting to respondent, and respondent has failed to render any accounting to complainant. The reasoning in the cases cited above relative to protection agreements requires that a failure to account in a case such as this must also result in the voiding of a consignment agreement. Respondent is therefore liable to complainant for the full original contract price relative to the second shipment of lettuce.

Respondent is liable to complainant for the full contract price on the first load of lettuce, less the $2.00 per carton allowance for market decline, or $7,525.50. Respondent is also liable to complainant for the full original purchase price on the second load, or $5,985.00. Respondent has already paid complainant a total of $6,462.00, which leaves a balance due on both loads of $7,048.50. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of Section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $7,048.50, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from June 1, 1983, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Misrepresentation—Contracts—Accounting—Reparation awarded.
The parties entered into a protection agreement on the basis of respondent's unintentional misrepresentation. It was held that the protection agreement was voided. Although an arrival inspection showed considerable damage in one lot of the peaches, such damage was not deemed scorable against peaches sold without a U.S. Grade designation. However, the parties' view that such damage showed a breach was given effect as the true intent of their contract. Respondent, however, did not submit an accounting covering the resale of the peaches and therefore did not prove damages.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $6,204.20 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truckload of peaches.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent did not file an answering statement. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, DeBruyn Produce Co., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 76, Zeeland, Michigan.

2. Respondent, Battaglia Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1705 Weeksville Road, Elizabeth City, North Carolina. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about September 11, 1984, complainant sold to respondent 260 one bushel containers of peaches, size 2⅛ inch minimum at $13.35, and 740 one bushel containers of peaches, size 2¼ inch minimum at $14.35, or a total of $14,090.00 f.o.b. destination.

4. On or about September 11, 1984, complainant shipped the peaches from loading point in the State of Michigan to respondent's customer P. Tavilla Co. in Miami, Florida.

5. On September 13, 1984, at 8:45 a.m., the peaches were federally inspected during the process of unloading at the place of business of P. Tavilla Co., in Miami, Florida, with the following results in relevant part:

Condition:	Each Lot: Mostly ripe, many firmripe, some firm. Mostly yellow, some turning yellow, some light green color. 2⅛ inch Lot: Average 2% damage by bruising affecting ripe fruit. Average 2% damage by tan to brown discolored areas. No decay. 2¼ inch Lot: A. L. Schmaltz Lot: Ranges 20 to 25%, average 24% damage by tan to brown discolored areas. Average 1% decay. Remainder Lots: Average 1% damage by tan to brown discolored areas. Average 7% damage by bruising scattered throughout pack affecting ripe fruit. No decay.
Remarks:	Inspection made during process of unloading.

6. On September 18, 1984, at 10:35 a.m., the peaches were again federally inspected at the place of business of P. Tavilla Co., in Miami, Florida with the following results in relevant part:

Condition: Greg Orchard, Higbees Farm & Gerold C. Hiler lots-Mostly ripe. Ground color is yellow. Greg Orchard lot Average 4% damage by bruises. Ranges 4 to 18% average 9% soft. Average 4% decay (Rhizophus Rot). Higbees Farm lot—Ranges 2 to 12% average 7% soft. No decay. A. L. Schmaltz lot—Firm to firm ripe. Ground Color is light green to turning yellow. Ranges 2 to 32% average 19% damage by brown surface discoloration. No decay. Gerold L. Hiler lot—Ranges 12 to 22% average 17% soft. No decay.

7. On September 13, 1984, when the peaches arrived in Miami, respondent reported to complainant that the Schmaltz Lot of peaches arrived in poor condition, but that the number of cartons in the lot could not be determined because the Schmaltz brand was scattered throughout the load. Complainant granted respondent protection as to the Schmaltz brand, and requested a federal inspection. On or about September 18 or 19 respondent reported to complainant the results of the second federal inspection quoted in Finding of Fact 6 above, but by mistake represented such inspection as having been made shortly after arrival. On the basis of such inspection complainant agreed that the entire load could be handled on a consignment basis.

8. An informal complaint was filed on March 26, 1986, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent attached as an Exhibit to its answer a copy of the complaint which it has filed against P. Tavilla Co., Inc., and such complaint discloses that respondent is in basic agreement with complainant concerning the facts in this case as outlined above in the Finding of Fact. It is clear, therefore, that the full protection granted by complainant to respondent was based on respondent's uninternational misrepresentation of the condition of the produce. Consequently this modification of the contract is to be considered voided. See Tom Bengard Ranch v. Tomatoes, Inc., 41 Agric. Dec. 1637 (1982). The rights and liabilities of the parties must be determined on the basis of the original contract. Pappas & Co. v. A. & J. Produce Corp., 41 Agric. Dec. 1820 (1982).

Although these peaches were not sold with any grade designation we consider the damage indicated in the federal inpsection as showing a breach of contract on the part of complainant. In addition a contract is to be interpreted in the light of how it is viewed by the parties thereto. In this case complainant, throughout this proceeding, has clearly indicated that it considers the contract to have been breached in regard to the A. L. Schmaltz lot of peaches. Such lot comprised 106 containers of the 2¼ inch size peaches. Had respondent submitted an accounting showing a breakdown of the sales of the peaches we could have awarded respondent damages in regard to the A. L. Schmaltz lot. However respondent did not submit any such accounting, and consequently we have no means of assessing damages in respondent's favor. See Genbroker Corp. v. Super Food Services, 38 Agric. Dec. 83 (1979). We find that respondent is liable to complainant for the full contract price of the peaches, less the $7,885.80 which it has already paid to complainant, or a balance of $6,204.20. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $6,204.20, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from October 1, 1984, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $17,935.20 in connection with a truckload of tomatoes shipped to respondent, in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Although the amount claimed as damages exceeds $15,000.00, the parties waived oral hearing. Therefore, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered part of the evidence, as is the verified complaint. The answer, since it is not verified or signed by an employee of respondent, is not considered part of the evidence. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and file briefs. Respondent submitted an answering statement and complainant a statement in reply. Respondent also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Bartell Marketing, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 7100 North Financial Drive, Suite 103, Fresno, California.

2. Respondent, Chandler-Topic Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 7367 Kirkwood Court, Maple Grove, Minnesota. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately January 25, 1985, complainant sold to respondent one truckload of 85% U.S. number one or better green tomatoes, consisting of 550 cartons of extra large at $14.00 per carton, 640 cartons of large at $13.00 per carton, and 330 cartons of medium at $12.00 per carton, plus $.80 per carton precooling and gassing, for a total contract price of $21,218.50, f.o.b.

4. The truckload of tomatoes was shipped to respondent, who had a portion delivered to Northwest Produce Co., Inc., Minneapolis, Minnesota (hereinafter, "Northwest") and another portion to S.C. Shannon, Appleton, Wisconsin. The tomatoes were received on January 28, 1985. When both receivers reported problems, respondent's employee, Tim Grace, called complainant's employee, Don Davis, and they agreed that Northwest would handle its part of the load on consignment, and the other part would be sent to J&J Distributing Co., St. Paul, Minnesota (hereinafter "J&J"), for consignment handling. On January 29, 1985, respondent sent a telegram to complainant confirming their agreement, which reads as follows, in relevant part:

> In reference to Bartell file #2508 loaded on an MTS truck Chandler Topic #5251 as per discussion with Don Davis the rejected load of tomatoes originally slated for S C Shannon and Northwest Produce have been inspected per request of shipper. With the understanding of full protection on working product out Northwest Produce will handle for the shippers account 200 extra large 640 large and 190 medium. The remaining 350 extra large 140 medium will be placed and inspected with J and J Distributing on the same open basis presented Northwest Produce. If these terms are not as discussed or acceptable to Bartell Marketing and or represented shipper immediate notification is requested.

Complainant never notified respondent that the terms expressed in its telegram were unacceptable.

5. On January 29, 1985, Northwest had its portion of the tomatoes federally inspected, which resulted, in pertinent part, as follows:

WHERE INSPECTED	Applicant's whse.
Products Inspected:	TOMATOES in cartons printed "5½ Brand, Jorge Luis Rodarte & Assoc., Culiacan, Sinaloa, Mexico, Net wt. 25 lbs.," and stamped "Super Select," and to denote size (Lg-EXLG 56A, Med Lg 66A, Med Sm 67A noted.) Applicant states 640 cartons 6×6 lot, 190 6×6's and 200 cartons 5×6 lot.
Condition of Load:	Each lot: stacked on pallets in warehouse.
Condition of Pack:	Each lot: well filled.

Average 2% damage by sunken, discolored areas occurring over shoulders. From 4 to 18%, average 10% soft. Average less than 1% decay. 6×7 lot: Average approximately 50% green and breakers, 20% turning and pink, 20% light red and red. From 8 to 12%, average 11% soft. No decay. Average 2% damage by sunken, discolored areas occurring over shoulders.
GRADE:	Each lot: Meets quality requirements but fails to grade U.S. No. 1, account condition.

6. Northwest sent an account of sales to respondent dated March 10 1986, showing that, after regrading, it sold 164 of the 200 cartons of extra large tomatoes for $1,592.00, 524 of the 640 cartons of large tomatoes for $4,687.90, and 159 of the 190 cartons of medium tomatoes for $1,417.50. The unsold tomatoes were apparently dumped. Northwest deducted $1.50 per carton for handling and profit, or $1,270.50, from its proceeds of $7,697.40, leaving $6,426.90. Northwest deducted an additional $1.25 for each of the original 1,030 cartons, or $1,287.50, for labor to regrade, and $42.00 for the cost of inspection, resulting in net proceeds of $5,097.40. However, Northwest paid respondent $5,128.50 for the consigned tomatoes.

7. J&J never had a federal inspection for its portion of the load consisting of 350 cartons of extra large tomatoes and 140 cartons of medium tomatoes. J&J sent respondent an account of sales dated May 6, 1985, showing that it had sold the 350 cartons of extra large tomatoes at $2.50 per carton, or $875.00, 100 cartons of the medium tomatoes at $2.00 per carton, or $200.00, and 40 cartons of the medium tomatoes at $2.50 per carton or $100.00, for a total of $1,175.00. From this figure, J&J had deducted $290.00 for trucking and $.25 per carton, or $122.50, for storage at Jerry's Produce, St. Paul, Minnesota, leaving $762.50.

8. Respondent deducted from the proceeds of its sales $2,100.00 for freight, $380.00 for handling, and an additional $127.00 for transportation from the original receiver, S.C. Shannon Co., to J&J. Respondent remitted to complainant $3,283.20. Respondent has failed to pay complainant any of the $17,935.20 which complainant claims is past due and owing.

9. A formal complaint was filed on August 29, 1985, which was within nine months from when the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent claims that complainant authorized a change in the contract terms to a consignment. Complainant has not specifically denied this contention. Furthermore, the report of investigation contains a January 29, 1985, telegram from respondent to complainant proposing that respondent handle the tomatoes on consignment for complainant's account, and requesting immediate notification from complainant if such proposal is unacceptable (Finding of Fact 4). The record does not indicate, nor does complainant assert that it ever informed respondent that consignment handling would not be permitted. Therefore, it is clear that respondent has sustained its burden of proving a change in the contract terms. Joe Phillips, Inc. v. G & T Terminal Packaging Co., Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 1199 (1983).

The next issue is whether respondent fulfilled its duty as a consignee to properly handle the truckload of tomatoes consigned by complainant. See John Livacich Produce, Inc. a/t/a Vista Sales v. The Auster Company, Inc., 42 Agric. Dec. 657 (1983). With respect to the sales by Northwest, although respondent has not provided dump certificates establishing that the 143 cartons allegedly dumped out of the 1030 carton load had no commercial value, the number of cartons dumped is consistent with the poor condition of the tomatoes reflected in the January 29, 1985, inspection report (Finding of Fact 5). The account of sales of Northwest (Finding of Fact 6) shows that, after regrading, it sold 164 cartons of extra large tomatoes for a net of $1,592.00, 524 cartons of large tomatoes for a net of $4,687.90, and 159 cartons of medium tomatoes for a net of $1,417.50, totalling $7,697.40. These sales appear entirely proper. However, the handling fee deducted by Northwest is not entitled to be claimed by respondent as a deduction, as respondent has claimed a fee for its commission, as discussed below, and complainant never gave respondent authorization to reconsign the tomatoes. Northwest also deducted $1.25 per carton, or $1,287.50, for labor to regrade, which is reasonable, and $42.00 for inspection fees, which is not a permissible deduction. Therefore, the net proceeds of Northwest which respondent may claim are $6,409.90.

J&J claims to have sold its portion of the load for only $1,175.00 (Finding of Fact 7), consisting of 350 cartons of extra large tomatoes for $875.00, 100 cartons of medium tomatoes for $200.00, and 40 cartons of medium tomatoes for $100.00. From this figure, J&J deducted $290.00 for trucking, which is reasonable, and $122.50 for storage, which is not. The net figure, $885.00 is an extremely small return for the consigned tomatoes. Respondent argues that the condition of the tomatoes was poor and the market was not good. However, this argument is not adequate to explain why J&J could not have received prices similar to those of Northwest. Northwest realized from the 200 cartons of extra large tomatoes an average of $7.96 per carton, less $1.25 for regrading, or $6.71. Therefore, J&J should have obtained $2,348.00 if the 350 cartons of extra large tomatoes had been properly handled. Northwest Produce realized from the 190 cartons of medium tomatoes $7.46 per carton, less $1.25 for regrading, or $6.21. Therefore, J&J should have obtained $869.40 for the 140 cartons of medium tomatoes, or $3,217.90 for the entire load.

Respondent should thus have been able to obtain proceeds for the consigned tomatoes of $6,409.90 and $3,217.90, amounting to $9,627.80. Respondent may deduct from this figure its freight of $2,227.00 and 15% commission, or $1,444.17, leaving $5,956.63 to be remitted to complainant. Since respondent has paid only $3,283.00, it is liable for an additional $2,673.43, and its failure to pay such sum to complainant is a violation of section 2 of the Act, for which reparation should be awarded, with interest.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay complainant, as reparation $2,673.43, with interest thereon at the rate of 13% per annum from March 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

PACA Docket No. 2-7055. Decided December 5, 1986.

Burden of proof—Evidence of contract—Sale of produce to cover freight—Complaint dismissed.

Complainant failed to sustain its burden of proving any contractual arrangement with respondent, as respondent submitted strong evidence that it refused to purchase the produce from the complainant, but handled it on consignment for the account of the truck broker. Therefore the complaint was dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $12,426.84 in connection with a truckload of cherry tomatoes allegedly sold and shipped to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the Department's report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given an opportunity to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements, but declined to do so. Respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Nat Feinn Sales Corporation, is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 848, 920 South Topeka, Fresno, California.

2. Respondent, Sunlight Tomato Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 145 Market Street, Chelsea, Massachusetts. At the time of the transactions alleged herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately July 11, 1985, complainant attempted to sell respondent a truckload of cherry tomatoes, but respondent did not agree to the purchase.

4. On July 11, 1985, complainant's employee, Paul Lichter, called Patterson Truck Brokers, Inc., Pharr, Texas (hereinafter, "Patterson"), and spoke to an employee, David Thompson, about securing a truck on behalf of respondent. Thompson called respondent's president, Anthony Sarno, who made clear that he did not want the load that complainant desired to ship. Another employee of Patterson later conveyed this information to Lichter, while a third employee, Joe Lowery, was listening in on the conversation. Lichter said to send the truck anyway and he, Lichter, would take care of Sarno.

5. Complainant shipped the truckload of tomatoes to respondent, who refused to accept them.

6. On approximately July 15, 1985, someone from Patterson informed complainant that the tomatoes had been turned back to the trucker, and asked if complainant would have the truck unloaded at its place of business. Complainant refused, and the Patterson representative stated that the tomatoes would be sold for freight charges. Joe Lowery of Patterson confirmed this discussion in a July 18, 1985, telegram to complainant.

7. Patterson consigned the tomatoes to respondent, who sold them for Patterson's account.

8. A formal complaint was filed on October 28, 1985, which was within nine months from when the alleged cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent contends that there never was a contract with complainant for the purchase of the load of cherry tomatoes at issue. Complainant insists that the tomatoes were sold to respondent for $12,426.84, f.o.b., and claims that respondent is liable to it for this sum. Complainant is the moving party herein, and thus has the burden of proving the existence of a contractual relationship between it and respondent. Cook Sales Company v. Romney Produce Co., 42 Agric. Dec. 641 (1983).

The only evidence presented by complainant which purports to show the existence of a contract consists of the allegations to this effect in the sworn complaint, and complainant's invoice, reflecting an f.o.b. sale to respondent. However, there is no evidence that the invoice was sent to respondent. Further, respondent, in its sworn answer, has asserted that it refused complainant's offer to sell the cherry tomatoes. Respondent has offered into evidence the affidavits of two employees of Patterson Truck Brokers, Inc., David Thompson and Joe E. Lowery, who state that on July 11, 1985, they engaged in a telephone conversation with complainant's employee,

Paul Lichter. They state that Lichter requested a truck for respondent, but when they called respondent, its president, Tony Sarno, said he did not want the load. They contend they told this to Lichter, who said to send the truck anyway as he, Lichter, would take care of Sarno (Finding of Fact 4). This strongly supports respondent's claim that it never purchased the cherry tomatoes. Thompson also asserts in his affidavit that respondent thereafter refused to accept the load, and when complainant would not take it back, Patterson consigned the cherry tomatoes to respondent to handle for Patterson's account. The record contains a July 18, 1985, telegram from Lowery to complainant which confirms complainant's authorization to Patterson to sell the cherry tomatoes for freight charges (Finding of Fact 6).

Complainant has not offered any evidence beyond that contained in its complaint to rebut the strong evidence presented by respondent, which shows clearly that respondent never purchased the cherry tomatoes from complainant, but handled them on consignment for the account of the truck broker. We therefore conclude that complainant has failed to sustain its burden of proving the existence of a contractual relationship with respondent. We also conclude that respondent was under no legal obligation to remit the proceeds of its sales to complainant, as complainant was not a party to Patterson's consignment arrangement with respondent. Accordingly, there is no merit to the complaint, and it must be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is hereby dismissed.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation from respondent in the amount of $3,770.14, in connection with one transaction in interstate commerce involving mixed produce, all being perishable agricultural commodities.

Both parties were served with copies of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent was also served with a copy of the formal complaint and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

As the amount in dispute was less than $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was followed. Under this procedure, the Department's report of investigation and the verified pleadings of the parties are considered as part of the evidence in the case. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to submit further evidence by way of verified statements. Respondent filed a verified answering statement. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Tom Lange Co., Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 80010, Salinas, California 93902.

2. Respondent, Weinstein Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 7364, Boise, Idaho 83707. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On December 11, 1984, in the course of interstate commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold a lot of mixed produce, all being perishable agricultural commodities, on a good delivery basis to respondent. The produce was to be picked up by respondent at complainant's loading dock. Over the next 2½ days, respondent had the produce picked up in accordance with this agreement. The items contained in this shipment, inter alia, included 120 cartons of mature green tomatoes sold at $8.70 per carton ($1,044.00), 120 cartons of green tomatoes sold at $9.70 per carton ($1,164.00), and 3 cartons of red peppers sold at $22.00 per case ($66.00). Respondent accepted all of the produce. The total agreed contract price for the lot of mixed produce was $10,508.00.

4. Upon receiving the various items in Boise, Idaho, respondent, on December 14, and December 17, 1984, had some of them inspected. Among the items inspected were the green tomatoes. The inspection certificate issued following the December 14, 1984, inspection (E 193864) of the tomatoes reflected their condition as follows: "Average approximately 95% light red and red. Average 2% damage by numerous sunken discolored areas generally occurring over shoulders. Average 3% Decay ALTERNARIA ROT. Tomatoes show light colored surface mold in stem scar." Also, the three cartons of red peppers were among the items inspected. The inspection certificate (E 193867) relating to the red peppers reflected the condition of the peppers as follows: "Decay ranges 38 to 48%, average 43% affecting pods average 7% affecting stems, Bacterial Soft Rot in various stages. Remainder fresh, firm, and characteristic color. Average 7% shrivelled areas, affecting 5 to 10% of surface."

5. After respondent reported the condition of the produce to complainant, the latter offered to reduce the agreed contract price by $977.00. Respondent did not accept this offer.

6. On or about January 7, 1985, respondent accounted to complainant for the tomatoes and red peppers as follows:

		Tomatoes
Sales:
		18 @$7.50	$135.00
		22 @6.75	148.50
		42 @5.25	220.50

Expenses:

	Dumping	3 @25¢	.75
		Total Cost		$3.15

Respondent, also, accounted to complainant for two cartons of eggplants. However, no eggplants were included on the subject shipment.

7. At some time thereafter, respondent paid complainant $5,706.86 with respect to this shipment.

8. An informal complaint was filed on January 24, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

There is no dispute regarding the fact that respondent received and accepted the truckload of mixed produce. Accordingly, respondent is obligated to complainant for the full purchase price for the lot of mixed produce less any damages resulting from a breach of contract committed by complainant. Rocky Ford Dist. Co. v. Angel Produce, 29 Agric. Dec. 93 (1970). The respondent has the burden of proof on such matters. The Growers-Shipper Pot. Co. v. Southw. Prod. Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 571 (1969).

For the most part, respondent has failed to sustain its burden of proof regarding the damages it allegedly sustained as a result of the alleged breach of contract committed by complainant. However, it has proven that complainant shipped red tomatoes rather than green tomatoes and that the red peppers it received were unmerchantable. With regard to these items it has proven that it sustained damages of $1,897.65, i.e., the contract price plus freight of the damaged merchandise ($2,468.40) less the result of the resale ($769.00) plus incidental costs such as dumping and rerunning the merchandise ($198.25). See Bosgraaf Sales v. Alexander Marketing, 26 Agric. Dec. 1201 (1967). When this amount is deducted from the parties' agreed contract price of $10,508.00, the balance remaining is $8,610.35. This is the amount which respondent should have paid complainant. However it only paid the latter $5,760.86. Thus, it remains obligated to complainant in the amount of $2,849.49.

The next issue we must discuss is whether the parties negotiated a settlement with regard to this shipment. Since complainant made this allegation, it has the burden of proving it by a preponderance of the evidence. J. E. Nelson & Sons v. Quality Produce Co., 16 Agric. Dec. 708 (1957). The only evidence it offered in support of its allegation is the "corrected" invoice it issued. However, such a self-serving document is insufficient to sustain its burden of proof. See El Solo Packing Co. v. Ligon Produce Co., 17 Agric. Dec. 1002 (1958). Accordingly, we hold that the parties did not agree to compromise this matter.

The last issue we must consider is whether the complainant, by accepting the respondent's payment of $5,760.86, entered into an accord and satisfaction. Respondent, as the proponent of this allegation, had the burden of proving it. But it has failed to show that its check was offered and accepted in full satisfaction of the amount in dispute. Accordingly, we must hold that it has failed to sustain its burden of proof. See Mendelson-Zeller v. Season Produce, 31 Agric. Dec. 1288 (1972).

On the basis of the whole record, we find that respondent is obligated to complainant in the amount of $2,849.49 with respect to the subject shipment and that its failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay complainant $2,849.49, as reparation, plus interest at the rate of 13% per annum from January 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.) hereinafter "the Act". A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $2,293.20 in connection with the sale and shipment of a truckload of lettuce in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as are the verified complaint and answer. The parties were given opportunities to submit additional evidence in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Both complainant and respondent submitted verified statements but neither submitted briefs.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Antle Brothers and Tanimura Brothers, is a partnership doing business as Tanimura and Antle with a mailing address at P.O. Box 4070, Salinas, California 93912.

2. Respondent, Albertson's, is a corporation with its principal place of business at P. O. Box 20, Boise, Idaho 83786. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about June 25, 1984, respondent by oral contract purchased one trucklot of lettuce at an agreed price of $2,293.20 from complainant.

4. The contract was negotiated by Stoops & Wilson, a broker in Shawnee Mission, Kansas, which is no longer in business.

5. Respondent accepted the lettuce upon arrival at Aurora, Colorado. Thereafter, Stoops and Wilson billed and collected for the lettuce from respondent but has failed to remit any part of the sale proceeds to complainant.

6. The complaint was filed within nine months after the cause of action accrued.

SUBSIDIARY FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS

Both parties agree that before late spring or early summer of 1984 they had an established course of dealing authorizing Stoops and Wilson, a broker, to bill and collect for produce sold by complainant to respondent. Complainant contends, however, that because Stoops and Wilson's payment practices became very slow, this course of dealing was modified by an oral contract negotiated by unspecified individuals on an unspecified date during the late spring or early summer of 1984. By the terms of such oral contract, complainant asserts the parties all agreed that thereafter complainant would bill and collect directly from respondent and remit the collected brokerage commission to Stoops and Wilson. To support this contention, complainant submitted copies of documents showing complainant's sale of lettuce to respondent on June 23, 1984, (two days earlier than the disputed transaction) for which respondent paid complainant directly, even though the sale was negotiated by Stoops and Wilson.

Respondent, on the other hand, denies entering into any contract which modified the custom of the parties and argues, in effect, that the June 23, 1984 transaction was an anomaly which cannot be taken to prove an agreed-upon modification to the customary practice of the parties.

As the moving party, complainant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence the terms of the contract, respondent's breach of such contract, and the resulting damages, if any, sustained by complainant. Justice v. Milford Packing Co., 34 Agric. Dec. 533, and cases cited at 535 (1975). Complainant has not met that burden.

The record reveals respondent paid Stoops and Wilson for the disputed lettuce pursuant to an invoice received from Stoops and Wilson which directed payment to Stoops and Wilson for the disputed lettuce as well as for other produce provided by a different supplier. Respondent claims it never received any invoice from complainant for the disputed lettuce, and complainant does not allege having sent one. Complainant relies entirely on respondent's direct payment to complainant for a different purchase through Stoops and Wilson on June 23 where complainant was the sole supplier. This constitutes the only evidence to support complainant's claim that the parties had agreed to change their long-standing practice permitting Stoops and Wilson to bill and collect. Absent corroborating evidence from disinterested sources or other documentary evidence, the mere fact that respondent paid complainant directly on one occasion does not persuade us that the parties had agreed to depart from past practice authorizing Stoops and Wilson to bill and collect from respondent for sales of complainant's produce to respondent. Since we find that respondent paid Stoops and Wilson for the disputed lettuce pursuant to a Stoops and Wilson invoice reflecting the contract of the parties, the complaint must be dismissed.

ORDER

The complaint is hereby dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation from respondent in the amount of $13,094.92 in connection with two transactions, in foreign commerce, involving avocados, a perishable agricultural commodity.

Both parties were served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant. In addition, respondent filed a counterclaim against complainant also in the amount of $13,094.42 in connection with the same transactions as are made the subjects of the complaint.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) was followed. Under this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to submit further evidence by way of verified statements. Complainant filed a verified opening statement, respondent filed a verified answering statement, and complainant also filed a verified statement in reply. In addition, complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Henry Avocado Packing Corp., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 27867, Escondido, California 92027.

2. Respondent, Rushton & Co., Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is 11 Embarcadero West, Suite 230, Oakland, California 94607.

3. At all material times, complainant and respondent were licensed under the Act.

4. On June 11, and 12, 1984, in contemplation of foreign commerce, complainant, by oral contract, sold to respondent two container loads of Haas avocados, a perishable agricultural commodity, at f.o.b. prices, the contract destination being Packinghouse Escondido, California, as follows:

a. Container # SEAU 122289 contained 864 flats of size 24 at $4.70 per flat ($4,060.80), 864 flats of size 30 at $4.50 per flat ($3,888.00), and 864 flats of size 35 at $4.10 per flat ($3,542.40). Additional charges for this load were $10.50 for a phytosanitary certificate, $50.00 for an inspection, and $35 each for two Ryan temperature recording devices ($70.00). The total f.o.b. price for this container load was $11,621.70.

b. Container # SEAU 122732 contained 1,296 flats of size 24 at $4.70 per flat ($6,091.20), and 1,296 flats of size 30 at $4.50 per flat ($5,832.00). Additional charges for this load were $50.00 for an inspection, $10.50 for a phytosanitary certificate, and $35 each for two Ryan temperature recording devices ($70.00). The total f.o.b. price for this container load was $12,053.70.

5. Each of the container loads was the subject of a shipping point inspection which was restricted to condition only, and no condition defects were noted. As the inspection was restricted to condition only, the inspector did not note whether there were any quality defects apparent on the avocados.

6. Respondent received and accepted the avocados, which were then shipped to its customer in France. The shipments arrived in France on July 3, 1984. On July 4, 1984, the avocados in container # SEAU 122732 were inspected by Captain (Retired) J. J. Huni, Marine and General Goods Surveyor, 2 Rue J. J. Rousseau, F 92600 Asnieres. In his report, M. Huni noted as follows:

> These fruits showed discolourations [sic], stains, and some slight genetics [sic] abnormalities. The buyer on the Rungis market is looking for monocoloured [sic] fruits, because the consumers in France willingly buy these, but only reluctantly the brownish, and stained ones.
> It is the opinion of the undersigned Surveyor that the fruits are internally in a satisfactory condition, see in this respect our photographs on sheet 'D' hereafter, but the sales go by the external aspect and one must depend on a slight depreciation, of about 5% of the Sound [sic] arrived Market [sic] Value [sic].

M. Hunis further concluded in his report that the damage to the avocados was not caused by intransit conditions, but rather stemmed from an "inherent vice." In an addendum to his survey report, M. Huni presented an accounting for the shipment based on respondent's customer's records summarized as follows:

Cost Price:
	Supplier's Invoice	$20,282.40
	Expenses	3,369.45
	Total	$23,651.85
Sales Proceeds	$16,556.93
Loss	$7,094.92

7. Also on July 4, 1984, the avocados in container # SEAU 122289 were viewed by M. Gary Bull who is the European representative of the Transfresh Corporation which provided the artificial atmosphere used in the container. It was also viewed by M. Joel Jean-Etienne who issued a survey report, in pertinent part, as follows:

* * * * * * *

Quality of Fruits [sic]:

I checked many samples of flats taken at random over pallet situated on the back, middle and head container. These fruits [sic] appear with a color: green to deep green or green with 20% at [sic] 30% of the skin showing brown traces: pink-purple or yellow, like sun-blotch over the two unstorage [sic] pallet in back container, I noticed fruits with many flats crushed.

The sizing was fairly irregular to [sic] one ctn. to another ctn, I noticed pale fruit, badly waxed.

In general, the brown spot observed over firm fruit was variable from one size to another size eg:.
Color: brown over deep green : 16% in size 24
" : brown to green purple : 50% in size 30
" : brown to green brown : 23% in size 35

The fruits [sic] were in general firm to very firm, with rough skin and presented stem-end very adherent but with old cut.

The stem-end showed a dry cut brown and woody. The cutting of the fruit showed a pulp with white color firm with adherent stone this fruit was difficult to cut and their pulp were health.

* * * * * * *

Conclusion:

In my opinion, after my checking and after the examination of the documents concerning this voyage, I estimate that the damages are due to:

. . . The quality of the fruit at departure, the pigmentation and brown spot noticed over the surface of the fruit during my checking, are characteristic of fruit with an advanced degree of cut, eg. stem-end woody and brown . . [sic] This fruit has been stored in gold [sic] store [sic] before their loading [sic] in container.

* * * * * * *

. . . The skin defects, green fruit with brown spots or burns at the stem end and apical surface involved a depreciation, that belongs to the quality of the fruit and their degree of cut.

. . . All these defects of quality have any relation with the condition of transport in SEA-LAND container [sic], which in fact can't receive any responsibility in these damages fixed [sic].

8. Respondent has paid complainant $10,580.48 with respect to the two subject loads of avocados.

9. An informal complaint was filed on February 21, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

There is no dispute that respondent accepted the two container loads of avocados. Therefore, respondent is obligated to complainant for the full purchase price less any damages resulting from a breach of contract committed by the complainant. Rocky Ford Dist. Co. v. Angel Produce, 29 Agric. Dec. 93 (1970). The respondent has the burden of proving such matters by a preponderance of the evidence. The Growers-Shipper Pot. Co. v. Southw. Pro. Co., 28 Agric. Dec. 511 (1969).

Respondent has taken the position that neither of the container loads of avocados met "the kind, quality or size called for by the contract of sales." However, there is no evidence in the record as to the specific terms of sale relied upon by respondent to make this assertion. From the record, it would appear that respondent purchased two container loads of avocados suitable for export. It further appears that respondent got precisely that—two containers loads of avocados which were in a condition permitting their export. There is nothing in either of the French survey reports which would serve to dispute this conclusion. That the avocados were not of the precise quality desired by respondent is irrelevant as it does not appear that their quality was made a condition of their purchase and sale.[1]

In view of this, we must conclude that respondent has failed to prove that complainant breached their contract by shipping avocados which were not of "the kind, quality or size called for by the contract of sale."

In any event, respondent has failed to prove it was damaged by the alleged breach. While it has asserted being damaged in the amount of $6,000 with regard to the avocados in container #SEAU 122289 and in the amount of $7,094.42 with regard to the avocados in container #SEAU 122732, it has offered no probative evidence whatsoever on this point. The only evidence on damage is the accounting done by M. Huni on the avocados in container #SEAU 122732 which shows that respondent's customer may have lost $7,094.92 on this shipment. However, respondent has not shown how this relates to its alleged loss. Moreover, even if we assume that the customer deducted this loss from the respondent's sales price ($20,282.40), respondent should still have received $13,187.48 from the customer. This amount would still be $1,133.78 more than the amount ($12,053.70) it agreed to pay complainant for the avocados in this container. Under these circumstances, respondent could not, therefore, be said to have suffered a loss on this shipment.[2]

---

[1] It is noted that the shipping point inspection was limited to condition defects and therefore no quality defects which may have been present were noted.

[2] Special damages for loss of profit are not awardable when a buyer, as here, fails to show that the seller entered into their agreement with knowledge of the terms of the resale. A. G. Shore Co. v. Conner Bros., 18 Agric. Dec. 1269 (1959).

Moreover, there is absolutely no evidence that either respondent or its French customer suffered a loss on the avocados in the second container #SEAU 122289.

In view of the above, we hold that respondent is liable to complainant for the full contract price for the two container loads of avocados, or $23,675.40. As it has already paid complainant $10,580.48, it remains obligated to complainant in the amount of $13,094.92. Respondent's failure to pay complainant this amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation plus interest should be awarded. In view of the above, the respondent's counterclaim is dismissed.

ORDER

Within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $13,094.92 plus interest at the rate of 13 percent per annum from July 1, 1984, until paid.

Respondent's counterclaim is dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks reparation from respondent in the amount of $5,776.00 in connection with one transaction, in interstate commerce, involving cucumbers, a perishable agricultural commodity.

Both parties were served with a copy of the Department's report of investigation. Respondent also was served with a copy of the formal complaint, and filed an answer thereto denying any liability to complainant.

As the amount of damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) has been followed. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given the opportunity to submit further evidence by way of verified statements. Complainant filed a verified opening statement and respondent filed a verified answering statement. Each party also filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Norden Fruit Co., is a corporation also trading as Cal Fruit whose mailing address is P.O. Box 21394, Market Station, Los Angeles, California 90021.

2. Respondent, Sigma Produce Co., Inc., is a corporation whose mailing address is P.O. Box 1683, Nogales, Arizona 85621. At all material times, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about March 14, 1985, through Jose Gomez, Chula Vista, California, acting as a broker, complainant purchased a shipment of 360 crates of Alfa Brand cucumbers from respondent at an agreed f.o.b. price of $12.00 per crate ($4,320.00) plus 65 cents per crate for palletization and pre-cooling ($234.00) for a total f.o.b. contract price of $4,554.00. The cucumbers were shipped that same day.

4. Upon arrival of the cucumbers in California on March 15, 1985, complainant accepted them. At 10:25 a.m. of that day, the cucumbers were inspected. The inspector reported the condition of the cucumbers as follows: "Generally fresh and firm. Average 1% damage by sunken areas. From 18 to 36% average 28% damage by yellowing. Average 2% decay." The inspector further noted, as to grade, that the cucumbers met "quality requirements but [failed] to grade U.S. No. 1 only account condition."

5. Subsequent to the inspection, respondent contacted the broker who negotiated a settlement of the matter with the parties agreeing to a price of $10.25 per carton for a total agreed f.o.b. price of $3,924.00, or $1.75 per carton less than the $12.00 upon which the parties originally agreed. Respondent, on March 16, 1985, invoiced complainant pursuant to this modified agreement.

6. On March 21, 1985, the Agricultural Commissioner for Los Angeles County (California) issued a notice of noncompliance as to 261 cartons of cucumbers noting that the cucumbers exceeded the "legal tolerances for Mold & Decay 80-90%." These cartons were dumped.

7. On or about April 9, 1985, respondent received payment of its March 16, 1985, invoice. However, as complainant had not paid a related $400 freight charge, respondent invoiced it for the $400. Complainant also paid this invoice.

8. On April 19, 1985, complainant notified respondent and the broker, Jose Gomez as follows:

> RE: SIGMA INVOICE #1814 OF 360 ALFA BRAND CUCUMBERS WE RECEIVED FROM SIGMA PRODUCE ON APRIL [SIC] 15, 1985. TO CONFIRM OUR TELEPHONE CONVERSATION WITH JOSE AT OTAY ON APRIL 19TH, OF [SIC] A PAYMENT OF $3655.00 SHALL BE DEDUCTED FROM SIGMA. IN EVENT SIGMA DOES NOT SATISFY OBLIGATION, OTAY SHALL BE HELD LIABLE FOR FULL AMOUNT.

9. On or about May 16, 1985, complainant completed an account of sales for the subject shipment of cucumbers. According to the accounting, sales were not completed until that date. Complainant reported its accounting as follows:

29	@	$12.00	$348.00
14	@	10.50	147.00
2	@	10.00	20.00
36	@	4.00	144.00
15	@	3.00	45.00
264	DUMPED
360				$704.00
Less 15% Com'n			$105.60
Freight			400.00
Inspection			35.00
				$540.60
			Total Due	$163.40

10. The complaint was filed on August 28, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This case involves a shipment of cucumbers which complainant claims did not arrive in suitable condition. The parties agree that, after arrival, they renegotiated their contract. Respondent claims that it granted complainant a $1.75 per carton allowance; complainant claims that the parties agreed to a $1.75 per carton price. It would have been helpful if one of the parties had included a statement from the broker through which all of their negotiation and renegotiation had taken place, or if such a statement had been included in the Department's report of investigation. However, we are forced to form our conclusions without that aid.

The complainant had the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, the allegations contained in the formal complaint. Villareal v. Kellerman, 25 Agric. Dec. 1399 (1966). It has failed to do so.

Complainant presented several different versions of the facts during the course of its presentation. In its formal complaint, it alleges the parties agreed to an f.o.b. price of $10.25 per carton for the cucumbers. Then, after respondent alleged that the original price had been $12.00 per carton and that this price was reduced to $10.25 after arrival and acceptance of the cucumbers, complainant claimed that the parties had agreed, not to a $1.75 per carton allowance, but to a price of $1.75 per carton. In addition, some two months after acceptance of the cucumbers, complainant prepared an account of sales treating the shipment as a consignment sale. In point of fact, complainant has failed to show any consistency of position. Rather, it shows an attempt to formulate a theory to conveniently fit whatever facts respondent proved.

The preponderance of the evidence supports respondent's assertion that the parties renegotiated their contract and agreed to reduce the original $12.00 price to $10.25. This evidence consists of respondent's invoices, complainant's receipt thereof without protest, and complainant's payment thereof. As the parties renegotiated the contract after arrival of the cucumbers, the complainant, as the buyer, was liable to the respondent seller for the full agreed contract price. Henson & Padgett Produce v. Ferrante, 18 Agric. Dec. 1044 (1959). It has paid respondent this amount and it is not entitled to any damages. See Max Feldbaum & Sons v. Alderiso, 27 Agric. Dec. 763 (1968): acceptance of produce after inspection waives warrantees as to fitness of produce.

In view of the above, the complaint should be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $8,025.90 in connection with a truckload of peaches allegedly sold and shipped to respondent in interstate commerce.

A copy of the report of investigation prepared by the Department was served upon each of the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, denying liability.

Since the amount claimed as damages does not exceed $15,000.00, the shortened procedure set forth in section 47.20 of the Department's Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to such procedure, the report of investigation is considered to be part of the evidence, as is the verified complaint. The answer, since it is not a sworn statement by an employee of respondent, is not considered part of the evidence. The parties were given the opportunity to submit additional documents in the form of verified statements and to file briefs. Respondent submitted an answering statement and complainant a statement in reply. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Mendelson-Zeller Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 450 Sansome Street, San Francisco, California.

2. Respondent, Vita-Wellbrock-Kearney, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 223-225 New York City Terminal Market, New York, New York. At the time of the transactions alleged herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On approximately August 11, 1984, John Cribb, an employee of Troy H. Cribb & Sons, Inc., Spartanburg, South Carolina (hereinafter "Cribb"), ordered from complainant a truckload of peaches for $15,525.90, for Cribb's account, with shipment to be made to respondent. Cribb was not brokering a sale for complainant to respondent but was purchasing the peaches on its own behalf. Cribb never prepared a memorandum of sale for this transaction. Cribb consigned the peaches to respondent and sent respondent an invoice reflecting the consignment. Respondent received and accepted the peaches, and sold them for Cribb's account.

4. On August 15, 1984, complainant prepared an invoice showing the sale of the peaches to respondent, and sent the invoice to respondent. Upon receipt of the invoice, respondent contacted John Cribb, who acknowledged that it was Cribb's responsibility, and asked that respondent send the invoice to Cribb.

5. Respondent sold the peaches and credited Cribb's account with the net proceeds. Cribb prepared a check to complainant on September 25, 1984, for the full purchase price of the peaches, $15,525.90, and sent it to complainant, but the check was returned unpaid due to insufficient funds. Cribb has since paid complainant $7,500.00.

6. A formal complaint was filed on February 4, 1985, which was within nine months from when the alleged cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The issue which must be resolved is whether the truckload of peaches was purchased from complainant by respondent, as complainant alleges, or by Troy H. Cribb & Sons, Inc., Spartanburg, South Carolina, with shipment to respondent, which is claimed by respondent. Complainant has the burden of proving the existence of this alleged contractual relationship with respondent. Cook Sales Company v. Romney Produce Co., 42 Agric. Dec. 641 (1983).

The only evidence offered by complainant in support of its position, other than the allegations in its sworn complaint, is an August 15, 1984, invoice to respondent, which complainant asserts was received without objection. Respondent's position is strongly supported by a sworn statement by John Cribb, who personally negotiated the transaction. Mr. Cribb states that he ordered the produce on behalf of Troy H. Cribb & Sons, Inc. with delivery to respondent, to whom Cribb had consigned the peaches. He denies complainant's allegation in its complaint that Cribb acted as the broker in the transaction. The veracity of this statement is support by Cribb's invoice to respondent showing the consignment (Finding of Fact 3). It is also quite significant that Cribb never performed one of the primary duties of a broker, the preparation of a memorandum of sale (Finding of Fact 3). Further, all payments to complainant for the peaches were from Cribb, not respondent (Finding of Fact 5). In view of all these factors, it is apparent that respondent did not purchase the peaches from complainant, but merely received them on consignment from Cribb, the actual purchaser. Therefore, we conclude that complainant has failed to sustain its burden of proving any contractual relationship with respondent. Accordingly, the complaint must be dismissed.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $19,600.00 in connection with shipments of pineapples in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint. Said answer disputed, however, the amount in contention claiming that the amount owed to complainant was $10,290.00. Complainant was given an opportunity to dispute the fact that the outstanding balance owed to it was $10,290.00. Complainant did not dispute this fact. Accordingly, the issurance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Garden State Farms, Inc., is a corporation whose address is 3655 S. Lawrence Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19148. Respondent, International A.G., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1930 N.W. 23rd Street, Miami, Florida 33142. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $10,290.00. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $10,290.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from March 1, 1986, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $9,138.75 in connection with shipments of oranges in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto. Such answer did not deny liability and respondent was given an opportunity to so deny. Respondent has not denied liability. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Southland Produce Company, a/t/a Western Fruit Sales Co., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 21037, Los Angeles, California. Respondent, International A.G., Inc., is a corporation whose address is 1930 N.W. 23rd Street, Miami, Florida. At the time of the transaction involved herein, respondent was licensed under the Act.

The facts alleged in the formal complaint are hereby adopted as findings of fact of this order. On the basis of these facts, we conclude that the actions of respondent are in violation of section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. 499b) and have resulted in damages to complainant of $9,138.75. Accordingly, within 30 days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $9,138.75, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from April 1, 1986, until paid.

REPARATION ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks a reparation award against respondent in the amount of $72,081.22 in connection with shipments of potatoes in interstate commerce. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto, admitting the material allegations of the complaint, including the indebtedness claimed by complainant. Accordingly, the issuance of an order without further procedure is appropriate, pursuant to section 47.8(d) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR 47.9(d)).

Complainant, Edwin Pelletier & Sons, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Box 133, Frenchville, Maine 04745. Respondent, John A. Pirrello Co., Inc., is a corporation whose address is P. O. Contract—Jurisdiction—Interstate commerce—Complaint dismissed.
Complainant agreed to contract whereby respondent would pack complainant's cherries and complainant would be responsible for marketing the cherries. It was held that this type of contract did not constitute a transaction within the meaning of section 2 of the Act and that the Secretary therefore lacked jurisdiction over such contract. The parties later agreed that culls and briner cherries were sold by respondent for complainant's account, but it was found that complainant had failed to show by a preponderance of evidence that such cherries were sold in interstate commerce. Complainant additionally alleged that a substantial poundage of cherries were received but not accounted for by respondent and that such cherries must have been sold in interstate commerce because most cherry sales are interstate. It was found that complainant failed to meet its burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence that the allegedly unaccounted for cherries were sold in interstate commerce. The complaint was dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $133,519.34 in connection with the delivery of numerous loads of cherries to respondent for packing.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

Although the amount claimed in the formal complaint exceeds $15,000.00, the parties waived oral hearing, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent filed an answering statement, and complainant filed a statement in reply. Respondent filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Rawland F. Taplett, is an individual doing business as R. F. Taplett Fruit & Cold Storage, whose address is P.O. Box 2188, Wenatchee, Washington.

2. Respondent, Premium Packing & Storage Incorporated, is a corporation whose address is 301 North Track Road, Wapato, Washington. At the time when respondent received the subject cherries for packing, respondent was not licensed under the Act, but respondent subsequently submitted an application for license along with accrued fees covering the period when it received the cherries. On the basis of this application a license was issued June 20, 1984.

3. On May 26, 1984, complainant and respondent entered into a contract under which respondent agreed to receive, cool, sort, pack, store and load for complainant those sweet cherries brought to it by complainant, and grown in an orchard described in the contract, for specific packing fees according to box sizes and services specified in the contract. It was agreed that complainant would be "the sole and exclusive marketing agent" for the fruit it grew in the specified orchard and would "make all necessary arrangements for the disposition of culls, briner cherries, freezer cherries, and processors."

4. Between approximately June 11, 1984, and approximately July 9, 1984, complainant delivered cherries to respondent for packing in approximately the following amounts: Bing cherries 950,000 or more pounds; Chinook cherries 356,000 or more pounds; Burlatt cherries 10,000 or more pounds; Van cherries 58,000 or more pounds; Lambert cherries 62,858 pounds; and Rainier cherries 25,788 pounds.

5. Approximately 300,000 to 400,000 pounds of cherries were assigned to culls and approximately 50,000 to 90,000 pounds were assigned to briners, and sold by respondent within the state of Washington for complainant's account.

6. An informal complaint was filed on October 10, 1984, which was within nine months after the causes of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

The contract between complainant and respondent makes it clear that respondent was only to perform packing type services for complainant in regard to the subject cherries. It was long ago determined that the Secretary of Agriculture does not jurisdiction over this type of contract, even though such contract involves perishables. This type of contract does not fall within the meaning of the term "transaction" as it is used in section 2 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 499b). See Anonymous, 4 Agric. Dec. 332 (1945).

best copy available

It is also clear that respondent did sell culls and briners belonging to complainant for complainant's account, and that at least part of these sales were orally authorized by complainant, without, however, any reference in such oral authorizations to sale of the produce outside the state. Respondent asserts in its sworn answer that these culls and briners were sold to Mojonnier & Sons, Inc. in Sunny Side, Washington, and did not move in interstate commerce. Complainant has presented us with no evidence which would show that the culls and briners were sold in interstate commerce, or that such was contemplated within the meaning of the Act and we must conclude that we have no jurisdiction to adjudicate any matters relative to such cherries. See Mendelson-Zeller Co. v. Bleir, 34 Agric. Dec. 683 (1975).

Complainant also asserts that the records furnished by respondent to complainant, when compared with delivery receipts, demonstrate that out of all the cherries received by respondent, 107,774 pounds of Bing cherries, 12,351 pounds of Chinook cherries, 2,141 pounds of Burlatt cherries, 29,004 pounds of Lambert cherries, and 3,580 pounds of Van cherries were missing or unaccounted for by respondent. Complainant asserts that respondent must have sold these cherries, and has simply refused to disclose such sales to complainant. Complainant also asserts that most cherry sales are in interstate commerce, and that consequently such cherries must have been sold in interstate commerce. It is well established that the burden is upon a claimant in a reparation proceeding to prove interstate commerce or contemplation thereof. See Wright Supply Corporation v. Carpenter Marketing, Inc., 38 Agric. Dec. 1641 (1979) and S. Walter Market Credit v. Treasure Island Foods and/or Ben Klein, 28 Agric. Dec. 1186 (1969). Complainant's speculation that the cherries, if diverted by respondent, were sold in interstate commerce, is not sufficient proof of interstate commerce. In an effort to show that "the ultimate destination of packed and processed cherries normally involves interstate shipment" complainant submitted a number of invoices covering its own cherries which were shipped interstate. However, among another group of invoices covering complainant's cherries were at lease six covering shipments of cherries intrastate. We conclude that complainant has failed to establish the required interstate commerce in connection with these cherries which it alleges respondent in some way disposed of without authorization. The complaint should be dismissed.

The complaint is dismissed.

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant seeks an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $4,561.20 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of a truck lot of tomatoes.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondents, and respondent Tom Lange Co., Inc., filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant. Respondent Martin Montes d/b/a M&M Produce Brokerage did not file an answer and was deemed to be in default.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement, respondent Tom Lange,

Co., Inc., filed an answering statement, and complainant filed a statement in reply. Complainant also, filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Bianchi & Sons Packing Co., is a corporation whose address P.O. Box 190, Merced, California.

2. Respondent, Tom Lange Co., Inc., (hereinafter Lange) is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 4701, Springfield, Illinois. At the time of the transaction involved herein this respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. Respondent Martin Montes (hereinafter Montes) is an individual doing business as M & M Produce Brokerage whose address is 43 Dolores Street, Watsonville, California. At the time of the transaction involved herein this respondent was licensed under the Act.

4. On October 19, 1984, complainant was contacted by respondent Montes, who represented himself to be acting as a broker, and who secured complainant's agreement to sell to respondent Lange 288 25 pound cartons of extra large "Jana Pink" tomatoes at $8.00 per carton, and 360 25 pound cartons of large "Jana Pink" tomatoes at $6.00 per carton, plus $.15 per carton for palletizing, or a total of $4,561.20, f.o.b.

5. On October 19, 1984, the tomatoes were shipped from loading point in California by truck.

6. On October 19, 1984, respondent Lange contacted respondent Montes to purchase a truckload of tomatoes from such respondent. Respondent Montes agreed to sell to respondent Lange a truckload of tomatoes to contain 432 cartons of extra large U.S. No. 1 grade tomatoes, No. 2 to No. 3 color, at $8.35 cents per carton, and 360 cartons of large tomatoes at $6.35 per carton, f.o.b., joint account above the specified prices.

7. On October 19, 1984, respondent Montes added 144 cartons of extra large tomatoes to the truck destined to respondent Lange and issued a "standard confirmation of sale" under its own letter head covering the total of 792 cartons of tomatoes. The confirmation of sale showed that the tomatoes were "sold for account of M & M Produce Brokerage" and also stated "joint account sale." The confirmation also included the additional instructions that the purchase price plus profits were to be remitted to M & M Produce Brokerage. Respondent Lange received this confirmation of sale on October 25, 1984. Respondent Lange accepted the tomatoes on arrival and determined that the 144 cartons of extra large tomatoes added by respondent Montes contained excessive condition defects. Respondent Lange contacted respondent Montes and negotiated a

$3.00 per carton allowance as to the 144 cartons of extra large tomatoes.

8. On November 5, 1984, respondent Lange received complainant's invoice. Respondent Lange's branch manager in Dallas, Texas, Greg Gust, who had conducted all of the negotiations on behalf of respondent Lange, placed a telephone call to complainant's office in California at 4:30 p.m. on November 5, 1984, and asked to talk to Mr. Bianchi. Mr. Gust was advised by Carol Krumm, office manager of Bianchi & Sons Packing Company, in Merced, California that Mr. Bianchi was not in the office, and asked if she could be of assistance. Mr. Gust identified himself and his company and told Ms. Krumm that he had received invoices both from Bianchi and from M & M Produce Brokerage. After a discussion of the situation Ms. Krumm agreed that Lange should make payment to respondent Montes.

9. Respondent Lange has paid respondent Montes for the 648 cartons of tomatoes covered by the formal complaint in an amount which exceeds the amount claimed in the formal complaint. Respondent Montes has not paid complainant any amount for the tomatoes.

10. An informal complaint was filed on February 5, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

It is clear from the record in this case that complainant had no contact with respondent Lange prior to such respondent receiving complainant's invoice on November 5, 1984. While complainant believed, on the basis of the misrepresentation of respondent Montes, that it was entering into a contract with respondent Lange, we do not believe that the evidence of record shows that a contractual relationship ever existed between complainant and respondent Lange. There was no mutuality between the parties concerning the terms of sale, and respondent Lange did not believe that it was contracting with complainant. See Anonymous, 8 Agric. Dec. 374 (1949).

Respondent Lange had notice of complainant's possible interest in the tomatoes prior to its making payment to respondent Montes. Respondent Lange contends that upon receipt of such notice in the form of the invoice of complainant its Greg Gust immediately telephoned complainant and secured the permission of complainant's Carol Krumm to pay the invoice of respondent Montes. This was asserted during the informal stages of this proceeding by respondent Lange and was again asserted in respondent Lange's answer. In the opening statement complainant's vice president, G. John Bianchi, Jr. referred to respondent Lange's allegation concerning the conversation with Carol Krumm and stated as follows:

> This conversation would have taken place without my knowledge and certainly would not constitute any agreement by Bianchi & Sons Packing Co. as Ms. Krumm would not be in the position of authority to authorize remittance to M & M Produce Brokerage. Why Mr. Gust would not communicate with me (a person in authority) is beyond my knowledge but I must reemphasize that certainly no one in Bianchi & Sons Packing Co. ever authorized payment to be directed to M & M Produce Brokerage.

Respondent Lange in its answering statement submitted the affidavit of Greg Gust in which it was again affirmed that the conversation with Carol Krumm had taken place. In addition, Mr. Gust submitted as an exhibit to the answering statement a copy of Bianchi's invoice which contains the handwritten and dated note reflecting Mr. Gust's agreement with Carol Krumm. Complainant's statement in reply consists of a lengthy affidavit by Carol Krumm admitting to the conversation of November 5, 1984, but denying that she ever gave consent for respondent Lange to pay the invoice of Martin Montes. Carol Krumm stated in part as follows:

> . . . Mr. Gust states that he spoke with me on November 5, 1984, at approximately 4:30 in the afternoon. Mr. Gust is correct in this statement. Apparently, Mr. Gust was telephoning for Mr. Bianchi to discuss the transaction covered by these proceedings. As Mr. Bianchi was not available, I told Mr. Gust that I would be more than happy to take a message for Mr. Bianchi. Mr. Gust asked if Bianchi & Sons Packing Co. could bill M & M Produce Brokerage for the load of tomatoes in question. I advised Mr. Gust that I would give this message to Mr. Bianchi, however, at no time did I ever agree that M & M Produce Brokerage should bill Tom Lange Co. direct and that Bianchi & Sons Packing Co. should bill M & M Produce direct for this shipment. I advised Mr. Gust that Mr. Bianchi would have to make the decision in regard to this matter and that I had no authority to make any type of commitment one way or the other . . .

Although Mr. Bianchi had earlier wondered "why Mr. Gust would not communicate with me . . ." no explanation was given to complainant as to why, if Carol Krumm's version of the conversation is correct, Mr. Bianchi never returned the call of Mr. Gust. On the whole, we find that Mr. Gust's account of the conversation with Carol Krumm is the more plausible and we have found as a matter of fact that Mr. Gust's version of the conversation is what occurred. Mr. Bianchi's protest that the office manager of Bianchi & Sons did not possess adequate authority to enter into the agreement that respondent Lange should pay the invoice of Montes cannot be accepted. Carol Krumm was complainant's employee, answered complainant's telephone, and undertook to make the agreement with Mr. Gust whereby respondent Lange was allowed to pay the invoice of Montes. We find that Carol Krumm had apparent authority to authorize payment to Montes. The complaint as to respondent Lange should be dismissed.

Respondent Montes clearly received funds which should have been forwarded to complainant. This respondent has not forwarded such funds to complainant, and its failure to do so is a violation of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

The complaint as against respondent Tom Lange Co., Inc., is dismissed.

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent Martin Montes doing business as M & M Produce Brokers, shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $4,561.20 with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from November 1, 1984, until paid.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $2,597.50 in connection with the shipment in foreign or interstate commerce of truck lot and a truckload of cucumbers. A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto admitting liability to complainant in the amount of $2,001.50 and denying liability to complainant for the remaining $596.00. On January 17, 1986, an order was issued requiring respondent to pay complainant $2,001.50 as an undisputed amount.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified complaint is considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. Respondent's answer was not verified and is therefore not considered a part of the evidence in this proceeding. See 7 CFR § 47.20(a). In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements, however, neither party did so. Neither party filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant, Cal-Mex Distributors, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 1717, Chula Vista, California.

2. Respondent, Four C's Packing Co., is a partnership composed of Charles L. Cacho, Hellen O. Cacho, Louis J. Cacho, and Richard A. Cacho, whose address is P.O. Box 3278, Chula Vista, California. At the time of the transaction involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about March 6, 1985, complainant sold to respondent one lot consisting of 72 wire bound crates of select cucumbers which had been received by complainant on March 4, 1985, from Mexico. The price of the cucumbers was $6.00 per crate, plus $.65 for palletizing and cooling, or a total of $478.80. Respondent picked up the cucumbers in its own truck at complainant's place of business on March 6, 1985.

4. On or about April 8, 1985, complainant sold to respondent 596 crates of super select cucumbers at $12.50 per crate, and 224 crates of select cucumbers at $7.50 per crate, plus $22.50 for a Ryan temperature recorder, or a total of $9,152.50. The cucumbers were shipped on or about April 8, 1985, from Florida to respondent's place of business in Chula Vista, California in a truck hired by respondent.

5. On May 18, 1985, respondent sent complainant a check in the amount of $7,033.80 for the two cucumber transactions. This check was later released by respondent as an undisputed amount.

6. The formal complaint was filed on May 24, 1985, which was within nine months after the causes of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent in its unsworn answer admitted liability for $2,001.50 of the remaining $2,597.50 alleged due by complainant. Respondent's defense in regard to the remaining $596.00 consisted of the allegation that the 596 crates of super select cucumbers sold on April 8, 1985, were sold at $11.50 rather than the $12.50 figure alleged by complainant. Since respondent's answer was not verified there is no evidence in the records supporting respondent's contention. Perrell, Inc. v. Anthony Abbate Fruit Distributors, 32 Agric. Dec. 1900 (1973). On the other hand, complainant's sworn complaint alleges that the sale price of the 596 crates of cucumbers was $12.50, and complainant attached a copy of the invoice to its sworn complaint showing that the 596 cartons of cucumbers were billed at $12.50 to respondent. We conclude the sale price was $12.50, and that there remains due and owing from respondent to complainant the sum of $596.00. Respondent's failure to pay complainant such amount is a violation of section 2 of the Act for which reparation should be awarded to complainant with interest.

ORDER

Within thirty days from the date of this order, respondent shall pay to complainant, as reparation, $596.00, with interest thereon at the rate of 13 percent per annum from May 1, 1985, until paid.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

Warranty of suitable shipping condition—Breach of contract—Rejection with reasonable cause—Complaint dismissed.

Complainant has the burden to prove by a preponderance of evidence the allegations of its complaint and failed to meet its burden in this case. It alleges that the respondent is liable for the balance of the purchase price in part due to a breach of the warranty of suitable shipping condition and because the tomatoes provided were in conformity with the contract terms. Where the normality of the transportation service and conditions are challenged, the burden of proof rests upon the party seeking the benefit and the complainant failed to submit such evidence. Accordingly, the complaint is dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). The complainant timely filed a formal complaint in which the complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $5,487.30 in connection with a shipment of tomatoes in interstate commerce.

Copies of the Report of Investigation made by the Department were served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent which filed an answer thereto denying liability.

Because the amount claimed as damages was less than $15,000, the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Under this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's Report of Investigation. In addition, the parties had the opportunity to file evidence in the form of verified statements. Complainant filed an opening statement and a brief. Respondent filed a response to complainant's opening statement but did not file a brief.

Temperature Range:	44°, 47°, 52°, 54°F
Condition:	Average approximately 5% Breakers 30% Turning to Pink 60% Light Red to Red 4% Decay

Average 5% damage by sunken discolored area, generally occurring over shoulders.

10. The condition of the tomatoes after each inspection was within the range of tolerance for grade U.S. No. 1 as prescribed in 7 CFR § 51.1861(a)(2).

11. American Tomatoes sold the tomatoes for the account of Carlsbad.

12. California Produce remitted $6,652.80 to Carlsbad for the truckload of tomatoes.

13. Carlsbad filed a formal complaint on September 16, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

This proceeding involves the purchase of 1584 flats of tomatoes by California Produce from Carlsbad and shipped to American Tomatoes, f.o.b. Miami, Florida. We resolve this case in favor of California Produce on the basis of the warranty of suitable shipping condition, breach of contract and rejection with reasonable cause. There is no dispute that there was an oral contract to purchase 1584 flats of tomatoes between the parties. Also, the statements submitted by both parties dispositively show that California Produce requested tomatoes of 2 Breaker to 3 Turning color, based on the color classifications set forth in 7 CFR § 51.1860.

As the moving party, Carlsbad has the burden to prove by a preponderance of the evidence the affirmative allegations of its complaint. New York v. Sandler, 32 Agric. Dec. 702, 705 (1973). Carlsbad did not meet its burden in this case. Essentially, Carlsbad alleges that California Produce is liable for the balance of the purchase price in part due to a breach of the warranty of suitable shipping condition and because the tomatoes provided by Carlsbad were in conformity with with the contract terms. In an f.o.b sale such as this one, California Produce assumes all risk of loss due to transportation service and conditions (e.g., abnormal temperatures), while Carlsbad is liable for any abnormal deterioration at the contract destination point if the commodity is handled under normal transportation service and conditions. This is the warranty of suitable shipping conditions which Carlsbad seeks to apply to California Produce. Wolf v. Mendelson-Zeller Co., 34 Agric. Dec. 690, 693 (1975).

The transportation services and temperature conditions provided here were normal. Carlsbad questions the pulp temperatures noted on the federal inspection certificates as indicative of abnormal temperature conditions in transit, and therefore the reason for the advanced color of the tomatoes on arrival. Where the normality of the transportation service and conditions are challenged, the burden of proof rests upon the party seeking the benefit of this part of the warranty, Carlsbad here. Valley Packing Co. v. Nicholas J. Zerillo, Inc., 28 Agric. Dec. 1352, 1356 (1969). Nevertheless, Carlsbad submitted no evidence to prove abnormal temperatures in transit.

The Department's publication Protecting Perishable Foods During Transport by Motor Truck, Agriculture Handbook No. 105, states relative to the tomatoes here that desired transit temperatures should be between 45° and 50°F. The Handbook also states that the shipping temperature maintained in transit depends on the number of days required for transportation and the percentage of ripening desired by the receiver. The rate of ripening of the tomatoes in transit is further retarded by lower temperatures not less than 41°F. D'Arrigo Bros. Co. of California v. Colonial Stores, 42 Agric. Dec. 173, 176 (1983). The federal inspection on the date of arrival shows a pulp temperature of 45° with 1% decay. Without any evidence to the contrary, we find no abnormal temperatures in transit. The pulp temperature indicates an in transit temperature low enough to retard advancing color changes beyond a 2 to 3 color during the journey. Accordingly, Carlsbad did not prove that transportation was not normal due to the temperature conditions in transit associated with the warranty of suitable shipping condition.

Finally, Carlsbad did not prove that the tomatoes provided were in conformity with the contract term requesting tomatoes of 2 to 3 color. Carlsbad did not submit any evidence to show that it loaded tomatoes of 2 to 3 color in Nogales, Arizona, in accordance with the contract requirement. Also, while it is true that the federal inspection report taken on arrival shows that the tomatoes were within the range of tolerance for U.S. No. 1 grade fresh tomatoes, the percentage of advanced ripening color far exceeded the color specified in the contract, which constitutes a breach of contract. Pacific Farm Co. v. Bisese and Console, Inc., 33 Agric. Dec. 1839, 1841. Therefore, California Produce properly rejected the tomatoes shipped by Carlsbad. California Produce is not responsible to Carlsbad for any of the purchase price. American Tomatoes disposed of the tomatoes for the account of Carlsbad and submitted an account of sale to California Produce. California Produce remitted $6,652.80 to Carlsbad for the tomatoes. Carlsbad submitted its invoice on which $6,652.80 appears with the words "claim settlement—released on undisputed amount" and with the original invoice price deleted. Accordingly, the complaint must be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is a reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.). A timely complaint was filed in which complainant sought an award of reparation against respondent in the amount of $9,811.85 in connection with the shipment in interstate commerce of two truckloads of mixed produce.

A copy of the report of investigation made by the Department was served upon the parties. A copy of the formal complaint was served upon respondent, which filed an answer thereto denying liability to complainant.

The amount claimed in the formal complaint does not exceed $15,000.00, and the shortened method of procedure provided in section 47.20 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 47.20) is applicable. Pursuant to this procedure, the verified pleadings of the parties are considered a part of the evidence in the case, as is the Department's report of investigation. In addition, the parties were given an opportunity to file evidence in the form of sworn statements. Complainant filed an opening statement. Respondent did not file an answering statement. Complainant filed a brief.

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Complainant is a partnership composed of Frank S. Eckel III and William R. Sherer, doing business as Skip's Consolidation, whose address is P.O. Box 3947, Salinas, California.

2. Respondent, Weinstein Produce Sales, Inc., is a corporation whose address is P.O. Box 7364, Boise, Idaho. At the time of the transactions involved herein respondent was licensed under the Act.

3. On or about January 16, 1985, complainant sold to respondent under its invoice No. 5744, and shipped from loading point in California to respondent in Boise, Idaho, one truckload of mixed perishable produce which contained, in addition to numerous other items, 330 cartons of lettuce which were sold at a price of $2,515.50. The total price for the truckload of mixed produce was $7,308.10, f.o.b.

4. On or about January 31, 1985, complainant sold to respondent under its invoice No. 5808, and shipped from loading point in California to respondent in Boise, Idaho one partial truckload of mixed produce having a total invoice price of $2,503.75, f.o.b. This produce was accepted by respondent without complaint, and complainant has been paid in full for such produce.

5. The mixed truckload of produce shipped on January 16, 1985, arrived in Boise, Idaho on Saturday, January 19, 1985. Respondent called complainant at that time and informed complainant that the 330 cartons of lettuce arrived showing damage due to field freeze. Respondent also informed complainant that an inspection would be called for but was not yet available since the lettuce arrived on the weekend. On Monday, January 21, 1985, respondent attempted to secure federal inspection and was informed that inspection would not be available until Tuesday. Respondent so informed complainant on Monday. On Tuesday, January 22, 1985, at 9 a.m., the lettuce was federally inspected while stacked on pallets at respondent's place of business. The temperature was shown to be 36° to 38°F. Condition was stated to be as follows:

> Wrapper leaves: Average 8% damage by Light brown to brown discoloration affecting 2 to 5 leaves. No decay.
> Head Leaves: 22 Heads per carton average 88% damage by feathering and peeling affecting 4 to 7 outer head leaves. No decay.

On January 23, 1985, respondent sent complainant the following telegram:

> AS TO OUR FIRST PHONE CONVERSATION ON LATE SATURDAY EVENING 1-19-85 ARRIVAL TRUCK PER

6. On or about August 22, 1985, respondent sent complainant a check in the amount of $7,579.25. Attached to the check was the following statement:

INVOICE #5808 2,503.75

#5744 5,075.50

paid in full per att letter & inspection

Attached to the check was an accounting under the letterhead of respondent covering the 330 cartons of lettuce. Such accounting showed gross proceeds in the amount of $1,497.90, freight at $495.00, and warehousing and selling fees at $2.25 per carton, or $742.50, leaving net proceeds of $260.40.

7. The formal complaint was filed on July 15, 1985, which was within nine months after the cause of action alleged herein accrued.

CONCLUSIONS

Respondent in its answer asserts that its payment to complainant dated August 22, 1985, was tendered as payment in full, and that it does not owe complainant any balance since the check was cashed by complainant as payment in full. Complainant did not address this crucial allegation in either its opening statement or its brief. The exchange of telegrams between complainant and respondent following respondent's acceptance of the produce and the subsequent filing of an informal and formal complaint by complainant make it abundantly clear that there was a bona-fide dispute between the parties prior to complainant's negotiation of the check tendered by respondent. The accounting, in the form of a letter attached to the check and statement, made clear the basis on which respondent was tendering a lesser amount than the amount invoiced as payment in full. We have held many times that where there is a bona-fide dispute between the buyer and seller as to the amount due for produce sold, and the buyer sends the seller a check for less than the contract price marked "payment in full" or other words clearly indicating that the check is tendered in full settlement, the acceptance of such check constitutes an accord and satisfaction. See Kelman Farms v. Bushman Brokerage, 34 Agric. Dec. 1146 (1975). The complaint should be dismissed.

ORDER UPON RECONSIDERATION AND DENYING PETITION TO REHEAR AND REARGUE

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), an order was issued on July 9, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant against respondent. On July 23, 1986, respondent filed a petition to rehear, reargue and reconsider this matter. On August 18, 1986, the order of July 9, 1986, was stayed and complainant was granted 15 days from receipt thereof to file an answer to respondent's petition. On September 12, 1986, complainant filed an answer.

We have thoroughly considered the matters raised in respondent's petition and find them without merit. Upon reconsideration of our order of July 9, 1986, we find that such order is fully supported by the evidence and the law applicable thereto. Accordingly respondent's petition should be and hereby is dismissed. The stay order of August 18, 1986, is vacated and the order of July 9, 1986, is hereby reinstated, except that the reparation awarded to complainant in that order shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION AND DENIAL OF PETITION TO REOPEN

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), an order was issued July 9, 1986, awarding reparation to complainant against respondent. A copy of this order was served upon respondent and on August 1, 1986, respondent moved that this matter be reopened and reconsidered. On August 18, 1986, the order of July 9, 1986, was stayed and complainant was given fifteen days from date of receipt of the stay order to file an answer to the petition to reopen and reconsider. Such answer was filed on September 3, 1986.

This case was decided after careful consideration of the evidence furnished by the parties. The record has been reviewed in the light of the points raised by respondent in its petition and, in our opinion, the order of July 9, 1986, is amply supported by the evidence and the law applicable thereto. Respondent has stated no reasons which would justify reopening this proceeding. Accordingly, respondent's petition to reopen is denied and the petition for reconsideration is dismissed. The stay order of August 18, 1986, is vacated. The order of July 9, 1986, is reinstated, except that the reparation awarded in that order shall be paid within 30 days from the date of this order.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

This order was corrected by an order issued October 23, 1986. By petition dated November 5, 1986, respondent has moved that this matter be reconsidered and that the record be reopened for the taking of further evidence.

Accordingly, the order of October 3, 1986, as corrected by the order of October 23, 1986, is hereby stayed. Complainant has ten days from its receipt of this order in which to file a response to respondent's petition.

M&C P FARMS v. LLOYD MYERS CO., INC. PACA Docket No. 2-6873. Decided December 2, 1986.

Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

ORDER ON RECONSIDERATION

In this reparation proceeding under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, as amended (7 U.S.C. § 499a et seq.), a Decision and Order was issued on September 29, 1986, awarding reparation to the complainant in the amounts of $52,386.96 plus interest from December 1, 1984, until paid, and $5,716.78 plus interest from the date of the order until paid. On October 24, 1986, the respondent moved for reconsideration of that decision.[1]

As its primary ground for reconsideration, respondent argues that complainant failed to prove that respondent received payment from La Maison De Fruits Et. Le Gumes Supra, Inc., ("La Maison") in the amount of $52,739.70 as alleged by the former and as found by us in the September 29, 1986, Decision and Order. However, we are satisfied that the preponderance of the evidence in the record, which consists of checks made out to respondent by La Maison and La Maison's claim in its answer to complainant's Canadian lawsuit that it paid respondent the $52,739.70, establishes that respondent did, in fact, receive such payments. Moreover, that we correctly concluded that respondent did receive such payments is made clear by the fact that respondent's president, Lloyd Myers, was present at the hearing where the critical documents were made part of the record and, although present and aware that those documents were being received into evidence, he refused to take the stand to testify that it did not actually receive the payments represented by those checks. Under the circumstances presented here, after those documents were made a part of the record at the hearing, respondent had the burden of going forward to dispute the evidence showing that it did receive the payments from La Maison totalling $52,739.70. See Walker & Hagan v. Amato, 27 Agric. Dec. 1543 (1968); and A. Levy & J. Zentner Co. v. Wuhl-Shafman-Lieberman, 28 Agric. Dec. 1571 (1969). Since it failed to do so, we had no choice

[1] Respondent also moved for reopening of the hearing on the ground that it was entitled to cross-examine respondent regarding the complaint which was filed on complainant's behalf in the Canadian courts which complaint, although made a part of the record herein by the presiding officer at the hearing, was not physically received until after the close of the hearing. See fn. 1 of the September 29, 1986, Decision and Order. As there is nothing substantive in the Canandian complaint which would have any affect upon our decision in this case, respondent's motion is denied.

but to conclude that it did receive the payments as indicated by the checks issued to it by La Maison.

Respondent cites three other grounds for reconsideration.[2] None of them has any merit and none of them is worthy of comment. The record is clear. Complainant satisfied its burden of proving its allegations by a preponderance of the evidence. Respondent chose not to put any documentary evidence into the record to dispute the documentary evidence which was adduced by complainant, and also chose not to put on any evidence through witnesses. Apparently, respondent was planning on relying upon an argument that complainant failed to sustain its burden of proof as the keypoint to its defense. If, because of this, it lost its opportunity to adduce evidence in support of its contention that it had no liability towards complainant, respondent has no one but those who control its destiny to blame for its failure.

Based on the record as a whole, we are satisfied that respondent's claims in its motion for reconsideration are without merit and that the September 29, 1986, Decision and Order is amply supported by the evidence and by the law applicable thereto. Accordingly, the respondent's motion for reconsideration is dismissed without prior service on complainant.

The Decision and Order of September 29, 1986, is reinstated except that respondent shall have thirty days from the date of this order to pay complainant the reparation awarded therein.

Copies of this order shall be served upon the parties.

[2] The first of these is that complainant did not prove it "was a valid entity that owned the olives" in question; the second is that it was erroneously concluded that respondent exceeded its authority by negotiating a sales price which was lower than authorized by complainant and that complainant was, therefore, not entitled to the $540.00 reparation awarded it on this basis; and the third is that it was erroneously concluded that respondent's counterclaim for $5,000.00 should be dismissed.

In re: LUZ G. PIESZKO. PQ Docket No. 82. Decided November 12, 1986.

Civil Penalty.

The Judicial Officer affirmed the default decision issued by Judge Palmer assessing a civil penalty of $250 because respondent violated the regulations governing the importing of meat products into the United States by importing cooked meat pies with pork from the Philippines, that were not accompanied by a certificate containing prescribed information. Respondent failed to file a timely answer, and, therefore, a default decision was properly issued. Although the ALJ did not refer to respondent's objections filed with respect to complainant's proposed decision and order, there is no requirement in the regulations that the ALJ answer such objections. Mitigating circumstances raised for the first time in respondent's appeal come too late to be considered, but, in any event, they would not reduce the sanction here. In re Lopez, 44 Agric. Decision by Donald A. Campbell, Judicial Officer.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty under the Act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U.S.C. §§ 111, 120, 122), for a violation of the regulations governing the importing of meat products into the United States from foreign countries and localities (9 CFR § 94.1 et seq). An initial Decision and Order was issued on July 1, 1986, by Administrative Law Judge Victor W. Palmer (ALJ) assessing a civil penalty of $250.

On August 12, 1986, respondent appealed to the Judicial Officer, to whom final administrative authority to decide the Department's cases subject to 5 U.S.C. §§ 556 and 557 has been delegated (7 CFR § 2.35).[1] The case was referred to the Judicial Officer for decision on September 22, 1986.

Based upon a careful consideration of the record, the initial Decision and Order is adopted as the final Decision and Order in this case, with trivial changes. Additional conclusions by the Judicial Officer follow the ALJ's conclusions.

[1] The position of Judicial Officer was established pursuant to the Act of April 4, 1940 (7 U.S.C. §§ 450c–450g), and Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953, 18 Fed. Reg. 3219 (1953), reprinted in 5 U.S.C. app. at 1068 (1982). The Department's present Judicial Officer was appointed in January 1971, having been involved with the Department's regulatory programs since 1949 (including 3 years' trial litigation; 10 years' appellate litigation relating to appeals from the decisions of the prior Judicial Officer; and 8 years as administrator of the Packers and Stockyards Act regulatory program).

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE'S INITIAL DECISION

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the importation into the United States of meat products from foreign countries and localities (9 CFR § 94.1 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 7 CFR § 1.130 et seq. and 9 CFR § 93.10 et seq.

This proceeding was instituted by a Complaint filed on April 4, 1985, by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on or about December 13, 1984, the respondent imported cooked meat pies with pork into the United States in violation of sections 94.9(b)(3) and 94.12(b)(3) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 94.9(b)(3) and 94.12(b)(3)), because the cooked meat pies with pork were not accompanied by a certificate containing prescribed information.

On April 9, 1985, the complaint was sent to Ms. Pieszko by certified mail. The complaint was returned to the Hearing Clerk's office on or about April 30, 1985, marked unclaimed. Pursuant to section 1.147(b) of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.147(b)), the complaint was then posted by regular mail by the Hearing Clerk's office. The respondent has not filed an Answer to the Complaint. This failure to file an Answer is deemed, for purposes of this proceeding, to be an admission of the allegations contained in the Complaint and, consequently, a waiver of hearing. (See 7 CFR §§ 1.136(c) and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the Complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Respondent, Luz G. Pieszko, is an individual whose address is 95 Summit Avenue, Jersey City, New Jersey 07304.

2. On or about December 13, 1984, the respondent imported cooked meat pies with pork into the United States at Seattle, Washington, from the Philippines, in violation of sections 94.9(b)(3) and 94.12(b)(3) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 94.9(b)(3) and 94.12(b)(3)), because the cooked meat pies with pork were not accompanied by a certificate containing prescribed information.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated sections 94.9(b)(3) and 94.12(b)(3) of the regulations (9 CFR §§ 94.9(b)(3) and 94.12(b)(3)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ADDITIONAL CONCLUSIONS BY THE JUDICIAL OFFICER

Under the Department's rules of practice governing formal adjudicatory administrative proceedings instituted by the Secretary, a respondent's failure to file a timely answer [2] or deny the allegations of the complaint constitutes an admission of the allegations in the complaint and a waiver of hearing. Specifically, the rules of practice provide (7 CFR §§ 1.136(a)–(c), .139, .141(a)):

> § 1.136 Answer.
> (a) Filing and service. Within 20 days after the service of the complaint . . . the respondent shall file with the Hearing Clerk an answer signed by the respondent or the attorney of record in the proceeding. . . .
>
> (b) Contents. The answer shall: (1) Clearly admit, deny, or explain each of the allegations of the Complaint and shall clearly set forth any defense asserted by the respondent; or
>
> (2) State that the respondent admits all the facts alleged in the complaint; or
>
> (3) State that the respondent admits the jurisdictional allegations of the complaint and neither admits nor denies the remaining allegations and consents to the issuance of an order without further procedure.
> (c) Default. Failure to file an answer within the time provided under § 1.136(a) shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of the allegations in the Complaint, and failure to deny or otherwise respond to an allegation of the Complaint shall be deemed, for purposes of the proceeding, an admission of said allegation, unless

[2] Respondent filed an untitled document, referred to by respondent as an "objection," which was dated "May 11, 1985." If this date were accurate, respondent would have technically met the deadline for filing an answer as required by 7 CFR § 1.136(a). However, it is clear from the record that that date was an oversight by respondent. It was probably sent May 11, 1986, because it was received by the Hearing Clerk on May 19, 1986, and purported to state objections to Complainant's Proposed Decision and Order of April 23, 1986. Moreover, respondent's August 4, 1986, letter requesting review by the Judicial Officer refers specifically to the letter in question as being "forwarded [by respondent] on May 11, 1986. . . ." In any event, even if it were to be construed as a timely "answer," it still would not change the result as it does not deny the allegations in the complaint, as required.

the parties have agreed to a consent decision pursuant to § 1.138.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.139 Procedure upon failure to file an answer or admission of facts.

The failure to file an answer, or the admission by the answer of all the material allegations of fact contained in the complaint, shall constitute a waiver of hearing. Upon such admission or failure to file, complainant shall file a proposed decision, along with a motion for the adoption thereof, both of which shall be served upon the respondent by the Hearing Clerk.

Within 20 days after service of such motion and proposed decision, the respondent may file with the Hearing Clerk objections thereto. If the Judge finds that meritorious objections have been filed, complainant's Motion shall be denied with supporting reasons. If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing.

* * * * * * *

§ 1.141 Procedure for Hearing.

(a) Request for Hearing. Any party may request a hearing on the facts by including such request in the complaint or answer, or by a separate request, in writing, filed with the Hearing Clerk within the time in which an answer may be filed. Failure to request a hearing within the time allowed for the filing of the answer shall constitute a waiver of such hearing.

The complaint in this case contained allegations identical in all material respects to the findings of fact, supra, and advised respondent that complainant was seeking a $250 civil penalty. The complaint advised respondent that an answer must be filed with the Hearing Clerk within 20 days, and that failure to file a timely answer or deny or otherwise respond to any allegation shall constitute an admission of such allegation, as follows (Complaint at 1-2):

WHEREFORE, it is hereby ordered that for the purpose of determining whether or not the respondent has, in fact, violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder, this complaint shall be served upon the respondent. The > respondent shall have twenty (20) days after receipt of this complaint in which to file an answer with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, in accordance with the applicable Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136). Failure to deny or otherwise respond to any allegation in this complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation. Failure to file an answer within the time allowed therefor shall constitute an admission of the allegations in this complaint and a waiver of hearing.

In addition, the letter from the Hearing Clerk serving a copy of the complaint on respondent expressly advised respondent of the effect of failure to file an answer or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint. The letter states:

> In accordance with the rules of practice governing proceedings under the Act, a copy of which is enclosed, you will have 20 days from the receipt of this letter within which to file with the Hearing Clerk an original and three copies of your answer. Your answer should contain a definite statement of the facts which constitute the grounds of defense, and should specifically admit, deny or explain each of the allegations of the complaint. Failure to file an answer to or plead specifically to any allegation of the complaint shall constitute an admission of such allegation.
> Within the same time allowed for the filing of your answer, you may, if you wish, request an oral hearing. Failure to file such a request will constitute a waiver, on your part, of oral hearing.

Respondent failed to answer the complaint. Accordingly, under the plain provisions of the rules of practice, the default decision was properly issued. Although on rare occasions default decisions have been set aside for good cause shown or where complainant did not object,[3] respondent has shown no basis for setting aside the default decision here.[4]

Continued

The requirement in the Department's rules of practice that respondent deny or explain any allegation of the complaint and set forth any defense in a timely answer is necessary to enable this Department to handle its large workload in an expeditious and economical manner. During the last fiscal year, the Department's five ALJ's (who do not have law clerks) disposed of 496 cases. The Department's Judicial Officer disposed of 42 cases. In a recent month, 66 new cases were filed with the Hearing Clerk.

The courts have recognized that administrative agencies "should be 'free to fashion their own rules of procedure and to pursue methods of inquiry capable of permitting them to discharge their multitudinous duties.' " [5] If respondent were permitted to contest some of the allegations of fact at this late date, or raise new issues, all other respondents in all other cases would have to be afforded the same privilege. Permitting such practice would greatly delay the administrative process and would require additional personnel. However, there is no basis for permitting respondent to present matters by way of defense at this time.

The Department's rules govern respondent's contention in his August 4, 1986, letter, that his late-filed May 11, 1986, "objections" letter constituted an "answer." The analysis, supra, demonstrates that it is not an "answer" within the rules.

There remains the procedural point raised by respondent that the ALJ did not acknowledge his May 11, 1986, letter in the July 1, 1986, Decision and Order. Although the record shows that the Hearing Clerk telephoned respondent to assure respondent that the ALJ had considered the May 11, 1986, letter, no such acknowledgement, verbal or written, is required by the rules. "If meritorious objections are not filed, the Judge shall issue a decision without further procedure or hearing" (7 CFR § 1.139).

The remainder of the August 4, 1986, appeal to the Judicial Officer raises four objections: that respondent could not pay the original fine because she had no money; that respondent speaks imperfect English and did not understand the charges; that the pork pie actually had had the pork removed; and that the violation was not intentional. These are alleged mitigating circumstances, which are not appropriate to present at this level of review in a default proceeding. See In re Midas Navigation, Ltd., 45 Agric. Dec. ____ (July 9, 1986). However, even if it were appropriate to consider them, they would not alter the outcome here, because this case is governed by the principles set forth in In re Lopez, 44 Agric. Dec. ____ (Oct. 7, 1985), a copy of which is attached as an appendix.

There are some differences between the facts here and the facts in Lopez; however, the differences are not material. As explained in Lopez, in order to achieve the congressional purpose and to prevent the importation into the United States of items that could be disastrous to the United States agricultural community, it is necessary to take a hard-nosed approach and hold violators responsible for any violation irrespective of lack of evil motive or intent to violate the quarantine laws. If that policy were not followed, loopholes would be created that could prove disastrous to American agriculture.

For the foregoing reasons, the following order should be issued.

ORDER

The respondent, Luz G. Pieszko, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of $250 which shall be paid within 30 days after service of this order. This penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Room 2422, South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250-1400.

DECISION AND ORDER

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

This proceeding was instituted under the Plant Quarantine Act (7 U.S.C. § 151 et seq.) and the Federal Plant Pest Act (7 U.S.C.

150aa et seq.) by a complaint issued by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that respondent has violated sections 150 and 159 of the Act (7 U.S.C. § 150 and § 159) and section 318.13-4 of the regulations promulgated thereunder (7 CFR §§ 318.13-4)

Copies of the complaint and the Rules of Practice governing proceedings under the Act were served upon respondent on June 4, 1986.

Pursuant to section 1.136 of the Rules of Practice (7 CFR § 1.136) applicable to this proceeding, respondent was informed in the complaint and the letter of service that an answer should be filed with the Hearing Clerk within twenty (20) days after service of the complaint, and that failure to file an answer either denying, admitting, or explaining the allegations in the complaint and requesting an oral hearing would constitute an admission of such allegations and a waiver of such hearing. More than twenty (20) days have elapsed since Respondent was served with the amended complaint. Respondent has not filed an answer to the amended complaint. This Decision and Order, therefore, is issued pursuant to sections 1.136 and 1.139 of the Rules of Practice to this proceeding (7 CFR §§ 1.136 and 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACT

1. Kathy Fausnaught, is an individual whose mailing address is 2704 13th Avenue, Oakland, California 94606.

2. On or about June 19, 1985, Kathy Fausnaught imported (15) fifteen mangoes from Hawaii to Oakland California, in violation of section 318.13-4 of the regulations (7 CFR 318.13-4), because the mangoes were not imported under a limited permit or certificate, as required.

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the complaint, which are admitted by respondent's failure to file an answer, are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact.

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts in the findings of fact set forth above, respondent has violated the Act and regulations promulgated thereunder. Therefore, the following order is issued.

ORDER

Respondent is hereby assessed a civil penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars which shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States", by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Joseph P. Pembroke, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order.

This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.145).

Decision by Dorothea A. Baker, Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

This is an administrative proceeding for the assessment of a civil penalty for a violation of the regulations governing the importation into the United States of fruits and vegetables from foreign countries and localities (7 CFR §§ 319.56 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the regulations, in accordance with the Rules of Practice in 7 CFR §§ 1.130 et seq. and 380.1 et seq.

This proceeding was instituted by a Complaint filed on February 6, 1986, by the Administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, United States Department of Agriculture. The complaint alleged that on or about June 22, 1985, the respondent imported mangoes into the United States at Jamaica, New York, from Haiti, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)), because the mangoes were not imported under permit as required by section 319.56–2(e) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56–2(e)).

On February 20, 1986, the respondent signed a return receipt indicating that she had received the Complaint. Although the respondent's Answer was required to be filed in the Office of the Hearing Clerk by March 12, 1986, as of March 31, 1986, no such Answer has been filed. This failure to file an Answer is deemed, for purposes of this proceeding, to be an admission of the allegations contained in the Complaint and, consequently, a waiver of hearing. (See 7 CFR §§ 1.136(c) and 1.139).

Accordingly, the material facts alleged in the Complaint are adopted and set forth herein as the findings of fact, and this decision is issued pursuant to section 1.139 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding (7 CFR § 1.139).

FINDINGS OF FACTS

1. Respondent, Marie Ferrier, is an individual whose address is 26 Seabring Street, Spring Valley, New York 10977.

2. On or about June 22, 1985, the respondent imported mangoes into the United States at Jamaica, New York, from Haiti, in violation of section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)), because the mangoes were not imported under permit, as required by section 319.56–2(e) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56–2(e)).

CONCLUSION

By reason of the facts contained in the Findings of Fact above, the respondent has violated section 319.56(c) of the regulations (7 CFR § 319.56(c)).

Therefore, the following Order is issued.

ORDER

The respondent, Marie Ferrier, is hereby assessed a civil penalty of seven hundred fifty dollars ($750.00). This penalty shall be payable to the "Treasurer of the United States" by certified check or money order, and shall be forwarded to Jaru Ruley, Office of the General Counsel, Room 2422, South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250–1400, within thirty (30) days from the effective date of this order. This order shall have the same force and effect as if entered after a full hearing and shall be final and effective 35 days after service of this Decision and Order upon the respondent, unless there is an appeal to the Judicial Officer pursuant to section 1.145 of the Rules of Practice applicable to this proceeding. (7 CFR § 1.145).

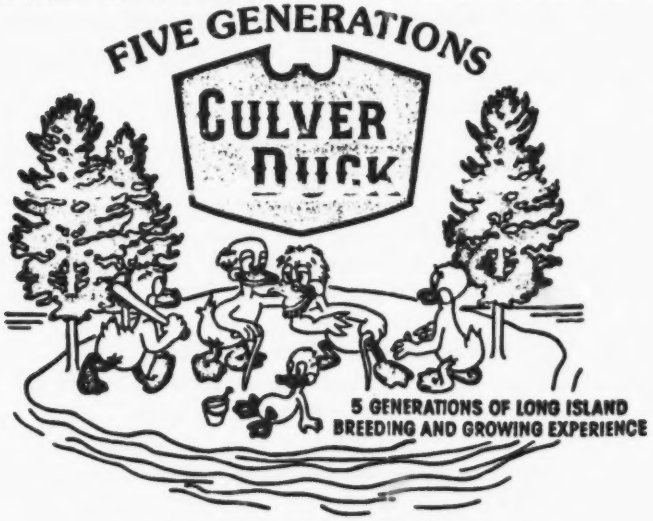
Duckling may be frozen in marinade sauce for later use. Grill marinated duckling over medium heat or fire, or roast in oven at 375° for approximately 25 to 30 minutes, (brushing or dipping into marinade sauce occasionally) until duckling is tender and browned. 3 suggested marinade sauces or use your favorite.
(1) 12 oz. can frozen undiluted orange juice, 1 T. curry, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 T. soy, Liquid smoke - optional. (2) 2 cups prepared barbeque sauce, with or without brown sugar and/or liquid smoke added. (3) place in blender and blend for 1 minute: 1 egg, 1 tbsp. salt, 1 tbsp. poultry seasoning, ¼ cup cooking oil, 1 cup cider vinegar, ½ tsp. pepper, Liquid smoke - optional.

Exhibit A



GRILLED DUCKLING

Thaw duckling in hot water, then quarter with sharp knife or poultry scissors. Place duckling in large kettle of water seasoned with: ginger, curry and salt. Simmer duckling in boiling water until just barely tender. Remove all fat by rinsing under running water. Marinate several hours or overnight in 12 oz. undiluted orange concentrate and 1 tbs. of ginger, while refrigerated. Place duckling on grill over medium low heat for 15 minutes, each side, basting frequently with remaining marinate.

PREPARATION OF COVERED BARBECUE EQUIPMENT

Arrange approximately 60 charcoal briquets in a circular pile; ignite throughly. Use an aluminum pan 12" x 18" x 2" deep and place in cooker. Surround aluminum pan with briquets. Place the duckling breast side up on top of the grill and directly above the aluminum pan so the drippings will fall into the pan. Cover and cook with all drafts open for 2 hours, basting with heated marmalade after each hour. Allow duckling to crispen for 30 minutes. Makes enough for 2 to 4 servings.
